ACTIVITIES OF THE MOON

Interesting Contribution by H. B. Collier in the Christian Guardian

The moon is a dead world. A most thorough autopsy indicates that nothing could be more so. A dried-up, wizened, scarred veteran, it bears the marks of terrible conflicts, of gigantic struggles. We know not its age. Did water once rush down those wondrous mountain gorges? Did the sea ripple and play about those towering capes Laplace and Heraclides, and then at times, angered by the restraint, dash madly against those rocky precipices. We can only guess. Our fancy pictures, in the distant past, smiling vegetation, with life, joy and happiness in a world of glory. But grim death came.

Like a mummy it is to-day. Life departed, embalmed, naught remains but the shrunken, desiccated, cracked carcass. The beauty of life is gone. Its history, its experiences written in the shroud are in mysterious hieroglyphics, of which man has been able to decipher but little. To-day no grass waves on the hillside. Not a single blade would give a welcome to the weary traveller. No bird warbles his cheery song there. Not even the loathsome, hated snake runs himself upon the many rocks. Not an insect flits about in quest of prey. Not a breath of air stirs. Not the slightest sign of life appears anywhere. Noise? No, the stillness of the eternal is there. Inconceivable desolation.

An Irishman once became engaged in an argument as to relative values of the sun and moon. Pat effectively argued that the moon was much superior to the sun in this remarkable statement. "Sure, now," said Pat, "the moon is worth siveral times as much as the sun, for does she not shine at night whin we need her, while the sun, the old fool, comes along in the daytime, whin there is lots of light.

Dark portions are old ocean beds. The cavities shown are the craters of extinct volcanoes. The size of these craters can be judged by that of Ptolemy, the central one in picture, which is 115 miles in diameter, practically equal to the whole of Lake Ontario.

A WONDERFUL MIRROR.

Humanity undoubtedly appreciates the soft silver glow of this wonderful mirror conveying to us in such subdued tones the rays of the dazzling sun. And while Pat was rather flattering in his appreciative references to the moon's kindness in selecting the night for its good deeds, we probably value its services the more with the dark night properly contrasted.

The blessing of moonlight, like many other gifts of the Creator, is treated with suspicion by some people. The philanthropist presents the beggar with a piece of gold. Scarcely thanking the donor, the recipient bites and otherwise tests the coin, doubtful of its genuineness. Thus some would deprive humanity of the joy of the moon's smiles, issuing warnings of the direful consequences to the person who would sleep with the moonlight upon his face, and other equally ridiculous relics of the barbarous, mythological past. A little girl of my acquaintance was so impressed with the warnings against the moonlight that she determined to prove the honest doubts of her pure young heart. So, pulling the cot to the window, she went to sleep, trustfully daring the moon to blind her as she placed her head in its path of brilliant light. Thus she proved for herself the fallacy of this most stupid, perverted belief.

The effect of moonlight upon the human brain was at one time thought to be baneful, and hence the word "lunacy" as a direct result of this misconception, in ignorance attributing to "Luna," the moon, the retributive effects of human misdeeds. The moon produces no light of itself, acting simply as a mirror to reflect the sunlight. Such light is, therefore, merely modified darlight, and scientific investigation proves it absolutely free from the slightest trace of anything harmful in any way.

Thus, having given the moonlight a spotless character, let us hereafter take the blessing in all its fullness, returning the smiles of the imaginary "man-in-the-moon," in the knowledge that not a single ray brings anything but joy to mankind.

THE MOON'S DUTIES.

Most people think the moon's sole duty is to give light. Really, this is but a very minor feature, and compares with the halo of glory that rests upon the truly great man. The honor, the glory, comes as a result of accomplishment. The moon is no haberdasher's dummy, just for display purposes. It works. Its duties are so important that I venture to state the moon is indispensable to the earth. "Do you get that?" I ask, borrowing for the moment the favourite pulpit expression of a famous Toronto preacher. "Indispensable" to the earth, with all the inventiveness of its inhabitants, sounds quite preposterous. We could easily dispense with the light it gives us, for at best this is a pretty uncertain feature in our climate. Yet this function appears to be a very important one. But let us consider its other duties, and endeavour to place a value upon their loss.

CAUSES TIDES.

Tides are caused mainly by the pulling power of the moon. Though the moon travels at a distance of 240,000 miles from the earth, the waters everywhere on this planet are affected. The shores are laved and cleansed. The mouths of the rivers discharging sewage and effete material gathered from the settlements along its banks, far up into the country, would soon develop into unthinkable conditions of pestilence were it not for the kindly services rendered by the tides. The moon is thus a mighty scavenger. Nature abhors rest and stagnation. For in stagnation is death. The sun keeps the atmosphere in a healthy condition of circulation through the agency of winds, and the moon performs a like service for the waters. Of course the wind assists in the important work of cleansing the waters, but it occupies a very minor place in comparison to the moon's action. Stagnation in the water, with consequent pollution, would spell death to its inhabitants. Could we exist on earth without sea life? It is doubtful. Our very existence now depends largely upon the kindly offices of birds, while fish and other sea life fills so important a place in the great scheme of the universe that their loss would appear quite fatal to not only many species of bird life subsisting directly upon this class of food, but prove disastrous to other dependent forms. It is impossible for us to conceive the actual results. And while speculations in such matters may appear idle, yet one must admit the benefits of such if they result in giving up a proper estimation of the true value of these apparently minor and insignificant features in the plan of the universe. The importance of the moon's work in this process of making the earth habitable for man and beast assumes a greatness—yes, an indispensable magnitude—in the light of careful investigation.

Besides this sanitary service, we are indebted to the moon for its assistance to navigation. Vessels are constantly "grounding," and have to wait until the moon comes along like a big, kind-hearted giant and lifts the ship off the shoal by means of a tidal wave. In many harbours a large proportion of the merchandise is transported by the agency of tides. Ships, heavily-laden rafts and barges are quietly taken in tow by this unobtrusive prime mover and carried considerable distances.

Another high function is served by aiding the navigator to track his course across the pathless ocean. In the determination of longitude the moon occupies a unique position in the basis of calculations.

A TIME-KEEPER.

As a time-keeper the moon has been extremely useful. Ancient peoples marked their months thereby. Lunar months are still in vogue with us in religious and other calendars. To-day we fix doubtful dates of historical events, or disputed points of chronology, through ancient eclipses. Eclipses always received careful record, in view of their mysterious influence. And as we can readily calculate the exact date of such, we have a definite date on which to base associated events.

WRONGLY BLAMED FOR WEATHER.

The moon, thus credited with so many useful agencies, has been wrongly blamed for weather conditions. The position of the new moon, for instance, whether it will "hold water" or not, is an important sign to the ignorant weather prophet. But this position of the moon looks just the same to practically half the earth, while the weather at Vancouver, Halifax, Paris and Rome will probably be vastly different. If one but stops to think that a line joining the tips of the "horns" is always perpendicular to a line joining the sun and moon, the reason for the tilted position will be apparent. The moon is merely a mirror, and what sunlight we see upon it depends entirely upon the position of the mirror in the sky in respect to the sun.

Though calumny is sure to be heaped upon my head by "moon-weather-prognosticators," I must solemnly declare that the moon has no effect upon the weather. That department is absolutely under the control of the sun, and the moon never interferes. The unequal distribution of heat upon the surface of the earth demands constant readjustment of the atmosphere. It is this wonderful provision of nature that brings the rain, or the snow, the winds and the many other features of "weather," with their beneficent effects. These changes must be credited to the influences of "Old Sol."

Geologists tell us of the marvellous changes ages have wrought upon the earth. Disintegrating and denuding elements have eroded and obliterated the surface here, changing it again and again. A study of the moon shows the surface there in an unchangeable condition, as though fresh from the die of the Creator's workshop. Surely, as we gaze upon its pristine beauty, our estimation of the peopled globe is enlarged, and we are thereby made happier?

WARRANT ISSUED?

No Official News of Action in Case of J. W. Moyes

BROTHER BLAMES HYDRO

TORONTO, May 14.—Although no official information was forthcoming it was reported last night that a warrant had been issued for the arrest of J. W. Moyes, promoter of the Ontario West Shore Railway. The action was decided upon at four o'clock yesterday afternoon at a conference between William Proudfoot, K.C., M.P.P., for the council of Ashfield Township; Inspector of Detectives Kennedy, and Crown Attorney Corley. The warrant was made out by five o'clock, it is declared.

"My brother would have been much better off in every way if he had not touched that thing at all," said the brother of John W. Moyes last evening in discussing the Railway Board report on the Ontario West Shore Railway. He went on to say that the report might easily have been expected from the attitude of personal antagonism that Chairman McIntyre had shown throughout the hearing. He characterized the findings as vindictive and misrepresentative of the conduct of the enterprise. The irregularities were largely imagined, and if his brother were to be subjected to such treatment as should others who had begun railways in a similar fashion.

"My brother never made a dishonest dollar or any sort of a dollar out of the undertaking," he declared. "The commission proceeds to make capital against my brother out of the fact of Mr. Smoke's death."

He claimed in addition that the board had heard nothing but ridiculous estimates of the enormous amounts his brother had taken, and called attention to the examination of F. H. McGuigan to prove it. If his brother's health had permitted or the board had searched for facts this would have been learned. His brother had put in more than he ever took out, but the enterprise of the Hydro-Electric Commission had spoiled it all.

Banquet For Laurier.

OTTAWA, May 14.—The Liberals met in caucus yesterday morning and it was held to make plans for a dinner to Sir Wilfrid on his completion of forty years in public life. Sir Wilfrid first entered Parliament in 1874.

The Czar of Russia is expected to pay a visit to Paris in October.

Dr. Fred. R. Smith, of Damascus Temple, Rochester, N.Y., was elected Imperial Potentate of the Mystic Shrine, at its annual conclave in Atlanta, Ga.

The death occurred in London yesterday of Mrs. Isabella Fyvie Mayo, the Scottish novelist, at the age of 71. She also wrote under the name of "Edward Garrett."

The body of Mrs. Pugsley, wife of Hon. William Pugsley, was buried yesterday afternoon. Wreaths were sent from the Liberal members of Parliament and the N. B. House.

Mary Ansell, the militant suffragette who on May 12 in the Royal Academy slashed with a hatchet the portrait of the Duke of Wellington, was sent to prison for six months yesterday.

"Le Temps," an Ottawa French daily, has been purchased by A. E. Rea, of the A. E. Rea company, and will be conducted as a Government organ. It has hitherto been Liberal in politics.

An earthquake of brief duration occurred at Ogden, Utah, at 10.14 yesterday morning, causing considerable excitement in tall buildings and breaking large windows in the business district.

MUST DEAL WITH IT.

Suffrage Issue Faces Legislators Says Speaker at Rome.

ROME, N.Y., May 14.—Rev. Dr. Anna Shaw yesterday delivered a striking address on "Woman Suffrage" at the fourth public meeting under the auspices of the International Council of Women, and in the presence of a distinguished audience. Dr. Shaw said the first duty of patriotic women was to bring the practical life of governments into harmony with the fundamental principles of governments which demands the laws governing the people give equal privileges and equal opportunities to all regardless of sex.

During the past five years, she said, woman suffrage had grown from an academic to a practical question, and all political parties had realised that it was one with which governments must speedily deal. She declared that the growth of the suffrage movement had been proved in several ways.

Regulate Rights at Falls.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—A compromise bill to regulate the water power diversion at Niagara Falls was agreed upon at a conference yesterday between Secretary of War Garrison and Representatives Harrison, Cline and Cooper, representing the House committee on foreign affairs. The bill gives the Secretary of War the right to issue revocable permits for a daily diversion averaging 15,600 cubic feet per second on the American side and for the importation of 250,000 horsepower from the Canadian side.

TAMPICO IS TAKEN

Federals Evacuate City and Retreat Towards San Luis Potosi

CONFLICT WAS DESPERATE

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Evacuation of Tampico by the Mexican Federal garrison began at 12.50 p.m. yesterday, according to a relayed wireless despatch to the Navy Department from Rear Admiral Mayo. The Federal troops were leaving by the railroad.

Rear Admiral Mayo, at Tampico, reported to the Navy Department last night, that at 2 p.m. yesterday the Mexican Federal gunboats Bravo and Zaragoza steamed out of the Panuco river and anchored near the foreign warships outside.

The gunboats had been the chief support of the garrison and their flight was accepted by naval officers here as meaning that the Constitutionalists were about to occupy the town.

That the rebels encountered desperate resistance in their final attack on Tampico, and that they were compelled to carry their fight to the heart of the town, was indicated by Rear Admiral Mayo's report. He stated that at one o'clock yesterday afternoon, when it was reported the rebels had occupied Tampico, there was heavy firing in the plaza and that big gun firing continued.

Advices received by Constitutionalists here stated the Federals were evacuating Tampico, but details were lacking.

The Federals were retreating by way of the railroad leading to San Luis Potosi, and it was assumed that they hoped to reach Pachuca, the terminus of a railway line that leads indirectly to Mexico City. The railroad out of Tampico to Monterey is held by the Constitutionalists.

The taking of Tampico, the port next in importance to Vera Cruz, will raise many interesting questions, as the Constitutionalists have hitherto held no sea coast towns. It is possible that the Federal gunboats outside the harbor, reported by Rear Admiral Mayo, may seek to prevent arms and supplies from landing at Tampico, but such an interference with international commerce might not be tolerated by the big foreign ships lying there, and complications are possible. As there is an embargo on the exportation of arms into Mexico from the United States, ammunition could be shipped only from European ports, and hitherto there has been no interference by Gen. Huerta with foreign commerce other than that with the United States. With success at Tampico, the Constitutionalists will press hard for possession of Saltillo and San Luis Potosi, where the garrison from Tampico is believed to have fled.

First formal steps in the program of mediation in the Mexican problem were taken here yesterday. Justice Lamar and Frederic W. Lehmann, together with their secretary, H. Perceval Dodge, who will represent the United States, paid their respects to the three South American envoys who have undertaken by diplomacy to solve the Mexican question.

The representatives were presented by Counsellor Robert Lansing, acting Secretary of State, in the absence of Mr. Bryan. It was a call of courtesy, but paved the way for informal conferences in advance of the first meeting at Niagara Falls, Ont., next Monday.

Coincidentally, word was received by the mediators direct from the Mexican Foreign Minister at Mexico City that the Huerta representatives would arrive at Havana last night or this morning and leave immediately for Niagara Falls via Key West. An earlier despatch from Consul Canada at Vera Cruz intimated that the Huerta delegates might delay several days at Havana.

YOUNG BURGLARS CAUGHT.

Seven Galt Boys Held On Charge of Looting House.

GALT, May 14.—Miss Dickson's residence, which in the absence of the mistress abroad has been left in charge of a servant, was entered by burglars and ransacked from cellar to garret. Every room was visited. The drawers of bureaus, sideboards, desks, and other articles of furniture were opened and their contents strewn over the floor. Closets and trunks were emptied, and a general search of the interior made for valuables. The housekeeper discovering the raid, notified Chief of Police Gorman, who found a clue which led to the rounding up yesterday of seven boys, the oldest 15, suspected of the crime. Two more are wanted, but have disappeared. Just how much loot was secured is not known, but a considerabel quantity of stolen stuff has been recovered. The boys were remanded till Saturday to allow the police time for additional work on the case.

Panic Broke Out In Crowd.

CHICAGO, May 14.—The return of the body of Samuel Meisenberg, the Chicago boy who was among the first of the American marines to lose his life in the occupation of Vera Cruz, was marked by a panic in the City Hall, where the body lay in state for three hours yesterday.

So great was the rush to view the catafalque in the rotunda of the municipal building that scores of women fainted, while men, caught in the smothering press, cried for air. Only the names of 12 women who succumbed were obtained by the police, but among these were Mrs. Morris Meisenberg, mother of the dead marine.

WAITERS APPROVE.

Anti-Tipping Bill Makes Considerable Advance In Senate.

OTTAWA, May 14. — The Senate gave the bill against tipping a long step forward yesterday by putting it through the committee stage.

Senator Davis, the author of the bill, said he thought there should be an amendment, which would make a distinction between the penalties provided against employers and employes. He would not like to see a boy or girl who took remuneration for helping a rich person in a hotel fined $25 or $50 or given a term in jail. If employers were under penalties they would see their employes took no tips. The Senator said that in Winnipeg and Montreal waiters had formally expressed their approval of the bill.

Hon. Arthur Meighen introduced in the Commons yesterday morning a bill permitting the establishment of co-operative credit societies throughout the country. He said that the measure was practically the same as the measure introduced last session, and it did not differ essentially from the measure introduced in 1907.

Hon. J. D. Hazen brought in a bill to provide loans of nine and two million dollars for the Montreal and Quebec Harbor Commissions. The loans are to run twenty years and the interest rate is to be 3 1-2 per cent.

In a bill introduced by Hon. Mr. White the number of commissioners of the national battlefields of Quebec is increased from five to seven, and they are given power to pass bylaws to administer the affairs of the commission. They shall also have power to purchase without waiting for an order in council lands already authorized by Parliament to be purchased, when the funds have been provided.

Canadian as Governor-General.

OTTAWA, May 14. — That Canadians should be eligible for any position in Canada and that the office of Governor-General should be filled by a Canadian is the conclusion of John E. Ewart, K.C., in a statement to the Canadian press yesterday respecting the Prince of Teck's appointment, to which, however, he raises no objections.

CHILDREN'S EYESIGHT

An astonishing number of school children suffer from the effects of imperfect vision, and many of them are unjustly blamed for being unambitious or mentally stupid. It has been shown by authentic investigation under municipal direction that from 20 to 30 per cent. of the children in public schools have defective vision and oh said wear Glasses.

We make a specialty of examining children's sight by the most improved scientific methods, and if your child does not need glasses we will tell you so frankly, and make no charge for the examination. We carry a special line of heavy weight Children's Spectacle Frames in Gold Filled and Aluminum.

Should your child require glasses we guarantee that the glasses we fit are the proper correction and will give best results.

IOWA WOMAN TELLS OTHERS

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Carried Her Safely Through Change of Life.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa.—"At the Change of Life the doctor said I would have to give up my work and take my bed for some time as there was no help for me but to lie still. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and kept up my work and now I am over the Change and that is all I took. It was better for me than all the doctor's medicines I tried. Many people have no faith in patent medicines but I know this is good."—Mrs. E. J. RICKERT, 354 8th Avenue, West, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness, are promptly heeded by intelligent women who are approaching the period in life when woman's great change may be expected.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound invigorates and strengthens the female organism and builds up the weakened nervous system. It has carried many women safely through this crisis.

If there are any complications you don't understand write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass.

OUR SERIAL STORY PAGE

"THE TERMS OF SURRENDER"

By LOUIS TRACY

"The left."

"Were you thrown?"

"No."

The stranger noted the soiled condition of the injured man's clothing. He saw that a spur had been torn off, and among the drying dirt on Power's face and hands were some ominous streaks; since a man may not squirm in agony beneath a shower of jagged granite and escape some nasty abrasions of the skin.

"I see," he said gently. "You fell from up there somewhere," and he looked at the cliff, "tripped over that missing spur, I supose. Well, what's to be done? Were you at the ranch? I didn't happen to come across you. Shall I take you there?"

"No, please—to Bison—to MacGonigal's store."

"Ah, yes. But it's an awkward business. You can't possibly hold yourself in the saddle. Can you stand on one leg, even for a few seconds?"

"I fear not. I'm about done."

"But if I carry you to the face of the rock there, and prop you against it?"

"Yes, I'll do that."

This friend in need pulled the reins over the pony's head, passed them through his arm, lifted Power, not without some difficulty, and brought him to a spot where the precipice rose like a wall.

"There you are!" he gasped; for he was of slender proportions, and Power's weight was deceptive, owing to his perfect physical fitness. "Now I'll mount, and hold you as comfortably as I can; but I don't know how this fat gegee will behave under a double load, so I must have my hands free at first. Will you grip me tight? It may hurt like sin——"

"Go right ahead!" send Power.

Sure enough, when the pony found what was expected of him, he snorted, raised head and tail, and trotted a few indignant paces.

The rider soon quieted him to a walk; but they were abreast of the scene of Power's accident before he was aware that the man clasping his body had uttered neither word nor groan, though the prancing of the horse must have caused him intense agony.

"By Jove!" came the involuntary cry, "you've got some sand! I'd have squealed like a stuck pig if I was asked to endure that. Who are you? I'm Robert H. Benson, Mr. Marten's private secretary."

"My name is Power," was the answer, in a thick murmur.

"Bower?"

"No—Power."

"Not John Darien Power, who was at Sacramento?"

"Yes."

"Gee whiz! I've written you several letters. You remember my initials, R.H.B.?"

"Yes."

"Can you talk? Say if you'd rather not."

"No, no. It's all right. Anyhow—I'd—sooner—try."

"Does the boss know you're here?"

"I gues not., I wrote him—to Denver ;but he's been engaged—otherwise."

"Ra-ther! Getting wed. You've heard? I'm sure you're as much surprised as any of us. You could have knocked me down with a feather when he told me why I was wired to come West by next train from New York. 'I want you to take hold,' he said. 'I'm off to Europe for six months on my wedding trip.' That was the day before yesterday, and here he's gone already! I had a sort of notion, too, that our beloved employer would never take unto himself a wife, or, if he did, that the U.S.A. would hear about it."

A hard smile illuminated the pallor of Power's face. "Marten doesn't hire a brass band when he has any startling proposition in mind," he said.

Benson laughed. He was a cheerful, outspoken youngster—exactly the kind of private secretary the secretive millionaire might have been expected to avoid like the plague, if Marten had not chosen him deliberately because of those very qualities.

"No," he chuckled. "You and I know that, don't we? But signing on for a wife is a different matter to securing an option on a placer mine. I should have thought there would be things doing when H. M. joined the noble army of benedicts, especially after he had sorted out such a daisy. . . . Sorry, Power! The peak of this saddle must be dashed uncomfortable. And, perhaps, I'm not carrying you to rights. One ought to be taught these things. Now, a cavalry soldier would be trained in the art of picking up a wounded mate, and in carrying him, too."

"It's not far. I can last out."

"You don't mind having a powwow? Guess you prefer it? You knew Miss Willard, I suppose? By the way, were you coming to the wedding?"

"No. I am here by chance."

"Well, of course, I rather fancied that. If I had been asked offhand how much time that Sacramento job would use up, I should have said another three months, at least. Is all the machinery there?"

"Yes."

"Pumps and all?"

"Yes."

"Sorry if I appear inquisitive, but——"

"The pumps are working. I got a hustle on the contractors."

"Great Scott! I should think so, indeed. They'll make a song about it in Chicago. Have you sent in the consulting engineer's certificate?"

"Yes. It's in Denver."

"Then I'll tell you something that is good for broken legs. The boss was talking of you only yesterday. He said you were to collect five thousand dollars when the placer mine was in shape. He forgets nothing, does he?"

"Nothing."

Power's stricken state was sufficient excuse for any seeming lack of gratitude, and his rescuer's mind reverted to the more immediate topic of the marriage.

"I asked you if you were acquainted with Miss Willard," he went on. "Naturally, you must have seen her often. She was born and bred on this ranch, I believe."

"Bred here, yes; but born near Pueblo, I've been told."

"Say, isn't she a peach?"

"A pretty girl, very."

"Rather quiet, though. Kind of subdued, to my taste. Life on the Dolores ranch must have been a mighty tough proposition, I imagine. But she'll brighten up as Mrs. Marten. They all do."

"Is Marten a sultan, then"

The private secretary chortled over the joke. "I'm jiggered if I could have pulled off a wheeze like that if I had been chucked off a cliff and my leg was out of gear!" he cried. "No, my boy, Marten has a clean record in that respect. I've never known him look twice at any woman; though he's had chances in plenty. What I mean is that these sweet young things who have never seen a real store, and don't know sable from dyed rabbit, wake up amazingly when they're Mrs. Somebody of Somewhere. Look at Mrs. Van Pieter! A year ago she was keeping tab on people who hired her father's canoes at Portland, Maine, and it's hardly a week since I met her in Tiffany's, matching pearls at a thousand dollars a pick."

"What were you doing in Tiffany's?"

The question seemed to take Benson by surprise; but, though he might be talkative as a parrot, he did not discuss his employer's personal behests.

"Having a look around'" he said. "I thought you might be buying Mrs. Marten's weding gift," went on Power.

"Well, as a guesser, you'd come out first in a prize competition."

"It was—just—curiosity. I wondered—what—Marten gave her."

"That's no secret. She wore it today. A collarette of diamonds."

"Ah, a collar! Has it a golden padlock? Is there a leash?"

"Say, now! Aren't you pretty bad? We're going downhill, and it jolts. But we're near that store. What's the name?"

"MacGonigal's."

"To be sure. I had forgotten. Queer fellow, the proprietor. Looks like a character out of Brete Harte's novels. Is there a doctor in Bison?"

"Yes—of a sort. He's sober, some days."

"Let's hope this is one of the days."

"Drunk or sober, he can pull a leg straight and tie it in splints."

"But it ought to be fixed in plaster of Paris. That's the latest dodge. Then you'll be able to hobble about in less than a month. Why, here's the storekeeper himself. He must have been looking this way."

"He was expecting me. I promised to meet him about four o'clock."

"Well, you're on time."

"Thanks to you."

"Ah, come off! A lot I've done; though I do believe it was better to keep up a steady flow of chatter than to be asking you every ten yards how you were feeling. . . . Hi, there! I've brought your friend Power; but he's in rather bad shape. Had a fall up in the Gulch, and one leg is crocked."

The pony needed no urging to halt, and Power, whose head was sunk between his shoulders, looked up as if he would become insensible again at the mere thought of renewed exertion.

"A fall!" repeated MacGonigal, moving ponderously to the near side, and peering up into Power's face. "Well, ef I ain't dog-goned! What sort of a fall?"

"Just the common variety—downward," said Benson. "His left leg is broken below the knee. Can you hold him till I hitch this fiery steed to a post? Then I'll help him to a bedroom. After that, if I can be of any use, tell me what to do, or where to go—for the doctor, I mean."

By this time MacGonigal had assured himself that Power's clothing was not full of bullet holes, and he began to believe that Benson, whom he recognized, was telling the truth.

"Give him to me," he said, with an air of quiet self-confidence. "Back of some sugar casks in the warehouse thar you'll find a stretcher. Bring that along, an' we'll lay him in the verandah till the doc shows up."

Soon the hardly conscious sufferer was reposing with some degree of comfort in a shaded nook with his back to the light. MacGonigal, whose actions were strangely deft-handed and gentle for so stout a man, was persuading him to drink some brandy.

"He has collapsed all at once," said Benson commiseratingly. "He perked up and chatted in great shape while I was bringing him through the Gulch."

"Did he now? . . . Yes, Derry, it's me, Mac. Just another mouthful. . . . An' what did he talk about, Mr. Benson?"

"Oh, mostly about the wedding. I guess."

"Nat'rally. He'd be kind of interested in hearin' how Marten had scooped up Nancy Willard."

Some acrid quality in the storekeeper's tone must have pierced the fog which had settled on Power's brain. He raised a hand to push away the glass held to his lips.

"Say, I've only secured a broken leg, Mac," he murmured, smiling into the anxious face bent over him "I don't want to be doped as well. Perhaps Mr. Benson will mount that nag of his, and bring Peters."

"Look here, Derry, hadn't we better send to Denver?"

"No. Peters has set dozens of legs and arms."

"I guess he's back at the ranch. He went thar, an' I hain't seen him among the crowd."

"Is he a tall, red-whiskered chap, with a nose that needs keeping out of the sun?" broke in Benson.

"Yep. That's him."

"Well, he's there now—and—not so bad. Does he really understand bone-setting?"

"Sure. He's all right when not too much in likker."

"I'll have him here in half an hour."

Benson whistled to the dog, and they heard the clattering hoofbeats of the cob's hurried departure. MacGonigal brought a chair, and sat by his friend's side.

"Was it a reel tumble, Derry?" he asked softly.

"Seems like it, Mac. Don't worry your kind old fat head. No one saw me. Let me lie quiet now, there's a good soul. I've done enough thinking for to-day."

"Say, Boy, kin yer smoke"

"No—not till the doc is through."

MacGonigal bit the end off a cigar, bit it viciously, as if he were annoyed at it. Then he struck a match by drawing it sharply along the side of his leg, and lit the cigar; but not another word did he utter until a thunder of hoofs disturbed the hot silence of the afternoon.

"Guess that's some of the boys comin' from the depot," whispered Mac. "They'll not suspicion you're here, Derry, an' I'll soon have a stampede by tellin' 'em the doc is loose among the bottles."

True to his promise, he got rid of the thirsty ones quickly; for this smaller batch had not even awaited the departure of the train.

"Air you awake, Derry?" he inquired, when he had crept back softly to his chair.

"Yes."

"What's this yarn about One-thumb Jake shootin' a rattler?"

"I—don't know. He didn't shoot me, Mac. I got slammed on a rock, good and hard."

"I on'y axed because I'm fairly fed up with Jake and his gun-play."

"Ah, quit it, you sleuth. Jake wouldn't pull his gun on me, not even at Marten's bidding."

"He kin be the biggest damn fool in Bison when he's loaded. Anyhow, I'll take your say-so."

There was another period of quietude, when brooding thought sat heavy on MacGonigal, and pain gnawed Power with its sharpest tooth. Then came the sound of galloping horses again, and Benson appeared, guiding a big man who rolled in his walk; for the fast canter had stirred many varieties of alcohol in an overburdened system. The private secretary's voice was raised in order that the others might hear.

"I would advise you to bandage the limb sufficiently to give Mr. Power some sort of ease until Dr. Stearns comes from Denver," he was urging. "I am sure that Mr. Marten would wish this case to be attended by his own doctor, and I know Dr. Stearn attends him."

"Stearn! What does that old mutt know about surgery?" shouted Peters. "I could set a compound fracture while he was searching around for his eyeglasses. . . . Hullo, Mac! You're always the right man in the right place. Bring me in a highball, to clear the dust out of the pipes."

"You jest fix Derry first, Peters, an' you kin hev two highballs."

The red-whiskered man, whose medical degree was a blend of sheer impudence and a good deal of rough-and-ready experience, knew MacGonical so well that he did not attempt to argue.

"Very well," he said sulkily. "Break up an egg box, and saw it into eighteen-inch lengths, four inches wide. You have a roll of lint and scissors? I'll rip up his trousers, and have a look at the place."

His actions were decided, but somewhat awkward. When Power winced because of a careless handling of the injured limb, he only guffawed.

"Nips you a bit!" he grunted. "Of course it does. I'd like to know what you expected. Did you fancy you could flop over the Gulch like a crow? . . . . Oh, here we are! Just an ordinary smash. Hurry up with those splints, Mac. Now, just set your teeth and grin hard while I pull. . . . . There! Did you hear it? I'll not hurt you more than I can help while I do the dressing. Got any bromide in that den of yours, Mac? Well, give him a ten-grain dose every three hours till he sleeps. Get the rest of his clothes off, keep him in bed for three weeks, and the rest may be safely left to Nature. Gee whizz! I'm chewing mud. Where in hell do you keep your whisky?"

"Doctor" Peters had a professional manner which did not inspire confidence; but he seemed to understand what he was about, and Benson, when he could be of no further service, went to the reduction mill, where he had business which detained him until a late hour. Next morning, on his way to Denver, he called at the store, and visited Power, who was feeling a great deal better, and was confident that the damaged limb would soon be as sound as ever.

To Put On Flesh And Increase Weight

A Physician's Advice

Most thin people eat from four to six pounds of good solid fat-making food every day and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, chunky folks eat very lightly and keep gaining all the time. It's all bosh to say that this is the nature of the individual. It isn't Nature's way at all.

Thin folks stay thin because their powers of assimilation are defective. They just absorb enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Stuffing won't help them. A dozen meals a day won't make them gain a single "stay there" pound. All the fat-producing elements of their food just stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste. What such people need is something that will prepare these fatty food elements so that their blood can absorb them and deposit them all about the body—something, too, that will multiply their red blood corpuscles and increase their blood's carrying power.

For such a condition I always recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe, a patented drug, but is a scientific combination of six of the most effective and powerful flesh-building elements known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless, yet wonderfully effective and a single tablet eaten with each meal often has the effect of increasing the weight of a thin man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.

She Missed Queen Victoria.

Lole Fuller in her book tells us how she failed to see Queen Victoria, a misfortune due to the exigencies of theatrical contracts.

"One day at Nice some one came and asked me to dance before Queen Victoria. She had just arrived at the Riviera to pass the winter months, as she was accustomed to do every year. It may well be believed that I was flattered by such a request. I assented naturally, and set myself to work making all my preparations for this important event.

"There was a knock at the door. A maid brought a telegram. It was signed by my manager and was couched in the following words: 'Take train this evening, to sail day after tomorrow; destination, New York.'

"I replied with a message pleading for a delay for the purpose of dancing before Queen Victoria. I received simply the following laconic telegram: 'Impossible. Leave at once. Time is money.'

"That's why I did not dance before Queen Victoria."

Miss Eva Jory conducted the meeting.

The Bible lesson was read by Mr. H. Payne, and the topic presented by Mr. R. MacDonald. The topic was on the subject, "Social Aspects of Home Missions."

Oily skin and shiny nose

How to correct them

That bug-bear of so many women—an oily skin and shiny nose—has various contributory causes.

Whatever the cause in your case, proper external treatment will relieve your skin of this embarrassing condition.

Begin this treatment tonight

With warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub into the pores thoroughly—always using an upward and outward motion. Rinse with warm water, then with cold—the colder the better. If possible, rub your face for a few minutes with a piece of ice.

This treatment with Woodbury's will make your skin fresher and clearer the first time you use it. Make it a nightly habit and before long you will see a decided improvement—a promise of that lovelier complexion which the steady use of Woodbury's always brings.

Do this today—now! Tear out the illustration of the cake below and put it in your purse as a reminder to get Woodbury's and try this treatment. Tear out the coke now. Take it to your druggist today. Begin tonight to get the benefit of this treatment. For sale by Canadian druggists from coast to coast, including Newfoundland.

Bowing to the Moon.

Among the natives of Abyssinia there existed and probably still exists a curious pagan custom of bowing to the moon on certain nights at the commencement of the new year.

Selecting a clear space on the ground, free from all rocks and boulders, the elders of the community kneel down, one behind the other, and, as soon as it is midnight, begin a dolorous chant to the moon.

They keep this up for half an hour or so, when all rise, and, forming a circle, stand still, their arms motionless by their sides. A young girl now approaches them and walks round the circle, calling out: "You are all right. Your shadow is there." Should she pause and say, "Friend, there is no shadow behind you. Alas—alas!" then the person she thus addresses is destined to die within the next twelve months.

Nigeria's Paradise.

With no taxes to pay and no wearisome restrictions to undergo, living in a land so fruitful that a few weeks' labor is enough to supply them with food, home and clothes for a whole year, the Ekoi, natives of extreme southern Nigeria, on the equator, should be and probably are among the happiest people on earth, according to P. A. Talbot, African explorer, of London. "The Ekoi are devoted parents," he writes. "They have curious beliefs as to the advent and death of their babies. One charming superstition forbids all quarreling in a house where there are little children. The latter, so they say, love sweet words, kind looks and gentle voices, and if these are not to be found in the family into which they have been reincarnated they will close their eyes and forsake the earth till a chance offers to return again amid less quarrelsome surroundings.

When England Had Duels.

Probably the last duel brought about in England through indiscretions in print was the encounter between John Arthur Roebuck and John Black on Nov. 19, 1835. Roebuck, who was then member of parliament for Bath, had issued a pamphlet bitterly attacking newspapers in general and the Morning Chronicle in particular, and for this he was challenged by the editor of the Chronicle. Black was a practiced duelist, having been out thirteen times before, but the dwarfike figure of his opponent offered a poor target, and two shots were exchanged without result. Eight years later a speech of Roebuck's at the house of commons provoked a challenge from John Somers, M. P. for Sligo. He not only declined to fight, but reported the matter to the speaker, who severely rebuked the pugnacious Irishman.—London Chronicle.

Song of the Signal Man.

By Ernest Dupuy.

I.

Plottin' routes on war-maps;
Gettin' sleep in cat-naps;
Tellin' flustered colonels exactly where they are.
Reelin' out on buzzer lines,
Peelin' eyes for smoke signs;
Info' for the "Old Man," gathered near and far.

II.

Ridin' with the scout-screen,
Seein' what's to be seen,
Radio goes trottin', mule team on a spree.
Soon it's "Open Station!"
Workin' like 'tarnation,
Settin' up the pack-set; poundin' on the key.

III.

Huskies on the hand cranks
Makin' the old mill clank;
Humpin' up their shoulders, turnin' out the juice.
Operator sweatin',
Section chief a-frettin',
Gotta get headquarters; won't take no excuse.

IV.

Driver of a reel cart—
Tell you, that's a real art
Handlin' of your clutches; payin' out the line.
Lancemen ridin' after
Ain't got time for laughter;
Tellin' with their pikepoles; dastn't waste their time.

V.

River swiftly flowin';
Got to keep on goin';
Ain't no ford across it? Wig wag, swim or flash.
Lines of information,
Miles of separation,
Must at once connect 'em, by the dot and dash.

VI.

Buzzer, flag or lamp;
Telephone in camp.
Often have to carry word; rider sometimes lost.
Slogan of the Signal Corps,
Words that are our only law;
Gotta get the stuff through, mustn't mind the cost.

WITH the main body of the independent cavalry pushing far ahead of the army as it advances through Mexico—if war continues—will be a little group of mounted men, twelve in number. With them as they trot along will be pack animals bearing mysterious boxes, and sections of pole will be fastened to their pack saddles. Lean, bronzed and wiry, the pick of the service, riding with the easy seat of the Yankee trooper, goes this little detachment of the Signal Corps—the nervous system of the army.

Very similar in construction to the human body is Uncle Sam's field army of to-day. It has a brain, a body and a nervous system providing for the orderly co-ordinated movements of as many as the brain may wish. Without this delicate nervous system the human body is only a helpless mass of flesh. So too with the field army. Its brain, it is commonly said, is the general staff; the limbs and trunk are the troops of the line—cavalry, infantry and artillery. The nerves, thrilling from brain to muscle the impulses directing the great body, are the men of the Signal Corps. Without that body the field army is helpless.

The army pushes its way through hostile territory. Well in advance of the main body of the independent cavalry, far flung over the country, a flexible screen, scouting out the enemy, preventing his patrols from reconnoitering and blocking his troops from coming into a position where they could attack in force. "Keep in touch" is the order that the commander of the independent cavalry has received.

The "Screen" Meets the Enemy.

Comes a clatter of rifle fire from the front, the signal that the screen has come in contact with a hostile force. The advance guard engages, drawing out the enemy, disclosing his strength. Far to the rear is the commander of the field army. How is the cavalry commander to give him in detail the information that he has obtained? In olden times mounted messengers would have gone back at full gallop, running the risk of falling into the hands of covered forces of the enemy, of being ambushed by guerrillas. To-day the field radio set solves the problem and avoids delays.

The cavalry commander scribbles out a message for the general, telling him just what he needs to know, and turns it over to the sergeant riding at the head of the Signal Corps detachment, with the little silk crossed flags under his chevrons.

"Open station," calls the section chief. Out of the column the riders turn, dismount, the horses are linked in a circle and left to one man, the horse holder, while the others fling themselves at the pack animals. Off come boxes, poles and all the impedimenta they are carrying.

On the leading pack horse is a little iron frame. The instant that it touches the ground one man springs upon it, folding a section of pole from which radiate four shining strands of phosphor bronze wire, the antennae, which four men are paying out from hand reels. The man on the frame raises the pole, another man slips under it another section. A snap, it is fastened and the pole goes up higher. Section after section is added until the mast, steadied by three men, towers sixty feet in the air.

The section chief waves his hand. The antennae men drive insulated pegs into the ground, belay the ends of the antennae and run back to drag out on the ground four long lines of rubber covered wire. This is the counterpoise, or artificial ground. The operator opens the chest carried on the other animal, adjusts several mysterious wires, couples the chest to a wire from the mast and connects with the ground. Upon the iron frame is fastened a little dynamo, a half kilowatt hand generator, the cranks of which four men grasp. The generator is connected to the instrument chest; the crank men start heaving.

Back in headquarters, or in a place designated by the general, a similar piece of apparatus is set up. This stays there for the day, for the army moves but slowly, while from it a buzzer line extends to the actual whereabouts of the general himself.

In the school of modern warfare, as laid down by the War College of the United States Army, the duty of the Signal Corps is defined as the "certain transmission of information and orders regardless of conditions."

The Versatile Buzzer

In our own army the electricians of the Signal Corps developed the buzzer, the marvelous little instrument that is a combined field telephone and telegraph. The wire from this is laid out from two-horse reel carts, and can be paid out on the gallop if necessary. The wire lies on the ground, and the buzzer is of such sensitive construction that cases have been known where it was possible to work through breaks in the line up to distances of fifteen feet. Besides this the buzzer can be coupled to commercial telegraph lines, and worked without interfering with them. The buzzer will work over any sort of electrical conductor.

A field company of Signal Corps consists of 100 officers and men, all mounted, divided into six sections. Four of these are wire sections, each provided with a reel cart carrying ten miles of field wire. The other two sections are radio sections, equipped each with the field pack radio set, with a radius of from twenty-five to forty miles.

If the buzzers break down, if the pack sets are shot to pieces, then the Signal Corps has recourse to the heliograph. This, of course, can be used only in sunny weather. The old fashioned wig wag will be called into action as a last resource, and in emergencies only, when all other means fail, for the flags attract attention and offer a mark for hostile fire, besides being slow. At night the flash lamp, with an acetylene flame, and the searchlight can be used. If all other means fail, the messages will be transmitted by hand. The regulations require, as I have said before, "the CERTAIN transmission of information and orders, REGARDLESS OF CONDITIONS." The Signal Corps trooper who in the Philippines climbed a telegraph pole and repaired a break in the line under a hot fire exemplified the type of Uncle Sam's signal men. The first man to fall at Vera Cruz was a signal man.

The New York National Guard, the only complete division of the organized militia, has its full complement of signal troops, the First battalion Signal Corps, under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Frederick T. Leigh, himself a Spanish War veteran. Company A, in Manhattan, is commanded by Captain William L. Hallahan; Company B, in Brooklyn, by Captain George E. Schenck.

The First Battalion Signal Corps, N. G. N. Y. is the nervous system of the Division National Guard of New York. Major General John F. O'Ryan is the brains of the division. New York's signal troops will carry out their part in making that division a perfect fighting machine.

Company A holds the enviable reputation of being the best field company of Signal Corps in the entire National Guard.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

HIS ONLY CLUE

At the bottom of Linda's shirt waist box was her first silk dress. She kept it covered, for the sight of it hurt, yet she could not part with it.

Such an old-fashioned pattern as it was! Baby blue liberally sprinkled with tiny black dots. But the dear great-aunt Linda, who had reared her namesake, had deemed it most suitable to buy it for Linda's eighteenth birthday. It was worn shabby now, and Aunt Linda innocently thought the girl treasured it as her first silk dress.

One day Linda deliberately removed the dress from its wrapper and for a long time sat in deep thought. It was seven years since the dress was new. It hardly seemed possible. She had been engrossed in studying music and obtaining pupils. The only indication of flying time was the progress in engagements and weddings of her old schoolmates. They were always advising her to "do likewise."

Linda looked out the window and across the yard. The little cottage next door fairly shone. The polished windows blinked in the afternoon sun and the muslin curtains were stiff with recent starching. Mrs. Stone was expecting her son Fred soon, and great had been her preparations.

The girl looked again at the dress until she found a scant place in one of the voluminous ruffles. She recalled the time that somebody had spilled punch on the ruffle, and how puzzled her orderly aunt had been at her unsuccessful search for silk with which to replace the stained part. A small piece had been left where the dress was completed, but it could not be found. And so the stained part had been cut out and the ruffle rejoined, thereby making it quite scant in one place.

Now the missing piece of silk had long ago been converted into a pin cushion and anonymously mailed to Fred when he parted for college. It was an odd gift, but Lindo was poor and also an old-fashioned girl. She loved him, but sent the gift anonymously.

Knowing that, Linda had always been sensitive about his clumsy, boyish scorn, and had formed the habit of avoiding him. The habit still clung even during his occasional short vacations since he had settled upon his life-work in a distant city. And yet she loved him.

Now Linda determined to put him out of her mind. "It's the old dress living around that haunts me so," she thought. "I'll put it on once more and then destroy it. Tragic parting!" She laughed at herself rather scornfully.

In a few minutes she was arrayed in the beruffled old silk. Certainly she looked pretty. Her eyes were never more blue than when she was in that dress. The glass gave back such a pleasing reflection that her eyes began to sparkle and then she looked still prettier.

Suddenly she started, for her aunt's voice was calling. Then she thought "Auntie doesn't know about my foolishness." So with a laugh she ran down to her aunt, saying, "Here's your little High School girl again."

Aunt Linda exclaimed: "At your old tricks again! You always were the greatest hand to dress up. But you look as nice as ever in that dress."

"What does this flattery mean?" asked Linda gaily.

"It means I want to borrow Mrs. Stone's vanilla for a cake I'm making. Mine is all gone and she probably is stocked up in everything, seeing Fred is coming home. Will you go after it, dearie?"

"I feel ridiculous in this dress, but I'll go. It may be the last time for several weeks," she warned.

Aunt Linda sighed. "I don't see why you dislike him so." But the girl was gone.

"Come in," called Mrs. Stone, "I'm in the sitting-room." That was strange. She always came to meet one.

Almost in a panic Linda entered the sitting-room. There stood Fred smiling and his mother beaming.

"Fred gave me a great surprise," said Mrs. Stone. "I wasn't looking for him to-day." Linda was speechless.

"Is this the way you greet an old neighbour?" asked Fred. "Why, mother didn't act so." He was shaking her hand vigorously and somehow it woke her up.

"Well, naturally," she retorted. "I thought you pretended to be shy."

"Oh, that was when I was young and foolish. You haven't taken much notice of me lately," he added plaintively.

With heightened colour, Linda turned to his mother and explained her errand.

"Vanilla? Why, certainly," said that happy lady. "You see that Fred doesn't disappear while I'm gone. I can hardly believe he is here."

"No danger just now," he said in a low voice. "I'm glad to see that you dressed for the occasion. How did you know I was coming, Linda?"

She tried to follow his mother, but he blocked the way. Her face was crimson, and tears were imminent. But like a flash an arm held her securely while with his free hand Fred took something from his vest pocket.

"This is a rare opportunity," he observed calmly, "to follow up my only clue." He held the pin ball against her sleeve.

"A perfect match! I always knew it. I've never forgotten how dear you looked in that dress. What has made you avoid me, little girl?"

"You di-didn't l-like g-girls," stammered Linda, "and I-I d-did l-like y-you." She finished in dismay at her confession.

But Fred whispered happily, "Don't cry, dear. There was one girl that I liked all the time, and I haven't changed in that respect. Everything is all right now, isn't it, sweetheart?"

And Linda shook her head in the affirmative.

Thought Nothing But Death Would End Her Misery WAS TROUBLED WITH Heart Disease.
Mrs. J. D. Talbut, Owen Sound, Ont., writes:—"I have been a great sufferer from heart disease, and leaking valves. I have had resource to every kind of treatment I could think might help me, including the skill of several doctors. I suffered so for years that at times I have felt that nothing but death could end my misery. I was advised by a friend, who had suffered untold pain and misery, just as I had, and had been cured by Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, to give them a trial, so I decided to do so. I am delighted with the result, as I am now completely cured, and can eat and sleep as I have not done for years.
You are at liberty to use my name at any time as I am convinced they are the best pills on the market for any form of heart disease."
Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Why Do Women Suffer
When They Could Be Well?
It is so easy to be well and strong and able to enjoy life, that it is surprising how many women drag themselves through the day suffering tortures from lame back due to kidney trouble. Mrs. Wilcox found the way to cure herself and gladly writes about it so that others may be induced to use the same remedy.

BIG LORRAINE.

"During the last winter, I was bothered very much with a Weak Back. I was advised by a friend to try GIN PILLS and I did. The first box I found helped me very much and I found when I had taken the second, I was completely cured." MRS. F. WILCOX.

THE SPLIT IN THE PARTY.

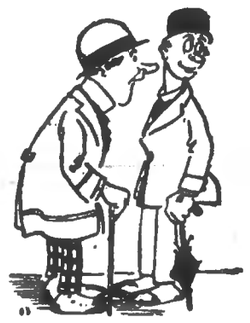
Now, pretty Miss Styles for mayor would run.
She was clever and witty, not flirty.
But her party it split on one little thing.
And that was the split in her skirty.

A committee upon the fair lady did call.
And they gave her some pointers—to wit:
While the voters admired her beauty and brains,
They never would stand for the split.

But at the next meeting they greet her with smiles
And cheer for their choice long and hearty,
For she had been busy with needle and thread
And closed up the split in the party.

"If elected," quoth she, "I will dress as I please."
And she laughs at the thought good and hearty.
"With a pair of sharp shears I'll get busy at once
And reopen the split in the party."
—Mrs. William Henry Atkin in Los Angeles Times.

A Discovery.



"When did you find out that he had a spiritual side?"

"When I broke a bottle in his pocket."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

How Did She Know?

They were out with a party yachting. Conversation flagging, he remarked, twisting his labial ornament:

"I declare! The briny breeze has made my mustache taste quite salty."

"Yes," innocently said she, "I think it has."

And then she wondered why they all tittered.—London Telegraph.

The teacher had guests at school one afternoon and naturally was anxious for her pupils to make a good impression.

"William," she asked of a rosy-faced lad, "can you tell me who George Washington was?"

"Yes, ma'am," was the quick reply. "He was an American General."

"Quite right," replied the teacher. "And can you tell us what George Washington was remarkable for?"

"Yes, ma'am," replied the little boy. "He was remarkable because he was an American and told the truth."

Farm and Dairy Market Report.

Toronto, Monday, May 12.—Those closely in touch with the trade of the country seem inclined to be more optimistic in their utterances than for some time past. Foreign trade is reviving and local trade is also improving. It is noticeable that wholesale houses are placing business very cautiously, especially where credit is concerned. An evidence of expanding trade is the strong demand for money, which ranges around six and one-half per cent. Farm mortgages run about six per cent, although we have heard of a few mortgages placed by local lenders at five and one-half per cent.

Produce markets of the past week have been favorable to the producer. Wheat has advanced, grains are stronger and cattle are also on a higher level than last week. The one gloomy spot on the market is that for butter, which tends to be low.

WHEAT

The flour trade is quiet. The United States official report indicates 20,000,000 bushels in excess of the trade estimates In spite of these adverse conditions quotations locally range firm to higher. No 1 Northern, 90c; No. 2, 95½c; screenings 63c to 65c; Ontario, $1 to $1.02.

COARSE GRAINS

This has been a boom week for coarse grains. Oats are selling much more freely with Western oats at higher levels Peas and rye have both advanced Quotations are as follows: Oats, C.W. No. 2 41½c; No. 3, 39½c; Ontario, 39c to 40c; corn, 74½c to 75½c; peas, 93c to $1.03; barley malting, 56c to 58c; feed barley, 51c to 52c; rye, 63c to 64c; buckwheat, 80c to 82c. At Montreal wholesale quotations are: Oats, C.W. No. 2, 42½c; No. 3, 42c; corn, 79c to 80c; barley, 51½c to 55c; peas, $1.60 to $1.70.

MILL FEEDS

The price continues steady, but the tendency is towards lower levels. Bran, $23 to $25; shorts, $25 to $26; middlings, $28 to $30; feed flour, $34 to $35. Montreal dealers ask for bran, $23; shorts, $25; middlings, $29.

HAY AND STRAW

As is usually expected at this time of year, the market is firm and receipts light. Wholesale dealers are quoting No. 1 hay, $14 to $14.50; No. 2, $12.50 to $13; No. 3, $8 to $11; baled straw, $6 to $6.50. Montreal reports a firmer market for the best grades: No. 1, $16; No. 2, $13.50 to $15.50; No. 3, $11 to $12.

EGGS AND POULTRY

Country egg quotations are fully two cents in advance of this time last year in many sections of Eastern Ontario, Toronto and Montreal dealers are coming into competition to the advantage of the poultryman. Toronto wholesale dealers quote eggs 21c to 24c on track. Montreal dealers report that they are paying as high as 21c f.o.b. and 22½c to 23c on track.

Poultry, alive or dead, is hard to get. Dressed fowl have gone up from 17c to 20c; alive, 16c to 18c; yearling chickens, dressed, 18c to 20c; alive, 15c to 16c; turkeys, 22c to 25c.

POTATOES AND BEANS

Potatoes have taken another customary advance and are now quoted wholesale at $1.05 to $1.10 for Ontarios in car lots. New Brunswick's, $1.10 to $1.15. Dealers anticipate that the price will come down after planting, as it usually does.

Beans here are quoted $2.10 to $2.20 for primes and $2.15 to $2.25 for hand picked. At Montreal hand picked beans are quoted $1.95 to $2; one-pound pickers, $1.85 to $1.90; three-pound pickers, $1.50 to $1.75.

HIDES AND WOOL

Quotations are: Hides, cured, 14½c to 15c; part cured, 13½c to 14c; green, 13c to 13½c; horse hides, $4.50 to $5; horse hair, 35c to 40c; calf skins, cured, 17½c to 18c; deakins, 85c to $1.10; lamb skins, 20c to 30c; sheep skins, $1.10 to $1.70.

The new clip is arriving and wool prices have advanced. Unwashed, coarse, 19c; fine, 20c; washed rejects, 19c to 19½c; coarse, 25½c to 26½c; fine, 26½c to 27½c.

SEEDS

Wholesale seed merchants are selling to the trade per cwt. as follows: Red clover, No. 1, $19 and $21, No. 2, $17 to $17.50; alsike, No. 1, $21; No. 2, $17 to $18.50; timothy, No. 1, $8.50 to $9.50, No. 2, $7 to $7.50; alfalfa, No. 1, $14 to $15; No. 2, $13 to $13.50.

DAIRY PRODUCE

Butter has taken a still further drop of one cent during the week, but the trade is steadier now at the lower prices. Creamery butter has been reported as selling in Winnipeg at 25c a lb. and dealers were discussing the possibility of Winnipeg supplying us with butter as well as with hops. It would seem that mixed farming is taking hold on the prairies with a vengeance, if we may judge by their shipments to us during recent months. The cheese situation is more encouraging. Wholesale quotations now are: Creamery prints, 28c to 29c; farmers' separator prints, 25c to 26c; dairy prints, 24c to 25c; bakers, 18c to 19½c. Cheese are quoted 14½c to 15c for large and 14½c to 15½c for twins.

LIVE STOCK

The high prices of the week previous encouraged larger shipments a week ago to-day. Prices, however, held firm at a high level. Smaller receipts during the rest of the week caused a slight advance in some sections. On the final market of the week all receipts were cleaned up before noon. Packers and butchers, however, seemed to be well supplied and trade was a trifle draggy. The main feature of the week's doings was the competition of Canadian and United States buyers for feeders and stockers, both getting a fair share.

Quotations are as follows: Choice heavy steers, $8.15 to $8.50; handy choice steers, $8 to $8.25; butchers' steers, com. to good, $7 to $8; heifers, $6.75 to $8.10; choice cows, $7 to $7.50; com. to good, $6.50 to $7; butchers bulls, $6 to $7.75; feeders, $7.25 to $7.75; stockers, $6.50 to $7.75; canners and cutters, $3.50 to $4.90.

Choice milch cows go at $65 to $100; com. to med., $45 to $65; springers, $40 to $100. Calves range from $5 to $9.50, according to size and quality.

Mutton quotations are: Spring lambs, $4.50 to $10; wether lambs, $6.50 to $9.50; buck lambs, $7.75 to $8.75; light ewes, $7 to $7.50; heavy sheep and bucks, $5.50 to $6.50; culls, $4 to $6.50.

Receipts of hogs have been liberal and prices have dropped proportionately. Packers are now quoting $9.25 f. o. b. country points.

MONTREAL BUTTER AND CHEESE

Montreal, Saturday, May 9.—There was more doing this week in the cheese trade, largely due, of course, to the increased quantities offering for sale. Most of the cheese boards have opened up and the prices paid at the meetings held this week ranged from 12c to 12½c. There was a good demand, especially for colored, and all the offerings of this class were picked up at the top price.

The receipts of cheese are small, probably the smallest on record at this time of the year, and there is no doubt that the make for the month of May will be away behind last year, probably 15 to 20 per cent. This falling off is due to the fact that a large quantity of milk is being fed to calves, but after the end of this month it should all revert back to the cheese factories, unless we should have a demand again from the United States, such as we had last year.

Market for butter is fairly strong to day, the stores being practically swept bare of stock, but as heavy receipts are good are anyone upon prices are looking for lower prices. Finest creamery is quoted at 25c to-day, but next week's prices will probably range from 25c to 25½c. MONTREAL HOG MARKET

Montreal, Saturday, May 9.—There is practically no change in the market for live hogs and prices are firm at last week's quotations. A good demand was experienced for dressed hogs during the week at 25c a cwt under our last prices, sales being made at $13.25 and $13.50.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Montreal, May 4.—The Cheese Makers' Agricultural Cooperative Society sold butter: 222 boxes No. 1 choice, 25½c; 57 boxes No. 2, 25½c; 21 boxes No. 3, 19½c.

Brockville, May 7.—Offerings were 1,674 colored and 215 white. The sales were 40 white and 636 colored at 12½c for colored and 12 11-16c for white.

Kingston, May 6.—139 white offered and 66 colored; bid for white, 12 3-16c; 31 colored sold at 11 15-16c.

London, Ont., May 9.—409 boxes offered, 210 sold, bidding from 12c to 12½c.

Watertown, N.Y., May 9.—Cheese sales, 7,000 boxes at 13c to 13½c.

NO HAIRY BROWNIES AFTER THIS TREATMENT

(Beauty Notes)

After much experimenting it has been found that delatone is as effective for removing hairy growths as the electric needle. And the argument in favour of the new method is that it is inexpensive, painless and takes little time. Here is the treatment: With powdered delatone and water mix enough paste to cover the undesirable hairs, apply and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off and with it comes every trace of hair. The skin should then be washed to remove the remaining delatone.

ROSE ON THE STAND.

Informer Is Unshaken After Five-Hour Examination.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Bald Jack Rose, chief witness for the prosecution at the second trial of Charles Becker, charged with being the instigator of the plot that resulted in the murder of Herman Rosenthal, came from the stand yesterday at the conclusion of five hours of relentless cross-examination, bright-eyed and smiling. The bald-headed informer quickly and unfalteringly answered every question asked him by Martin T. Manton, chief of Becker's counsel. Even when Manton shouted accusations of murder at Rose and tried to make him admit that he had made his living by committing petty larceny and selling opium to the slaves of the habit of New York Chinatown, the former gambler remained unperturbed.

Rose's expression never changed nor lowered at any time. He reiterated his story of underworld intrigue and murder with a calm and matter-of-fact air. He showed no fear, no emotion and no remorse, except on one occasion. Then he said his conscience pricked him when he thought over how he had plotted to have Herman Rosenthal murdered.

The Living Present.

He that hath so many causes of joy and so great is very much in love with sorrow and peevishness who loses all these pleasures and chooses to sit down upon his little handful of thorns. Enjoy the blessings of this day if God sends them, and the evils of it bear patiently and sweetly, for this day only is ours. We are dead to yesterday and we are not yet born to the morrow. But if we look abroad and bring into one day's thoughts the evil of many, certain and uncertain, what will be and what will never be, our load will be as intolerable as it is unreasonable.—Jeremy Taylor.

Kent Farms Flooded.

CHATHAM, Ont., May 14.—Scores of farms in the low-lying sections of Kent County and particularly those in the Raleigh plains are inundated as a result of the heavy downpour of the past few days, and great damage has already been done the crops that have been planted. It is not uncommon to see houses and barns completely surrounded with water and the farmer using a boat.

Toronto's Demonstration against Home Rule.—Twelve thousand citizens of "Tory Toronto" gathered in Queen's Park, on Saturday afternoon, and with much enthusiasm, passed a resolution to be cabled to Premier Asquith, condemning the Home Rule bill, and supporting Sir Edward Carson and the Unionists of Ulster in any measure they saw fit to prevent the bill being carried into operation. The above is a section of the crowd.

SIR WILFRID DEMANDS FRANK C.N.R. STATEMENT

Canada Wants to Know the Truth About the Canadian Northern Railway.

IS GOVERNMENT AID NEEDED?

OTTAWA, May 14.— "What the country wants to know about the Canadian Northern is the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth," said Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the Commons yesterday afternoon, in opening the attack on the Government's $45,000,000 bond guarantee proposals.

Sir Wilfrid told some of the truth that was not presented in the experts' statements of the bargain presented by Premier Borden and Hon. Arthur Meighen, the chief apologists for the bargain. Sir Wilfrid laid down the general principle that while the Liberals were anxious to secure the completion of the transcontinental system, they were strongly opposed to the terms of the agreement brought down by the Government.

A sensation was caused in the House during the speech of W. F. Nickle (Con., Kingston) when he charged that Sir William Mackenzie had used threats to force him to drop his attitude of opposition to the measure.

Mr. Borden, in opening, briefly reviewed the history of the Canadian Northern Railway, which to-day served every province in the Dominion except New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, and had 7,856 miles in actual operation. In addition to this, 1,542 miles of construction had the steel laid, but were not yet operated. The grading was also complete as to another 850 miles, so that the system to-day embraced fully 10,000 miles of railway.

The Government was now confronted with this situation, namely, that Mackenzie and Mann were unable to link up and complete their transcontinental without assistance from the Government of Canada. There were several reasons for this. One was the financial stringency prevailing throughout the world. They were in urgent need of real money, which they could not raise upon the security available.

Everyone, said the Prime Minister, would admit that the road must be completed—but how? It was suggested by some that the C. N. R. should go into the hands of a receiver, for the purpose of reorganization. To follow such a course would be to injure the credit of Canada for a generation, and to inflict loss and hardship upon innocent investors who had purchased the securities of the company. The only remaining course was for the Government to come to the assistance of the company, and difference of opinion could only arise upon the nature of the agreement to be made and the security to be exacted.

A searching investigation had disclosed that the charge against Mackenzie and Mann of diverting subsidies to their own use was entirely without foundation.

Mr. Borden said that as a matter of fact Mackenzie and Mann had devoted to the enterprise a great deal of money they might properly have retained for their own personal aggrandizement.

Mr. Borden then detailed the gross and net earning of the road for several years past, and the estimated earnings for the next few years. He believed the road had a great future, and pointed out that its earnings last year exceeded the earnings of the C.P.R. in 1901.

Explaining the agreement with Mackenzie and Mann, Mr. Borden said that they undertook to pay off the temporary indebtedness and to reduce the floating debt, and thus make available for construction the entire forty-five million dollars to be raised upon the Government guarantee. In addition to this the Government received outright 40 per cent. of the capital stock of the C. N. R.

After detailing the precautions taken in the agreement to protect the Government in case of any default, the Prime Minister said that the collapse of this great enterprise would be a national calamity, and to force the road to repudiate its securities in whole or in part would be a national crime. He believed by the contract just made the Government would protect itself against any possible loss in the future, and would recoup itself for advances made in the past, and, moreover, have the satisfaction of bringing to a successful completion another great railway binding the provinces of Canada from sea to sea.

Great applause greeted the Premier upon the conclusion of his speech, but the Liberals gave no less hearty applause to Sir Wilfrid Laurier when he rose to reply. He believed, and he had always believed, that this country needed three transcontinental railways, and he quite agreed with the Prime Minister in saying that the Canadian Northern should not be allowed to collapse. But why should it collapse? Mackenzie and Mann were evidently not hard up. They were not asking money to pay off any debts. The Prime Minister had explicitly stated that every dollar to be raised upon the proposed guarantee was to go into construction. He thought these gentlemen could finish the road if they had to without any assistance. "I am not opposing them," continued Sir Wilfrid, "although they are certainly not friends of mine, but I admire them as one must always admire energy, courage and pluck."

Sir Wilfrid said that, speaking for himself and those associated with him, he must frankly say that he was opposed to the resolution. In the first place he could see no necessity for the Government again coming to the relief of Mackenzie and Mann, and, in the second place, he could not but regard the so-called security given to the Government as illusory. It was pretended that some 28 lines were to be consolidated in one transcontinental railway, but the fact was that there was to be no such consolidation or amalgamation.

When the late Government guaranteed the C. N. R. bonds in 1911 to the extent of $35,000,000, he said it was secured by a first mortgage on the line between Montreal and Port Arthur, and a second mortgage on the entire C. N. R. system. That first mortgage is as good as gold. "When I first heard of the present agreement I understood there was to be a Canadian National Transcontinental which would absorb 27 other lines, and that the Government would get a mortgage upon the entire Canadian Northern system. But I find I was mistaken. The 28 lines maintain their identity, and the Government gets a part of this $45,000,000 for construction. It does not get a mortgage on the C. N. R. system. True, it is claimed that we might, in case of default, take over the C. N. R., but to do so we would at once have to pay off debts aggregating $312,000,000."

Sir Wilfrid said that all agreed that our thin transcontinental railway system must not collapse; if necessary, Government aid must be extended. But why were we dealing with 28 separate companies? He doubted if the common stock of the C. N. R. was worth a great deal, but by accepting it the Government virtually went into partnership with Mackenzie and Mann, and Mackenzie and Mann were the dominant parties.

"To recapitulate," said the Opposition leader in conclusion, "I oppose the resolution because there is nothing to show that Government aid is needed. I also oppose it because the so-called security amounts to nothing; and, finally, I say that if the Government of Canada is to go into partnership with Mackenzie and Mann, the Government should be their master and not their servant."

Solicitor-General Meighen expressed surprise at Sir Wilfrid's anxiety for the Government to acquire more common stock. Why did not the Laurier Government get some common stock in the Grand Trunk Pacific when they made their famous deal in 1903? The Solicitor-General said that it would be impossible to amalgamate the subsidiary companies within a reasonable length of time, but that the contract between the Government and the Canadian Northern was so drafted that the former would be in as good a position as though an amalgamation had been effected.

W. F. Nickle (Con., Kingston) was the next to speak. Mr. Nickle said he stood where Mr. Borden and the Conservative party stood in 1904 and 1908, when they demanded Government-ownership and Government operation of the National Transcontinental. He believed to-day that the Government should take over and operate both the Canadian Northern and the National Transcontinental. Only by Government competition could the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. be compelled to lower its rates.

Mr. Nickle declared that Sir William Mackenzie had threatened to punish Kingston on account of his (Mr. Nickle's) position. Every influence had been brought to bear upon the member for Kingston to compel him to fall into line with his party. He was sorry to differ from his party leader and party associates, but he claimed the right of free speech, and if a member of Parliament could not express his conscientious convictions without being subject to ooloquy, then he preferred the freedom of the elector to the fetters of the elected.

Mr. Boivan (Lib., Sheffield) moved the adjournment of the debate.

Got the Officials Moving.

An East Indian babu railway agent telegraphed to his superintendent this report: "A blackguard indigenous mendicant arrived at my station by 2 down mail. Taking pity on his commiserated condition, I permitted him to reside in the shade of the main signal post. In gratitude for my beneficent conduct he absconded during the nocturnal period with 500Rs. of my private cash, including one copy of the working time table." When asked why he added the one anna publication, the time table, in his list of losses he replied, with a knowing wriggle: "Ha, ha! The matter is explainable in a nutshell. Unless I had included a little of the company's property the police would have taken no notice. This justifies the addition of the lactaceous particle in the shell of the cocoanut!"—Exchange.

Scale and Music.

A picturesque instance of the curiosity of the seal, or possibly of its fondness for music, is told by the Rev. Mr. Dunbar in Macgillivray's work on British quadrupeds.

"During a residence of some years in one of the Hebrides I had many opportunities to witness this peculiarity. As I walked along the shore in the calm of a summer afternoon a few notes from my flute would bring half a score of them within a few yards of me, and then they would swim about with their heads above water, like so many black dogs, evidently delighted with the sounds. For half an hour or, indeed, for any length of time I chose, I could fix them to the spot, and when I moved along the water's edge they would follow me like the dolphins which, it is said, attended Arion."

AUNT SALLY'S ADVICE TO BEAUTY SEEKERS

Lydia says: "I've tried most everything for my freckles, but can't lose them. What do you suggest?" See answer to "Stella." The treatment suggested I've never known to fail in any case of freckles or other cutaneous blemish.

P. J. K. asks: "Is there anything better than massage to remove wrinkles?" Too much massaging may aggravate a wrinkled condition, tending to soften and loosen the tissue. I advise bathing the face in an astringent lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. This is remarkably effective.

Stella writes: "My complexion is horribly muddy. What shall I do for it?" Get an ounce of mercolized wax at your druggist's. Apply this nightly like you'd use cold cream, washing it off mornings. This will cause the offensive cuticle gradually to make way by a process of gentle absorption, for the clear, velvety healthy hued skin underneath.—Woman's Realm.

ALL RE-ELECTED.

Knights of Columbus Record Confidence In Their Officers.

OTTAWA, May 14.—The state council of the Knights of Columbus in session here yesterday morning re-elected all officers and appointed delegates to the convention of the supreme council to be held at St. Paul, Minn. Those again honored by the unanimous choice of the council are: T. N. Phelan, Toronto, state deputy; Dr. J. F. White, Ottawa, state secretary; L. B. O'Connor, Lindsay, state treasurer; J. A. Mulligan, Sault Ste. Marie, state advocate; J. A. Hussey, Sault Ste. Marie, state warden. T. N. Phelan, state deputy; Judge Dromgiowe, of Windsor; Bishop Fallon, of London; Hugh Hennessy, of Hamilton, and D. W. Downey, of Brockville, were selected to attend the supreme council. The alternates chosen were J. F. Lannigan, Ottawa; L. Zinger, Berlin; Rev. Father Kelly, North Bay; L. B. Montreuil, Windsor, and L. McNamara, Sault Ste. Marie.

It was decided to hold the next state council in the cities of Fort William and Port Arthur.

Station To Cost More.

OTTAWA, May 14. — The Toronto Union Station will evidently cost more than was originally intended. The capitalization of the Toronto Terminal Railway Co., which will build the station and maintain it for Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk Railways, was increased from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000 at a meeting of the railway committee yesterday morning.

The C.P.R. holds half of the stock and the Grand Trunk half, while each company will have three directors on the board.

SPRING SKIN BLEMISHES

ARE REMOVED BY ZAM-BUK.

Why suffer the humiliations of unsightly skin blemishes, such as pimples, boils or eczema, when they are so easily cured by Zam-Buk? Even the most advanced cases of eczema yield to Zam-Buk's great healing powers. Mr. Jos. Johnson, of 584 Broome Street, New York, writes: "I suffered untold misery for twenty years from eczema. Medical treatment was of no avail; I spent hundreds of dollars on salves and treatments, and all I got was mere temporary relief. At last I tried Zam-Buk, and I am pleased to say that perseverance with this remedy and Zam-Buk Soap has effected a complete and permanent cure."

Mr. Jock Snow, the Scotch comedian of 47 Abbott Avenue, Toronto writes: "I have used Zam-Buk for boils and found it very soothing and a quick healer."

You want to end your suffering: so remove those unpleasant face sores, sody sores? Then buy Zam-Buk. Sold by all druggists or store-keepers at 50c. per box. Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. per tablet.

Zam-Buk is also best for cuts, sores, bruises, piles, and is an embrocation for stiffened muscles, rheumatism, sciatica.

"Going Into A Decline," Tired And Worn-out

Constant Pains in the Chest and Back—Wonderful Results Obtained by Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

What a host of symptoms are summed up in these words, "Going into a decline." It means, in short, that the patient is daily growing weaker and weaker without hope of recovery. But read the letter quoted below and learn of the great food cure which naturally and gradually nourishes pale, thin, weak, tired-out men and women back to health and strength.

There is no treatment you can so well rely upon, for Dr. Chases Nerve Food contains in condensed and easily assimilated form all the elements required to rebuild wasted and depleted nerve cells. It cures in Nature's way by filling the system with new vigour and vitality.

Mrs. Rena McNulty, St. Theodore, Que., writes: "I had almost constant pains in the chest, and backache. I was tired and worn out nearly all the time. Four boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food did me more good than all the medicines I ever took. My system seemed to be all run down, and I was so weak I could scarcely do anything. The Nerve Food did wonders for me, and I want other women suffering as I did to benefit by my experience. I feel like a different person since using this great restorative."

Can you imagine any medical treatment better suited to the needs of a run-down system. As a spring restorative there is nothing to be compared to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It purifies and enriches the blood, builds up the system, and drives out pains, aches, tired feelings, and discouragement. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, May 13.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 48 cars, comprising 418 cattle, 1309 hogs, 1133 sheep and lambs and 148 calves.

Butchers.

Choice steers, $8 to $8.25; good to choice at $7.75 to $8; medium at $7.50 to $7.75; common at $7 to $7.40; choice cows at $7 to $7.50; good at $6.50 to $6.75; common cows at $5 to $5.75; canners and cutters at $3.50 to $4.50; choice bulls at $7 to $7.50; good at $6.50 to $6.75; common bulls at $5 to $6.25.

Stockers and Feeders.

The market for stockers and feeders held about steady. Choice steers, 800 to 900 lbs., sold at $7.25 to $7.50; steers, 600 to 700 lbs., sold at $7 to $7.25; stock heifers, $6.75 to $7.10.

Milkers and Springers.

Receipts of milkers of good to choice quality were scarce, not equal to the demand. Prices ranged from $50 to $100 each, and one of extra quality sold at $120.

Veal Calves.

Receipts were 148 calves, and prices were very firm, when quality was considered. Choice calves sold at $9 to $10; good at $8 to $9; medium at $7 to $8, and common at $6 to $7.

Sheep and Lambs.

There were 133 sheep and lambs reported on sale. Prices were firm. Sheep, ewes, sold at $6.50 to $7.75; rams, $5 to $6.50; clipped yearling American lambs, $8.50; yearling lambs, unclipped, $8.75 to $9.50; spring lambs, $7 to $10 each.

Hogs.

Hogs were a little firmer, selling as follows: Selects fed and watered at $8.75 to $8.40; f.o.b. cars at $8, and $8.50 to $8.56 weighed off cars.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, May 13.—At the C.P.R. live stock market trade was rather slow this morning, owing to the fact that buyers, in most cases, had filled their requirements earlier in the week, and therefore the demand was somewhat slow, but as the offerings were much smaller than generally expected a steady feeling prevailed. Choice steers sold at $8.25 to $8.50; good at $7.50 to $8; medium at $6.75 to $7; common at $5 to $6, while butchers' cows brought from $5.50 to $7.50, and bulls $5 to $7.50 per 100 pounds. Demand for milch cows was fair, the supply ample to fill requirements and sales were made at prices ranging from $60 to $90 each as to quality.

The weak feeling which has characterized the market for hogs of late was more pronounced than ever today and prices for Ontario stock scored a further decline of 15c per 100 pounds, but Manitobas were unchanged.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

EAST BUFFALO, May 13.—Cattle—Receipts, 75; active and strong; prices unchanged.

Veals—Receipts, 100; active, 25c higher; $5 to $10.75.

Hogs—Receipts, 200; active and strong; heavy, mixed, Yorkers, and pigs, $8.90 to $8.85; roughs, $7.50 to $7.65; stags, $6.50 to $7; dairies, $8.60 to $8.85.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 2200; active; lambs and mixed sheep, 15c higher; lambs, 25c higher; lambs, $6 to $8.85; yearlings, $5 to $7.50; wethers, $6.75 to $6.85; ewes, $3.50 to $6.75; sheep, mixed, $5.50 to $6.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, May 13.—Cattle—Receipts, 14,000; market, lower; beeves, $7.25 to $9.35; Texas steers, $7.10 to $8.30; stockers and feeders, $6.25 to $8.50; cows and heifers, $3.75 to $8.70; calves, $7.50 to $10.75.

Hogs—Receipts, 32,000; market, lower; heavy, $7.95 to $8.40; rough, $7.95 to $8.10; pigs, $7.20 to $8.25; bulk of sales, $8.15 to $8.40.

Sheep—Receipts, 18,000; market, higher; native, $6.30 to $8.80; yearlings, $8 to $7.25; lambs, native, $6.35 to $8.35.

Senator Smoot's Idea of It.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Declaring the Administration demand for the repeal of the Panama Canal toll exemption was "unworthy of sons of the revolutionary fathers," Senator Smoot, of Utah, yesterday argued vigorously against the repeal bill in the Senate.

PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, MAY 14, 1914

IT BELONGS TO THE CITY

Land Which the Board of Works Proposed to Expropriate is Found to Be City Property

TO MOVE SIDEWALK

At the Board of Works meeting last night a report from the surveyor who has been looking into the proper street line at the corner of Charlotte and Park streets was received, and as a result the Board discovers that seven feet of land they proposed to buy or expropriate is already the property of the city, although it has been fenced in for some time by residents at the corner.

To allow the Peterborough Radial Railway to run their tracks along Charlotte street to the boundary, it was recommended by the City Engineer some time ago to buy seven feet on the south side of Charlotte street, immediately west of Park street, where the road is narrow, and considerably under 66 feet wide. As a result a surveyor was engaged, and his report handed in last night showed that the fence on the property just mentioned could be moved back 8 feet and still be fifteen inches inside of the street line. This property at present is occupied by Mr. Brown, but now that their title to the land has been made clear the Board of Works propose to move the sidewalk in eight feet, which will make the street of sufficient width to allow the Street Railway to put their rails along that part of the street.

The surveyor's report also embodied that assertion that a triangle of land on the north side of Charlotte street and immediately west of Park street, was the property of the city. This at present, is fenced in by Mr. Medd, who bought it from the former owner of the property. It was the opinion of the Board that Mr. Medd should be asked to either take down the fence, or if he preferred to leave it up to pay a nominal rental to the city so that the city's title to the land would be unquestioned, if they should happen to need it in the future. The chairman of the Board and the City Engineer were appointed a committee to see the two gentlemen affected and come to some understanding with them and to report back to the Board.

It was moved by Alderman Stratton and seconded by Alderman Johnston, that the report of the City Engineer be acted upon, and the sidewalk on the south side of Charlotte street, immediately west of Park street, be moved back 8 feet. Carried.

MUNRO HOUSE AN EXAMPLE

Most Sanitary Premises in The City Declares The Sanitary Inspector

Mr. Spence, Sanitary Inspector, states that there is no cleaner yard in Peterborough, not even excepting the bonniest private residence, than that of the Munro Hotel. It would be difficult to find so much as a straw without the aid of a magnifying glass. Everything around the premises is as spick and span as the proverbial new pin, and now Mr. Munro's penchant for cleanliness is demonstrated by the erection of a concrete manure receptacle with a tighting fitting lid, which has won the hearty approval of the Sanitary Inspector. There will not be many flies breeding around the Munro House this summer. Mr. Spence states that it is a pleasure to meet with one man, who, in 20,000, on his own initiative, takes a pride in sanitary surroundings, and advises the other 19,999 to go and do likewise. The stables, also, are in the same clean and sanitary condition.

LIVE STOCK MARKET

Special Wire to The Examiner:

UNION STOCK YARDS, May 13.—Receipts were moderate. 49 cars, 516 cattle, 1,329 hogs, 159 sheep and lambs, 149 calves.

Cattle.—There was a quiet, steady trade in cattle at steady prices, quality considered. Choice butcher's steers, $8.00 to $8.30. Good butcher's steers, $7.75 to $8.00. Medium butcher's steers, $7.00 to $7.75. Common butcher's steers, $7.00 to $7.40. Choice butcher's heifers, $7.75 to $8.25. Common butcher's heifers, $7.25 to $7.60. Choice cows, $7.00 to $7.50. Good cows, $6.50 to $6.75. Canners, $3.50 to $4.75. Bulls, $6.50 to $7.50.

Feeders and Stockers.—Demand greater than the supply at firm but steady prices. Choice steers, $7.35 to $7.65. Medium steers, $7.00 to $7.35. Stockers, $6.50 to $6.75.

Milkers and Springers.—Only a few cows were offered from $65 to $125 each; bulk sold at $70 to $90 each, and only one choice Holstein springer at $125.

Calves.—A moderate supply of veal calves sold at a little higher price on the average. Choice veals, $9.00 to $10.00; common, $6.00 to $8.00.

YOUNGSTERS ARE LOCATED IN MONTREAL

Special Wire to The Examiner:

BRANTFORD, May 14—Violet and Victor Smith, the children missing from their home since Monday morning, have been located in Montreal. Although only ten and seven years old, respectively, they made the journey, without tickets or money. It is thought it was their intention to try to get back to the Old Country. It is supposed that the children, after boarding the Grand Trunk train, here, on Monday, got into a seat with adult passengers and were overlooked by the Conductor. They are safe in Montreal under the care of the Y. W. C. A., and will be brought back here.

A Round Robin For Asquith

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., May 14—The fact that eighty prominent members of the House of Commons have signed a round-robin to Asquith asking more definite action in connection with the Home Rule bill, indicates the feeling of uneasiness among the supporters of the Government respecting things to come. While the nature of the demand on Asquith, by his supporters, is not open to the press, it is understood that they included a declaration that it was necessary for the peace and unity of the United Kingdom that the Government should take a more drastic and definite means of punishing the law breakers of Ulster. The stories of petty gun running here and there on the Irish Coast now appear daily in the press and this is notwithstanding the fact that a fleet of destroyers, in addition to the revenue cutters are supposed to be watching against all such escapades.

Want Another Lindsay Train

The Retail Merchants' Association are endeavouring to have an early morning train arrive here over the C. P.R. from Lindsay so as to give people along the line a chance to come to Peterborough and do their shopping and allow them to return in the afternoon.

Mr. N. C. Cameron, the local secretary, has written a letter to Mr. G. Murphy, the District Passenger Agent in Toronto, setting forth these advantages to him. Mr. Cameron states that if every merchant in Peterborough would line up on this question, they would have enough influence to have any change made in the time tables. The merchants combined receive more freight than all the other shippers combined and the railways look to the merchants for their patronage on freight.

WARRANT FOR ARREST OF MOYES

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, May 14—Following the report of Chairman McIntyre of the Ontario Railway Board into the financial affairs of the Ontario West Shore Railway, a warrant has been issued for the arrest of John W. Moyes, former president of the railway, and Provincial Detective Greer has been sent to Algonquin Park to put the warrant into effect.

MADCAP BRIDE SUES HER MOTHER

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 14.—Pretty Leo Stone's "madcap marriage" of a decade ago had its sequel in Superior Court in the opening of a bitter fight against her mother to obtain what she declares is her legal right—half of the $90,000 estate of her father, John Newton Stone, who cut her off in his will with $50.

As adamant as the day her daughter announced her intention to marry a man her parents refused to entertain because he was "a poor horse dealer" Mrs. Fannie E. Stone refused to recognise the new Mrs. Leo Stone Green.

FINES WILL BE SUPPLEMENTED WITH COSTS

Three cyclists were the only defendants who appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning. They all pleaded guilty, and were assessed. Magistrate Dumble was most emphatic, when he declared that this very dangerous practice would have to be abated, and abated at once. He intimated that henceforth, the fine of $2.00 would be supplemented with costs. There is a cycling squad from the Police Station always looking for this class of offenders, and should many more captures be made, the Magistrate's patience will be exhausted, and the fine will likely increase.

LEASE IS ARRANGED

Bradburn Estate Secures Another Twenty-One Year Lease of Land Belonging to The City

WITHOUT ARBITRATION

The matter of the lease of the land on which are the buildings of the old Opera House block has been arranged without arbitration. The Bradburn Estate, which has occupied the buildings on the City's property for over forty years, has now agreed on terms that will assure them another twenty-one year lease of the land. It was feared a short time ago that the matter could not be arranged without arbitration and the City Trust Commissioners and the Bradburn Estate had even gone so far in the matter as to announce who would be their respective arbitrators in the event of arbitration.

Mr. W. H. Moore, chairman of the City Trust Commissioners, said to the Examiner to-day that the matter had been settled by mutual agreement. The rent of the land, however, is a great deal larger than provided in the last lease, and the lease in question will likely be signed to-morrow.

The buildings affected are the property of the Bradburn Estate, and include the Union Bank, the Gordon-Davies store, R. Denne's, Porter S. White's grocery and the Grand Trunk ticket office. All the leases to those who own buildings on the City's land are for a period of twenty-one years. To tenants where the City owns both the buildings and land, the terms of leases vary.

Commander Evans Was Entertained

By Officers of Local Regiments in Officers' Mess at the Armouries Last Evening

After delivering his lecture last evening Commander Evans was the guest of the officers of the various local Regiments at the Armouries. Refreshments were supplied by Mr. Hooper, in his usual genuine and satisfactory manner. A short speech was made by Lt.-Col. Clegg, and a reply by Commander Evans, who said he was deeply interested in this country and its people. Officers representing the Dragoons, Artillery, and Infantry were present. Commander Evans is not reserved, as is the usual type of British officer, but as one of the officers said, "when he talks to you it would appear that he had known you for years." Commander Evans, after delivering an address in New York, will return to the Old Country, where he will again join the Navy, as his leave of absence will then have expired.

ASTOR'S BRIDE ACTS AS NURSE

RHINEBECK, May 14. — Mr. and Mrs. William Vincent Astor, newlyweds, to-day in the beautiful Ferncliff mansion, shut themselves in from all callers save the immediate relatives of the bride.

With Dr. Herridan and two nurses in attendance, and his young wife in constant attendance, Mr. Astor is spending the day in an "invalid room," where, it is hoped, he will be restored to health in the near future. Though still seriously ill, Mr. Astor is believed to be on the road to recovery.

The Astor yacht, the Noma, is at the Ferncliff dock fully provisioned and ready to sail at a few hours' notice.

The first honeymoon plans of Mr. Astor have been abandoned. These included a cruise to the West Indies and Bermuda and a visit to the Mediterranean and the Orient later in the season.

In the event that his illness keeps him confined for several weeks longer, Astor has practically decided to send the Noma to Europe and to join the yacht on the other side with Mrs. Astor. In that event they will sail the latter part of May on the first part of June on one of the regular ocean liners.

Mrs. John Astor, who was at Ferncliff putting it in order for the new mistress—a service made necessary by Mr. Astor's enforced absence on account of his illness at Hopeland House—has returned to New York and will sail for England to-morrow, accompanied by her daughter.

Will Stop in Hotel.

Mr. Astor has made no plans in regard to a house in New York and he expects to make his home at Ferncliffe for some time to come, coming to New York during the winter for the opera and important social functions, stopping at some hotel.

The grounds of Ferncliffe were carefully guarded from every approach so there was no opportunity for photographers to enter.

M.C.R. TRAIN IS WRECKED

Four Coaches Left the Track and the Road Bed Was Torn Up for Half a Mile by Speed of Train

NARROW ESCAPES

CHATHAM, Ont., May 14 — The New York special, No. 97, of the M. C. R. was wrecked at North Buxton about 7 o'clock this morning. Four coaches left the track and the roadbed was torn up for half a mile. The coaches were crowded with passengers, but no one was seriously hurt. The Conductor received a sprained wrist, caused by jamming it against the seat when the jolt came. The special, which consisted of fourteen coaches, was ten minutes late, and it is supposed she was trying to make up time and left the track, but fortunately remained upright. The track will not be ready for general traffic until to-morrow. The coaches were badly wrecked and the trucks were torn from under them. Another train was wrecked at this point about a year ago. At that time it was shown it had travelled from Tilbury to Buxton, a distance of 11 miles in seven minutes.

The train was in charge of Conductor Dave Stinson of Detroit and Engineer Sam Whitman of St. Thomas. The most seriously injured was a Pullman Conductor, name unknown, who suffered a broken back.

Lieutenant Becker May Testify in His Own Behalf To-day to Contradict Shapero and Rose

CASE LOOKS BLACK

NEW YORK, N.Y., May 14—It is considered quite probable, here, this morning that before to-day's sitting of the Becker trial is done the accused Lieutenant, himself, will be on the stand, giving evidence on his own behalf, especially a contradiction of the incriminating story of "Bald" Jack Rose and Shapiro, the chauffeur. Becker appeared in Court to-day very pale and his guards said he spent a restless night. It was acknowledged on all sides that the evidence yesterday made his case look blacker than ever.

Soccer Team Wants A Game

The Parsley memorial football team is anxious to secure a game out of town on Victoria Day and would like to meet the local Nomads. Local soccer teams who are interested should see the sporting editor of The Examiner.

THE TORONTO MARKETS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TORONTO, May 14—Receipts light, trade fair; prices varied. Cattle—calves, stockers, sheep and lambs, steady; hogs, fed and watered, $8.30 to $8.40. No other changes.

NEW GOVERNOR GENERAL IS HONOURED

Examiner Special:

LONDON, Eng., May 14 — Prince Alexander of Teck, Canada's newly appointed Governor-General, appeared for the first time since the announcement of his appointment, at the formal opening of the Anglo-American Exposition, here, to-day. In his honour a big chorus sang "O Canada" and "The Maple Leaf Forever." His Serene Highness gracefully acknowledged the compliment. He was accompanied by Princess Alexandra, who is acknowledged here to be one of the most popular of royal princesses.

EXTRACTS FROM THE PROVINCIAL LAW

Following is an extract from the Provincial Law which it is expected will assist the city to solve the sewage disposal problem, by giving them the right to build a sewage disposal plant in Otonabee and extend the sewers to the plant. The law was referred to in yesterday's Examiner, and reads in part as follows:

Section 47.

Section 94 of the Public Health Act is amended by adding thereto the following sub-sections:

(7) The sewerage system of sewage disposal plant of an urban municipality may, with the approval of the Provincial Board, be continued into, or through, or be situate in an adjoining township municipality, but before approving of any such work the Provincial Board shall give notice to the clerk of the township and shall hear and consider any objections which the council of the township or the residents therein may make to the location of the works.

(8) When the approval of the Provincial Board has been obtained the corporation of the urban municipality may enter upon, take and use such lands in the township as may be necessary, and for that purpose shall have and may exercise the same powers within the township as it has within its own municipality, and paragraph 56 of Section 399 of The Municipal Act and clauses a and b following the said paragraph, shall not apply.

Simpson Struck Out Over 15 Men

Last night the Queen Alexandra School walloped the King Edward School nine 16-3 in a Junior School League fixture. The batteries were Montgomery and Bailey for the losers and Simpson and Head for the winners. Simpson pitched an air-tight game, striking out over fifteen men.

MARKET SHOWED A STRONGER TONE

There were evidences of market confidence in to-day's trading. Practically all the headliners showed advances and the total sales up to one o'clock registered 200,000. The brighter movement might have been anticipated by the protracted quiet of buyers and the fact that the depressing influences failed to materialize. The stronger sentiment was a natural reaction to the movement of late. Refiners, Canadian Pacific, Union Pacific, Steel, Mexican Petroleum and various others showed advances, but how far they are likely to extend is more than can be estimated. The reports to-day did not indicate any general strong influences. The situation of the first part of the week is virtually unchanged; hence the opinion that to-day's prices are principally due to reactive influences.

THE BOY SCOUTS AND THE DUKE'S VISIT

Rev. M. E. Wilson, of Puntypool, is in the city in the interest of a demonstration of Boy Scouts on the occasion of the visit of His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught to Peterborough. In order to swell the muster he will guarantee a troop from Puntypool, and he thinks Rev. C. R. Spencer can be counted upon to furnish another troop. If Peterborough could not make a stroog enough turnout to be worthy of the city, the cooperation of the surrounding towns might be secured to insure a most desirable feature of the reception of the Governor-General.

THE MAN THAT GETS THE TRADE

Sir Thomas Dewar, famous for other things than his title, entertained a company of American hotel proprietors at his London home the other day. There was a banquet with speeches. Sir Thomas dropping into rhyme as he advised his guests thus:

The constant drop of water wears away the hardest stone;
The constant gnawing Tawser masticates the toughest bone;
The constant coming lover carries off the blushing maid;
The constant advertiser is the man who gets the trade.

UNMOLESTED THE CATERPILLARS ARE WAXING FAT AND ACTIVE FOR SUMMER ACTIVITIES

Treat the caterpillar gently.. They are coming to life these days, and the young ones are taking on flesh and activity, and incidentally, they are developing a taste for fliage. In a short time they will be strong and wise enough to forsake the paternal tents for the inevitable hunger march to the nearest maples.

There are sme citizens so adamant in the heart tissues that they are actually hot on the trail of the young crawlers with blazing, oil-soaked rags on the end of sticks, and hatred and a sense of duty in their eyes. These are the few deluded residents who imagine that caterpillars are a menace to the City because they strip the trees of their leaves and frequently kill the tree, not to mention their proclivities to crawling along a woman's hair and then dropping inside her waist, or walking all over baby's face while he sleeps in the shade during a warm afternoon. The caterpillar corporation is truly grateful that belligerent citizens of this kind are the merest handful. A few of the furry brethren have been burned at the stake but the most of them are approaching dusty dimensions, preparatory to quietly stealing away some night, leaving their tents unfolded.

There is one colony of the 'pillars' in a plum tree on the property of one of those residents who is forever urging on others to the warfare of oil, but he has overlooked not only the plum tree but also the little apple and maple tree tents on his property. This is a Water street gentleman but on all the other streets there are nice, kindly we-should-worry gentlemen who wouldn't kill a caterpillar unless it crawled up to where they were sitting and drew within range of a boot-heel.

There was quite a scare in the colony a week ago when the Mayor and the City Engineer urged the property owners to turn loose on the tents, but when it was seen that the fight was being waged by only a few fanatics the furry crawlers slept easily. They will soon be ready to begin their real summer campaign on the trees and by that time should be so numerous that eleventh-hour opposition will scarcely stop the general destruction to foliage and trees with the consequent inconveniences to residents.

Was Dismissed by Justice Britton in Toronto—Deceased Was on Hand-Car With Companions

A CASE OF TRESPASS

TORONTO, May 14—"I find from the evidence of these witnesses that this unfortunate man and his companions on the hand-car had not received permission from the company to go on the tracks, and that, therefore, the company is not responsible for his death. The action is dismissed."

So adjudged Mr. Justice Britton in the Jury Assize Court at the City Hall yesterday morning, disposing of a $10,000 action against the C. P. R., brought by the Guardian Trust Co., as administrators of the estate of Nicola Iannona, an Italian labourer, killed on the main line on Sept. 4th, near Cavan Station.

According to the plaintiffs, Iannona, who had been on an extra gang, track-laying, had gone to Peterborough on a hand-car with some companions, and was returning that night, when, about 9:30 o'clock, a passenger locomotive, carrying no headlight, and giving no warning, ran them down, killing Iannona. On behalf of the dead man's widow and three children, they brought action, alleging carelessness, and suing under the Workmen's Compensation Act and the common law.

The C. P. R., represented by Mr. Angus McMurchy, put in a defence of trespass and negligence.

Although a jury was present, prepared to render a verdict, his Lordship agreed with Mr. Denton, for the plaintiff, and the C. P. R. counsel, that if they cared to have him to dispose of the action instead of letting it go to the jury, a new trial could be obtainable upon the production of more witnesses, otherwise it would not.

The Globe this morning had a report to the effect that the plaintiffs were awarded $1,000 in the above case, but the reporter evidently scrambled the case with another action for damages for the death of Antonio Andreola. Denton, Grover and Field, of Toronto, acting for both plaintiffs stated this afternoon that the above report is the correct one.

BLOCKADING THE STREET COST LOCAL BLACKSMITH THE SUM OF $175.00

Mr. George Detcher, who owns a blacksmith shop on the west side of George Street, between Brock and Murray streets, complained at having the road blocked up so that no one could drive to his shop. Already, he said, he had lost $150 to $175 worth of business, because the streets were blockaded.

The City Engineer was instructed to investigate and see that, if possible, an access to the blacksmith shop, be allowed.

MOVING PICTURES

The pictures being shown nightly at the Grand Opera House are the very best ever seen in this city. They are so clear and steady, and the subjects are so good, and interesting, and educating. Then, the Theatre is so clean and the seats so comfortable, and it is a treat to listen to the music from the Grand Opera House Orchestra.

Try it to-night. The prices are only adults 10c, children 5c. Performance starts at 7:30 sharp, and is continuous. Go early and get a good seat.

Property Owners Want Pavement Plans Changed

Messrs. E. H. D. Hall and T. Bright man waited on the Board of Works, last night, to take objection to pavement being laid on Aylmer Street, between Hunter and Brock Streets. The property on either side, particularly on the east side, was not sufficiently valuable to warrant the laying of a pavement, and besides that the construction of the road made it plain that a permanent pavement would be unsatisfactory there. Mr. Hall pointed out that the street was a filled in road, and was apt to sink to a more or less considerable extent. If it did the pavement would break and crack and would need extensive repairing, or have to be taken up.

The present plans of the Board are to pave Aylmer Street, from Charlotte to McDonnel streets at least, and the Chairman expressed himself as against skipping a block anywhere within those limits.

The City Engineer was instructed to look into the matter and find out whether or not permanent pavement would be satisfactory on Aylmer, between Hunter and Brock Streets.

THE GERRYMANDER.

With a three to one majority, but with a record and policy in inverse ratios to its numerical preponderance, the Whitney government did not dare to face the electors, without the aid of a cowardly gerrymander, a device for legislating three of four Liberal members out of their seats. This cowardly device is so patently unfair, such a glaring example of representative robbery, that strong Conservative journals find it too stiff a dose to swallow. Hence the following specimen comments. Toronto Saturday Night, whose leaning to Conservatism is so great as to be almost horizontal in the direction of Toryism, says:

"This refusal to 'play the game,' as the Englishman puts it, was unfortunately reflected in the redistribution bill, a bare-faced gerrymander, obviously drawn with the sole purpose of weakening an Opposition already too weak for the country's good. Saturday Night holds no brief for any political party, but it cannot but deplore that a session marked by such admirable legislation as that referred to should have been the scene of so much unnecessary rancor and unfairness."

The Toronto Telegram, another Conservative journal and general supporter, and apologist of the Whitney government says:

"The Whitney Government can do without even one supporter from Bruce County better than the Conservative party can do with a continuance of surrenders to the demands of local partisan schemes.

"Gerrymandering will continue so long as gerrymandering is profitable. Leaders of the Ontario Government should not have listened to the small town patriots who sought to readjust the Liberals at of the Legislature. It is to be hoped that these Liberals will be kept in the Legislature by Bruce County's sense of fair play."

The Toronto World, also Conservative, but in a more than usually sane way, says:

"The question will be asked why Bruce is selected, out of so many counties where readjustment is necessary. It will be asked also if the Government has faith in itself, or if Conservatives are losing faith in their own cause, when they have recourse to the butcher's cleaver and the axe.

"Bruce and the double-barreled seats in Toronto are signs of decadence which all true friends of the Whitney Government will heartily regret."

The proverb runs to the effect, that "when the cat's away, the mice will play." One might be inclined to excuse this base action of the leaderless Whitney cabinet to the absence of Sir James Whitney. But this excuse won't serve, and the circumstances lead to the impression that it was done with Sir James's knowledge and approval, tacit if not declared. Sir James may not have been able to take an active part in affairs, but his mind was clear enough to judge between right and wrong, to know what his cabinet underlings were doing. If he still holds to the somewhat discredited claim that he "hold enough to be honest and honest enough to be bold," he might have saved the remnants of his reputation in this regard by putting a quietus upon the cowardly gerrymander game of his colleagues, so mean and "low down" that even his strongest journalistic supporters denounce it.

DREADING THE PLUNGE.

The minor members of the Whitney cabinet who have been in charge during the illness of the titular head, feel that the longer they stay in office and the longer they maladminister the affairs of the province, the more slender grow the chances of being kept in office in an appeal to the electors. They want to bring on an election at once, but are afraid of even that, with the help of an unrighteous gerrymander. They see that their slim party tactics and the mean advantages they take by virtue of their big majority is alienating the decenter members and journals of even their own party. The Toronto World and the Toronto Telegram whose Toryism is of the Caesar's-wife variety, have both roundly denounced the Hanna gerrymander and hope that in spite of it, the Liberals, whose seats have been cut, carved and butchered, will be re-elected. The Toronto Saturday Night, whose liberal leanings are of the reverse order, unsparingly condemns the below-the-belt attacks of the "lowest form of peanut politics," in the contemptible pursuit of Mr. Rowell, whom Saturday Night regards "as an estimable gentleman," Mr. G. Howard Ferguson comes in for special reprobation. He is charged thus—

As a "blocker" in the Public Accounts committee, and invoking the brute force of a vast government majority to burke inquiry into various matters he (Mr. Ferguson) has given a sinister aspect to matters which (otherwise) might be reasonably regarded as innocent."

Saturday Night says:

"Mr. Ferguson's name is singled out because he has been the ringleader of a band of ambitious members (of the government side) who have endeavoured to lower the tone of political discussion throughout the session. The attempt of Kenora to discredit Dr. McQueen of Wentworth because he had prescribed porter for an Indian woman was nursing a young baby, is an example of the manner in which the time of the House was wasted by the lowest form of peanut politicse."

Not only is the Whitney government condemned by prominent Conservative journals, but by prominent Conservatives. Mr. Charles Steele and Mr. Munro of Welland, are out in strong condemnation of the Whitney government's policy on the temperance issue. They both have been officially connected with Conservative associations, but now both believe that "the Conservative party is officially linked-up with and has a coalition with the liquor party of the province," and they believe that "the campaign funds for the Conservative party will be put up by the liquor people."—Isn't it natural that the Whitney cabinet members should hesitate in inviting the scrutiny of their acts and policy implied in a general election?

MAKE IT AN OUTLAW.

Oh, the awfully handy revolver has a pretty record of its own. We should all be better off if not another of these deadly reptiles were hatched. Make the revolver a criminal outlaw which no man would think of oering for sale, any more than he would advertise cholera germs by the ounce; and a number of people will be alive in ten years hence who would otherwise form the subjects of neat epitaphs. As for the criminal, then the finding of concealed weapons on a man would not be a venial offence—it would be tantamount to a confession of an intent to commit a crime which might call for "murder" as an incident.—Canadian Courier.

THEY GOT THEIR MAN.

The stamina of the Northwest mounted police has always been the backbone of law and order in Western Canada. The authorities at Ottawa have just received the report of a patrol which pursued a "wanted" man into the fastnesses of the Rockies last November. For more than six weeks they followed the trail, sometimes with wet clothes frozen to their backs, and at one stage they had run out of all food except tea and sugar. But they got their man. It is a service of which Canada is justly proud, and of which the Empire at large should hear more than it does.—Pall Mall Gazette.

CLASS "A" RATING FOR LEAGUE NEXT SEASON

So the Erie Times Intimates--Two of the Smaller Cities to be Dropped and Montreal and Youngstown to Be Admitted.

The Erie Times says.

"Talk is going the rounds just now to the effect that the Canadian league will be a Class A organization next season. The plan is to drop two of the smaller cities and take in Montreal and Youngstown. With the addition of these two cities the population of the league would be sufficient to warrant a Class A rating.

"The above was broached at the dinner tendered Peterborough fans by Owner George O'Neil of the Erie club at the Lawrence hotel Thursday evening, at which President Fitzgerald of the Canadian league was present. While the matter was not discussed by President Fitzgerald, he said it would be one of his greatest desires to see the Canadian league secure such a rating.

"Next season, no doubt, will see many changes in baseball. Just now the Federal league is playing havoc with the International league and American association. It is these two circuits that are being hit harder than any others by the Federals—in fact they are shouldering nearly the whole brunt of the baseball war.

"As a result there is sure to be a shakedown next season. The tip has been handed down that Montreal may be frozen out entirely, and, if such is the case, would no doubt welcome the Canadian league with open arms. Likewise Youngstown, as that city is without organized baseball this season. With Erie, Youngstown has always been the meal ticket for the other clubs in every league in which that city was represented during the past four or five years."

ENGLISH COUNTY CRICKET RESULTS

LONDON, May 13.—Yorkshire beat Northamptonshire by an innings and 156 runs. Yorkshire's chief scorers were Kilner 11, Denton 58, White 31. Hirst took six wickets for 34; Burke six for 40.

Kent beat M.C.C. by an innings and nineteen runs. Kent's best batsmen were Hubble 75, Woolley 94. Fairservice took six wickets for 39 runs; Woolley seven for 56.

Surrey easily defeated Somerset by 241 runs. Hayes, for Surrey scored 109, Hobbs 86, Goatly 77 (not out), Hitch 50, Ducat 50 (not out). Somerset's best scorer was Daniell 84. For Somerset, in the first innings, Fender performed the hat trick.

In a low scoring match Leicestershire beat Lancashire by 34 runs.

Derbyshire gained a big victory over Worcestershire by an innings and 208 runs. Slater was mainly responsible, taking six wickets for 19 and five for 24. Oliver 79, Cadman 62 were top scorers.

Hampshire narrowly beat Cambridge by 4 two wickets. Mead 94 and Remnant 62 showed the best batting form. Kennedy took five wickets for 31 runs. Lagden, for the Santabs, scored 106.

Cockneys Blanked By The Senators

LONDON, Ont., May 13.—(Special.)—After two days of enforced idleness, London and Ottawa got together to-day and the locals were blanked 2 to 0. The match was stared early in order to permit the men from the capital to catch a train. Four errors, two of them by Bierbauer, did not improve London's chances, and while Kubat and Heck were on pretty much the same footing in the matter of hurling, the Tecumsehs did not get their hits opportunely.

Sketches of The Blountmen

Knute "Swede" Belting, Pitcher.—Was born at Stockholm, Sweden, in the year 1889. He came to America in 1896. He is 5 feet, 10 inches in height and weighs 165 pounds.

Belting started out in baseball as an infielder, with the Cardinal team of Rockford, Ill., in 1908, playing independent ball for that season. In 1909—10, he was with the same club but branched out into a pitcher. In 1911 he joined the Lincoln club of the Illinois and Missouri League, won 18 and lost 9 games. In 1912 he was with the Lincoln Club of the same League when they won the pennant. He won 21 and lost 12 games.

After the season was over he went to the Decatur Cub of the IH League for trial, and won the only two games he pitched.

In 1913 the Lincoln Club sold him to Decatur and he was with that Club until he was traded to Peterborough.

"Knute" needs no introduction to the local "fans," who saw him perform last season. In shape, he is a grand pitcher, but was handicapped the latter part of last season through illness. He is having trouble with his arm this spring, but claims that warm weather is all that is needed now to put him in first-class condition.

MR. CRESSMAN PRESENTS A BEAUTIFUL CUP TO CHURCH BALL LEAGUE

Schedule for the Season Was Adopted Last Night and Constitution Decided Upon.

PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHT

At the executive meeting of the Church Baseball League held in the Y.M.C.A. Parlours last night, the League was the recipient of a beautiful Silver Challenge Sup, the donor being Mr. A. W. Cressman, always a lover of good clean sport. Mr. Cressman has never failed in lending his support, financially and otherwise to the development of athletics of all kinds.

The competition for the trophy already promises to be particularly keen, during the first season of its presentation. The schedule for the spring season, calls for twelve games opening with a double-header at Nicholls Oval, Saturday, May 23.

Schedule.

Saturday, May 23—2 p.m., George St. vs. Y.M.C.A.; 4 p.m, St. Pauls vs. St. Andrews.

Wednesday, May 27—George St. vs. St. Andrews.

Friday, May 29—Y.M.C.A. vs. St. Pauls.

Wednesday, June 3—George St. vs. St. Pauls.

Friday, June 5.—Y.M.C.A. vs. St. Andrews.

Wednesday, June 10—George St. vs. St. Pauls.

Friday, June 12—Y.M.C.A. vs. St. Andrews.

Wednesday, June 17—St. Andrews vs. George St.

Friday, June 19—Y.M.C.A. vs. St. Pauls.

Wednesday, June 24—George St. vs. Y.M.C.A.

Friday, June 26—St. Pauls vs. St. Andrews.

All evening games will start at 6:30 sharp.

The following constitution was adopted for the League;

1. This League shall be known as The Peterborough Church Baseball League:

2. The executive to consist of the President, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer, and one representative from each club entered.

3. Any Church, including the Y.M.C.A. in the city will be allowed to enter a team..

4. Each player in this League must have a certificate stating that he is a member of some active organization in the Church he represents.

5. Each club is to be given eighteen certificates. Eleven of these certificates must be in the hands of the President (Mr. Smith), or the Secretary (Mr. Laucks), before the first game, and the remainder of the certificates before the third game. Any club wishing to sign other players must bring their names before a meeting of the executive and the executive will grant a certificate if it is thought advisable by a majority of the members.

6. This is to be strictly an Amateur League.

7. Any club playing a man not eligible shall forfeit the games in which he played.

8. Protests in writing, must be in the hands of the Secretary three days after the advertised date of the game and must be accompanied by a $2.00 deposit which shall be forfeited if the protest is not allowed.

9. All umpires shall be appointed by the executive.

10. The umpire shall have full authority over all the players when on the field and shall use his own judgment in all matters.

11. The postponed games shall be played at the end of the season if they affect the League standing.

12. The League will supply all balls, and catcher's mask, mitt and pad. The League will also pay for the umpire.

13. All games shall be played at Nicholls Oval unless otherwise stated.

14. The Reach Baseball Guide shall govern the games.

CANADIAN LEAGUE NOTES

Hamilton Herald—A sprinkling of four different baseball clubs were in London yesterday, as St. Thomas, Peterborough, Ottawa and London players interminated and exchanged views on the coming season. The consensus of opinion of most of the players is that the games so far played play no part in judging the respective merits of the various clubs. However, it has developed that the strength lies in the clubs who are now hovering around the top of the standing.

Hamilton Herald—That Yates will have a strong hitting club goes without saying. In Corns, Fisher, Dolan, Dudley, White, Gilhooley and in fact every member of the team, barring the heaving corps, he will have a crew of stick-wielders who are liable to break up a game at any stage. The team is mostly composed of big men, who generally hit the ball hard and often, and many a game will be won by this wrecking brigade. All that was needed to make the Athletics a pennant-chasing squad was the addition of Corns, and now that he has signified his intention of coming along bright days are ahead of local folk.

Under the direction of the Gurney Foundry Co. and ourselves a series of talks will be given on the subject of

"Kitchen Engineering"

Kitchen Engineering deals with How to Cook, more than What to Cook.

That is to say, a meal to be a complete success, must be prepared in proper order.

The Soup should first be ready, then the Entrees, then comes the Roast or other Meats and the Vegetables, then Dessert

Experts have been at work finding out how this can best be done on a Gas Range.

And at this series of Lectures we will put this information at your disposal.

You will find these talks interesting as well as instructive.

You will find it of assistance every day to know how economical, simple and satisfactory it is to Cook by Gas on a Gurney-Oxford Range.

During the Afternoon Lectures Tea will be served, and orders for any Stoves placed at the time will be accompanied by a useful and appropriate souvenir of the occasion.

Greater Love Hath No Man Than To Lay Down His Life For His Friend

Commander Evans, Second in Command of the Antarctic Expedition Under Captain Scott, Relates The Thrilling Adventures, and Awful Privation They Had to Endure.

SOME PHOTOGRAPHS

Most strikingly illustrated, delivered in simple and yet pathetic manner, was the lecture given last evening, at the Conservatory of Music, by Commander Evans, second in command of the Antarctic Expedition, under Captain Scott, who went, after reaching the goal for which they had so long striven, and safely planting the Union Jack, which was presented to the party by Queen Alexandra, in the mound at the South Pole, lost their lives in those Antarctic regions away from civilization, unwatched by human eye, yet honoured and revered by all the world. Two piles of stone, on top of which are placed two wooden crosses, mark the last resting place of the leader of the expedition and his faithful followers, who volunteered to go into those waste and barren lands, partly for love of adventure, which instinct is but common in the breast of every British seaman, and partly for the furtherance of scientific research. The men who formed this daring but highly successful, yet pathetic expedition, were a typical standard of seamen under leaders of the same type. In the case of the officers, it would be wondered by the average Britisher what could induce them to leave the luxuries among which they were situate in the Old Land. Yet, to look at Commander Evans it is not hard to determine the impelling forces. Of medium stature, broad build, possessing a personality which is very attractive and wearing continually the broad friendly smile, he gained the respect of his rather small audience at once.

He wore on his breast the cross of the Legion of Honour, of which he is justly proud, and which was presented to him, by President Poincare when he lectured to the French Geographical Society in Paris. In making the presentation, the President said: "It is an honour to shake hands with so brave a man. In pinning this cross upon your breast, I and the French Government are but echoing the wish of every French heart, however humble." This greeting from the French president should convey then, some idea of the honour and respect Commander Evans has gained by his heroic acts.

To His Honour Judge Huycke, was assigned the task, and incidentally the extreme pleasure, of introducing the speaker of the evening. He said that though the audience was rather small, its constituents were eminently respectable, and very enthusiastic.

The Story.

The following story was then delivered by Commander Evans of the expedition to the South Pole:

"We left London on June 1st, 1910, in our good ship, the "Terra Nova," and in due course arrived at New Zealand. In November of the same year, we left New Zealand. At that time, all hands on board, numbered 59, including officers, scientists, and seamen. The holds were absolutely as full of provisions as we could get them, and the space between decks, was also used for storing cargo. Besides that we carried a large deck cargo.

Ponies and Dogs.

"We took with us nineteen Siberian ponies, and the sleigh dogs, all of which were found quarters on the deck.

"After leaving New Zealand we ran into a terrific gale, which at one time was of such severity as to compel us to think that our expedition would be spoiled. We lost one pony, and one seaman was washed overboard, and never seen again. We had to man the pumps for twenty-four hours, but were successful in saving the ship, and all aboard her, save the unfortunate seaman.

Sighted Icebergs.

"We then steamed south for a matter of 640 miles, when we sighted our first iceberg. Their appearance afterwards was most frequent, and we ran against all kinds of them, large and small. At last we struck the icefields. We steamed for a distance of 200 miles into these floes, and we then found it imperative to stop the engines. The next task was to get the main body, with stores and provisions on to land.

Party Landed.

"Captain Scott and two men landed and made a survey and finally selected a place, which I afterwards had the honour to christen Cape Evans as a suitable place for the winter camp.

"This took place after the ship had got clear of the icefields, and had made another three hundred miles, some of it under canvas, until Parry Sound was reached, where the ship wintered. The main body was unable to get into Campbell, a point to the northward which had formerly been selected, and so the Terra Nova left Parry Sound, again steaming through icefields, until we struck the remarkably clear ice, against which we could make no headway.

Ship Moored in Ice.

"So the ship was moored to this field of clear ice, and the scouting expedition sent ashore, as before stated. The parties were soon at work, transporting the stores, and provisions across a stretch of ice, some miles wide. This work was effected by pony, dog, and hand-pulled sleighs, and in less than a week the stores were all ashore at Cape Evans.

"All Modern Conveniences."

"The next work done was to build a shack, which was done by the ship's carpenter, and when completed was a house fifty by twenty-five feet, which as the real estate agents would term it, was fitted with all modern improvements—which incidentally, were none at all. The stabling for the ponies and dogs was built behind the shack. A way was cut into a glacier for store houses.

First Winter Camp.

"On Jan. 23rd, we said good-bye to our friends, and set out for the 177th meridian, 144 miles' distant, where the first winter quarter was established. It was named One Ton Camp, from the fact that nearly one ton of provisions were stored there. In making this journey, six miles in two days, was all that we could do for a part of the time. This was occasioned by us having to traverse miles of ice with a very rough surface, and sledging was accordingly bad.

One Ton Camp.

"When we got to One Ton Camp, and had been there some time, the ice melted, and so we had to sit contentedly down, and wait for it to freeze again, before we could commence our return journey. This we did on the 13th and were successful in making the main hut."

A picture of Pontin, the artist who accompanied the expedition, was here thrown on the screen, about whom the lecturer sold amusing stories. "He even had a galloping waggon," said Commander Evans, "made out of an old biscuit box and two bicycles wheels.

A Seal's Pose .

"In this outfit drawn by a dog, he would gallop out to any party that were about to set out, and with his camera or moving picture camera, would subject them to be photographed. He even got seals to pose for him, and this was one of them." Here was illustrated a man standing on his head.

Dr. Wilson.

A photograph of Dr. Wilson, the eminent scientist, was then thrown on the screen, "and this man," said the second in command, "was a particular friend of Dr. Scott, and in fact of everyone in the expedition."

Means making dog harness, Mr. Wright, of Toronto, a scientist at work, and Captain Scott writing his diary in the hut were also shown.

Very Cold Weather.

"On June 27th, 1911," continued the speaker, "Dr. Wilson and two men, set out on a journey 6 omiles to the southward, and these men were the first to brave the awful rigours of the Antarctic region. They went for the purpose of securing specimens of ephrapamious, which were scarce. Many times they reported on their return, the thermometer had registered 77 degrees below zero. The fur boots that they were wearing would freeze stiff, and they were badly frost bitten. At last they reached the desired spot, and had hithertofore carried their only means of covering a tent, on the sleighs.

Conservative Member Creates Unusual Scene By Charging Mackenzie With Intimidation

Says C. N. R. Magnate Did Not Manifest Knightly Attributes in Connection With Actions Relations to C. N. R. Matters.

INDIVIDUAL FREEDOM

OTTAWA, May 13.— Amidst tense silence, succeeded by a roar of cheering, William F. Nickle, the young Conservative member for Kingston, to-night made a direct and terrible charge of attempted intimidation against Sir William Mackenzie. So intense was the feeling aroused in the House that his second direct mention of the railway Knight by name was greeted by some hissing.

The arraignment of the Knight who "would fire a poisoned arrow in the dark," who was not able "to meet in fair tilt in open field," was conducted with stinging scorn and contempt. The crowded galleries leaned forward, stirred by the sensation, in breathless interest. Premier Borden's face hardened as he realized the great gravity of the charge. Sir Wilfrid Laurier leaned forward and exclaimed "hear, hear," rapping his desk in earnest approval.

Some Talk of Indictment.

Shortly after the beginning of the young Kingston man's speech Sir William Mackenzie left his front seat in the Speaker's Gallery, which he had occupied throughout the debate. As Mr. Nickle proceeded he left the House. The fire seemed too direct for the railway magnate.

Parliamentary corridors are buzzing to-night. The general impression is that the matter can go no further until an explanation and apology come from Sir William Mackenzie. Some members are expressing themselves strongly in favour of having the Knight financier indicted.

Threat of Discrimination.

It was nearing the conclusion of the young Kingston member's speech that he turned to Sir William Mackenzie and his attempted participation in an attempt to intimidate Mr. Nickle from his position.

He first read a despatch from The Kingston Whig, quoting Sir William Mackenzie as stating that, owing to Mr. Nickle's opposition to the Mackenzie, Mann and Lash leal, he would have to discriminate against the City of Kingston in relation to certain terminal and fuel plants.

"There is another side to this question to which I wish to direct attention, and this is perhaps just a bit personal," Mr. Nickle began. "I do not know exactly whether it is fair that I should bring it up, and yet the conduct was so outrageous that I think it is only fair that the House and country should know how some men fight.

"There is such a thing as a fair fight. A fair fight is the kind of fight a man should fight who has felt the touch of His Majesty's sword. There is the fight of a Knight who should always remember the order to which he belongs: he should have a fair tilt in an open field. He should realize what fair play is, and then he should not strike below the belt."

He Stood Aghast.

"When this letter I have in my hand appeared in The Kingston Whig I stood aghast. I want the House to listen, because within the last year men have been hurled from the Legislatures of the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario because they accepted bribes, because they yielded to the influence of money; and I want to know what is the opinion of this House of men who do not use money, but threats, to win their purpose. As I say, when the first move was made by the Mackenzie & Mann interests in the lobbies of this House to secure Goverament assistance, I was somewhat outspoken in how I felt in regard to the matter."

Mr. Nickle read the telegraphic despatch that appeared in The Kingston Whig, dated March 9, 1914. "I tried to fight fair and to be perfectly sure that I did the man no injustice," the Kingston man proceeded. "I got a second copy of that paper under date of March 12, and I sent a letter to Sir William Mackenzie enclosing it."

Mr. Nickle also read the text of this letter in explanation.

Interview Never Repudiated.

"To this day," Mr. Nickle declared, "he has never answered that letter, has never repudiated that interview, and, therefore, I think I am justified in saying that Sir William Mackenzie is standing by that method of fighting. I want to give this House another illustration of how he fights.

"In Kingston there is a great railroad industry called the Canadian Locomotive Works Company. The man that gets the votes in these works goes to Parliament, whether at Ottawa or Toronto, just as sure as day follows night. Sir William Mackenzie allowed his emissaries to circulate among these men the hint that because the member for Kingston had dared to oppose him, Sir William Mackenzie would therefore give no contracts to the Canadian Locomotive Works Company.

"I say that in a period of industrial stagnation, when that became known in Kingston, women held their children to their breasts, dreading the pangs of hunger and of frost; but I want to say this: "a thousand times better that I should be removed from the public life of Canada than that women should go cold and children suffer, and I also want to say this for these men, that no man raised his voice in protest but one.

Plutocrats Terrorize Representatives.

"What is the democracy coming to, when the plutocrats can terrorize over the representatives of the people? Does free speech amount to anything? First they tried coercion here, then they tried other influences in their power. What did they do? They attacked me in my own city, that which I hold so dear, because if there is one thing that I have been proud of more than anything else in my public life, it is that I had the satisfaction of redeeming that riding when Sir Wilfrid Laurier was in power, after seventeen years of Liberal rule. I won that seat for the first time since Sir John Macdonald went to his grave.

Not to be Throttled.

"Are the representatives of the people to be throttled? Better a thousand times that I should go out of public life than that Mackenzie & Mann should put their hands on my throat and make the public think a man dare not stand up and express his conviction in this House.

"Why, sir, the day the Government brought down this measure on my way to the Chateau Laurier I met Sir William Mackenzie. What did he say 'Why don't you go over to the Opposition?' That is his idea of freedom within a party. He thinks there is no room for independence in Canadian politics either on one side or the other. You must not express your honest convictions if you cannot express them in favour of your party. Might I not say in the words of Shakespeare:

"'He doth bestride this narrow world of ours
Like a Colossus, and we petty men
Walk under his huge legs, and look about
To find ourselves dishonourable graves.'

"I would sooner have honourable defeat than mean victory. (Prolonged cheering). I would sooner go down to defeat in Kingston, if I am a candidate in the next election, than be in Sir William Mackenzie's shoes, and so far forget the order to which I belong as to adopt the tactics of the South African savage and blow a poisoned dart into the back of an unsuspecting enemy. So much for that, and that is personal.

A Laugher Strikingly Rebuked.

'Some man behind me laughs, but he does not know what it is to suffer. Let him stand where I have stood for the last three weeks and see whether he will laugh. I do not profess any virtues, but as I said when I accepted the Kingston nomination, I reserve the right to think and speak for myself. If party government in this country has got to such a stage that within a party there is no room for independents, that a man must agree with his party not only on the fundamentals but also on the incidentals, then I say to this House that so far as the member for Kingston is concerned, give me the freedom of an elector. I have been as careful as any man could be to-night not to go outsid the pale of my party. I am just as good a Conservative to-night, in so far as my inclinations and tendencies go, as I have been for the last twenty years, and was when I learned my politics at the knee of Sir John A. Macdonald.

Where He Differs.

"But here is where I differ. I am opposed to going into partnership with Mackenzie & Mann, just the same as I am opposed to going into partnership comercially with people I do not trust."

MIX-UP IN THE CITY ASSESSMENT

A peculiar mix-up in the assessment was brought to light at the Board of Works meeting last night when the assessor reported that Mr. Hunter claimed that he had been paying taxes on ten feet of property that was not his own for the past ten years. The assesor said that he had investigated the matter and that up to the year 1911 Mr. Hunter had owned the Reid street property in question. In that year it was subdivided and Mr. S. Mitchell took possesison of part of the land. The information that the assessor was given in connection with the subdivision was not correct with the result that Mr. Hunter had been taxed for more than he owned there.

The Board expressed their regret that the mistake had occurred and necessitated Mr. Hunter paying the extra taxes. But they agreed with Alderman Green that it would be establishing a troublesome precedent if they attempted to refund the taxes or take any action in the matter. The assesor, however, will, however, have the matter remedied at once so that in the future the owners of the adjacent properties will both pay the right amount of taxes.

HUERTA IS HEADING FOR WEST COAST

Special Wire to The Examiner:

SAN FRANCISCO, May 14—A private despatch received here to-day, says General Huerta is heading for the west coast of Mexico, with the avowed intention of boarding a Mexican gunboat at Salina Cruz. Admiral Howard, Commander of the United States Pacific fleet, has been notified by the authorities at Washington of this rumour and instructed not to intercept him unless subsequent events make it necessary.

Properly Signed Petition Was Presented to Board of Works Last Night

At the Board of Works meeting last night a properly signed petition was presented from the residents of the section affected, to have Hunter Street, from Aylmer Street to Belmont Avenue, paved. The petition was received by the Board, and City Engineer Parsons was instructed to notify the residents to have all water, sewer and gas connect lones made at once. The pavement will be gone on with as soon as possible.

Dangerous Tracks.

It was brought to the attention of the Board that the Grand Trunk Railway had not moved the siding on Simcoe Street, where it came dangerously close to the sidewalk. After the accident to Mr. Ferguson here, the Railway promised the City to move the siding, but they had not done so. On the motion of Alds. Green and Duffus, the City Clerk was instructed to write the G.T.R. and remind them of their promise, and ask them to attend to the matter.

Minor Matters.

Several loads of gravel will be dumped on Romaine Street to fill up the holes there. The attention of the Board was drawn to the condition of the street by Ald. Saunders. The section on Bethune Street will also receive a due allowance of gravel for the same purpose. Babbs Lane, which up to the present this summer has been neglected, will be watered, as will the portion of Aylmer Street between London and Dublin Streets. London Street, in the vicinity of its intersection with Reid Street, cannot be watered at present as it is impossible to draw the three tons of water up the hill. This part of London Street cannot be watered until a standpipe is put on the top of the hill so that the watering cart can be drawn up the hill without any water in it and filled at the top of the hill, and thus water that section of the street.

Notice of Sewers.

It was decided at last night's meeting to give notice for the construction of the sewers recommended by the Board of Health and to place at the head of the next list a short distance of sewer on Monaghan Road near Victoria Heights. It was also decided to add to the list of cement sidewalks for the coming year one on the south side of King Street, between Rubidge and Reid Streets.

CLASS "A" RATING FOR LEAGUE NEXT SEASON

So the Erie Times Intimates--Two of the Smaller Cities to be Dropped and Montreal and Youngstown to Be Admitted.

The Erie Times says.

"Talk is going the rounds fast now to the effect that the Canadian league will be a Class A organization next season. The plan is to drop two of the smaller cities and take in Montreal and Youngstown. With the addition of these two cities the population of the league would be sufficient to warrant a Class A rating.

"The above was broached at the dinner tendered Peterborough fans by Officer George O'Neil of the Erie club at the Lawrence hotel Thursday evening, at which President Fitzgerald of the Canadian league was present. While the matter was not discussed by President Fitzgerald, he said it would be one of his greatest desires to see the Canadian league secure such a rating.

"Next season, no doubt, will see many changes in baseball. Just now the Federal league is playing havoc with the International league and American association. It is these two circuits that are being hit harder than any others by the Federals—in fact they are shouldering nearly the whole brunt of the baseball war.

"As a result there is sure to be a shake-down next season. The tip has been handed down that Montreal may be frozen out entirely, and, if such is the case, would no doubt welcome the Canadian league with open arms. Likewise Youngstown, as that city is without organized baseball this season. With Erie, Youngstown has always been the meal ticket for the other clubs in every league in which that city was represented during the past four or five years."

ENGLISH COUNTY CRICKET RESULTS

LONDON, May 13.—Yorkshire beat Northamptonshire by an innings and 156 runs. Yorkshire's chief scorers were Kilner 11, Denton 58, White 34. Hirst took six wickets for 34; Drake six for 40.

Kent beat M.C.C. by an innings and nineteen runs. Kent's best batsmen were Hubble 75, Woolley 94. Fairservice took six wickets for 39 runs; Woolley seven for 56.

Surrey easily defeated Somerset by 241 runs. Hayes, for Surrey scored 139, Hobbs 86, Goatly 77 (not out), Hitch 50, Ducat 50 (not out). Somerset's best scorer was Daniell 64. For Somerset, in the first innings, Vonder performed the hat trick.

In a low scoring match Leicestershire beat Lancashire by 34 runs.

Derbyshire gained a big victory over Worcestershire by an innings and 208 runs. Slater was mainly responsible, taking six wickets for 19 and five for 24. Oliver 79, Cadman 62 were top scorers.

Hampshire narrowly beat Cambridge by 6 two wickets. Mead 94 and Remnant 62 showed the best batting form. Kennedy took five wickets for 31 runs. Lagden, for the Santabs, scored 126.

Cockneys Blanked By The Senators

LONDON, Ont., May 13.—(Special.)—After two days of enforced idleness, London and Ottawa got together to-day and the locals were blanked 2 to 0. The match was staged early in order to permit the men from the capital to catch a train. Four errors, two of them by Bierbauer, did not improve London's chances, and while Kubat and Heck were on pretty much the same footing in the matter of hurling, the Tecumsehs did not get their hits opportunely.

King Edward have now won four games and lost none, having defeated the Central Schol on Monday evening by a score of 7 to 3.

Sketches of The Bloomfield

Knute "Swede" Belting, Pitcher.—Was born at Stockholm, Sweden, in the year 1889. He came to America in 1896. He is 5 feet, 10 inches in height and weighs 165 pounds.

Belting started out in baseball as an infielder, with the Cardinal team of Rockford, Ill., in 1908, playing independent ball for that season. In 1909—10, he was with the same club but branched out into a pitcher. In 1911 he joined the Lincoln club of the Illinois and Missouri League, won 18 and lost 9 games. In 1912 he was with the Lincoln Club of the same League when they won the pennant. He won 21 and lost 12 games.

After the season was over he went to the Decatur Club of the III League for trial, and won the only two games he pitched.

In 1913 the Lincoln Club sold him to Decatur and he was with that Club until he was traded to Peterborough.

"Knute" needs no introduction to the local "fans," who saw him perform last season. In shape, he is a grand pitcher, but was handicapped the latter part of last season through illness. He is having trouble with his arm this spring, but claims that warm weather is all that is needed now to put him in first-class condition.

MR. CRESSMAN PRESENTS A BEAUTIFUL CUP TO CHURCH BALL LEAGUE

Schedule for the Season Was Adopted Last Night and Constitution Decided Upon.

PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHT

At the executive meeting of the Church Baseball League held in the Y.M.C.A. Parlours last night, the League was the recipient of a beautiful Silver Challenge Sup; the donor being Mr. A. W. Cressman, always a lover of good clean sport. Mr. Cressman has never failed in lending his support, financially and otherwise to the development of athletics of all kinds.

The competition for the trophy already promises to be particularly keen, during the first season of its presentation. The schedule for the spring season, calls for twelve games opening with a double-header at Nicholls Oval, Saturday, May 23.

Schedule.

Saturday, May 23—2 p.m., George St. vs. Y.M.C.A.; 4 p.m, St. Pauls vs. St. Andrews.

Wednesday, May 27—George St. vs. St. Andrews.

Friday, May 29—Y.M.C.A. vs. St. Pauls.

Wednesday, June 3—George St. vs. St. Pauls.

Friday, June 5.—Y.M.C.A. vs. St. Andrews.

Wednesday, June 10—George St. vs. St. Pauls.

Friday, June 12—Y.M.C.A. vs. St. Andrews.

Wednesday, June 17—St. Andrews vs. George St.

Friday, June 19—Y.M.C.A. vs. St. Pauls.

Wednesday, June 24—George St. vs. Y.M.C.A.

Friday, June 26—St. Pauls vs. St. Andrews.

All evening games will start at 6:30 sharp.

The following constitution was adopted for the League;

1. This League shall be known as The Peterborough Church Baseball League:

2. The executive to consist of the President, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer, and one representative from each club entered.

3. Any Church, including the Y.M.C.A. in the city will be allowed to enter a team.

4. Each player in this League must have a certificate stating that he is a member of some active organization in the Church he represents.

5. Each club is to be given eighteen certificates. Eleven of these certificates must be in the hands of the President (Mr. Smith), or the Secretary (Mr. Laucks), before the first game, and the remainder of the certificates before the third game. Any club wishing to sign other players must bring their names before a meeting of the executive and the executive will grant a certificate if it is thought advisable by a majority of the members.

6. This is to be strictly an Amateur League.

7. Any club playing a man not eligible shall forfeit the games in which he played.

8. Protests in writing, must be in the hands of the Secretary three days after the advertised date of the game and must be accompanied by a $2.00 deposit which shall be forfeited if the protest is not allowed.

9. All umpires shall be appointed by the executive.

10. The umpire shall have full authority over all the players when on the field and shall use his own judgment in all matters.

11. The postponed games shall be played at the end of the season if they affect the League standing.

12. The League will supply all balls, and catcher's mask, mitt and pad. The League will also pay for the umpire.

13. All games shall be played at Nicholls Oval unless otherwise stated.

14. The Reach Baseball Guide shall govern the games.

CANADIAN LEAGUE NOTES

Hamilton Herald—A sprinkling of four different baseball clubs were in London yesterday, as St. Thomas, Peterborough, Ottawa and London players interminged and exchanged views on the coming season. The consensus of opinion of most of the players is that the games so far played no part in judging the respective merits of the various clubs. However, it has developed that the strength lies in the clubs who are now hovering around the top of the standing.

Hamilton Herald—That Yates will have a strong hitting club goes without saying. In Corns, Fisher, Dolan, Dudley, White, Gilhooley and in fact every member of the team, barring the heaving corps, he will have a crew of stick-wielders who are liable to break up a game at any stage. The team is mostly composed of big men, who generally hit the ball hard and often, and many a game will be won by this wrecking brigade. All that was needed to make the Athletics a pennant-chasing squad was the addition of Corns, and now that he has signified his intention of coming along bright days are ahead of local folk.

"Kitchen Engineering"

Kitchen Engineering deals with How to Cook, more than What to Cook.

That is to say, a meal to be a complete success, must be prepared in proper order.

The Soup should first be ready, then the Entrees, then comes the Roast or other Meats and the Vegetables, then Dessert

Experts have been at work finding out how this can best be done on a Gas Range.

And at this series of Lectures we will put this information at your disposal.

You will find these talks interesting as well as instructive.

New Organ at Church of The Sacred Heart is a Splendid Instrument

Detailed Description of Stops and Couplers—Was Built By Casavant Bros. of St. Hyacinthe Que.—Will be Formally Opened on Sunday Evening Next By Bishop O'Brien—A Bequest of Late Martin McManus.

The new pipe organ recently installed in the Church of the Sacred Heart will be formally opened on Sunday evening when His Lordship Bishop O'Brien will be present. Pontifical Vespers will be sung by the choir with other incidental numbers appropriate to the occasion. A special programme of organ selections and voluntaries will be offered by Mr. John Armstrong and the occasion should be a memorable one in the brief annals of the Church of the Sacred Heart.

The pastor, Rev. J. J. O'Brien, his assistant, Rev. V. J. McAulay, the organist, the choir and the congregation have awaited expectantly this event and from reports of those who have examined the organ they will be well repaid by the music at the opening and future services.

The new instrument has a wealth of musical resources. Its tones are sweet and well rendered. The acoustic properties of the loft are said to be decidedly advantageous, the full volume of sound being spread over the naive of the church. The mechanism includes the latest devices and in every respect the instrument represents the best ideas in present day organ building.

Detailed Description.

The organ is of the pneumatic type, the wind being supplied by a two horse power, motor driven electric blower.

There are two manuals, each with a compass of sixty-one keys. There are thirty keys in the pedal organ.

The stops in the great organ are as follows: Open diapason (large), violin diapson, dulciana, principal, harmonic flute, fifteenth and trumpet.

The stops in the swell organ are: Bourdon, open diapason, stopped diapason, viola di Gamba, aeoline, vox celeste, principal, traverse flute, piccolo, dolce cornet (three ranks, 1st, 2nd and third), Cornopean Oboe, vox humana.

The stops in the pedal organ are: Open diapason, Bourdon, Gedecht, stopped flute and octave.

There are also the following couplers which are really stops, great to pedal, swell to pedal, swell to great unison, swell to great sub, swell to great super, swell sub, swell super, great super, tremulant.

Combination pedals are great and pedal, piano, mezzo and forte; swell organ, piano, mezzo, forte and fortissimo.

There is also a reversible great to pedal organ coupler.

The organ also has a balanced swell and crescendo pedal.

The console is attached to the organ.

Has 1507 Pipes.

The entire organ in its three main subdivisions has a total of 1507 pipes, disposed as follows in the swell organ 903 pipes, great organ 520 and the pedal organ 84. The organ front is only a eleven feet wide, but every pipe is a speaking pipe. The instrument is situated in the organ loft built in the gallery at the rear of the Church and provided for in the first plans. The exposed pipes are finished in gold and cream colours, but on account of the organ being at the rear of the Church very little utility was sacrificed for appearance.

The organ's specifications were decided upon by Bishop O'Brien and it speaks for his musical discernment that his selections were so well made. Mr. Armstrong is delighted with it, and several other organists of the City have been equally well pleased. It is regarded as a superior instrument and compares favourably with the best organs in the City.

A Casavant Instrument.

It was constructed and installed by Casavant Bros. of St. Hyacinthe, Que., who buit the grand organ recently opened in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Toronto. This latter instrument is the largest on this continent and the third largest on this continent and the third largest in the world.

Gift of Parishioner.

The new organ was made possible at this time by a gift from the late Martin McManus, who bequeathed the residue of his estate approximately $3,000 for the purpose of purchasing an organ for the church in which he had been a faithful attendant from its first opening. On Sunday last the pastor, Rev. J. J. O'Brien paid a tribute to benefactors of the church, paying particular reference to the deceased donor of the organ. Bishop O'Brien desired to obtain certain stops and musical facilities, and as a result the contract ran to $4,000. The late Mr. McManus formerly lived in Douro, and on retiring from the farm took up residence at Albert street.

PERMISSION GRANTED TO BARRIE'S, LIMITED, TO INSTAL ELEVATOR

A lively discussion took place at the Board of Works meeting last night, when the matter of granting an elevator on George Street to Mr. Thos. Barrie was brought up. The granting of the request was opposed strongly by Ald. Stratton, who said that it would be establishing a precedent in the matter of allowing elevators and trap doors in the sidewalk. Finally, on a vote of six to three, it was decided to allow Mr. Barrie to have the elevator, the doors and the space under the sidewalk. There were present at the meeting Aldermen Duncan, Green, Johnson, Saunders, Buller, McIntyre, Anderson Stratton and Duffus. The first six mentioned supported the motion to grant Mr. Barrie's request and the last three did not vote for it.

When the matter was first broached Ald. Johnson favoured allowing Mr. Barrie the privileges he asked for in front of his new factory and retail store, south of the Customs House. Where it was impossible to get a rear entrance it was all right to have an elevator on the street.

Ald. Stratton said that it was the time to decide whether they were going to have these elevators on the main streets of Peterborough, or not. If they were, by all means grant one to Mr. Barrie, or any other manufacturer, who needed one but if they were not, then refuse the request.

Mayor Buller—"In Toronto, they allow the openings in the sidewalk. The doors open upwards from the centre and across them is placed an iron bar, so that it is impossible for passersby to fall into the opening. These are safe enough and I favour giving Mr. Barrie what he asks, because if it were an outside manufacturer thinking of coming here we would jump at the chance.

Ald. Stratton did not think that the Council would be establishing a good precedent if they allowed the elevator. Several business men had spoken to him about the matter and they all agreed that the elevators would be a source of trouble to the Council in the future. "What is your opinion, Mr. Parsons?" he concluded.

"Well, I think my report answers that question." Mr. Parsons answered; "I am dead against it."

Ald. Anderson—"I still object to these openings in the sidewalk. They are dangerous and they are a nuisance."

Ald. Stratton—"What's the use of having a City Engineer if you turn down every report he sends in."

Ald. Green felt that while as a general thing such openings should not be allowed yet in such a case as this, where a man could not get any other entrance to the building, it seemed unfair to refuse it."

Ald. Saunders did not commit himself but supported the motion when it was voted upon.

Mr. Barrie was then shown into the committee room and said that he was ready to answer any questions the Board would like to ask him. In reply to questions he said that so far he had been unable to secure any rear entrance to the proposed factory. Of course there was a possibility that he might, but unless he was sure of some access to the store he could not go on with the building. If it was delayed much longer he would have to put off building until next season. If the Board decided not to grant the elevator he would go to Toronto in the morning and see if he could make arrangements for a factory there. If the Board gave him permission to have the elevator and he subsequently secured a rear entrance to the factory he would not build or use the elvator on the street.

Al these facts were taken into consideration when the motion was made by Ald Green to allow the request of Mr. Barrie, which passed, as is noted above.

Mr. Barrie was given permission to put a coal opening in the sidewalk near the curb.

The Board of Trade Has Secured Two Excursions in June

The Board of Trade's efforts to bring excursions to Peterborough have already borne good results. As the result of the Board's activities in this direction two excursions have been already booked for June. The A. O. F. of Trenton are coming on June 18, and the True Blues of Orillia will run an excursion to Peterborough on June 3rd. The Board of Trade will continue to enlist the attention of societies throughout the Province with a view to encouraging them to make Peterborough their objective point.

Free Instruction In Swimming For Boys at Y. M. C. A.

The Y.M.C.A. will place its swimming tank next week at the disposal of the school boys of the City who have not yet learned to swim. All the boys who wish to learn this art are invited to visit the Y.M.C.A. between the hours of four and six o'clock every day beginning on Monday and continuing until Saturday. Competent instructors will give lessons in the various strokes, with particular attention to the proper method of learning the principal strokes. The tank will be heated to a comfortable degree and all the boys are invited to take advantage of this offer. There is no charge whatever. Parents are assured that the boys will be carefully looked after, and it is probable that many will learn the strokes.

THE BREAD BY-LAW AND MR. CAMERON

Editor Examiner.

Sir,—I see by your issue of yesterday that the latest treatise upon any branch of the law is entitled "Campion on Bread By-law," compiled for the benefit of the public. The learned author arrogates to himself the functions of a court of last resort, and has pronounced the sanitary laws respecting the wrapping of bread to be ultra vires. Although as regards Dr. McPherson as an authority upon the interpretation of the law, he challenges that gentleman to give a contra opinion, and believes that he cannot do so. That settles it. He does admit, however, that some watchdogship might be enjoined but whether on the bread or the Retail Merchants' Association (of which he assumes to be the mentor) he does not say. Verily, a greater than Blackstone has arisen in our midst.

Yours truly,

Citizen.

Peterborough, May 14, 1914.

A BRIGHTER CITY

Editor of The Examiner,

The clean-up programme arranged for Peterborough would be much improved by extending the garbage collection all over the City instead of allowing the surrounding township the use of the incinerator. The property owners are paying for the incinerator, but the majority of them are not benefited by it. What can the citizens do with the garbage, only put it in their back yards or on the lawn to collect all kinds of insects and flies?

Compulsory sewerage would help along the clean-up programme. Hoping the next time the City Fathers bring up garbage collection they will think how to brighten the City.

If the money spent on those souvenirs they are sending to England to encourage more to come to Peterborough for the City to support next winter, was spent on the garbage collection, we might have a brighter City.

NICKLE'S CHARGE A SERIOUS ONE

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, Ont., May 14—The talk runs high this morning concerning the insurgent speech of W. F. Nickle and the chief topic of conversation is the vigorous attack which the member for Kingston made upon Sir William Mackenzie, head of the Canadian Northern. The general consensus of opinion is that if Nickle's charges can be proved the matter will be a serious one. There is strong opinion that if he can substantiate his charges made in the House there will be cause for action on the grounds of contravention of the freedom of the Parliament Act, since it is an indictable offence to bring stress to bear upon a representative of the people. Apart from this it is believed here that the charges will have somewhat of a serious effect upon the vote on the present measure.

This morning Sir William Mackenzie and Mr. Nickle engaged in a long conversation in the corridor. Their conference was an animated one, but they parted smiling. R. B. Bennet, the second Government insurgent, will be heard this afternoon.

CONGRATULATIONS SENT BY VILLA

Special Wire to The Examiner:

JUAREZ, Mexico, May 14—"My congratulations to Gen. Gonsales. We meet soon in Mexico City." Gen. Francisco. Villa is gathering troops for an assault on Saltillo where 12,000 Federals are encamped, and sent this brief telegram to the Nationalist headquarters, here, to-day, in response to a message sent at midnight advising him of the route of the Huerta forces at Tampico. Gen. Carraza, Commander in Chief of the Constitutionalist forces, has granted the United States permission to send civilian representatives to Tampico to take charge and operate the oil properties there.

SIGNALS FOR USE ON SWING BRIDGE

OTTAWA, May 13.—An order of the Railway Commission just issued requires all railway companies to display a white light at night on each side of a swing or draw bridge over a navigable waterway and a lantern surmounting the swing span showing a red light up and down the channel when the passage is closed and green when the swing is open. All such bridges must be in charge of competent persons.

160,000 JEWS IN CANADA.

According to Mr. Rohold, Who Addressed Presbyterian Mission Society.

At the afternoon session of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church in Toronto yesterday, the president, Mrs. John Somerville, gave her address. There are forty-six Presbyterials, 1,119 auxiliaries and 25,077 active members. The amount raised by the society during the year was $68,785.75, not counting the gift of $5,000 for the establishment of a pioneer hospital.

Rev. Mr. Rohold, of the Jewish Synagogue, spoke on "Present Day Conditions Among the Jews in Canada." He said that the Jew regarded his lot as hopeless from which there was no escape. In the last thirteen years 160,000 Jews have come to Canada, the greater number of them from Russia and Roumania, the greatest influx being in 1908, when 7,718 entered the country. In spite of the fact that during the last thirty years over £20,000,000 has been spent by wealthy Jews to remove their race from Russia, there are still 6,813,000 there, suffering untold tortures at the hands of the Russian Christians. The result of the great movement to get the Jews back to Palestine has been an increase of 60,000 in the colony there.

Puzzle of The Provincial Elections

"We have two years before we must hold an election," said Sir James Whitney on Monday evening. What excuse, in view of that emphatic statement, can the Prime Minister offer for dissolving Parliament and rushing the Province into a premature election? It would seem that personally he needs to be urged by his more aggressive colleagues, who, before the session closed, let it be understood by their followers that an election would probably be called in June. The return of their chief has upset their plans. It is said "he is cogitating over the matter," and that "there is disinclination on the part of his colleagues to press him to a decision." What is lacking is a reasonable and valid excuse, from the public point of view, for holding an election, as the Premier himself says, two years before the time.

Conservative newspapers have asserted, in one form or another, that the only shadow of an excuse for an early election is the uncertain condition of Sir James Whitney's health. It has been openly stated that the prestige of his name is the chief hope of his colleagues; that without his name as the nominal leader they would require to make another choice; that the choice of another leader would hopelessly rupture the Government. Mr. Hanna would not follow Mr. Beck and Mr. Beck would not follow Mr. Hanna. Mr. Beck's Provincial Hydro-Electric policy Mr. Hanna has fought from the beginning, but he knows that with his own damaged reputation he would fare badly were Mr. Beck to withdraw from the Cabinet or openly oppose him. These things are common knowledge among all who are in touch with the Government situation.

And it is this long and bitter feud that just now makes it seem politically prudent for the Hanna group to hasten a general election. Were Sir James compelled to retire now the fat would be in the fire. Therefore it was that the closing of the session was staged with Sir James as head and front of the Government's forces. Since then the utmost care has been taken to press him and keep him in evidence. It is all part of a plan.

But the Government's dilemma remains. Either there is no excuse for an early election, not even in the Premier's condition, or all of this pretence that he is equal to the demands of his office is dishonest campaign bluff. If within six months or even a year his recovery might be adequate to the strain of his duties, Parliament should run its course at least for another session. But if not, then this jockeying is simply a barefaced attempt on the part of Sir James' colleagues to regain power under false pretences. Honest men would not attempt such trickery. Men who do attempt it ought not to be allowed to profit by it.—Globe.

Steamer Otonabee On The Floor of Lake Simcoe

According to a report from Barrie the steamers Otonabee and Monarch, which were formally owned by Peterborough interests, are under water in Lake Simcoe. It is said the ice stove in the Otonabee's side and notwithstanding the fact that a pump has been working steadily, it has been impossible to keep the water out.—Lindsay Post.

NEW C.P.R. "NORONIC" A SPLENDID CRAFT

When the S. S. "Noronic" swings out from Sarnia on June 3rd for its initial trip over the Lake Superior route for the Northern Navigation Company, all Canada can point to it and say a "Canadian Creation" from its mammoth keel to its towering heads.

Not only is the "Noronic" the masterpiece of Canadian hands and minds, but it is "Canadian Owned." The Dominion has just cause to be mighty proud of the Giant of the Inland Seas," for it marks a big advance in the science of modern steam ship navigation. The "Noronic" has been called the final word in art of naval architecture.

When the greatest craftsmen of Canada, at the Port Arthur ship yards had expended their energies on the "Noronic" it was sent down to Sarnia for its final grooming by educated Dominion hands.

In this Ontario city the "Noronic" took on its final tasty interior touches, while the great commercial cities of Canada supplied the mammoth liner with its utensils. From Montreal, Toronto, and Ottawa came the Empire's finest furnishings. The exquisite white linen which adorns the "Noronic" dining tables, the silverware, al the rlich furnishings of the parlour cabins, the state-rooms, and in fact, everything on this great liner benefitted Canadian bank accounts.

And of what value is this great ship to Canada and its people you ask? It will bring two flourishing sections of the great Canadian Empire into the safest and swiftest communication with each other and will bind closer that tie which exists between the United States and the Dominion.

The great resources of the Canadian Northwest and rich trade centres of Eastern Canada are brought closer together with the coming of the "Noronic." Also mother earth's dividends of the American northwest are opened up to all Canada.

Commerce is the backbone of the nations of the world. The "Noronic" will build with the greatest possible safety this muscle and fibre of national industrial health. It will also pour into the vast Northwest settlers and moneyed interest of the east. Its work is that of pioneer in one long battle with forces of the sea to promote civilization.

"The Noronic' has been designed for the purpose of carrying people and freight from "The Gateway to Eastern Canada," Sarnia, to the "Gateways to the Great Northwest," Port Arthur and Fort William, without regard to anything. Canadian hands and Canadian brains have made possible this Canadian Construction.

ESTATE TO PAY LANDLORD.

Tenant Made Too Merry and Was Burned to Death.

C. T. Kirk, an old bachelor, had been spending a day in Trenton and returned to his home in the country nearby somewhat the worse for liquor. He threw lighted matches on the floor and poured oil on the stove with the result that the house was burned and Kirk lost his life.

The county judge of Durham and Northumberland allowed Charles J. Goodfellow $194 against the estate of the dead man for damage to the house, which was owned by him and for eight months rent. The administrator of Kirk appealed, and the appeal was to-day dismissed at Osgoode Hall by Mr. Justice Kelly.

NOTES AND GLEAMINGS

Since the first mile of tunnel under the English Channel was completed thirty-two years have elapsed, yet travellers still make the rough sea trip between Dover and Calais. The art of tunnel boring has advanced, and the task of penetrating the chalk of the Channel bed for the distance of twenty-five miles would be simple for the gigantic boring machine shaped like a carpenter's bit. The picture painted by the alarmists of a French invading army proceeding to England by way of the tunnel is not so vivid as it used to be. The engineers could easily provide devices for putting the tunnel out of commission in case of war. The project is being revived, and the House of Commons will soon be called upon for its approval.

IS EUTHANASIA MURDER? NOTED SPECIALIST FAVOURS IT

In an interesting symposium on euthanasia The Medical Review of Reviews presents some highly divergent views upon the justification for assisting suffering incurables out of this world.

The most striking contribution is that of Dr. Roswell Park of Buffalo, the distinguished surgeon most widely known because of his attendance upon President McKinley. Dr. Park not only favours euthanasia — he has the courageous candour to admit that he has practiced it, and adds: "I know that others have assumed the responsibility, which I myself have taken in more than one case, of producing euthanasia when, in the terminal stage of life, a patient was suffering the tortures of the damned and has pleaded for a method of escape, the pleading being seconded by the family."

Calls It Applied Altruism.

"Under these circumstances," says Dr. Park, "I think that to administer a lethal dose of morphine or of chloroform is to do as one would be done by.' I have been told by high legal authority that to do this is equivalent in the eyes of the law, to committing murder. Nevertheless no one need allow his conscience to trouble him on this score. I am positive that it is one of the kindest acts that a medical man can ever perform. If one must die, why should he die in agony when death can be made painless and, in a sense, happy? Euthanasia has always commended itself to me as being kind to the proposed subject of it and human in the highest degree; in fact as being practically applied altruism."

Among those favouring euthanasia are John Burroughs, the naturalist, and Jack London, the novelist. On the other hand physicians are among its most emphatic opponents. Dr. Abraham Jacobi states the objection which most conspicuously occurs, that based on the uncertainty of prognosis.

Is Another Remedy.

Dr. Bryant, of Bellevue Hospital, points out "that therapeutics provides a remedy in comfortless and hopeless instances without the need of human sacrifice," while Dr. Gerster of the New York Polyclinic thinks the agitation for euthanasia is a sign of the neurotic tendences of the present phase of civilization, and declares that "I personally have found, with one or two exceptions, in a practice of forty years that, in spite of most passionate declarations of a desire for death whenever the matter was discussed seriously with the patient, the sincerity of his spoken wish was easily refuted by his own actions. The overwhelming majority of incurable patients do not wish to have the inevitable end hastened. They are right, too, in this, their attitude, as there is so far no trustworthy criterion which would permit a well informed and conscientious physician to declare that any concrete case of the most desperate malady is really incurable."

It would seem that the intelligent use of anodynes would serve the end sought by those who favour euthanasia without necessarily involving the social, legal, moral or religious complications presented by the extreme resort.

Stock Markets

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

In the Stock Market you will probably see rallying tendencies in special stocks. There is a disposition in conservative quarters of the street to await the Mellon testimony in connection with the New Haven financing sensations. We also observe an inclination to hold off from activity pending adjustment of speculative accounts abroad. These two factors are understood to have been important elements in restoring the operations of large professionals and also of market interests who would otherwise be disposed to elevate specialties. It is understood that a large short interest is outstanding in amalgamated copper. Liquidation appears in all rallies in C. P. R., Ray and Utah coppers are being. Reading is reported to be making slow accumulation. U. P. traders are awaiting the dividend action, which may be taken to-day. Private cables from London indicated that sentiment would pass off without difficulty and that the situation there was substantially improved. Strength in United States Steel was the most notable feature, the stock selling up to 60 1-2, compared with 59 1-4 yesterday.

Sentiment is better and a decision favourable to railroads in the rate matter would probably be followed by heavy buying of rails and other stocks.

Greater Love Hath No Man Than To Lay Down His Life For His Friend

Commander Evans, Second in Command of the Antarctic Expedition Under Captain Scott, Relates The Thrilling Adventures, and Awful Privation They Had to Endure.

Built Stone Huts.

"The weather became of such an inclement and severe nature, however, that on reaching their destination, they built stone huts, which they covered with canvas, taken for the purpose. A blizzard set in, and they were marooned in this stone hut, for three days. The canvas had been blown away by the terrific winds, and they had only their sleeping sacks to defend them from the weather. The storm at last abated as suddenly as it had started, and they wisely crept out from their prison, got a good meal, the first they had had in three days, and made tracks again for the camp. They were five weeks and two days making this awful journey, and when they reached 'home,' their clothes were in such a condition, that they had to be cut from them.

"The Merry Widow."

"They were badly numbed, and so the cook set before them a good meal. When he saw with what rapidity the jugs of cocoa were consumed, he went out into the kitchen, and without hesitation made another supply in a bucket. Dr. Wilson was asked about the journey, but his condition was such that no talk could be extracted from him. Only one of the party made any intelligible request, and he wanted to hear the gramaphone, and asked them to play the "Merry Widow."

"34 Ounces" Perhaps.

"The sledging rations that were allowed to each man were 6 ozs. biscuits, (wholemeal) containing a large percentage of vegetable food; 12 ozs. of pemmican meat food; 3 ozs. butter, and a small quantity of sugar, tea, and cocoa. This totalled 34 ozs. per man. Commander Evans was once asked if he had said that there were 34 ozs. of rations per man, per day. The Commander replied in the affirmative, after which the Irish seaman said, "34 ozs. per man per day perhaps."

Local Weather Conditions.

At last the great march south was commenced. Commander Evans and his party advanced first and halted at the first winter camp, and there awaited the arrival of Captain Scott and the main party. Captain Scott arrived on the twenty-first of November, after having been delayed by unusual weather. To contrast the local weather conditions which were encountered, it might be said that Commander Evans and his party had exceptionally good weather for their journey. There is no doubt that the dog transport is the best in such regions.

First Pony Killed.

"After we had been travelling for some time, we had to kill the first pony. We then travelled south, until we sighted the world's biggest glacier. It was the hope of Captain Scott to encamp on this, but when we awoke the next morning, we found that the thermometer had risen to above freezing, and a sleet was falling, which later turned into rain. This created a slush a foot and a half deep, and spoiled our chances for operating on the glacier, and we accordingly held up.

More Ponies Destroyed.

"At the end of that day, we found it necessary to kill the rest of the ponies. They were shot, and their flesh cut up, and stored in the snow. We then advanced on to the glacier. On the 17th of December we struck a blue ice surface, which enabled us to make good headway, and we gradually stretched our marches out, until we were making 23 miles a day. We reached the top of the glacier on December 27th. Captain Scott was at that time on King Edward Plateau, which rises to a height of between 7,000 and 11,000 feet.

Christmas Day.

"We reached latitude 86 on Christmas Day, and experienced great trouble with crevasses. A man would be walking along, when he would give a sudden yell, and would disappear into a yawning chasm, and it was with great difficulty they were rescued. After leaving Dr. Atkinson's party, we steered southwest, and on Christmas Day headed due south, straight for the Pole.

Many Happy Returns.

"We had not travelled far, when Lashy, a burly Irish seaman, fell into a crevasse, from which he was rescued with difficulty, and it was found that his mouth was somewhat torn. This was his 44th birthday, and his mate said as soon as he appeared at the top of the channel, 'Many happy returns.'

"Christmas dinner meant a great deal for us. It was dished up by Bowers, the man in charge of the stores. The following day we pursued our journey, and on New Year's eve, we reached the 87th parallel.

Could Reach the Pole.

"Next morning Captain Scott came to me, and said that he believed that he could reach the South Pole, if I would give him a man, and my instruments, and endeavour to return to the camp. This I agreed to do, and Bowers was handed over to the main body. Captain Scott asked me to march a few miles with him to see if everything was all right, and that he would be able to manage with the outfit.

Three Hearty Cheers.

"We therefore marched on to the parallel 87.35, which was 187 miles from the Pole. Here the Captain gave us our instructions, and he and his brave men started southwards. As they departed, three hearty cheers Commander Evans—Gal Three [illegible] were given them by us other three men, and I think that was the last encouragement they ever received.

Marched Longer Hours.

"We started our march northward, and after the first day, we noticed that we were not going the necessary distance. There were two things left for us to do. One was to make up our minds to live on half rations, and the other was to march longer hours. Needless to say we chose the latter. We marched ten hours per day, and later 12 hours per day. On January 8th we encountered a blizzard, but we had to go on marching. When the blizzard abated, we found that we had lost our bearings somewhat, and were on top of the Shackleton ice-falls.

Good Tobogganing.

"The thought occurred to my mind, that if we could toboggan down these falls with safety, we should save at least three days' marching. According we lay flat on our stomachs on the sleds, and started. Toward the latter end of the 2,000 feet descent, we became careless and did not check the speed of the toboggan, with the result that we ran against a boulder, and were all flung heavily overboard.

Developed Scurvy.

The most severe reverse that we encountered, was when I developed scurvy. Creed and Ashly helped me forward. I told the men to leave me, with all the provisions they could spare, and make for the camp, and bring assistance if they could. This, however, they refused to do, and said that if one of us had to go out, we would all go out together.

"I managed, however, to get them to a point where they would be able to take their own bearings for the camp, and utterly exhausted, I fell down.

Saved Our Lives.

"They placed me on a sleigh, and pulled me forward, until they were within reasonable distance of the camp. Then snow fell, and the men could not pull the sleighs through it. This left them in a funny predicament. They held a council and Creed agreed to go to camp for assistance, while Ashly stayed behind and nursed me. This was done, and Creed arrived at the camp, and found Dr. Atkinson and Demetrie. After he had sufficiently recovered from his exhaustion, he explained our location, and they galloped out with dogs, and saved our lives.

Albert Decoration.

"I was sent for by His Majesty after the return of the expedition, and I mentioned the bravery of these men to him. He forthwith decorated them with the Albert Medal.

Success At Last.

"When we said good-bye to the other party they were 145 miles north of the Pole. They reached it two weeks later, only to find that Amundsen, the Norwegian explorer had been there. The accuracy with which the location of the Pole was decided, however, is shown in the fact that there was only a difference of half a mile between the two explorers' calculations.

Their Last Journey.

"Captain Scott and party started the return journey on January 7th, and were making 17 miles a day. Evans showed signs of failing, until on the 17th of February, he died. When the party reached the great ice barrier, they expected better weather, but got worse. The company, however, decided to keep on. Oates was suffering from badly frozen feet and hands. On the 17th of March, thinking that he was but a burden to the party, and that the provisions which he would eat would provide for the others, he walked out of the tent, and gallantly committed suicide.

Bodies Buried.

"Captain Scott and his companions pushed ahead until March 29th, when Captain Scott wrote his note to the public. It is well known how he, Dr. Wilson, and Bowers, the storemaster, perished in those bitter southern regions. Their bodies were later found by a search party, and buried."

Godfrot Langlois Gets a Job.

MONTREAL, May 15. — Godfrot Langlois, member of the Provincial Legislature for St. Louis, Montreal, has been appointed representative of Quebec in Belgium. Mr. Langlois is the owner of Le Pays, lately placed under the ban by Archbishop Bruchesi because of its advocacy of compulsory education in Quebec, which is not approved by the Roman Catholic Church authorities. Mr. Langlois has been a constant critic of the Provincial Government on educational matters.

It is understood that Le Pays will now discontinue publication.

PAPERS CRITICIZE NICKLE

"No Intimidation" Declare Both Whig and Standard.

KINGSTON, May 15.—The Daily Standard (Conservative), in discussing the charge of intimidation brought by W. F. Nickle, M.P., against Sir William Mackenzie, yesterday editorially, under the heading "Mr. Nickle's Blunder," strongly rebukes Mr. Nickle.

It says in part: "It is a great pity that Mr. W. F. Nickle, the member from this city, had not consulted a practical newspaper man before making his charge that Sir William Mackenzie of the C. N. R. had in effect undertaken a campaign of intimidation in this city. Had he done so he would have saved himself from what we can only say, regretfully, is a most serious blunder, since the article referred to, on which the charge is based, was not a direct statement from Sir William Mackenzie, but was merely a report of what Sir William was alleged to have said to an unnamed and unknown 'someone'."

The British Whig (Liberal) says: "There was no intimidation whatever on the part of Sir William Mackenzie, who is alleged to have made a remark quoted in a news item. The remark was made in a purely off-hand manner evidently, when the C. N. R. magnate was approached by a Kingston friend with reference to the C. N. R.'s intentions regarding Kingston.

"Sir William's alleged remark was a very natural one under the circumstances, but he did not utter it as an ultimatum."

FOR CHRONIC COUGHS

Milton, Pa., Woman Has Found a Remedy.

Mrs. Howard Wagner, of Milton, Pa., says: "I had a bad cold for months and would cough every night until midnight. I consulted a doctor and took two kinds of medicine but got no relief. Vinol was recommended and after taking it a week I could sleep all night without coughing once. I continued its use and now have a fine appetite, never felt better and my cough is entirely gone."

It is a well known fact that when a person is run-down, stomach out of order, or the system overloaded with waste matter, vital resistance is lowered and colds and coughs are easily contracted.

The safest and surest method we know to overcome this condition is by taking our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol. In the most natural manner, Vinol tones up the digestive organs, promotes a hearty appetite, enriches the blood, and as a specific for chronic coughs, colds and bronchial troubles Vinol is unexcelled.

Try a bottle of Vinol on our offer to return your money if it fails to help you. McDermid & Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte Streets; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe Streets.

WAINWRIGHT PASSES AWAY

Senior Vice-President of G. T. R. Passes Away, Aged 74

HAD BEEN ILL A MONTH

MONTREAL, May 15.—Word was received here last night of the death earlier in the evening at Atlantic City of Mr. William Wainwright, senior vice-president of the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific Railways. Mr. Wainwright, who was 74 years of age, had been critically ill for a month from neuralgia in the head and complications. He had gone to the New Jersey resort to recuperate. Although not much improvement was seen in his condition arrangements had been made to bring Mr. Wainwright home to-day. Several of his relatives were with him to the end.

The late Mr. Wainwright was one of the best known railroad men on the American continent, in fact it was said of him that he was as well known in the capitals of North America as the late King Edward was in the capitals of Europe.

A man of exceptional ability and versatility; capable, hard-working, pertinacious and possessed of a keen intellect and insight, the late vice-president was for a long period responsible for much of the Grand Trunk Railway's development, in connection with which he had labored from its inception.

Among the executive he was known as the "general purpose man," and as such acted in an advisory capacity right up to a short period before his last illness. Also on account of his popularity with men of all parties at Ottawa he was entrusted with the road's interests in matters that come before Parliament. He was numbered among the twenty-three men said to be at the basis of Canadian finance.

Mr. Wainwright's many responsibilities during a crowded business career did not preclude him from taking an active part in military matters. He was gazetted captain in 1872 in the First Brigade of Garrison Artillery, and had seen service during the Trent affair and Fenian Raids, for which he received the medals. He was a devoted Imperialist, and an religion an Anglican.

Born in Manchester, Eng., April 30, 1840, he later entered the service of the Manchester, Sheffield & Lincolnshire Railway as a junior clerk, and subsequently rose step by step until he became secretary to the general manager of the system in 1858. In that year, at the solicitation of the late Sir E. Watkins, then prominently connected with the Grand Trunk Railway, Mr. Wainwright resigned his position and came to Canada as senior clerk in the chief accountant's office at Montreal.

A year after his arrival in Canada he was holding down a responsible position as senior clerk to the managing director, as well as being in charge of the car mileage department. Nine years later, in 1873, he was appointed general passenger agent, was promoted to the assistant managership in 1881, and became assistant general manager of the railway in 1891, comptroller in 1900, fourth vice-president in 1907, and second vice-president in 1910. Since then he has been vice-president of the Grand Trunk Railway and second vice-president of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, and more recently senior vice-president of both systems. He was also director in many other corporations.

Liberal-Labor Split In N. E. Derby Gives Unionist Fine Chance.

LONDON, May 15.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—Major Bowden, Unionist; John Houfton, Liberal; Jas. Martin, Labor, were yesterday nominated in the northeast Derbyshire election. Local feeling over the Liberal and Labor split is becoming bitter. The Liberal agent has issued a pamphlet telling the Labor candidate that if he reached Westminster he would be a mere baby in the hands of the Socialists, who often, by various ways, have incomes of a thousand pounds a year.

The Laborites, on their side, retort that the Liberal candidates is a mere tool in the hands of Sir Arthur Markham, who admittedly possesses immense local influence.

The Unionist candidate meantime is working sixteen hours a day presenting the case for Ulster and also advocating social reform founded on tariff reform.

Polling takes place on Wednesday.

Noted Scientist Dead.

NEW YORK, May 15. — Private cable message received in this country yesterday told of the death in Paris of Paul Louis Toussaint Heroult, the scientist, whose research work reduced the cost of producing aluminum to such an extent that it became commercially valuable, and whose electric furnace is in common use in great metal industries. Mr. Heroult was 51 years of age. He reduced the cost of producing aluminum from $20 to fifty cents a pound.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Word has just reached Vancouver of the destruction by fire of the chief hotel and several stores at Stewart, B.C.

Fire in Saskatoon Wednesday totally destroyed the Auditorium rink and two residences adjoining. Total loss is $44,700, with $23,000 insurance.

For the first time in history waterborne traffic is now passing through the Panama Canal, according to the reports that have been received from Colon.

Charles Elliott, an engineer attached to a survey party, was drowned in the Downie river, East Revelstoke, B.C., on Sunday. He came from Eastern Canada.

More than 1,000 hogsheads of tobacco were burned in Louisville, Ky., Wednesday night in a fire that destroyed a large warehouse. The loss is $250,000.

Earthquake shocks continued throughout the night and early yesterday in Sicily, while Mount Etna was still active, but only insignificant damage was reported.

Grand Masters of the Ancient Free and Accepted Masons from all parts of the United States, Canada and Mexico met in St. Louis yesterday for their annual conference.

The bill to enable the Nova Scotia Power Co. to acquire the Halifax tramways, which has aroused bitter opposition in Halifax, was passed by a committee of the whole Legislature of Nova Scotia yesterday.

C. F. C. Masterman, the British Cabinet Minister who lost his seat recently in the bye-election for Bethnal Green, has been officially recommended as Liberal candidate in Ipswich, vacant through the death of Silvester Horne.

Empty Canoe Found.

HUNTSVILLE, May 15—Mute evidence that a double drowning tragedy, occurred some time during the night adjacent to the town wharf, was discovered yesterday morning in the form of an empty canoe, a hat, and some cushions. Last night at 11 o'clock Fred. Gunn and "Doc" Harbor, entered a canoe to paddle to their homes. They have not since been seen. The hat discovered belonged to Gunn. Grave fears are felt that both men have perished.

CHILDREN'S EYESIGHT

An astonishing number of school children suffer from the effects of imperfect vision, and many of them are unjustly blamed for being unambitious or mentally stupid. It has been shown by authentic investigation under municipal direction that from 20 to 30 per cent. of the children in public schools have defective vision and should wear Glasses.

We make a specialty of examining children's sight by the most improved scientific methods, and if your child does not need glasses we will tell you so frankly, and make no charge for the examination. We carry a special line of heavy weight Children's Spectacle Frames in Gold Filled and Aluminum.

Should your child require glasses we guarantee that the glasses we fit are the proper correction and will give best results.

Helping His Temper.

The sun was blinding, clouds of dust were blowing everywhere, and Jones was most decidedly off his game. It really "put the lid on it" when, just as he was struggling to play his ball out of a quarry, a benevolent old lady passed by with a companion. She halted in evident surprise and pointed with her umbrella at the earnest golfer. "Dear me, my love," she remarked in audible tones, "what a very respectably dressed man that is breaking stones!"—Argonaut.

He Admired Her Judgment.

She— Oh, Fred, dear, you are so noble, so generous, so handsome, so chivalrous, so much the superior of every man I meet, I can't help loving you. Now, what can you see in plain little me to admire? He—Oh, I don't know, dear, but you certainly have very good judgment.—London Tit-Bits.

"THE TERMS OF SURRENDER"

By LOUIS TRACY

"I hope you won't think it necessary to trouble Mr. Marten with any report of my accident," went on the invalid. "You see, in a sort of way, it happened in connection with his marriage, as I was watching the festivities when it happened—had my eyes anywhere but where they ought to be, I suppose—and if his wife came to hear of it she might take it to heart. Sometimes a woman has odd notions about such things occurring on her wedding day."

"Right you are," agreed Benson cheerfully.

A remark dropped by the manager of the mill had supplied a reason for the young engineer's interest in the marriage, and he had come to the conclusion that the sooner the whole affair was forgotten the better it would be for all parties.

"I'll be in Denver till September or thereabouts; but I'll be seeing you long before then," he continued. "What about squaring your account? I think I have all the details in the office."

"Pay what is coming to me by check to Smith & Moffat's bank," said Power. "They'll let me know when they get the money, and you can mail a receipt here for my signature. By the way, I wish to resign my position on Marten's staff as from yesterday."

"Sorry to hear that. Do you really mean it?"

"Yes."

"Then I'll put that through, also. Good-bye, old chap, and good luck. You'll be well looked after, I suppose?"

"I couldn't be in better hands than Mac's. If he didn't own a hard head, his big heart would have ruined him long ago."

"An unusual combination," laughed Benson, and his eyes met Power's quizzically. "Well, so long! Let me know if I can do anything."

Beyond the purely business formalities connected with the payment of Power's salary and the acceptance of his resignation, Benson heard little of him until ten days later, when a telegram reached him in the early morning. It was from MacGonigal, and read:

"Don't like the look of Power's leg. Send doctor."

That afternoon Benson brought Dr. Stearn to the store, and MacGonigal explained that from some remark granted by Peters when quite sober, and from personal observation, he was not satisfied with the appearance of Power's injured limb. The doctor, a fully qualified medical man, was very wrath with Peters when he had made a brief examination of the patient.

"This is the work of an incompetent quack," he said angrily. "Whoever the man may be, he is the worst sort of idiot—the sort that knows a splints and bandaging have served callous is forming already. Unless shorter than the other the rest of me put you under ether."

"Why?" came the calm-voiced question.

"To put it plainly, your leg should be broken again, and properly set."

"What is wrong with it?"

"You know you have two bones in that part of the leg which is below the knee, the tibia and the fibula? Well, they are broken—by a blow, was it? No, a fall—well, they practically amount to the same thing, though there are indications that this injury was caused by a blow——"

"He fell off one rock onto another, doctor," put in Benson.

"Ah, yes! That accounts for it. As I was saying, they were broken slantwise, and now, instead of being in correct opposition, the upper parts override the lower ones. Do you follow?"

"Suppose they are not interfered with, will they heal all right?" said Power.

"Y-yes," came the grudging admission; "but you'll walk with a limp."

"Bar that, the left leg will be as strong as the right one?"

"Stronger, in that particular place. Nature does some first-rate grafting, when the stock is young and exceptionally healthy."

Power smiled, almost with the compelling good-humour of other days. "Then I'll limp along, Doctor," he said. "I have things to do, and this enforced waste of time is the worst feature of the whole business. It is very good of you to come out here, and more than kind of Mr. Benson to accompany you; but I won't, if I can avoid it, endure another ten days like the sample I have just passed through."

"You'll regret your decision later. There's no means of adding that half inch afterward, you know."

"I quite understand, Doctor. It's a limp for life."

Dr. Stearn felt the calf muscles and tendons again, and pressed the region of the fracture with skilled gentleness.

"It's a pity," he growled. "You've made a wonderful recovery. If, when you are able to hobble about, you meet this rascal, Peters, and shoot him, call me as a witness in your behalf. It would be a clear case of justifiable homicide!"

So that is how John Darien Power acquired the somewhat jerky movement which characterizes his walk to-day; though the cause of it is blurred by the mists of a quarter of a century. The red-whiskered Peters was shot long ago, not by Power, but by an infuriated miner from whose jaw he had wrenched two sound teeth before discovering the decayed stump which led to his display of misplaced energy. It was well that such imposters should be swept out of the townlets of Colorado, even if the means adopted for their suppression were drastic. They wrought untold mischief by their pretensions, and brought hundreds of men and women to needless death. They did some little good, perhaps, in communities where physicians and surgeons were few and far between; but their rough and partly successful carpentry of the human frame did not atone for the misery they inflicted in cases which demanded a delicately exact and scientific diagnosis. At any rate, they have gone, never to be seen again in Colorado, and the precise manner of their departure, whether by rum, or lead or wise and far-reaching laws, does not concern this narrative.

What does concern it most intimately is the first use Power made of his limping steps; for upon their direction and daily increasing number depended the whole of his subsequent history. Life still held for him certain rare and noteworthy phases — developments which, when viewed through the vista of many years, seemed as inevitable and predordained as the ordered sequence of a Greek tragedy. Yet, on the day he hobbled out into the sunshine again, it was just the spin of a coin whether he rode to the Dolores ranch or took train for Denver, and it is safe to say that had he done the one thing instead of the other his future career must have been drawn into an entirely different channel.

At least, that is the way men reason when they review the past, and single out some trivial act which apparently governed their destinies; whereat, in all probability, the gods smile pityingly, for the lives of some men cannot be the outcome of idle chance, and John Darien Power's life was assuredly no common-place one.

CHAPTER IV.
THE SUDDEN RISE OF PETER MacGONIGAL.

A four-wheeled buggy, with springs, the only vehicle of its kind in Bison, had been hired for Power's first outing. During a whole week toward the close of July he had stumped about on a crutch, and, when the great day arrived that he was able to crawl slowly to and fro in the verandah with the aid of a stick, he announced to the watchful MacGonigal that henceforth he was "on the job again."

On that memorable occasion, while Derry was showing off the new-found accomplishment of walking, an elderly man, white-haired and wiry but of small stature, rode by on a mettlesome mustang. Power's face grew hard when he met the rider's stare of astonishment; but the expression fled instantly, and he waved a friendly greeting, which, however, received the curtest of responses, while the horse unexpectedly found his head free for a canter.

MacGonigal, whose big eyes lost nothing within range, noted the bare nod which acknowledged Power's salute.

"Old man Willard held out the marble mitt that-a time, Derry," said he.

Power did not reply for a moment. When he answered, he quoted Dryden's couplet:

"Forgiveness to the injured doth belong;
But they ne'er pardon who have done the wrong."

"Good fer you, Derry!" exclaimed the storekeeper appreciatively. "I've often wondered what you was connin' to yerself up thar," and he jerked his head in the direction of Power's bedroom; "but I never allowed it was po'try."

"You were not mistaken, Mac. I was hard at work on dry prose. Those lines are not mine. They were written before Colorado was christened, and they will be true until men attain the millennium."

"Huh!"

MacGonigal took refuge in a noncommittal grunt, because he fancied that the millennium was the name of a Chicago vaudeville house, and, somehow, the notion did not seem to fit into its right place in the conversation.

"For all that," mused Power aloud, "I'll call on Mr. Francis Willard to-morrow."

So this resolution explained the light conveyance standing outside the store next morning. Power was in the act of settling himself as comfortably as might be beside the driven, when One-thumb Jake galloped down the slope leading from the Gulch. The cowboy pulled up in the approved style of his tribe, swung out of the saddle, and banged into the verandah a decrepit portmanteau, which he had been carrying in the thumbless hand.

"Room an' drink fer a single gent!" he shouted. "I'm an orfin, I am, a pore weak critter alung out inter a cruel world!"

"You're never leaving the Willard outfit, Jake?" said Power, who might well be surprised, since the man had been connected with the Dolores ranch since the first lot of cattle was turned loose on its pastures.

"That's about the size of it," said the other.

"But why?"

Boils Biliousness Malaria Constipation
Are You Troubled?
Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery
Perhaps this case may be similar to yours
J. Wesley Tilly of (Box 672.) Selma, Cal., writes:
Gentlemen:—"It gives me much pleasure to be able to send you a testimonial, if by its reaching some sufferer your medicines will do as much for him as they have for me. At the age of fourteen I was troubled a great deal with malaria and biliousness, accompanied with the worst sort of large boils. I was persuaded by my parents, who have always been strong believers in Dr. Pierce's remedies, to try the Golden Medical Discovery. I took one bottle and the boils all disappeared, but I did not stop at one bottle, I took three and the malaria all left me and I have had no more boils to this day, thanks to the 'Golden Medical Discovery' for my relief.
"Following an operation for appendicitis two years ago I was troubled very much with constipation and I have been trying Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets and they have rid me of the troublesome gas and have added me in conquering the whole trouble; thanks again for the 'Pellets' and for the advice I have obtained from The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." Send only 21 cents for this 1008 page book.
for over forty years has been lending its aid to just such cases as this. In our possession we have thousands of testimonials of like character.
Perhaps you are skeptical, but isn't it worth at least a trial in view of such strong testimony? Isn't it reasonable to suppose that if it has done so much for others it can do as much for you?
Your druggist will supply you in liquid or tablet form, or you can send 50 one-cent stamps for a trial box. Address

JAP-A-LAC—the Gloom-Chaser
WHEN JAP-A-LAC enters your home, Gloom makes a hasty exit. For dust, dirt, and dangerous germs can find no resting place where JAP-A-LAC has been used. Old floors can be given a polished surface, easily kept clean by occasionally wiping with a damp cloth.
Dull, gloomy and unsightly furniture can be made to look like new. Tarnished radiators and hot water pipes can be given a permanent gold or aluminum finish, which will not rub off. Kitchen linoleum can be beautified, and its wearing properties increased—straw matting can be made waterproof, and its life more than doubled—cracked and fraying window shades can be renewed. Anyone can produce these wonderful results by the simple means of JAP-A-LAC—the gloom-chaser.
Made in 21 beautiful colors, and always put up in Green Tins bearing the name "GLIDDEN."

THE STAGE IRISHMAN.

Irishmen Have Always Resented Being Caricatured in Drama.

Rev. Canon J. O. Hannay (George A. Birmingham), author of the comedy, "General John Regan," and of several delightful novels, delivered a lecture at the Royal Institution of Great Britain on "The Stag Irishman."

Canon Hannay dwelt upon the fact that the Irishman had always displayed dislike to being caricatured. Englishmen and Scots men, on the other hand, appeared to have no objection. No one else ever heard of any protest against "Bunty" or against the endless plays in which English characteristics were overemphasized. The reason, he thought, was that Englishmen or Scotsmen had a remarkably good opinion of themselves— (laughter) — and were inclined to regard anyone who caricatured them as a little more than amusing buffoon. (Laughter). Irishmen had no such good opinion of themselves, and, consequently, found the caricature hurtful because it was felt to be caricature, and, therefore, untrue. The usual stage Irishman was that of a person of abundant bonhomie, some courage, a remarkable capacity for making love, addicted to drink and swearing, and with a certain amount of spurious wit. Where did the character originate? Not in the pages of old Irish romance was it found. Nor did one recognize it in the later Jacobean literature; and, coming down to the eighteenth century, they found that the Irish governing classes were a small circle of very able men of great dignity and force of character, who had no characteristics whatever common with the stage prototype.

But there was also about that period living in Ireland a number of Irish gentry—Englishmen really with Hibernized names, he fancied—(laughter)—who, cut off from Imperial affairs and shut up, so it were, upon their own estates, gradually developed habits of drinking, roystering, swearing, and duelling — and it was from these men that the stage Irishman originated. They first met with him in dramatic literature in the character of Sir Lucius O'Trigger, in Sheridan's "Rivals," and it was interesting to recall that when the comedy was first produced the protest by Irishmen against what they regarded as a caricature of themselves was so great that the author had to modify the part to placate his incensed critics. (Laughter.)

In the beginning of the nineteenth century, and after the passage of the Act of Union, the Lucius O'Triggers rapidly grew in numbers. The Napoleonic wars, which raised the prices of produce enormously, left them upon their self-contained estates comparatively well off and undisturbed to the cultivation of the tastes which came to be looked upon as Irish characteristics. But then came the famine of '47, '48 and '49, which ruined this class of gentry, which started the great stream of emigrants from Ireland, developed a high seriousness and a certain amount of sadness in those who stayed and those who went —and the stage Irishman was no more!

Suffered Intense Agony With His Back.

Kidneys Were The Cause.

Weak back is caused by weak kidneys, and on the first approach or evidence of kidney trouble Doan's Kidney Pills should be used, and serious trouble avoided.

Doan's Kidney Pills go right to the seat of the trouble, cure the weak aching back, and prevent any further complications arising.

Mr. John Briggs, Whitewood, Sask., writes:—"I am sending you this testimonial out of pure gratitude, as I am not a believer in patent medicines, but I got so run down, that I became quite willing to give anything a trial. I paid a visit to our local druggist, and told him I was suffering intense agony with my back. He told me I had kidney trouble, and handed me a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, saying it was the best thing he could possibly give me. I tried them, and the effect was certainly marvelous. They are worth $10.00 a box of anybody's money, and I would not be without a box by me. I certainly owe my present condition to Doan's Kidney Pills."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

WINDOW GLASS MACHINES.

They Produce Plates That Could Not Be Made by the Old Process.

It was only within recent years that the art of making window glass by machinery was mastered, the old crude hand methods which had been the only means known for hundreds of years dying hard and slowly. Inventors and skilled mechanics found all their efforts resisted, not so much because of any particular opposition on the part of the hand workers, but because they were unable to perfect the correct form of machinery for their purpose. Even now a considerable quantity of window glass is still hand made, but machinery is everywhere displacing this process.

Until about twenty years ago a man with a blowpipe represented the only method of producing window glass, and the sheets were limited to about two feet by three feet, even then containing defects which could not be avoided. By the perfecting of the cylinder and sheet drawing process it has recently become possible to manufacture glass of good quality and beautiful clarity in about the same manner that paper is made—that is, in a continuous sheet.

Machinery does everything, taking the glass from the molten mass in the furnace, handling it automatically through all its changes until it is delivered on a table, ready to be washed, cut and boxed for shipment. These machine made sheets have already been made as large as five feet wide by ten feet long and apparently the size is limited only by the size of the machine.

The first commercial factory for making continuous sheet drawn window glass was built in Pennsylvania in 1907.—Argonaut.

FORTIFYING THE CANAL.

Big Guns, With a Range of Fifteen Miles, at Both Entrances.

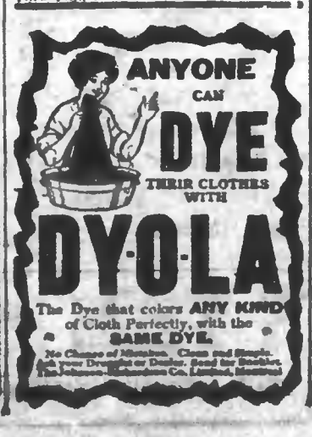
Having invested nearly $375,000,000 in the canal, the United States is intent upon safeguarding that tremendous outlay against the possibility of damage through foreign war. Fortification of the canal has been undertaken purely as insurance matter. It is sought to make it impossible in time of war for any enemy to take possession of the waterway or to damage it to such an extent that the ships of the United States could not use it at will.

Guns of fourteen and sixteen inch caliber will be placed at forts guarding both the Pacific and Atlantic entrances, commanding a radius of fifteen miles. The forts at the Pacific entrance are constructed on three islands in Panama bay, at the very beginning of the canal—Flamenco, Perico and Naos. There are huge masses of volcanic rock, behind which, safe from the fire of any ship, no matter how powerful, the forts stand.

The great Miraflores locks are seven miles inland from the forts, and no gun at the present time is powerful enough to send a shell the twenty-two miles intervening between the outside of the zone of fire from the forts and those locks which control the canal. Even with the marvels of modern gunnery it would be as difficult to place a shell, even if it could be thrown that far, as for a rifleman to hit a lead pencil at a distance of 2,000 yards.—Popular Mechanics.

Corn Oil For Cooking.

The discovery that oil made from corn can be used economically as a substitute for other oils in cooking has been made by Professor L. E. Sayre of the school of pharmacy at the University of Kansas. Corn oil is a by-product from cereal manufacturing. It is comparatively cheap, selling at 50 cents a gallon for the refined grade. Olive oil sells at $3 a gallon and cottonseed oil at 75 cents. Corn oil has a pale yellow color and a pleasant taste similar to freshly ground cornmeal. Its properties, according to Professor Sayre, are very similar to those of olive and cottonseed oils.—New York Times.



IN SOUTHERN SEAS.

Picturesque Argosies of the Natives of Papua.

The organization of trade expeditions, accompanied by an immense amount of mysterious ceremonial, is an interesting annual custom of the coast inhabitants of Papua, or New Guinea, the great island lying off northern Australia. Every autumn the people of the villages near Port Moresby assemble argosies of large sailing vessels, called lakatoi, specially prepared for the purpose of carrying earthenware pots made by themselves, and other things, to the Papuan villages at the mouths of the great rivers of the Papuan Gulf where the cargoes are exchanged for sago.

Arrangements are begun in the spring. A certain man in each village makes up his mind to organize the equipment of a lakatoi; he tells his wife, with whom he then ceases to live and afterward is known as the "originator." He next secures a lieutenant or "top man" who also ceases to live with his wife, and selects the necessary crews.

About August the construction of the lakatoi begins, each vessel being made out of four large dug-out canoes, strongly lashed together. The originator, and top man, then become specially sacred and relations with their wives become very distant. They refer to each other as youth and maiden, only communicate through third parties and refrain from washing themselves and from combing their hair.

Next the originator and top man each chooses a boy, who also become sacred. Each boy has charge of his master's sleeping mat and carrying bag, containing a bone fork, a cocoanut spoon, tobacco and other necessaries or luxuries. The four now always sleep on board the lakatoi and certain kinds of food are taken out to them. Neither the women who cook the food nor the people who eat it must touch it with their hands and no other person may eat any food left over by the four on the lakatoi. The boys always eat first and then each passes the pot from which he has eaten to his master.

The lakatoi is then charmed to give it superior sailing powers and to confer luck on the expedition. A sorcerer burns a certain root, together with bits of cassowary claw and garfish snout and fumigates the gunwales with the smoke. Parcels of green leaves of the plant from which the root is taken are hung up in certain places on the canoes.

Then the masts are fixed, the curious "crab claw" shaped sails, made of plaited mats, are added and the lakatoi is fitted with an anchor of stone. The latter is highly sacred and when down is specially watched by three relations of the originator and no one must step across its cable of rattan.

When the lakatoi are all ready they have competitive trial sailings, during which bevies of young girls collect on their platforms and dance.

During the absence of the expedition the wives of the originator and top man are restricted to certain kinds of food and must not enter any other houses though they may visit each other. The fires in the two houses must never be allowed to go out until the lakatoi returns. Each day is marked by a knot in a piece of fiber, the 50th knot denoting the early return of the adventurous traders.

On the approach of the returning lakatoi the wives of the originator and top man bathe themselves and put on their whole store of ornaments and they and the wives and relatives of the members of the crews go out in canoes to meet them. The return is a period of much rejoicing and excitement.

Painting Rocks With Oatmeal.

In the Zoological Gardens in London they have just finished building a series of concrete hills and terraces upon which wild animals will roam at large under conditions as nearly natural as possible. These hills and terraces have been painted with a mixture of oatmeal mush and bonemeal, the object being to add phosphate to the lime of the concrete, phosphates being essential to the growth of moss and lichens. It is believed that this coating will capture the spores of mosses and lichens and enable them to grow, thus making the surface of the rocks green and more natural in appearance than the bare concrete.

Lord Minto's "Drop It."

The late Lord Minto's policy of making the relations with protected states easier and less rigid was conceived from the moment of his arrival in India. The very first "file" placed before him related, it is said, to the case of a Maharajah, now dead, who had been putting a Tudor crown on his servants' liveries, his carriages, his china, and most of his belongings.

Indian Maharajahs are not supposed to use the emblems of British royalty, and the correspondence on the subject had grown mountainous. Lord Minto dealt with the matter in the shortest viceregal note on record. He wrote on the top sheet—"Drop it."

Historic Sense of Americans.

The good American does not feel a stranger over here and we regard him as one of our own family. But why does he come? Not altogether because the call of a common heritage impels him, not entirely drawn by the attractions, commercial, artistic, social and natural, of London and England. He comes chiefly, perhaps, in obedience to the historic sense which is innate in good Americans. Wherever the historic sense may best be satisfied—in Rome, Athens, Paris, Madrid or Constantinople—there the American is found. He may win his satisfaction in a frenzied flurry with guidebooks and binoculars, only half digesting the glories that he scamps. That is the defect of his quality, the consequences of the habits of life which America has thrust upon its sons. But the historic sense is there and, even unconsciously, your good American is its obedient slave.—London Express.

Didn't Like the Method.

Jean longed for a kitten with all her heart, but her mother was not fond of cats, so she was not allowed to have one in spite of her eager pleadings. At length it became necessary for Jean to go to the hospital for an operation. "I will make a bargain with you, Jean," said her mother. "If you will be a brave little girl about having your operation you shall have the very nicest kitten I can find."

Jean climbed upon the operating table and took the ether without a struggle. As she came out from under the influence of the anaesthetic and began to realize how sick and wretched she felt the nurse leaned over to catch her first spoken word, "What a bum way to get a cat!"—Delineator.

Two Pictures.

One man walks solemnly, with puckered brow and eyes cast down, thinking of a thousand frets, dreading tomorrow and regretting yesterday. Another laughs and whistles, careless in every step and gesture, looking at the trees and the flowers and the white clouds and the blue sky—looking, above all, at human faces, and making them smile back at him. Which of these men do you think is the wiser? Which is more like you?—Youth's Companion.

Testing Silk.

The best way to test silk is to cut off a small piece and burn it. If it burns out quickly, leaving a clear, crisp, gray ash, the silk is pure, but if it smolders and leaves a heavy reddish brown ash it has been treated with chemicals and will not wear well.—Exchange.

Great Smokers, the Dutch.

A census of smokers taken the other day among the boys attending nine elementary schools in a suburb of Amsterdam, Holland, reveals that among the six-year-olds they number 10 per cent, among those of seven years 16 per cent and 32 per cent among those of eight, while in the sixth schooling year, at which the average age is twelve, the percentage has risen to 53. As it falls rapidly after the limit of compulsory attendance, the early use of tobacco would not appear to be an incentive to learning. It is the cigar, not the cigarette, which these Dutch youngsters delight in.

If a man has a large and expensive family to provide for, he hasn't much time to worry.

Terrible Dizzy Spells Would Come Over Me

The Nerves Were on Edge--Noises Excited and Irritated System Restored by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Overworking and under-resting — these words describe the cause of many a woman's physical breakdown. The body is a delicately-constructed machine, calculated to perform only a certain number of hours without rest. If overworked there is no time allowed for the reconstruction of the wasted cells, and breakdown is inevitable.

Rest is absolutely necessary to every woman who allows herself to become run down from overwork. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will help wonderfully in bringing back health and strength of mind and body. Women are particularly enthusiastic in praise of this great food cure because no treatment was ever discovered that will so thoroughly restore vigour, energy and vitality to the tired, overworked and run-down nervous system.

Mrs. T. P. Cullen, Fairview Farm, Shepard, Alta., writes: "My nervous system was so run down and exhausted that terrible dizy spells would come over me, and I would have most peculiar feelings. Everything appeared as if it was falling on me, and caused me to jump after taking a few steps. While in this frightfully nervous condition I heard of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and began using it. This treatment built up my nervous system and completely cured me, and for this reason I am always glad to recommend it for the sake of those who suffer as I did."

No ailments cause greater suffering than diseases of the nerves, for they affect mind as well as body. You can get the nerves right by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, for $2.50. All dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

How Kaffirs Work.

What "working like a nigger"—that is, a negro in South Africa—really means has been explained by one who has seen this wonder. He says that the phrase is one of the silliest and most inexact ever coined. "A gang of Kaffirs," he said, "were at work. They were loading rails on a truck, and they did it as though they were burying their dead. At the head of the gang walked a sort of chief chanting the most lugubrious dirge ever heard. At a crawling pace he led his men to the rails. Then came a long pause. This was to enable the singing head man to finish the first wail. When the Kaffirs got tired of waiting they bent down and picked up the rail, their movements keeping time with the funeral march. When at last the rail was hoisted on the men's shoulders the singer changed the measure to a chant of triumph. As a matter of fact, two dock laborers could easily have done all the work that was done by these eight negroes."—Indianapolis News.

Helplessness.

The greatest moment in our career is when we awaken to the shining truth that our life, to make or mar, is wholly in our hands: that neither dark destiny nor grim fate nor the stars nor the decrees of the gods nor the machinations of men or devils can cheat us of that greatness of soul and serenity of mind which are the crown of real success.

The most terrible note in the despair of the despairing is the sound of helplessness. To feel that the universe is a huge machine to grind us at last to dust, that the odds of existence are against us and that we are borne down by the tramp of irresistible forces—this is the salt taste of failure.

But when a man has discovered that he himself is master and that no outside force can touch his inner triumph that discovery is as of a new world, the America of spirit, the opening vista of limitless opportunity.—Dr. Frank Crane in Woman's World.

East and West.

In the desert you would have expected him to step out of a sheik's tent, but he actually came out of a doorway in the heart of New York's Syrian quarter. His father, a proud Arab with deep pockmarks in his face, followed. The boy had black silken hair, his skin was the color of seasoned mahogany, and his eyes danced with the fires of the east. A pretty boy—some artist may find him soon. His clothes were American, all save the soft knee boots which covered a pair of slim legs and matched his complexion. He might have seen six summers, but he was very much of a man for all that.

Father and son wandered along Washington street until the way was barred by a red haired boy, whose looks spelled fight. A white arm shot out and countered. A dark fist found its mark, there was a clinch, and the son of the occident went down in the gutter. The tiny real Arab smiled with disdain upon the street arab, while the man of the desert grunted approval and called his son to his side.—New York Post.

How Many Steps to a Mile?

How many steps do you take to the mile? If you think a moment you will probably reply, "Seventeen hundred and sixty," but that I take leave to doubt.

Should you be an infantryman of the British army your pace will be the longest of any infantryman in the world. The Russian pace is the shortest, being only twenty-seven and a half inches; the French, Italian and Austrian soldiers manage twenty-nine inches; the Germans do thirty-one inches and the British thirty-one and one-half inches. But your own pace, what of it? It depends upon whether you are a "highbrow" or not.

Put a stick across your eyebrows and see how long the piece of string is which reaches from that level to the floor. Half the length of this string is the length of your pace, and that length you will find to be between thirty-one inches and thirty-two inches, so that between 2,000 and 2,160 paces are needed to walk a mile.—London Chronicle.

Old Laws.

There still exists in London a by-law which forbids a cask of beer to be unloaded between certain hours, but no mention is made of casks containing any other liquor.

Lucerne has on its statute book a law which is not enforced. It prohibits hats of more than eighteen inches in diameter, forbids the use of artificial flowers and imported feathers and orders that a license of seventy-five cents a year shall be paid for the right to wear ribbons or silk or gauze.

MANAGING DIRECTOR

A LEGAL RUSE

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

Winterfield had a chief clerk, Wingate, who was meaner than his employer. The old man knew that if he left his fortune to his daughter she would either spend the most of it or give it away. He willed it to her on condition that she marry Wingate. The only way Mildred could inherit without fulfilling this condition was that Wingate should refuse to marry her. In this event the fortune would belong to Mildred.

Mildred loved Edgar Corneal and, even if she had not, would rather have married an ogre than Wingate. The problem was how to force him to release her, which was the only way by which she could inherit her property. She treated him scornfully, but did not secure any response. Wingate bore it without retort. By the terms of the will if Mildred did not marry him within two years he was to hold the property in trust so long as he lived, to have the income for himself.

One day Mildred disappeared. When Wingate learned of this move he was disquieted. He feared some game, but could think of no way by which she could secure her fortune. What he most desired was that she would withhold her consent to marry him till the two years' grace had elapsed, after which he would enjoy the income of the property and manage the business so long as he lived. The will read "in case the said Samuel Wingate shall refuse to marry my daughter Mildred Winterfield, at any time within the said two years," etc. Wingate read this over and considered the matter safe. The will did not say how he was to refuse, but this made no difference. He would not refuse in any form.

Wingate had no desire to marry Mildred Winterfield. Indeed, he had nothing to gain by a marriage with her, for in that case she would inherit the property and might make it unpleasant for him. He had seen her only once, when she was about fifteen years old, an awkward girl, who was changing to womanhood. At the time of her father's death she was a fine looking woman, with golden hair, fair complexion and dark brown eyes.

One day a young woman called at Wingate's office and applied for a position as typewriter and stenographer. There were no vacancies, and she was refused. A few days later Wingate received a note signed Elizabeth Darrow, asking him if he would favor her with a call since she had something to tell him to his advantage. This request, taken with certain glances Miss Darrow had given him, made him suspicious that she had designs upon him. Then suddenly he was struck with an idea.

"I do believe," he said to himself, "that she is a decoy of Mildred Winterfield and her lover. The object is to get me in a position where it can be proved that I have made love to this woman and asked her to marry me. That would not be refusing to marry Mildred, but they doubtless have hit upon a plan to twist evidence so as to make it appear that in making love to their decoy I have refused to marry Mildred. There are plenty of lawyers smart enough to do that. All I have to say is if they catch me napping they must get up early in the morning."

After considerable deliberation he determined not to let it appear that he suspected their game till he had elicited more of it from the decoy. He made no reply to Miss Darrow's communication, confident that he would hear from her again. He did hear by note, in which references were made to love passages between them which had never occurred. This confirmed Wingate's suspicions. But he did not know what action to take, or, rather, he decided that he had better take no action at all.

In time another letter came from Miss Darrow, hinting at proceedings for breach of promise. Wingate congratulated himself on his foresight in laying down the scheme in advance. A trumped up case of breach of promise to Miss Darrow was to be turned into a refusal to marry Miss Winterfield. It did not appear to Wingate that he should pay any attention to these notes. By doing so he might get caught in the trap being laid for him. All he did was to give orders that if "the Darrow woman" came to see him she was to be told that she could not see him. Notwithstanding this order, one day he looked up from his desk and saw his unwelcome visitor standing near him.

"I have called," she said, "to ask if you intend to do me justice."

"I don't know you, madam."

"You do know that you have asked me to be your wife."

"I have not."

"I give you your choice either to marry me or stand suit for $100,000 damages."

"I will neither marry you nor pay a cent."

Wingate's desk was at one end of a long room, filled with clerks, and he spoke the words purposely loud enough for all to hear. No sooner were they uttered than the woman turned to those present and said:

"I call upon you all to witness that I, Mildred Winterfield, have been refused in marriage by Samuel Wingate."

Mildred had made her complexion an olive and dyed her hair, but in a legal contest that followed the court decided that Wingate's refusal, though he did not know her identity, held good.

Old Battleships Sold.

Four superannuated British warships, famous in their day, were sold by auction the other day to the highest bidder. The most notable was the battleship Renown, which had several claims upon the public interest. For five or six years she has played the unheroic role of training ship for stokers at Portsmouth, but when in 1895 the Renown was first commissioned she proudly ranked not only as the most beautiful ironclad afloat, but also as the fastest vessel of the British fleet, being capable of eighteen and one-half knots.

The Renown also holds a unique position as the only modern British battleship sent to the North American station, when she left for the Mediterranean when carrying Lord Fisher's flag. The Renown was the favorite ship of the father of the Dreadnought, and Lord Fisher cherishes a silver model of her, a gift from officers who served under him. The Renown was also the vessel in which the present King and Queen made their journey to India. At the auction she realized $195,000.

The other ships sold were the Resolution, which brought $178,500; the Ferte for $92,500, and the Medea for $51,893. The Scylla was also offered, but the bids did not reach the reserve, the best offer being $59,000.

PARALYZED LIMBS

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Hoffsburger, 1f Moore Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me but after using ten boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work, and now feel better than I did for 20 years."

But He Didn't Come Again.

The appetite of the guest was a keen one, and he was doing full justice to the excellent dinner provided by his host. The little daughter of the house watched him open mouthed for awhile. Then, finally, she smiled on him brightly and said:

"Oh, I do wish you were here to dinner every day."

The guest beamed with satisfaction. "Do you, my dear? Why?" he inquired.

"Because," came the unexpected reply, "there won't be anything cold to eat tomorrow."—Pittsburgh Press.

To Each Age Its Problems.

It is not enough that we leave our institutions as our fathers shaped them. They knew little or nothing of the conditions which we face. Sufficient unto the age is the work thereof. It is not the right of any generation to project its will into the future, but it is the duty of each generation to adjust its institutions to meet its own needs.

Men need not wait until death to realize many of their ideals. They can have things here on earth which their fathers associated with the millennium. They need no longer overwork nor go cold and hungry nor suffer from pestilence or even famine. Machinery has provided the possibilities of a new life. When all of these possibilities are realized—when no one is overworked, cold or hungry, when all are leading joyous, purposeful lives—adjustment will be complete—welfare will be universal.—From "Social Sanity," by Scott Nearing.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

AN EXPERIMENT

I'd been plantin' corn all day and when I started for hum I met Martha Hodges.

"Evenin', Mr. Rogers," she said. "On your way home, I reckon. It must be mighty pleasant to have such a nice home as yours to go to after a hard day's work."

"It used to be 'slong as mother and Anna lived, but now it's kind a lonesome. Besides, when a feller's tired out he don't want to cook his supper and wash dishes."

"Why don't you get married? Then you'd have some one to do your cookin' for you and wash the dishes and take keer o' the house."

"Waal," I said, kind o' thinkin' out loud, "I don't know but that's a good idee. But it ain't so simple as would appear. Furst off, a feller's got to find the gal he wants, and to make it a gos he's got to want him. Then s'posin' it is a go, it's easy and cheap enough to git married; you kin git a parson to do the job for whatever you like to pay. Now, I can't hitch two critters together and expect 'em to travel easy. Furst off, one on 'em 'll plunge fo'ard, and t'other 'll hang back. Then one on 'em 'll balk when the other is sot down to a stiddy gait. That's the way it is when two pussons begin to travel the matrimonial road together. And, s'posin' that instead of gettin' used to the same kind o' goin' they git wuss and wuss, what are you goin' to do then?"

"Oh, Mr. Rogers," says Martha, "you're a pessimist and the wust kind of a one."

"I don't know what that is, but I do know that gittin' married is like buyin' a pig in a poke. You kin see the gal plain enough on the outside, but you don't know what she is on the inside. She may be white as snow on the surface, and not two inches down she may be a smolderin' fire, ready to burst out at any moment."

"I'll tell you what I'll do with you. Reckon you don't want me, and I'm not hankerin' to git married. You kin experiment on me if you like and if you don't find out at the end o' six months that I'm what you took me for in the beginnin' I'll agree with you that wimmen is mighty deceptive."

"Well, now, that's accommodatin', I declare," I says to her. "When shall I begin?"

"Whenever you like."

"I'll commence tonight, when I've had supper and got the dishes washed."

"You needn't mind about the dishes. Jest you let 'em alone tonight. Tomorrow when you're out to work I'll go in and tidy up for you and do your dishes. Where'll I find the door key?"

She started on and I didn't says no more. I went on hum, got my supper and tuk Martha at her word, leavin' thed ishes in the pan. About 8 o'clock I went over to her house and found that she'd done her evenin' chores and was a-sittin' before a blazin' fire, darnin' stockin's.

I thanked her for the offer she'd made me and told her when she'd convinced me that wimmen was jest as amiable as they looked I'd like for her to put me onter a nice gal that I could experiment on, with a view to marriage. She said she would if she could hit on the right gal.

I spent a couple of hours with Martha toppin' off with some cakes and cider she brought out. The next day, when I went home at noon, I found the dishes washed, the pots and kettles shinin' like lookin' glasses and everything spick and span. By crackery, I hardly knowed the place. That was Saturday, and I thort I oughter go over the same evenin' and thank Martha. I did so, and she said that for a few weeks she'd clean up for me every Saturday.

After that every Saturday mornin' Martha put everything to right and I dropped in to thank her Saturday evenin'. She said she'd do it for a few weeks, but the few weeks growed into a few months.

Meanwhile I was a-watchin' her to see if she was good all the way through or only varnished. At last I told her that I was well satisfied with the experiment and I didn't think wimmen was so onsartin' after all. So I had concluded to git married. She looked very much pleased after this and asked me who I was goin' to marry. I hadn't any one in view, but, thinkin' I oughter name somebody, inasmuch as I said was goin' to git married, I said the gal was Matilda Blake.

"You just oughter seen the change in Martha. Her face got red, and her eyes fairly spit fire.

"Matilda Blake" she said, mighty scornful. "She doesn't know how to fry bacon. She couldn't sew a button on your coat. She couldn't even darn stockin's."

I said somefin in defence of Matilda but it only made Martha madder than before. She began to abuse me more'n Matilda, and when I got a trifle huffy she up and throwed a book at my head. I got out as quick as I could, but not before an inkstand struck me on the shoulder. It didn't hurt me, but spoiled a suit of store clothes.

The experiment was a failure. I've been cookin' and washin' dishes myself since then and I expect to keep it up all my life.

A WONDERFUL CURE OF AN ABSCESS BY

Burdock Blood Bitters.

Mr. A. W. Dryden, Amherst, N.S., writes:—"I am going to tell you what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for us. My son "Vance," when only nine months old, got an abscess on his cheek bone. I took him to a doctor in St. John, N.B., and he lanced it, and told me it would get well in a few days, and wanted me to keep it squeezed out. It did not seem to get any better, so my wife took him back. The Doctor told her to take him home and it would soon get better. It would gather and break, and it went on that way until he was over four years old.

"He lost four pieces of bone out of where it was lanced, and two pieces came from his mouth; he has lost all of his cheek bone, and his eye was drawn down. I took him to doctors in St. John, Moncton, and Amherst, and all wanted me to let him go under an operation. He was so small I told them that if he was going to die he might as well die as he was as to go there and be all cut to pieces, so I declined to have the operation done. I told them I was going to try Burdock Blood Bitters, as I had heard my mother talk so much about it. I got a bottle, and when it was about half gone noticed it was doing good, and before many days the sore stopped running, and healed up, and the abscess has never broken out again. This happened nearly six years ago, so you can see I have great faith in Burdock Blood Bitters, and I can say with all my heart that it is the best blood medicine in the world."

NAME

ADDRESS

Readable Names at Sea.

The experiment is now being tried of having a ship flash its name on a big electric sign instead of hiding it in little gilded letters on the bow and stern. A liner running between Holland and South America—the steamship Gelvin—has its name in letters five feet high on a sign twenty-two feet long, carried between its smoke stacks. By day the name shows white, but at night it flashes in red lights on the port side and in green lights on the starboard side. In port the sign is kept burning at night, but at sea it is lighted only when the liner passes some other vessel.—Exchange.

They Don't Like Baths.

American doctors who are denouncing the bath as an evil influence on health would find many supporters at Cardiff, Wales, for there the makers of patent fuel briquettes were compelled by law to bathe and resented it. Thus an official report to the British home secretary expresses the sincere belief of these workers. "One man said that the taking of baths had aged the men ten years, and most of them declared that they suffered great agony every day they used these baths."

Carlyle and London's Noises

No one has ever inveighed against the noises of London with such picturesque emphasis as Thomas Carlyle. When Augustus Hare met him for the first time at a dinner given by Lady Marian Alford most of Carlyle's conversation ran upon the sufferings attached to a London residence. "That which the world torments me in most," he moaned, "is the awful confusion of noise. It is the devil's own infernal din all the blessed day long, confounding God's works and his creatures—a truly awful hell-like combination, and worst of all is a railway whistle, like the screech of 10,000 cats and every cat of them as big as a cathedral." Against this diatribe may be set the fact that Carlyle spent the last forty-seven years of his life in London without any compulsion to live there.

Surveying by Wireless.

Wireless telegraphy is being successfully made use of in surveying such countries as the Belgian Kongo, Sudan and similar inaccessible places. It is well known that a very exact result can thus be obtained for the difference in longitude between any two points as shown by the difference in their respective times.

Thought He Knew Philosophy.

Herbert Spencer was advised by his physician to mingle more with people, but as he despised "society" as utterly inane this philosopher, who will be known as long as the earth exists, went to an ordinary English boarding-house, from which a young woman clerk wrote to her mother, "Among the queer folk in this house is an old simpleton who thinks he knows something of philosophy, but I have to set him right every time he talks at the dining table."

BENNETT, OF CALGARY, REFUSES TO SUPPORT C. N. R. PROPOSALS

Conservative Member for Calgary Unsparingly Denounces Methods of McKenzie and Mann.

DEMANDS AN INQUIRY

OTTAWA, May 15.—The galleries of the House were crowded yesterday, in anticipation of Mr. R. B. Bennett's philippic against Sir William Mackenzie, Sir Donald Mann and the proposed legislation in aid of the Canadian Northern Railway.

Mr. Boivin (Shefford), H. B. Ames and Hon. Frank Oliver also contributed speeches to the debate, which will be resumed to-day by Mr. Bristol of Toronto.

The debate yesterday was resumed by Mr. Boivin (Lib., Shefford).

Mr. Boivin was followed by H. B. Ames (Montreal). Mr. Ames commended the Government, which he said had dealt with a difficult situation in a statesmanlike manner. If its proposals were not adopted the road would either have to go into liquidation or be taken over lock, stock and barrel by the Government. He disclaimed any friendship for the Canadian Northern magnates and favored making the agreement from which they could not escape.

"When one sups with the devil," Mr. Ames added, "he must have a long spoon." But there was nothing to be gained by indulging in personalities or partisan recriminations.

R. B. Bennett (Con., Calgary) was the next speaker. He said in opening that he could not by any system of reasoning bring himself to support the proposals of the Government. Canada did not need three transcontinental roads, when completed they could not pay their way unless by some miracle the population of Canada doubled in a night. Both political parties were to blame for the present situation, a situation created and maintained by a trail of corruption.

Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann had the audacity to plan a transcontinental railway which should be paid for by the Canadian people, but should be their personal property.. He did not call them "empire builders," but professional mendicants, who were always begging money from the people of Canada, and to that end maintaining in nearly every capital a brazen and persistent lobby.

"Let us," said Mr. Bennett, "take a trip of inspection from Montreal to Port Arthur. We start with the famous tunnel and the real estate exploitation in that neighborhood which netted these two a million dollars. But their terminals in Montreal are in the name of a terminal company, and so it is right to the Pacific coast. These two men are worth $50,000,000 and yet they call on Parliament to pay their debts and complete the road."

Several verbal duels occurred between Mr. Bennett and Hon. Mr. Meighen in which the former demanded an enquiry to ascertain whether Z. A. Lash had given Mr. Meighen accurate information.

Mr. Bennett then went on to say that Mackenzie and Mann should be eliminated from the Canadian Northern. If they were unwilling or unable to go on with the work, let all the stock be pooled and give the management of the road to some competent man like Sir Thomas Tait.

The agreement, Mr. Bennett said, was full of "jokers." For example, it was generally understood that upon default the Government took possession of the road and wiped out the Mackenzie and Mann interests. It was true the Government could take possession upon default, but only as a receiver, and there could be no foreclosure except by act of Parliament.

The next speaker was Hon. Frank Oliver, former Minister of the Interior.

Mr. Oliver had nothing derogatory to say about Mackenzie and Mann or the Canadian Northern enterprises, but he submitted that the resolutions before the House were unfair to the prairie provinces. Both the previous votes totalling $21,000,000 had been spent in B. C. and Ontario.

Now it was proposed, he said, to raise $45,000,000 to be expended altogether in British Columbia and Ontario. The prairie provinces got nothing, although they made the road possible.

Sir William Denies Statement.

OTTAWA, May 15.—When seen at the Chateau Laurier yesterday, Sir William Mackenzie denied having ever made the statement concerning the Kingston Locomotive Works, credited to him by W. F. Nickle in the House of Commons Wednesday night, when he quoted what was claimed to be a despatch from the capital to The Kingston Whig, but what was in reality a story of current gossip in Kingston. Sir William did not remember ever having such an interview as was credited to him.

Germany Pleased With Mediation

BERLIN, May 15.—Only a brief reference to the Mexican situation was made by Gottlieb Von Jagow, the German Foreign Minister, in his survey of Germany's foreign relations addressed to the Imperial Parliament yesterday. He said the German Government was gratified that the Government of the United States had decided to accept the mediation proffered by Argentina, Brazil and Chile. He declared that the uncertainties of the Mexican situation had been accentuated by the conflict which had arisen between Mexico and the United States, while the business and personal interests of German subjects had been affected to a high degree by the civil war in Mexico.

'Twould Do No Good.

LONDON, May 15. — Rev. R. J. Campbell, pastor of City Temple, in a speech Wednesday in that church said his suggestion made on Peace Sunday, that the Pope should head a combination of churches in an appeal for the reduction of armaments, had been turned down by Rome.

"A highly placed ecclesiastic," discussing the matter with him at Rome, said that the nations would not listen, modern civilization not being founded on any moral principle, but being purely utilitarian. "The church," said this ecclesiastic, "no longer possesses the authority it once had in the matter. A papal manifesto, backed by all the Protestant communions, would not effect any change for the better."

Train Jumped the Track.

ST. THOMAS, May 15.—A Pullman conductor sustained a broken back and one passenger a broken nose, when three sleeping cars of the Wolverine Limited, on the Michigan Central Railroad, jumped the track at Buxton, Ont., 48 miles east of Detroit, yesterday according to the officials of the railroad here. The train was in charge of conductor Dave Stinson of Detroit and Sam Whitwam of St. Thomas, engineer. All passengers and crew were able to continue to Detroit on the forward part of the train, which kept the track.

Twenty Years for Robbers.

VANCOUVER, May 15. — Three Russians, names unobtainable here, who were captured at the time of the hold-up of the New Hazelton Bank, six weeks ago, were yesterday sentenced to 20 years each in the penitentiary at the Prince Rupert Assize. Two other robbers were killed at the time, and another is still in the hospital suffering from the injuries received. The leader, who got away with $1,200, was never captured.

Theatrical Man Killed.

NEW YORK, May 15. — Howard Jaycott, a theatrical manager in charge of the staging of the Schubert productions was instantly killed yesterday by a fall from the seventh floor of the hotel where he lived.

How To Make Your Hair Beautiful

Ten Minutes' Home Treatment Works Wonders, Stops Falling Hair, Itching Scalp and Dandruff and Makes the Hair Soft, Brilliant, Lustrous and Fluffy

Better than all the so-called "hair tonics" in the world is a simple old-fashioned home recipe consisting of plain Bay Rum, Lavona (de Composed), and a little Menthol Crystals. Three mixed at home in a few minutes, work wonders with any scalp. Try it just one night and see. Get from your druggist 3 oz. Lavona, 6 oz. Bay Rum and ½ drachm Menthol Crystals. Dissolve the Crystals in the Bay Rum and pour in an 8 oz. bottle. Then add the Lavona, shake well and let it stand for an hour before using. Apply it by putting a little of the mixture on soft cloth. Draw this cloth slowly through the hair, taking just one small strand at a time. This cleanses the hair and scalp of dirt, dust and excessive oil and makes the hair delightfully soft, lustrous and fluffy. To stop the hair from falling and to make it grow again rub the lotion briskly into the scalp with the finger tips or a medium stiff brush. Apply night and morning. A few days' use and you cannot find a single loose or straggling hair. They will be locked in your scalp as tight as a vise. Dandruff will disappear and itching cease. In ten days you will find fine downy new hairs sprouting up all over your scalp and this new hair will grow with wonderful rapidity.

Any druggist can sell you the above. The prescription is very inexpensive and we know of nothing so effective and certain in its result.

Capture of Tampico Gives Added Power to Rebels

THE SITUATION IS ALTERED

WASHINGTON, May 15. — Tampico's fall, considerably enlarging the Constitutionalist sphere of control, and giving to them a seaport through which munitions of war may be directly imported, injected into the Mexican situation to-day several new phases to occupy the attention of official Washington. The last conference of the South American mediators was held during the day, and later one of the envoys, Ambassador Dagama, departed for Niagara Falls, via New York.

The three peace commissioners, Emilio Rabasa, Augustin Rodrigues and Luis Elguero, appointed by Provisional President Huerta of Mexico to represent his Government at the mediation conference on the Mexican situation, to be held at Niagara Falls, Ont., arrived at Key West, Fla., last night from Havana on the steamer Miami.

Secretary Bryan was giving much attention to the status of the foreign oil operatives in the country surrounding Tampico. The British Ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, and Mr. Van Rappard, the Netherlands Minister, after a long conference at the State Department, left expressing their satisfaction at the outcome of the meeting. It is understood that satisfactory assurances had been received as to the safety of the workmen and tanks, removing for the present danger of foreign complications on that score.

Priests Flee From Villa.

VERA CRUZ, May 15. — Fear of falling into the hands of Villa, who has publicly announced his intention of arresting and trying the heads of the Catholic Church in Mexico for giving moral and financial support to Huerta, hastened the departure from the capital of Don Jose Maria Mora y del Rio, Archbishop of Mexico, who arrived in Vera Cruz on his way to Rome. He was accompanied by the Rt. Rev. Jesus Maria Eschavarria, Bishop of Saltillo.

The priesthood is keenly apprehensive of the punitive measures that may be taken against them by Villa, who has been ruthless in his treatment of many priests.

WILL ARREST MOYES.

Detective Greer Starts for North With Warrant In Pocket.

TORONTO, May 15. — Provincial Detective Greer has gone north to apprehend Jno. W. Moyes. With a warrant in his pocket, presumably for theft in connection with the management of the Ontario West Shore Railway, the officer expects to find the ex-president somewhere in the confines of Algonquin Park, and to arrive with him in Toronto in the course of a few days. The whereabouts of Mr. Moyes are not exactly known either in provincial headquarters or by Crown Attorney Corley, who has been handling the case.

The Attorney-General's Department was not asked to interfere in the matter at all, the option of a local crown officer assuming responsibility being chosen instead. This was done on the joint action of Wm. Proudfoot for the municipalities interested, and Mr. Corley.

Schooner Sunk at Soo.

SAULT STE. MARIE, May 15.—The schooner Bottsford of Cleveland, loaded with lumber and downbound, in tow of the steamer King, struck the end of the south pier while entering the American canal yesterday, immediately filled with water and sank to the bottom. Her cargo will have to be lightered. Her position does not interfere with steamers entering the canal.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, May 14. — Despite an opinion of one of the best known crop experts that Hessian fly is no more prevalent now than in the case every year, damage reports from Illinois and Missouri today swung the wheat market away fro mthe bears. There was a nervous close at 1-4c to ½c net advance. Other speculative articles, too, all scored a gain—corn ½c to 3-4c, oats ⅛c to 1c, and provisions 7½c to 22½c.

WEBBER BACKS ROSE.

Gambler Corroborates Story Incriminating Becker.

NEW YORK, May 15.—When Jack Rose left the stand yesterday in the Becker trial it was the general opinion that his narrative in the main had not been shaken.

"Bridgie" Webber was then called by the prosecution to tell of the part he played in the murder plot and of the gathering of the gunmen, now all dead, at his poker rooms. He backed Rose in the assertion that he (Webber) was present at the alleged conference in Harlem during June, 1912, where the plot to murder Rosenthal was discussed. This is the conference that the Court of Appeals styled the "heart of a conspiracy."

"I asked him if he meant to murder him. Becker said he did. I said there would be a lot of trouble if that was done, and Becker replied, 'I'll fix everything. There will be no trouble. I'll see to that.' So I agreed to have Rosenthal croaked."

Business Genius.

When a son was born to the head of a certain family the proud father rushed out of the house to borrow a pair of scales. Just as he dashed out of the gateway he ran into a rag-dealer, who was calling out at the top of his lungs:

"Any rags, any bottles, any—"

"Look here!" exclaimed the excited parent. "Come into the house! I want you to weigh something for me!"

The man did as requested. The pink-mite was tied up in a towel and hooked on to the scales.

"Six pounds!" cried the nurse.

"Six pounds?" repeated the disappointed father.

The ragman smiled. "Don't let that worry you, my friend," said he. "Them is the scales I buys by. I guess the kid weighs ten pounds, maybe a little over that."

Tart Shells.

One pint flour, one cup butter (or use half lard), two teaspoons cream tartar, one of soda, bit of salt; sweet milk enough to wet.

Spaghetti With Tomato Sauce.

Cut in medium sized pieces a medium sized onion and cook in olive oil until brown (not crisp, oil to cover bottom of pan.) Drop in sauce and stir, add two tumblers of water (cold), one tablespoon of salt, one-half teaspoon of pepper (fine) and one teaspoon of sugar, and cook until almost thick (not thick nor thin.) Get a pan of water and let boil (cold water), then drop in spaghetti, add salt to taste, stir and partly cover. When cooked—drain. Do not cook spaghetti too soft. Put in deep dish and add sauce. Turn so all spaghetti will become covered, add a covering of cheese or cheese can be omitted, and bake.

Bean Rabbit.

Here is a delicious supper dish when you have a few cold baked beans left over. Melt two tablespoons of butter in half a cup of hot milk, add one cup cold baked beans pressed through a strainer, one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon paprika and a grating of onion. When the mixture is thoroughly heated add three-fourths cup of soft cheese, finely cut, and a teaspoon table sauce. Stir until the cheese is melted. Serve on crisp toast.

TWELVE MEN KILLED IN EXPLOSION OF A TANK IN RUBBER FACTORY

Fourteen Others Badly Hurt and Ten More Are Missing —Terrific Explosion Tore Building to Pieces.

A FIRE FOLLOWED

Special Wire to The Examiner:

DETROIT, Mich., May 15. — Twelve men were killed and fourteen badly hurt to-day in a tank explosion at the plant of the Mexican Crude Rubber Co., at Delray near here. Ten others are buried in the wreckage and may be dead. The explosion was terrific, tearing down buildings many yards away. Immediately afterwards fire broke out and the works are now a complete wreck. A detachment of the Detroit Fire Brigade and a hundred other rescuers are working frantically at the ruins to release others who may still be alive. The cause of the explosion has not yet been determined.

THE "GUARDIAN" THE TEMPERANCE ISSUE AND THE PARTIES

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, May 15.—In regard to the temperance issue in the impending Ontario general elections, the Christian Guardian in its current issue says:

"As we understand the question, the issue between the two political parties upon the point is very clearly drawn. The Conservative party stands for law enforcement and the further use of the local option provision in the Liquor License Act; but they do not believe in, and will not grant, any radical temperance legislation, unless compelled to do so by the decisive vote of the people. The reform party stands clearly and definitely for the immediate abolition of all bar and club licenses, leaving all the present shop licenses intact, but to be dealt with by local vote; a majority of voters to rule either for or against the license. Now this is not all temperance people have been asking for, and it is not all that the Provincial Legislature could do in the matter; but it does include two very important demands Ontario temperance men have been making for a decade or more. Under such circumstances the man who puts temperance before party seems to us to have a pretty clear course marked out as to how his vote should be cast.

Mr. Rowell's policy with reference to the liquor question should appeal strongly to every temperance man, not because it is Mr. Rowell's policy, but because, so far as it goes, it represents the temperance policy of Ontario for years past. To reprobate this policy now would seem to come dangerously near to declaring previous declarations insincere. We would not try to be a conscience for any man, but as the matter looks to us, in a straight contest between a Conservative who stands by his party policy on the liquor question, and a Reformer who stands by his party policy on the same issue, the ardent and honest temperance voter does not seem to have much ground to hesitate."

YOUTH ESCAPED FROM LINDSAY COP AFTER SENTENCE

Made Clean Getaway And is Still at Large —Jumped Away From Under Officer's Wing

SIX MONTH'S SENTENCE

LINDSAY, May 14—One of the biggest sensations since the day when "Roxie" Walker jumped through the Police Court window in the same court of justice and escaped from the police was enacted this morning when Russell Perrin leaped from the stone steps of the police court door and escaped from County Constable Thornbury, who was about to take the prisoner to the County Jail after receiving a sentence of, six months in the Central Prison by Magistrate F. D. Moore, K. C.

Gave Himself Up.

Perrin is a smart athletic youth of sixteen summers and had given himself up to Constable Thornbury last Saturday, going to the officer's house to convene with him in person, after holding several conversations with the officer over the 'phone. On arriving at the Constable's home Perrin was placed under arrest, the Constable afterwards using all precautions by way of handcuffing the prisoners when conveying from the police office to the jail, making sure that the boy wouldn't escape. But the time arrived this morning when the boy took his chances and left the officer as both came through the door.

Constable Thornbury followed him across the park in front of the library, but the boy was a sprinter and left the constable at every bound. It was evident the officer was no match for the boy who put several yards between him and his pursuer before he rounded the corner and went north up Victoria Avenue.

Mounted Police.

Half way between Kent and Peel Streets Constabe Thornbury gave up the chase, which was taken up by Chief Short, who mounted his bicycle and followed the route travelled by the fugitive, at a burning pace.

Perrin by this time had made his first hiding place under the tramway at Mounder's Mill. After taking a few seconds' rest in this retreat he was frightened out by the employees, who wondered what the fuss was about. He made a hasty exit from there and went east on Peel Street, and through Dr. Clark's premises, after which he was lost sight of.

Men working on Peel Street saw the boy passing at a rapid pace, but did not pay any attention to him as many youths are out preparing for the big sprinting events to be held on the 25th.

The affair has caused much comment and talk by citizens and will serve as a warning to officers to use more caution when taking prisoners to and from the jail.

SHORTER, FULLER SKIRTS.

Normal Waist Line, Too, Decreed for Women's Fall Styles.

CLEVELAND, May 10.—Shorter and fuller skirts, normal waistline, accordion pleating, plaids and stripes — these are leading features of the Fall styles for women's clothes as decreed to-day when the style report of the National Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Association, in convention here, was adopted.

"The styles are far more becoming to all figures than for many seasons," says the report, which in brief follows:

Suits: Jackets of finger-tip length and longer, set-in sleeves, sloping shoulder effects, a tendency toward normal waist-line, with fullness at sides or back. Skirts will be plaited, flaring, and of long tunic designs and somewhat shorter.

Coats: Three-quarter length will predominate, many cut shorter in front. The coat-cape will be a prominent feature. Separate capes will be desirable. The waistcoat effect will appear in capes.

Materials in suits and coats will include mixtures, checks, sibelines, broadcloths, and a variety of new pile fabrics. Fur trimmings will be freely used.

Dresses: The principal changes will be additional fullness in the skirt, which will be shorter, and the extensive use of the long tunic, either from a yoke or the waistline, which will tend to normal in tailored effects and be either high or low in evening gowns. Sleeves will be very long in street dresses and either short or entirely absent in evening gowns. Accordian pleating will feature dancing frocks. Stripes, plaids, and printed fabrics will be used extensively.

YELLOW PEACH BUDS BLIGHTED AROUND NIAGARA

Better Reports From the Leamington District, But Country Around Hamilton Has Suffered

CRAWFORDS HIT HARD

Reports from the Niagara district say that the yellow peach crop will be almost an entire failure this year.

F. H. Grindley and G. W. Smith from the Dominion Fruit Department, Ottawa, have been through the peach sections and what they found in the Niagara district gives reasons for the gravest concern. F. G. H. Pattison spent a day with them going over the Niagara district. They found scarcely a trace of a live bud among all the yellow flesh peach orchards of the Grimsby fruit belt. A few live buds were found around Niagara and old Niagara, and a few on the trees near the lake shore, but the great orchards from which the bulk of the Crawford peaches come and the other yellow flesh varieites, which make up the entire supply of the canning factories and the housewife's winter supply, will have nothing this coming summer which will bear the name of a crop.

The white flesh peaches will be a fair crop, especially the Old Nixon, Mountain Rose and Carman varieties. Before coming to the Niagara district the inspectors visited the Leamington and Lambton county peach sections. It will be good news to the consumer generally that the Leamington trees have not been injured in the least. A bumper crop is promised there, and that will help equalize things and give the canning factories, at least in that part of the country, plenty.

In Lambton county the white peaches have escaped and give good promise, and the Smock, a late yellow flesh, also promises to be a fairly good yield.

PEACH CROP RUINED.

Growers Say Yield Is Worst Since the Industry Was Started.

ST. CATHARINES, May 15. — As the season advances it is becoming more apparent that this year will be the worst in the Niagara district, as far as the growth of peaches is concerned since peach growing became an industry.

Major Hiscott of Virgil, who usually ships several thousand baskets of peaches, declared that he will not have enough for his own use. Other prominent growers in the locality, including James Onslow, James Brady and Salem Muir, bear out this statement, and along the lake route numerous growers declare that there is not one bud in their orchards. The report comes that less than 500 baskets will be shipped this season from the vicinity of Niagara-on-the-Lake, and W. A. McCubbin, of the Dominion Laboratory of Pathology, is authority for the statement that one grower in Louth Township had offered him the crop off his ten-acre orchard for $1.

H. B. COLLIER GAVE LECTURE

Delighted Members of the Astronomical Society Last Night

Mr. H. B. Collier, formerly of Peterborough, now of Toronto, delivered a very interesting and instructive illustrated lecture on the activities of the moon, to a rather small but enthusiastic and appreciative assembly, under the auspices of the Astronomical Society. The lecture was illustrated with slides obtained from the Toronto Observatory. By means of a model of the moon, the speaker described the different phases of the moon. Its history, he said, its experiences written in the shroud, are in mysterious hieroglyphics, of which man has been able to decipher but little. He described the mountainous system of the moon, and illustrations showed the cavities, or craters of the extinct volcanoes, which were of a very large size. A study of the moon, shows the surface there is in an unchangeable condition as though fresh from the die of the Creator's workshop.

Throughout the lecture was of an educative value, besides of a very interesting nature.

BRITISH MAILS.

The Most Sky-Scrapery Corner in the British Empire—the corner of King and Yonge Streets, Toronto, as it appears to-day. Just about a year ago we published a picture of the C. P. R. building, Toronto, as being the highest building in the Empire. The City has beaten its own record. The sketch of this corner, as it now appears, from King Street, west, shows the C. P. R. building on the south-east corner, complete, the Dominion Bank on the south-west corner, almost completed; the Royal Bank building, on the north-east corner, under construction, and the fivestorey Dominion Bond building, on the north west corner. The transformation which has taken place in the corner may be judged from the fact that that the Dominion Bond building was the highest of the four corners previous to the present era of skyscrapers.

HON. F. D. MONK PASSES AWAY

Former Minister of Public Works in Borden Cabinet Died After a Long Illness

DISTINGUISHED CANADIAN

Special Wire to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, May 15—Hon. F. D. Monk, the former Minister of Public Works in the Borden Government, died here, this morning, after a long illness. He was born in this City in 1856. He was a distinguished lawyer and a member of parliament for Jacques Cartier, continuously, from 1896 till his resignation, because of illness, last March. He resigned from the Borden Cabinet in October, 1912, because he said he was pledged to have the naval contribution proposals submitted direct to the people.

The end came at 3.25 this morning, just after the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church were administered.

The flag on the tower dropped to half-mast and Parliament mourned half an hour this morning for the passing of one who had occupied a foremost place in its deliberations for many years. The Prime Minister took occasion before the orders of the day were called, to refer to his late colleague and to the members of his family, to express the sorrow of the House. "Those of us who have known him as I have done since the 'nade, adviser and friend, Laurier, "can appreciate the sterling qualities of the man who has gone."

His bad health can be traced to the day when he lost his most charming wife, who had been to him a comrade, adviser and friend.

MR. MULLIGAN AT MILLBROOK

Mr. C. W. Mulligan, of Peterborough, preached eloquent and impressive sermons to large congregations in the Presbyterian Church, Millbrook, on Sunday morning and evening. During the morning service he sang a solo in his rich baritone voice which was also very much enjoyed.—Millbrook Reporter.

APPEAL DISMISSED.

With Costs — Austin Vs. Dickinson.

Mr. Harry Austin appealed against the decision of His Honour Judge Rogers in his case against Dr. S. S. Dickinson. It will be remembered that Dr. Dickinson sued Austin for $10.75 for professional services. Austin entered a counter claim of $300, the value of a mare which Mr. Austin claimed he lost through negligence of Dr. Dickinson. The counter claim was dismissed and Dr. Dickinson was given judgment for the amount of his claim.

Mr. Austin has now appealed from this decision and the appeal was heard at Osgoode Hall and dismissed with costs.—Port Hope Guide.

LEG BROKEN BY MILK WAGGON

Five Year Old Son of Hildos Archambault Had Right Leg Broken

WHEEL PASSED OVER HIM

The five-year-old son of Hildos Archambault, 541 Elm street, had his right leg broken this morning by a milk delivery waggon passing over it. One of the Peterborough Creamery Company's waggons was drawn up to the sidewalk, and while the driver was delivering milk at a house the boy stepped into the vehicle. The horse immediately began to move and the boy attempted to leave the waggon. He fell on the ground and a rear wheel passed over his right leg. The boy was moved to St. Joseph's Hospital where he was attended by Dr. McNulty.

Resident of 50's Is Survived By 45 Grandchildren

One of the oldest and most highly esteemed pioneers of Verulam Township passed away on Tuesday last in the person of Mr. Wm. Hetherington, who died at his residence at Fenelon Falls in his 89th year. Death was due simply to old age, Mr. Hetherington having had the best of health all his life. Deceased was born in Carlyle, Cumberland, England, on January 11th, 1821, and came to Canada in 1851. He spent six years at Peterborough as foreman for Judge Hall, at the expiration of that time coming to Verulam as foreman for Captain Wallace, and leased the farm now owned and occupied by Mr. Wm. Welch. He afterwards moved to his farm on the fourth concession of Verulam, where he lived until five years ago, when he moved to Fenelon Falls. Mr. Hetherington was married in Peterborough by Rev. Mr. Rogers in the year 1857 to Miss Margaret McGregor, who had come to Canada from Scotland a few years previously. He was a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church, and a regular attendant at St. Andrew's during his long residence here. He is survived by Mrs. Hetherington, seven sons and five daughters. The sons are: Isaac and Thomas, of Fenelon; David, William and Robert, of Verulam; James, of Alberta, and Charles, of Toronto. The daughters are: Mrs. R. Wilkinson, Mrs. J. W. Staples, Mrs. Fletcher Mitchell, of Verulam; Mrs. John Bennett, of Winnipeg, and Miss E. A. Hetherington, at home. Forty-five grandchildren and five great-grandchildren also survive him. The funeral was held on Thursday to the Fenelon Falls cemetery, and was very largely attended. — Fenelon Falls Gazette.

PROBABILITIES.

Moderate north to west winds; fine to-day and on Saturday. A little higher temperature.

WILL LAUNCH SCHEME FOR CIVIC IMPROVEMENT

MAGNIFICENT NEW ORGAN AT KNOX CHURCH

Instrument Will be Ready For the Dedication Service on Sunday—Built by Casavant Freres

A DESCRIPTION

The new pipe organ which will be dedicated in Knox Church Sunday morning by Rev. Dr. Hanson of Montreal is a fine example of the organ builders' art. It will be a very marked addition to Knox Church and will greatly assist in completing that fine church structure. Ten months ago, when the order was placed, May 17th was fixed for the opening day and it has never been very much in doubt. This is a striking testimony to the Casavant Freres of St. Hyacinthe, Quebec, who built the organ. They are the builders of the $32,000 organ in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Toronto. An extra staff of workers was on hand in Knox Church Monday morning, and to-day there remains but the finishing touches of an instrument that is most thorough in its workmanship throughout.

The case, which reaches across the arch fully 22 feet, is of solid oak, the panels of quarter-cut, the design in Gothic matching the detailed designs of the Church. The pipes on the front are decorated in gold bronze and green, there being some 80 of them, a number of which are speaking pipes. Part of the case from the base of the pipes extends out over the pulpit chairs and presents a very imposing front. The console is detached and it likewise is quarter-cut oak with mahogany interior.

The organ is a two manual one, and the key board and stops reveal its range. Several modern improvements are included. There is a radiating pedal board, with pneumatic piston, combination buttons and tablets. A Ross water motor supplies the power for the wind pressure. Compass of manuals, each 61 keys. Compass of pedals, each 30 keys.

The great organ contains. Open diapason, melodia, dulciana, principal, fifteenth; swell organ, Gedeckt, open diapason, stopped diapason, aeoline, Viola di Gamba, Voix Celeste, Traverse flute, Cornopean, Oboe; pedal organ, Bourdon, Gedeckt; couplers (tablet style), great to pedal, swell to pedal, swell to great unison, swell to great sub swell to great super, swell sub, swell super, great super, tremulant: combination pistons, piano, mezzo, forte, great and pedal, piano, mezzo, forte, swell organ; reversible great to pedal coupler, swell pedal and crescendo pedal, balanced.

The action of the organ is pneumatic.

The organ will be dedicated on Sunday morning by Rev. Dr. Hanson, of Montreal, formerly of Belfast, Ireland, now one of Canada's strongest preachers.

MINSTREL SHOW AT LAKEFIELD

St. Luke's Men's Club Minstrel went out to Lakefield last evening where they presented their show to a large and appreciative audience. The performance was given with the same snap and "go" that characterized it on the two occasions it was presented here.

The proceeds which amounted to a goodly sum, will go towards the building fund of the new Anglican Church to be erected at Stony Lake.

After the entertainment the members of the company were entertained at the home of Mrs. F. J. Tate.

Programme For Sunday Night At South End Church

The musical programme to be rendered by the choir and organist of the Church of the Sacred Heart on Sunday night in connection with the opening of the new organ is announced as follows:

Gloria—From Mozart's 12th Mass.
Musical Vespers—By Mattfield.
Including—
Laudate Pueri—By Capocci.
Offertoire—Organ, Batiste.
Regina Coeli—Lambellotte.
O Salutaris—Duet, Palestena.
Ave Verum—Falkenstein.
Tantum Ergo—Quartette, Vandusen.
Closing Hymn—Congregation.
Organ Recessional—
Grand Chocur—Wigand [illegible]

Citizens' Banquet in Oriental Hotel at 6.30 This Evening Should Attract All Those Interested in Advancing Peterborough.

CITY DRIVEWAY PLANS

The members of the committee who have been at work for months developing the plan of civic improvement which is to be explained in detail to-night at the Citizens' Banquet to be held at the Oriental Hotel at half-past six made some of their plans public to-day. It seems the committee have laid out a driveway, some six to eight miles in length, which runs through every ward in the city, and which links up all the City Parks, chief residental districts, large manufacturing plants, the Lift Lock and other centres of interest. City Engineer Parsons has prepared a map of the city showing the route for the proposed driveway. This map will be shown at the Citizens' Banquet this evening.

The committee undertook to raise $1,200 through the Horticultural Society and by private subscriptions. This money has practically all been subscribed. This money is to be spent during the next three years in prizes to encourage the citizens along the route of the driveway to improve their homes. The city is to be asked for certain definite assistance in making the driveway a success. The Public School Board has promised its co-operation in improving the schools. Leading manufacturers and merchants have consented to co-operate not only financially but in other ways. Ultimately it is the intention of those behind this movement to greatly extend this driveway, but it is felt that it would be unwise to undertake too much at first.

Illustrated Address.

Park Commissioner C. E. Chambers of Toronto is to attend the Citizens' Banquet this evening, and will give a short address, illustrated by stereoptican views, showing what Toronto and other cities have done in the matter of civic improvement. Mr. B. R. Morton, B.S.F., of the Forestry Branch, of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, is in the City this afternoon going over the route with the idea of seeing what is required in the way of the planting of shade trees to make the route one of the most beautiful in any City in Canada. Mr. Morton will present his report at the banquet this evening. A large number of the leading citizens of Peterborough have promised to attend and a number of them will speak. It has been arranged that with the exception of the first two or three speakers, all other speeches will be limited to not over five minutes.

Trip Around City.

Upon the arrival of this afternoon's train from Toronto, Park Commissioner Chambers will be met at the station by Mayor Buller and members of the committee with an automobile and taken over the route and returned to the Hotel in time for the banquet. Those citizens who have not obtained tickets will be able to obtain a few this evening at the Oriental Hotel. This is one of the most comprehensive schemes of civic improvement ever launched in any city in Canada and it is expected that the citizens will show their approval by turning out to-night and afterwards by co-operating in making the whole movement a great success.

THE WEATHER

There was a sharp frost last night, three degrees of frost, or 29 degrees above zero, been recorded officially. Low-lying places would probably furnish still lower figures.

W. F. Nickle, M.P., for Kingston — Conservative member of parliament who opposed the Conservative Government at Ottawa in the bill to reimburse those who lost money in the Farmers' Bank suspension. Mr. Nickle is also stated to be very much opposed to any Federal aid to the Canadian Northern Railway.

FRIDAY, MAY 15, 1914

THE MAN WITH A CONSCIENCE.

The Conservative journals, especially the Journal of Ottawa, are not doing the party a service by reading Mr. Nickle, the member for Kingston, out of the Conservative party. Mr. Nickle's crime in their eyes consists in his thinking and speaking for himself in opposing the Government proposal to make Mackenzie and Mann railway magnates and Government money magnets, a virtual present of 45 million dollars of the people's money. The Ottawa Journal commenting on Mr. Nickle's attitude of independence sneeringly pens, "Well even at that the party has only lost a nickle." Well even at that the lost Nickle rings truer than the base coin of slavish party support. Mr. Nickle in opening his condemnation of the Government's proposal spoke of his embarrassment in differing from his party in the question, but did not believe that there was a man in the House more loyal than himself to the principles of the Conservative party. It seems monstrous that a member of Parliament cannot differ on an item of policy with his party without being cast forth as a traitor. Without entering into the merits of Mr. Nickle's objections to the Government's proposals, it is fair to assume that they proceed from conviction and are sufficient justification to him for his action. He deserves credit for having the courage of his convictions and manfully speaking his mind, and is much more worthy to be a member of the Conservative party and is much more of a credit to the Conservative party, than those members of it who at heart may hold similar views but subordinate their expression to party interests, obey the party lash and speak and vote contrary to the interests of which they trary to the interests of which they were made trustees. Mr. Nickle is not a renegade; but a real representative, worthy of his trust. He is a credit to the Conservative party as a party of high ideals. It will be a dark day for Canada when the man with a conscience and high sense of duty is regarded as disqualifying himself for membership in it or any other party by such possession.

FLAG-FLAPPING.

The Toronto News, in comment on the statement of a western Liberal journal that the next general election will prove a flag-flapping campaign, says "it is curious to note the persistent aversion of some of our public men towards the emblem of our British citizenship." The News is wrong; there is strong and justified aversion to using it prostituted to unholy political and partisan purposes. Liberals, as a class, are just as much devoted to the flag as the emblem of British citizenship, which stands for fair play, justice, equal civil rights, etc., as the Conservatives. The man that is truly honest does not need to boast of his honesty—he lives it. The subject who is truly loyal to the flag and what it represents, does not feel the necessity of flaunting it in season and out of season to demonstrate a loyalty of which he, himself, seems to be doubtful. Liberals and other good, honest and loyal citizens have no "aversion" to the flag, but they have a righteous aversion to the employment of the flag, the common possession and pride of all classes, for the promotion of party politics. In the last election we had the flag flapped ad nauseam, because it was waved hypocritically—not for the sake of the noble old emblem, and what it stands for, but to gain a picayune partisan advantage. The unthinking electors were misled and the "flag-flappers" got power. The first action of these flag-wavers — "the only loyal element in the country" was to belie all sincerity in their use of the flag; their first step, to make their unrighteously gained power secure was to form a political alliance, a political coalition with a traitorous faction of Canadians, whose boast was that they have no use nor reverence for the flag, and who are to-day the custodians of the "flag they had to shoot holes through to breathe the air of liberty." The News is all wrong—there is no Liberal aversion to the flag, but there is strong aversion to Conservative abuse of it. Our blessed Lord did not condemn the phylactery but He scored to the bone the Pharisees who "made broad their phylacteries" to be seen of men, a false show of a righteousness they did not possess.

EXPENSIVE BRIBERY.

Bribery by Act of Parliament, indirectly may not be new; but direct bribery by Act of Parliament is an invention of the Borden Government. It costs Canada one million two hundred thousand dollars to elect Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labour, in West Elgin, and other Conservative candidates who held out the bribe of payment of depositors of the Farmers' Bank to secure their votes. Of course the Government is under no obligation to recoup the depositors. Serious as was their loss, the loss they suffered came from the rascality connected with the management of the bank. Mr. Crothers and other candidates in 1911, thought it would be a good card to promise the depositors payment. He did so in the name of Mr. Borden, but Mr. Borden repudiated the promise and refused to be held responsible for it; but when party pressure was brought upon him, when he was Mackenzied, he surrendered and we have the spectacle of a solemn Act of Parliament, authorizing the payment, "from and out of the consolidated revenue fund," of one million two hundred thousand dollars, to pay the bribery bill of Hon. T. W. Crothers in West Elgin. If Mr. Crother's majority of 397 in West Elgin was all won by virtue of his bribe, consisting of his promise to recoup the Farmers' Bank depositors, his election costs the people of Canada, the public treasury, about $1,500 a vote; if his bribe secured him a hundred of his majority, each vote cost the county $12,000. This is pretty expensive bribery, a pretty brazen prostitution of power and money to party interests. And this is not the worst. The Borden Government has set a bad precedent. There are other banks that have failed through speculation and bad management. But the Government refuses to recoup the unfortunate depositors. They were not offered repayment in case they voted for the Conservative candidates. The precedent consists in the fact that a candidate has only to promise depositors repayment on consideration of their vote and the money is forthcoming even if it is the people's money. Mr. Borden once had the reputation of being an honest, upright, straightforward statesman; but he has acquired a splendidly disterity in taking a sharp curve in the interests of his party and the possession of power.

Toronto Telegram (Conservative)

You might as well try and teach the Ten Commandments to a rattlesnake as proclaim ideals in the Parliament of Canada."

A clear-eyed cynic wrote the foregoing words into the terms of his tribute to a House of Commons other than the assemblage addressed by W. F. Nickle, M.P., yesterday. "He made rather a spectacle of himself," was the reward Mr. Nickle earned from a Conservative visitor who does not share the ideals, admire the policies, or serve the interests of the Clan Mackenzie. God help Canada if the old men who should dream dreams are to forever glorify cowardice and despise courage.

Ontario, including Toronto, seems to be represented at Ottawa by seventy-two rubber stamps in the hands of Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden, whose Government seems to be a rubber stamp in the hands of Sir William Mackenzie. Allowances should be made for the difficulties that Mr. Borden must face as trustees for the sad inheritance bequeathed to this country by the incompetence of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The C.N.R. bungle and the G.T.P. bungle must be straightened out by heads and hands that had no leading part in the making of these bungles. The situation of the Borden Government is inexpressibly disappointing to Canadians who rejoiced in the results that armed Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden with the power of Ontario's progressive enthusiasm. The disappointment of progressive Canadians is aggravated by the spectacle that Ontario Conservatism made of itself in its passive approval of Sir William Mackenzie's attempt to bludgeon and bulldoze the Parliament of Canada. That disappointment is still further aggravated by Ontario's parliamentary surrender to the theory that Sir William Mackenzie is the boss of the Canadian Parliament and the Borden Government is the puppet of Sir William Mackenzie.

THE PEOPLE PAY ANYWAY.

The Dominion Railway Commission is going to ask the Railway roads to make less smoke. If it costs anything to curtail that nuisance it's a pretty safe bet the people will have to pay for it some way. — New Westminster News.

NOVA SCOTIA'S WORLD RECORD.

Nova Scotia may well hold up its head. The report of the Superintendent of Education of Nova Scotia, just issued, shows that the percentage of the whole population attending school is 21,98—the largest percentage at school in any country in the world. The total enrolment is 108,241, as compared with 106,725 in the previous year, and the number of public schools has increased from 2,662 to 2,692.—Canadian Gazette, London.

DOCTORS CELEBRATE 50th ANNIVERSARY

Members of Medical Fraternity Do Honour to Dr. Ford, of Norwood, Who Has Been in Continuous Practice for Fifty Years and Who Has Just Completed the Largest Six Months Practice in His Career.

WAS ALSO PRESENTED WITH AN ADDRESS

It is exceedingly seldom that any man is paid such a compliment as was the lot of Dr. Samuel Payne Ford, of Norwood, to receive last night, and it is only once in a life time that any man can have the privilege of hearing such frank and undoubted testimony as to the esteem and admiration in which he is held by the members of his own profession who should know him best. Dr. Ford was signally honoured last night in a banquet tendered him by the medical men at the Oriental Hotel, and though one were unacquainted with him the brief address he gave during the evening, the modesty, character, ability, the directness with which he addressed his fellow-practioners — gave an insight into the man and the doctor which explained why this great, unsolicited, unforgettable tribute was paid to him, not by men who were personally obligated or indebted to him, but by members of the medical profession, who knowing as no layman could understand the admirableness of his fifty years of self-sacrifice and service, took this means as the nearest approach to an adequate expression of their regard.

A goodly number of local doctors and medical men of the district sat down to the six course luncheon about half-past-nine o'clock last evening, and the banquet was indeed a sumptuous one, as the occasion merited. Dr. Halliday acted in a very admirable manner as Toast Master, and at his right hand sat Dr. Ford, the guest of honour of the evening. When the viands had been disposed of the toast list was opened by a toast to the King which was proposed by Dr. Halliday. This toast was duly honoured and was followed by one to "Our Guest."

This toast was proposed in a clever speech by Dr. Gallivan, who said it was a privilege to participate in an event of this nature which occurred perhaps only once in one's life. He was glad that the assembly had gathered to do honour to a man who had assisted into the world a number equal to the population of a thriving town, and who had alleviated the suffering of an even larger number of people. He asked that the company join with him in the toast to Dr. Ford. The toast was honoured with much enthusiasm, and with the singing of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," and three hearty cheers. Before the guest of the evening could reply the following address was read and presented to him by Dr. Greer:

Dear Sir,—May we greet you as your and of our profession. Few the honoured distinction of having for fifty years continuously and in the one locality pursued the practice of yours and of our profession. Few there be who may pemt to so long a time in the harness, almost none who may claim uninterrupted practice.

The Medical Fraternity of Peterborough and District welcome oyu with feelings of admiration and pride. In your home town and district your name is a household word. You have visited in the dwellings of a wide and populous county. You have carried cheer and hope and assistance to homes darkened with affliction and saddened by prospect of death and loss of dear ones.

Your presence has been an inspiration and your ministrations a boon and a relief. In a thousand ways and in countless avenues of service you have rendered to the people the gifts of a physician and friend, with a personality beneficent and cheering.

We know that your life has been and now is an influence for large good in the lives of many. Even a worker in the field of moral activities your earnestness and zeal have made you a power and factor, an example and influence that will remain and which will leaven the community for years to come. You have stood by your convictions, and for such men greet you as a friend, citizen and man."

The life of the physician is arduous, exacting and one of self-sacrifice. The conviction of a duty well done, of a self-imposed task well performed is and ever will be a large share of the recompense. In this respect you have given freely, broadly, nobly, an example to the young practitioner, and as has been well said, it is a good thing to be rich and a good thing to be strong, but it is a better thing to be beloved of many friends. Distinctly you have a place among those "who do good by stealth and blush to find it fame." We heartily join in wishing to you many years of activity, even at a time when a measure of relief from duty would be most welcome, but having put your hand to the plough and guided it these long years you will not willingly leave it in the furrow.

Very respectively and heartily yours.

"I would be lacking in the instincts of a man and a gentleman if I did not appreciate the honour that has been conferred upon me to-night," said Dr. Ford, in reply to the toast and the address. "It is said that a young man lives in the future and an old man in the past, so you will pardon me if my references concern what has happened in years gone by."

The toast and address were particularly appropriate in that they were presented by the medical fraternity of the place of his birth. "For he had been born in the good old town (now the new city) of Peterborough. The speaker's father used to raise potatoes and cabbage on George street opposite the block on which the Oriental Hotel was situated. He (Dr. Ford) himself, got his primary education at Weatherhead's School in this city. Of the students that attended that school only five others were now living. They included Messrs Lundy, Winch, English, Cobb and Weatherhead. Later he attended school in the building on Brock street between George and Water streets, now used for a paint shop. The school was taught by the father of Dr. Bruce Smith, present Inspector of Prisons. In the year 1861 he commenced the study of medicine. He began in the office of Dr. Burnham of this city, and from that very worthy preceptor he learned much that was of immense value to him in later practice. One lesson that he learned early while with Dr. Burnham, was never forgotten. One day the speaker was weighing some ingredients when he asked Dr. Burnham "Is that near enough?"

The reply was "Nothing is ever near enough in medicine. It has got to be exactly right." Drs. Benson, Bouches, King, Buller, Geo. Burnham, and Dr. Kincade were all proddigies of the late Dr. Burnham. Later he attended school in Toronto, returning the following summer to Dr. Burnham's office. He exchanged $100 of Canadian money for $278 American coin and this sufficed for the second year's education. The same means served to supply funds for the third year at college. On the 25th of March, 1864, he received his diploma. He went to Washington that year, which was the bloodiest one of the Civil War, and served in a hospital there.

In all his fifty years of practice he was proud that he had never had one unfriendly word with a fellow practitioner. He had learned to distinguish between promptness and hurry, and during the fifty years of his practice he had attended five generations in one family.

Continuing Dr. Ford described the difference in the medical practice and science of several years ago with that of the present day. When he first commenced to practice antitoxin was unknown, antiseptics, carbolic acid or iodiform were not in use, and there were no thermometers nor hypodermic syringes. The doctor had to trust to the patients pulse as an indication of his or her condition. They didn't have appendicitis in those days. If they had known it they would undoubtedly have been able to save many lives that were lost. At that time there were no trained nurses, and little hospital accommodation. The nearest hospitals were in Kingston and Toronto. The drives of forty or fifty miles were not made in autos but in buggies.

Another lesson that he had learned from experience was never to take the word of an attendant that such and such a thing had been done in connection with the patient, but to see that it was done. The speaker related some humourous incidents and reminiscences, adding "It is a good thing there is a humourous side to our profession, for there is so much that is serious and tragic."

"There is nothing I would rather do to-day than practice medicine," said the speaker. "I am proud to belong to a profession that does not superannuate its older members. No man or body of men will ever superannuate me."

The other day the speaker was asked how he managed to preserve the step and activity of younger days. He had replied that it was by going on with his work and forgetting the passage of time and by very regular observance of meal time. From October to March he had done the largest six months practice in his career.

In conclusion he again thanked the assembly for the honour that had been done him.

Dr. Harrison, of Keene, spoke briefly, and Dr. Halliday also gave a short speech. He was glad to have the privilege of acting as toastmaster on the occasion of the luncheon for Dr. Ford. He agreed with all that had been said about Dr. Ford by the previous speakers, and re-echoed their hopes for a bright future, and continued success in his profession. In the fact of what seems to be defeat he still fought the fight as long as there was still a ray of hope.

Dr. Greer proposed the toast to the ladies which was responded to by Drs. Hammond, King and Kelly.

Dr. Eastwood proposed the toast to the press, which was responded to in a humourous address by Alderman Dobbin, and representatives of the Review and Examiner.

Messages of regret at being unable to be present were read from Dr. Clarke, of Lindsay; Dr. Clarke, of Millbrook; Dr. Jory, of St. Catharines; Dr. Sutton, of Norwood; Dr. Egrie, of Omemee; Dr. Aylsworth, of Roseneath, and Dr. Bingham, of Peterborough.

The celebration closed with the singing of the National Anthem and Auld Lang Syne.

WOMEN TO PARTICIPATE

International Council Plans Celebrations of Peace Centenary.

ROME, May 15. — The quinquennial sessions of the International Council of Women closed yesterday after it was decided that the executive committee should meet in England in 1914, at Budapest in 1915 and that the quinquennial conference should be held in Norway in 1919. Mrs. Kate Waller Barrett of Washington, president of the American section, was appointed chairman of the press committee.

One hundred and fifty English-speaking women, presided over by the Countess of Aberdeen, discussed participation in the centenary of Anglo-American peace. It was decided that the Canadian and American women should join in the publication of a history of the effects of Anglo-American treaties, and that four great peace meetings should be held at Buffalo, Boston, Detroit and Seattle respectively, in addition to a special meeting at Washington. Canadian women will speak at all these meetings and American women will take part in meetings at Ottawa.

Our First "At Home" to the Ladies of Peterboro'

On the dates and hours mentioned below, we will give our first "At Home" to the Ladies of Peterboro'.

Under the direction of the Gurney Foundry Co. and ourselves a series of talks will be given on the subject of

"Kitchen Engineering"

Kitchen Engineering deals with How to Cook, more than What to Cook.

That is to say, a meal to be a complete success, must be prepared in proper order.

The Soup should first be ready, then the Entrees, then comes the Roast or other Meats and the Vegetables, then Dessert

Experts have been at work finding out how this can best be done on a Gas Range.

And at this series of Lectures we will put this information at your disposal.

You will find these talks interesting as well as instructive.

You will find it of assistance every day to know how economical, simple and satisfactory it is to Cook by Gas on a Gurney-Oxford Range.

During the Afternoon Lectures Tea will be served, and orders for any Stoves placed at the time will be accompanied by a useful and appropriate souvenir of the occasion.

Activities Of The George Street Church In Very Healthy Condition

Last Business Meeting of the Quarterly Board For the Year Held Last Night

IMPORTANT RESOLUTION

The closing meeting of the Quarterly Official Board of the George Street Methodist Church was held last night in the Church parlour. A very large representation of the Board was present, and the reports received from the various departments of the Church were most encouraging. Reports were received from the Sunday School, Ladies' Aid Society, Women's Missionary Society, Senior and Junior Epworth Leagues, and the organized Bible Classes and Clubs of the Church. These from the different young People's associations showed a marked increase in membership and attendance.

The monthly offerings of the Church during the past four months have been the largest in the history of the Church. The missionary contributions were also considerably larger than in previous years as a result of the every member canvass and the efforts of the Missionary Committee of which Mr. H. C. Stabler is chairman.

The membership of the year, after allowing for all removals, showed a net increase of eighty, and the total membership was shown to be eight hundred and eighty.

The stewards for the year elected by ballot resulted as follows: A. W. Cressman, D. W. Dumble, T. W. Robinson, B. Shortley, H. C. Stabler, B. F. Ackerman, T. McFadden, S. R. Armstrong and F. Brownscombe, with A. W. Cressman recording steward.

A strong deputation to the Temperance Convention to be held next week was appointed. The increased attendance at the Sunday and mid-week services was emphasized by the following resolution, which was heartily approved of by the Board:

"That this Official Board express and place on record its appreciation of the support the members of the congregation have given to our pastor, Rev. R. G. Peever, and to the Board in their regular attendance at the public worship and at the mid-week service, during the Church year just closing, the attendance at all the services having been encouragingly large and increasing in members, and also in the increased contributions for the support of the work of the Church.

Also that this Board record its appreciation of the unselfish services of the members of the choir, who have been faithful in attendance and have contributed so largely to the regular services in the Church by the excellent music which they have provided.

Further that this Board express its gratification that, under the guidance and blessing of God, all the departments of the Church are in vigorous condition and that we can confidently look forward to continued prosperity and success in this part of the Master's vineyard."

T. W. Robinson and H. C. Stabler were elected representatives to the Yearly District Meeting. J. J. McBain and George Carruthers were elected trustees of the church to fill vacancies.

The missionary givings for the year show an increase of over $500 and the total amount raised for all purposes was over $10,000.

Reports from the district visitors who assist the pastor in visiting the membership was of a most encouraging nature, and the district visitors were re-elected for another year.

Mr. and Mrs. Renwick entertained the choir to ice cream and cake, being the 3rd anniversary of the George St. Church in the capacity of organist. Their hospitality was greatly appreciated by the choir.

ACCUSED OF MURDER

Two Men Are Arrested as Sequel to Hayde Mystery.

MIDLAND, May 15.—Andrew and Peter Morreau were arrested yesterday and placed in Midland jail in connection with the murder of Robt. Hayde.

Robert Hayde, a grocer of Tomahawk Point, some miles north of Honey Harbor, was murdered on or about the night of Friday, March 27. His body was found on Monday, April 6, buried in a manure heap near the stable of his home, with a shot wound in the back of his neck.

At the inquest subsequently conducted by Coroner Raikes the jury brought in a verdict of murder "committed by persons unknown." Since that date the police have made a thorough search for the guilty persons, and believe the men arrested Wednesday know something of the crime.

Hayde was a bachelor, about fifty years of age, and lived alone. It is generally believed in the neighborhood that the man was murdered for his money. He was known to always carry a large sum in his pockets, which were empty when his body was found.

CITIZEN ON BREAD BY-LAW

Editor Examiner.

Sir,—In yesterday's issue some asinine individual, signing his name "Citizen," comes into the limelight and uses opprobrious language because Mr. Cameron would dare express an opinion on a local by-law. It is not necessary to be a descendant or a follower of the Blackstonian idea in order to express an opinion on such a simple matter of common sense and reason. And because Mr. C. states his opinion that the Bakers cannot be forced to wrap bread, "Citizen" acts like a Chimpanzee vituperating through his trachea all the excretion his pillicle brain contains, and it would require the maxilla of a long-eared quadruped equine well applied to prevent his deliterious statements to be made ever the name "Citizen."

Yours truly,
From the Back Fifty.

SENATORS WOULD PERMIT TIPS IN PRIVATE HOMES

OTTAWA, May 14—The anti-tipping bill, which last night passed through committee stage in the Senate with one amendment. "That it shall not apply to private residences," will probably pass its third reading this afternoon. There is practically no chance of its reaching the lower House this season.

Senator David feared less some poor little boy or poor servant in a hotel, if called upon to render special service to a sick person, will be exposed to a $25 or even $100 fin if he accepts special compensation for that service. He thought the practice might be stopped if the law was aimed at the managers of restaurants and railways.

Senator Davis, promoter of the bill, pointed out that the size of a fine was up to the Judge, who could make it as low as 25 cents.

System in England.

Sentator Choquette fears an anti-tipping act would never work. Tips would continue. Said he: "Without the tipping it is almost impossible to travel. We all know the organization they have in the old country about the tipping. They have an organization, with officers, and it is understood that when the baggage leaves the hotel there is a special mark put on it, and when a trunk arrives at the next hotel the head waiter knows if the man gives tips or not, and if he does not give tips his trunks are left in the corridor and he is not attended to." Senator Choquette also championed the poor cloakroom girl, who gets no salary."

"Her employers will have to pay her," retorted Sentor Davis.

"The poor man will be able to get a meal without being in fear and trembling of the waiter if the bill goes through. The poor man will thus be treated fairly. Things have reached such a stage now that if a poor man cannot keep up with a rich man he is sneered at. I claim that these waiters and other employees take bribes fro mrich men, but they will be forced to treat the poor man with better courtesy."

Senator Boyes had an original objection. "We often read that a silver collection will be taken up after Church services," he announced. "Is it because the minister is not paid enough? Who is going to pay the fine in that case?"

The Senator decided that while an anti-tipping law could not be entirely enforced, it would do much to mitigate a practice which all of them admitted was a nuisance.

NOW A WEALTHY WOMAN

BOSTON, May 14.—Like the story of Cinderella runs the romance of Mrs. Francis Skinner, of Dedham, who, through the death of her husband, a nephew of Mrs. Jack Gardner, on board the liner Saronia, becomes the possessor of a fortune estimated at $10,000,000. From a shop girl in a Boston department store, Mrs. Skinner becomes a wealthy woman. Mrs. Skinner was Sarah E. Carr, the daughter of a Boston tailor. She was the belle among the shop girls, and society still recalls the sensation that came with her wedding to young Skinner, son of one of the most exclusive families in the state. The couple first met in Marblehead, in 1899. Next year they were married at the Church of the Good Shepherd. There was opposition on the part of Mr. Skinners father and other relatives. The opposition ended in a deathbed reconciliation of the father, son and bride.

QUAKER OATS CO. CLOSED TWO DAYS

The Quaker Oats Company has closed down for two days, and will not be in operation to-day or to-morrow. The employees, who also received a half holiday yesterday, will have a chance to see the ball games this week. The suspension of work is made necessary through a change in the machinery of the mill. Work will be resumed on Monday, when it is expected that the machinery will be ready to be used. Practically every hand is laid off until Monday.

GO AHEAD

Editor, Examiner:

I see that an effort is being made by a couple of gentlemen to interfere with the Council's well devised plan for constructing our much needed pavements. They would like to intercept the continuity of the work along Aylmer Street between Hunter and Brock Streets in order that they might evade their proportion of that part of the cost levied as frontage tax. Such patch-work construction would bring the whole job into direpute. It would be a precedent for others to follow. People should not be encouraged to profit by the unearned increment of their land through the efforts of others and not to make improvements, to the detriment of the City as a whole.

Yours truly,
Observer.

OLD DOG CUTS NEW TEETH

JENKINTOWN, Pa., May 14.—Veterans of the old York road district are interested in an unusual case. A French poodle dog, for more than 11 years a pet in the family of Howard Smith of Noble, "dropped" all its teeth some weeks ago, this condition being attributed toold age of the dog.

Within the last fortnight the dog has started to "cut" an entirely new set of teeth—a condition declared to be distinctly out of the ordinary.

A. O. F. ARRANGED THE EXCURSION WILL BE BIG ONE

Editor Examiner.

Sir,—In your issue of last night you stated that the Board of Trade had been the means of inducing the A. O. F. of Trenton to come here on June 18th. Now, that is misleading to the public. The A. O. F. of Trenton, Bowmanville, Cobourg, Oshawa, Port Hope, Belleville and Campbellford have arranged to come here on that date and hold their annual Field Day in this City, and the Board of Trade had no part in the arrangements whatever. We, the A. O. F., appreciate the Board of Trade's activity, and will co-operate with them in furthering the advertising of our good city at all times. We think it right that this correction should be made and honour be extended to whom honour is due.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I remain,

Yours respectfully,
Tom Hendry,
268 Munro Avenue, Peterborough.

Mexicans Are So Contrary They Wear 50 Cent Shirts With Ten Dollar Sombreros

No Country in the World So Full of Contrasts---Every Form of Locomotion Used Since Adam's Time Still Found in Mexico--A Wealth of Railways and Natural Resources

WASHINGTON, May 13.—"Perhaps nowhere else in the world is there a country so full of contrasts as Mexico," writes William Joseph Showalter to the National Geographic society, at Washington. "With a university established before John Harvard, Elihu Hale or William and May were born, the masses of its people are hopelessly ignorant. With a hospital founded before Jamestown was even dreamed of, it is one of the most backward regions of the earth in a medical way.

"With natural riches greater than those of a thousand Midas, Mexico's masses are just as poor as the proverbial church mouse. With a constitution as perfect as any organic law in the civilized world, it is a nation whose rulers always have been a law into themselves.

Fifty Cent Shirt, $10 Hat.

"Here you will see a Mexican half-breed, barefooted, wearing a dollar pair of trousers, a fifty-cent shirt, and a ten-dollar sombrero. There, at a single glance and within the length of a single city block, you may see an Indian cargador, a donkey, an ox cart, a carriage, a railroad train, a street-car, and an automobile—almost every type of locomotion since Adam.

"You may tread the burning sands of a tropical desert with the wet of the perpetual snow of towering mountains still upon your shoes. You may take a single railway journey of 36 hours in which the people you see at the railroad station will be dressed in four different weights of clothing. Everywhere you turn theer is contrast, high lights and deep shadows.

"Mexico probably has a greater range of remarkable vegetation than any other country in the world. The parrot fruit tree produces an odd-shaped fruit, bearing a close resemblance to green parakeets. When the parakeet is frightened it makes a dash for the parrot tree, where it assumes a position which makes it look like the fruit itself. So close is the resemblance that their enemies, the hawks, occasionally fly into a tree on which a dozen or more of these birds are sitting, apparently unaware of their presence.

"No other country south of the Rio Grande is so well supplied with railroads. Prior to the Madero revolution it had 20,000 miles of up-to-date American railroad, which carried 11,000,000 passengers annually and handled about 11,000,000 tons of freight. Their total revenues amounted to about $40,000,000. The government owns a controlling interest in the major portion of the mileage of the railroads.

Mineral Productions, $58,000,000.

"Mexico produces one-third of the world's silver, a considerable percentage of its gold, one-ninth of its lead, and one-twentieth of its copper. The country's mineral production, exclusive of iron, coal and petroleum, amounted to $158,000,000 in 1910. The famous iron mountain at Durango is estimated to contain 600,000 tons of iron ore, which is worth seven times the value of all the gold and silver mined in Mexico in two centuries.

The Santa Maria graphite mines are the largest and most important in the Western World. The regions around the Gulf of Mexico is very rich in petroleum. One company at Poteri del Llano struck a gusher which flowed 100,000 barrels of oil a day.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

May 17, 1914.

(Copyright, 1914, by Rev. T. S. Linscott D. D.)

The Rich Man and Lazarus, Luke xvi:14, 19-31.

Golden Text— Who so stoppeth his ears at the cry of the poor, he shall also cry, and shall not be heard, Prov. xxi:13.

1. Verse 14—What is covetousness?
2. Why is a covetous man very wicked?
3. What is the degree of the temptation to covetousness of professional religious teachers compared to that of laymen?
4. Verse 15—Is the average man's idea of covetousness different from God's, and if so, why is it?
5. Verse 19—Is it right, or wrong, and why, for rich men to dress richly and fare sumptuously?
6. May a rich man live in the height of style and still be a true follower of the meek and the lowly Jesus? Give your reasons.
7. Verses 20-21—What if any reason is there to think that poverty is the best condition for some people?
8. If society and economics were based on the teaching of Jesus, would poverty be possible? Why?
9. What should the rich to-day do for the poor more than they are doing?
10. What can the state do more for the poor than at present?
11. Verses 22-23—This poor beggar was a devout man, would you say or not, and why, that he is a fair representative of his class?
12. Does poverty usually tend to piety, or not, and why?
13. What is the moral condition of a rich man who allows a poor man to die of starvation and general neglect?
14. If a man who directly kills another deserves death, what does the man deserve who deliberately allows a beggar to die of neglect?
15. Verse 24—How do you explain it that at times two persons live in the same house, under the same outward conditions, the one having sweet comfort and the other enduring torment?
16. Verse 25—What reason is there to believe that men have the same characters after death as before?
17. What are the possibilities of memory in inflicting torment or in giving comfort?
18. Verse 26—From the teaching in this verse what reasonable ground is there for hope that a man may be saved after death?
19. Verses 27-28— How do you explain that so bad a man had such sympathy for his brothers on the earth?

20.—Verses 29-31— Why would not gospel hardened sinners repent if they were urged to do so, by one who came back from the dead?

Lesson for Sunday, May 24, 1914. Unprofitable Servants. Luke xvii:1-10.

SAYS HE PAID TAXES ON LAND IN THE AIR

Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I must correct the error in last night's issue re Board of Works meeting. Now, Mr Editor, I am no meeting. Now, Mr. Editor, I am not claiming taxes for ten years back, but only for five years. If the assessor investigated the matter, he certainly got in a mix-up, as he is labouring under a great mistake if he found out that in 1911 Mr Mitchell took part of my property. For if he did I do not know anything about it, as I am still in full possession of my Reid Street property.

Now Mr. Editor, I have come to the conclusion that I must have been paying for ten feet of land up in the air.

Thanking you for your valuable space, I remain,

W. A. Hunter.

Richard Is Off To Lakes

Promised Magistrate That He Would Get Out of Town at Once

Richard McBride's name was called at police court this morning. Before His Worship could ask the prisoner to plead, that worthy, a very old man, and a well known figure at the court, jumped to his feet.

"I am going up to Mr. Thompson's at Mount Julian, and will go right away," he said.

The Court—"I am interested in that lake, and they don't want you up there."

Richard said he was going to do the chores, and wouldn't bother the court again.

Well, $2 to be paid in ten days," said the Magistrate, "and if you don't pay it, we will send a constable out in an automobile and a posse if necessary, to fetch you to jail. With this promise in his mind, Richard departed.

Nelson Rusaw was charged with riding a wheel on the sidewalk. He was fined $2. I will add the costs every time after Monday, was the remark of the Court, so if anybody wants to ride on the sidewalks, they ahd better do it before then, or it will cost them $6.60.

Louis Yeotes was charged with assaulting a fellow Greek. Mr. Gordon, acting for the defence, asked for an enlargement to prepare a defence, which was granted. The case will be concluded to-morrow.

40 Miles In 33 Minutes

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, May 15—A new record for travelling between Toronto and Hamilton was established to-day, when Aviator McCauley and Lou E. March, the well-known sporting writer, made the trip in a hydro-plane in less than thirty three minutes. The distance is about 40 miles.

PAVEMENT ON GEORGE STREET BEING REPAIRED

Work was commenced this morning to remedy the fault in the pavement in front of the Dominion Bank and Neill's shoe store, on the east side of George Street. The pavement, for an area of several square yards, will have to be taken up and replaced. Earlier in the spring the fault near the corner of Hunter and George Streets, was fixed.

TO BUILD NEW CHANCEL

It is announced that the members of St. George's Church are taking steps towards erecting a new chancel for their Church. This will involve the young congregation in an outlay of between $500 and $700. To meet this sum, a summer sale of work is to be held on the Church grounds at the end of June. Further particulars will be given later on.

Wild Scenes In Police Court

LONDON, Eng., May 15 — There were wild scenes at Westminster Police Court to-day, when Mrs. Duree Fox and Mrs. Flora Drummond were arraigned on charges of obstruction of traffic in besieging the homes of Sir Edward Carson and Lord Lansdowne, yesterday. The suffragettes both started a violent harangue of the presiding magistrate, and declining to be bound over to keep the peace, were sent to Holloway jail for one month at hard labour.

TURNBULL'S

MISS KILLMASTER'S PLAYING PLEASED

The London Advertiser has the following to say of the playing of Miss Kilmaster of the staff of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music:

The auditorium at the Normal School was filled to capacity last evening on the occasion of the final concert of the Women's Music Club, and judging by the hearty applause that greeted each number, the audience was well pleased with the programme provided.

Miss Killmaster Pleases.

Miss Jeanette Killmaster proved an accomplished concert pianist in her several numbers, revealing a technical facility that found best expression in a number of Chopin compositions. All of her offerings were characterized by a fine expression of musical feeling. Hadyn's "Variations in F minor," was a number of great charm, and found excellent interpretation by Miss Killmaster. Her second group was largely composed of Chopin numbers, the "Mazurka," Op. 50, No. 2, "Valse" in A Flat, Op. No. 42, and the Liszt arrangement of the "Melodies Polonaises." Rubenstein's "Barcarolle" was rendered with fine pirit, and Lisbt's "Sonatte del Petrarca" was excellently achieved. The gorgeous melodies of Liszt's arrangement of Tschaikowski's "Polonaise aus Eugen Onegin" found beautiful expression by the young pianist.

RELIGION ON THE STAGE

It is said that "some things" are too sacred to be represented on the stage, writes Bernard Shaw and goes on: The phrase "some things" is highly characteristic. It recalls the intelligent member of parliament who supported the attempt to exclude Charles Bradlaugh from the House of Commons on the ground that "a man ought to believe in something or another." But since it is just as well not to be frivolously vague in speaking of sacred things, let us replace "some thing" by the mysteries of religion, which is what the objectors would mean if, on this subject, they were earnest enough to mean anything at all. Pray what are the mysteries of religion Are they faith, hope, love, heroism, life, creation; or are they pews and pulpits, prayer books and Sunday bonnets, copes and chasubles, and dalmatics? Even that large section of the population . . . whose religion is the merest idolatry of material symbols will not deny that the former are the realities of religion. Then I ask the gentlemen who think that the pews and prayerbooks are too sacred to be represented on the stage, why it is that they have never protested against the fact that all our dramas deal with faith, hope, love and the rest of the essentials? . . . . The objection made to Mr. Jones' play ("Michael and His Lost Angel") is really an objection to Michael's treatment of religion as coextensive with life: that is, as genuinely catholic. To the man who regards religion as only a watertight Sunday compartment of social observance, such a view is not only inconvenient but positively terrifying. I am sorry for him; but I can assure him that the British drama is annexing steadily the territory on which he feels so uncomfortable. And who ever tries to obstruct that advance will inevitably be ground into the mud. When I want to exhibit the might of criticism, I may throw an express train off the line; but you do not catch me trying to stop the imperceptibly slow march of a glacier.—Boston Monitor.

I do not know why suddenly the storm should rage so fiercely around me in its wrath, but this I know: God watches all my path; and I can trust.

Mediation Meeting Has Been Adjourned

Examiner Special:

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 15.—Instead of opening Monday as expected, the mediation meeting at Niagara Falls will not commence till Wednesday, it was announced to-day. This was to accommodate Huerta's representatives, who could not reach the Falls on Monday without extraordinary haste. The South American mediators were formally presented to President Wilson to-day, in the presence of other ambassadors and military attaches. Wilson merely wished them a safe journey, but made no reference to their mission.

Murderers Pay The Penalty

Examiner Special:

VANCOUVER, B.C., May 15.—Herman Clark and Frank Davis were this morning hanged for the murder of Police Constable Archibald a year ago. As each man went to his death he blamed his companion in crime for the deed.

MARKET HELD POSITION GAINED ON THURSDAY

The Stock Market continued to show signs of strength to-day, but they were not as pronounced as on Thursday. C. P. R. touched 193 but sagged slightly toward the close. Other tractions showed slight declines, but the indications of to-day's position were not well defined in either direction. Sales at 1 o'clock were over 199,000. Considerable trading was done in Reading, but the price held up closing at the opening figure, 166. The general tenor of today was for the most part a marking time with no particular outstanding features. The market was content to practically hold the position gained yesterday, when advances ranged from one to six points all around. Mexican oil was fairly strong, going to 163.

MEN ASKED MAYOR TO GET THEM WORK

About a dozen men approached Mayor Buller to-day requesting that he use his influence to secure employment for them. His Worship escorted them to the City Engineer's office where their names were enrolled for the next vacancies in civic work.

CRICKET

The Peterborough cricket team will play the first match of the season, when they meet the Lakefield Grove School XI. at the Nicholls Oval. An interesting match is expected as both teams are reputed to be particularly strong.

To be interesting you must tell the truth audaciously.

The man who has learned to do something better than any one else, has learned to do a common thing in an uncommon manner, is the man who has a power and influence that no adverse circumstances can take from him.

Would Do More Harm Than Good

And Perhaps "Frighten the Life Out of You"

The Erie Despatch says:

A visitor to our city happened yesterday, in speaking of preventive medicine, to give it is his opinion that everybody ought to have a periodic medical examination in order to indicate his general condition and to catch physical disorders early. Thus many a disease would be diagnosed in its first stages and many a life would be saved. It happens that Dr. Goldwater, the health commissioner of New York, advocates a very similar idea and gives an exhaustive explantion of it in the New York Sunday Times. Dr. Goldwater is unreservedly in favour of universal periodic medical examinations. He thinks that by them may cases of cancer, tuberculosis and other diseases would thus be found out while there was still time to treat them successfully. No one will doubt the truth of this assertion, but it is doubtful whether everybody will agree upon the wisdom of compulsory periodic physical examinations. For this is where psychology must come to the assistance of medicine. There are entirely too many people in constant dread of illness. They would become morbidly so if they suddenly found out that something was the least bit wrong with them. Their imagination and fear would so work upon them as to reduce them in short time to physical wrecks. If self-control and self-confidence were universally so great, and intelligence would also have to go with them, that nobody would be the least bit put out over the knowledge that he had an incipient disease, the system might work out all right. Many men have slight diseases unknown to themselves, but get over them nicely and live to a good old age without ever having suspected that anything serious was ever the matter with them. If some physician would point out to them their danger, many of them would at once allow their minds so to dwell upon themselves that it would not take very long to make them real invalids.

Then there is the ever present danger of false diagnosis. It happens frequently; the physician himself will readily admit it. Is it right to alarm a man or woman because of some symptom falsely interpreted? And these will increase vastly in number under any system of compulsory periodic medical examinations, with dire results in many instances. Thus it ought to be clear that, while compulsory medical examinations ever so often in a year would surely in a great number of instances do much good, there are, perhaps, more cases in which it would do (equal) harm. Dentists are gradually educating their clients to come regularly for examination of their teeth. The doctors might educate their clienteles to follow a similar practice. Men and women would learn to go out of habit and would also learn to guide themselves by the results of the examination with common sense. The gradual development of that habit would be infinitely better than the passing of a law making periodic examinations compulsory. For the good you will get from it, however, it would not be a bad idea to begin right away and have the doctor give you a physical examination once or twice a year even if you are not invalided. Thus without frightening the life out of you, your friend the physician might be able to advise you how to avoid the consequences of some disorder that was apparently beginning its inroads upon your body.

There is only one stimulant that never intoxicates—Duty. Duty puts a clear sky over every man, into which the skylark of happiness always goes

Lacrosse Practice After Ball Game

T. P. Lancaster of Havelock, convener for the local group in the O. A. L. A. has called a meeting to be held in the Clarendon Hotel, Hastings on Tuesday next at 3 p.m. for the purpose of drawing up a schedule of the games in this group. A representative of the Peterborough Club will attend.

Another dozen senior lacrosse sticks arrived in the City today and the supply will be thus increased for prospective players.

A practice is called for at the Riverside Park to-morrow after the ball game. The lacrosse players attending the ball game are requested to bring their suits and sticks in order to get into the practice as soon as the field is clear.

BOWLING MEETING AT THE ORIENTAL

A meeting of the Bowling Green Tennis Club will be held at the Oriental Hotel on Monday evening at 8 o'clock. All members are requested to be on hand and any desirous of joining are invited. Important business is to be taken up.

Record Crowd Saw Peterboro' Drop Season's Opening Game

Bluntmen Played Miserable Ball Behind Louie Schettler and Tecumsehs Had an Easy Win, the Final Count Being 11 to 3--Joe Byrne Played Grand Ball at Third Base for the Locals---Willie Swartz Presented With a Signet Ring.

You remember what General Sherman said one time about war. Once in a while the definition can be applied to baseball.

Yesterday afternoon over 3,500 human beings and five policemen gathered at the Riverside Park ball bazaar to see Manager Curley Blount's Peterborough squad open the Canadian League season by smearing the London Tecumsehs all over the lot. And instead they had the painful experience of watching the Cockneys everlastingly wallop the Bluntmen, the final count being 11 to 3.

The highly trained athletes, under the direction of Dr. Reisling, who pulls teeth in the winter time and an occasional "bone" during the summer, were decidedly on their good behaviour. They fielded nicely and hit well, and looked like a real ball team. On the other hand the Bluntmen viewed from a most charitable standpoint were decidedly to the bad. With one or two exceptions they were weak with the willow, and their defence was full of holes, a combination that made the opening pastime easy picking for the Reisling crew. Every ball team has an off day once in a while, and the Petes were unlucky enough to pick opening day for a fit time to show how bad they could be. Well there is nothing like getting it all out of the system at once.

Mr. Louie Schettler, late of Erie, Youngstown, Lancaster, Philadelphia and other points, laboured on the mound in the interests of the Petes, and he worked his arm off trying to hold the Cockneys in check. Innings after innings he toiled along, pitching beautiful ball, while his teammates kicked the ball around. It was no wonder that he finally let up or weakened in the ninth and allowed a flock of hits and runs. Schettler fanned eleven men, and for the greater part of the game he was working in grand form. But his support was terrible, and he got none of the breaks. To start the trouble, Wilcox, who took Swartz's place fell as he went after Bierbauer's fly, and what should have been an easy out, developed into a three-base hit. That was one instance of the way things went. Then Price had a couple of fumbles and a bad throw, and Gorman mussed up a couple of plays, and the most of these misplays were fitted in just where they would do the most harm. They more than balanced all Schettler's good pitching and madethe team look bad.

MAGNIFICENT ATTENDANCE.

The best feature about the day was the attendance. The paid admissions amounted to very close to 3,500, a magnificent showing for a town of this size. The stand accommodation filled up quickly, and hundreds had to stand around the fences. Before the game commenced right and centre fields were deeply lined with fans and it was necessary to arrange ground rules, two bases being given for a hit into the crowd. It was unfortunite indeed that the Petes fell down badly before such a splendid turnout.

The brightest spots in the game outside of Schettler's good pitching was the way Joe Byrne worked. The third-baseman not only fielded cleverly, but he did sterling work with the bat. His triple in the fourth innings drove in a run, and he came back with a smoking single in the eighth that chased another one over. Byrne nearly had another safety to his credit, smashing one on a line right at Mullin who glued to the sphere.

Big Ben Beebe was the London twirler and pitched a nice game of ball for the Cockneys. He was inclined to be wild at the go in hitting three men, but the Petes did not do much with his offerings, and backed up by steady fielding, he had comparatively easy sailing. The London team looks pretty good. Bierbauer and Linneborn are as good as ever, and Whitcraft is a classy performer in the short field. The outfield had no opportunity of showing their class as fielders, but they his well, the veteran Cy Reidy blazing the way with four safeties in five times up. The right fielder was the chief offender in man-handling Schettler's offerings.

The customary fuss and feathers preceded the slaughter. The automobile parade was the first feature. the procession composed of the two teams, and a number of fans and headed by the 57th Band being witnessed by hundreds of people. The players did the usual march across the field, after which Mayor Buller briefly addressed the crowd thanking them for their attendance and expressing the opinion that baseball was one of the best advertising mediums the city had.

His Worship then wound up and shot a fast ball over the centre of the plate. Mr. E. A. Peck, M.P.P., swung lustily and fouled His Worship's offering. Judge Huycke was behind the bat, but did not get a chance to show what he could do.

An interesting feature was a presentation of a gold signet ring to Outfielder Willie Swartz, the only survivor of the original Templin White Caps. Tax-Collector W. J. Green and Mr. R. J. Kidd made the presentation as Swartz came to bat for the first time. It was an unlucky coincidence that on the first ball pitched, Swartz was hit on the hand with a passed ball, his finger being smashed to such an extent that he will be out of the game for some days.

First Innings.

London—Linneborn walked. Long hit through short when Price ran over to cover second. Linneborn tried to go to third on the play and was out, Swartz to Byrne. Lamy cracked a bounder which Schettler deflicted, King scooped the ball to Price in time to force Long. Lamy was caught napping off first. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough—Blount died on a roller to Beebe. Fox flied to Long in left. King fanned. No runs, hits or errors.

Second Innings.

London—Bierbauer singled on a line over second. Whitcraft sacrificed Schettler to King. Reidy singled to left scoring Bierbauer. Reidy was out stealing, Ryberg to King. Mullin fanned. One run, two hits, no errors.

Peterborough—Gorman was hit by a pitched ball. "Peggy" Swartz, left fielder of the Petes, was presented with a handsome ring from a number of fans as he came to bat. The presentation was made by tax-collector W. J. Green. Swartz was also hit, his hand being hurt. Wilcox ran for him. Byrne sacrificed, Beebe to Bierbauer. Price fanned. Ryberg also struck out. No runs, hits or errors.

Third Innings.

London—Snyder boomed a high one to Blount in centre. Beebe fanned. Linneborn dropped a Texas Leaguer back of second. Long fanned. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough—Schettler died on a high one to Whitcraft. Blount was hit. Fox fanned. Blount stealing second on the third one. King died on a grounder to Whitcraft. No runs, hits or errors.

Fourth Innings.

London—Byrne made a grand catch of Lamy's bullet drive. Bierbauer tripled to left, Wilcox falling as he went to field the ball. Price let Whitcraft's grounder get away and Bierbauer scored. Reidy singled to left. Mullin hit to Byrne who made a nice stop, but Gorman lost the throw. Whitcraft scoring. Mullin was out stealing Ryberg to Price. Snyder fanned. Two runs, two hits, two errors.

Peterborough—Gorman walked and went to second on a wild pitch. Wilcox fanned. Byrne tripled to deep left centre, scoring Gorman. Price lifted to Whitcraft. Ryberg singled on a line through short, scoring Byrne. Schettler struckout. Two runs, two hits, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

London—Beebe fanned. Gorman dropped Bierbauer's easy fly. Byrne made a nice catch of Long's high foul back of third. Linneborn stole second, Ryberg's throw being high. Lamy fanned. No runs or hits, one error.

Peterborough—Blount struck out. Fox also fanned, the third one being called. King hit to Mullin and went to second on the third-baseman's wild throw. Gorman missed three, No runs or hits, one error.

Sixth Innings.

London—Bierbauer was hit. Whitcraft sacrificed, Gorman to King, nice fielding by the first-baseman. Reidy died on a roller along the third-base line. Mullin was hit. Snyder struck out. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough—Wilcox grounded to Linneborn, nice fielding by the second-baseman. Byrne drove out a sizzler. Price scratched a hit on a bounder which took a bad hop to Whitcraft. Ryberg lifted a high one to Bierbauer, No runs, one hit, no errors.

Seventh Innings.

London — Beebe cracked a hit through short. Linneborn sacrificed, Ryberg to Gorman. Long died on a roller to Schettler. Wilcox dropped Lamy's long fly. Beebe scoring, and Lamy going to second. Bierbauer fanned. One run, one hit, one error.

Peterborough — Schettler hoisted one to Whitcraft. Blount lofted to Beebe. Fox singled over second, his first hit of the season. King died on a grounder to Beebe. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Eighth Innings.

London — Whitcraft struck out. Reidy singled over second, his third hit of the day, and stole second. Mullin fanned. Reidy went to third on a short passed ball. Snyder was passed. Beebe hit to Price whose throw pulled Gorman off the base, Reidy scoring. Linneborn died on a foul fly to Gorman. One run, one hit, one error.

Peterborough—Gorman singled to left and stole second. Wilcox popped to Whitcraft. Byrne singled on a line to left, scoring Gorman. Price struck out. Byrne went to second on a passed ball. Ryberg grounded to Linneborn. One run, two hits, no errors.

Ninth Innings.

London—Long flied to Price. Lamy doubled along the left-field foul line. Price fumbled Bierbauer's grounder. Bierbauer stole second. Whitcraft doubled to left, scoring Lamy and Bierbauer. Reidy singled over third, scoring Whitcraft. Mullin doubled to left centre, sending Reidy over. Snyder singled through short. Beebe fanned. Linneborn singled to right sending Mullin and Snyder in. Linneborn stole second. Long scratched a hit on a grounder to Gorman, but Linneborn was out at the plate, trying to score. Six runs, seven hits, one error.

Peterborough—Miller batted for Schettler and grounded to Linneborn. Blount Grounded to Whitcraft. Fox beat out a bunt. King lifted to Linneborn. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Openings Of Other Years are Recalled

Peterboro' Lost First Game to St. Thomas Two Years Ago But Beat Brantford in the Inaugural Contest Last Year

A DIP INTO THE PAST

Yesterday was the third Canadian League opening day that Peterborough fans had been privileged to see and undoubtedly the most successful of the trio from the view point of attendance and enthusiasm.

Two years ago, on May 22, Peterborough saw its first Canadian League ball, when Templin's crew, after losing all the games, played on the road and opened their home season by losing to St. Thomas by nine runs to six, in a loosely played game. The weather conditions were anything but favourable. It had rained heavily all the preceding day and showers fell all morning. Up to 2 o'clock it was doubtful whether or not a game could be played but it was finally decided to go ahead with the opening. The grounds were in a terrible state, but saw dust was used liberally on the base lines and the game went on. The Peterborough team fielded in saffron fashion, seven errors being chalked up against them of which Short-stop Babe Tully contributed four. Bill Schaeffer, now with the Toronto Beavers, was the local pitcher and Turner, long since passed into oblivion, as far as Canadian League affairs are concerned, was the heaver for the Saints. Both were hit hard, the Railroaders getting fourteen safeties, and the Petes twelve, Trout and Beard hitting for the circuit. Peterborough had an early lead, but blew up and were badly beaten on end.

Here is how the teams lined up:

St. Thomas—Forgue, s.s.; Gurney 1b.; Stewart, r.f.; Wright, 3b.; Wilde 2b.; Kopp, l. f.; Powers, c.; Kiefel, m.; Turner, p.

Peterborough—Swartz, l.f.; Graney, r.f.; Beard, m.; Templin, 2b.; Dolan, 1b; Tully, s. s.; Hartman, 3b.; Trout c.; Schaeffer, p.

Most of these men have departed from the Canadian League circuit. Swartz is the only one of the Peterborough crew still playing for the local club, although Trout, Schaeffer and Dolan are still in the League, the first pair with Toronto, and the latter with Ottawa. Of the Saints' team, Forgue and Kopp are still in Railroadville, and Petie Powers is chumming it with Crab Shaughnessy and Chesty Rogers, in the Ottawa outfield.

Umpire Chickering Johnston handled the indicator. He did not linger much longer in the League than some of the ball players.

LAST YEAR'S OPENING.

Last year's opening is still fresh in the minds of the fans. The Petes, after having been beaten twice in Berlin and twice in Brantford, came home with the Red Sox to inaugurate the 1913 season. And it was some inauguration. The weather conditions were perfect and over 2200 fans turned out to see the Petes wallop Amby Kane's crew, which they accomplished after a brilliant eleven innings' game, by 3 to 2. Bob Sterling was on the rubber for the homesters and he held the Sox to five scattered hits, no two in one innings.

Harry Donovan was the Brantford twirler, and the Petes found him for ten safeties.

A pass to Brant and Rowan's long triple to right field scored a run for the Petes in the first, and Sterling's double, Brant's sacrifice, and Rowan's single sent another over in the third. The Sox broke into the run-column in the fourth when Brundage's single, Coose's sacrifice, and an error were responsible for a counter. The visitors tied it up in the ninth on a pass to Lamond, and Donovan's long double to the left-field fence. Neither team scored in the tenth and the visitors also failed in their half. The Petes won out with nobody out. Chapdelane opened with a single and Joe Sargent hammered a long drive to left centre, on which Chappy rode all the way home.

The teams were:

Brantford—Tesch, s. s.; Wagner, 2 b.; Orcutt, 3 b.; Ivers 1 b.; Brundage, 1 b.; Diem, m.; Coose, l.f.; Lamond, c.; Donovan, p.

Peterborough—Brant, s. s.; Byrne, 3b.; Rowan, 1 b.; Swartz, l.f.; McNeal, c.; Totten, m.; Chapdelaine, r. f.; Sargent, 2 b.; Sterling, p.

You will notice that most of these players are missing this season. Byrne, Swarts and Sterling are still with Peterborough and McNeal also draws a Canadian League salary. Of the Brantford team Lamond and Ivers are the only certainties this season. Wagner is still hanging on but may be dropped any time. Harry Donovan belongs to Ottawa and is on the Senators' suspended list.

McLaughlin was the porch climber on that occasion. He failed to stay long in the League.

BASEBALL COMMENTS

The Petes sure did play bad baseball.

Louie Schettler struck out eleven men.

To-morow's game with London will start at 3 o'clock.

Joe Byrne's all-round playing was the brightest feature of the afternoon.

The crowd was struck by the difference in size between Managers Reisling and Blount.

Hammond may pitch for London this afternoon and Sterling is the likely Peterborough choice.

A little hitting might have covered up the fielding misplays, but the batting corresponded to the defensive work.

Linneborn, Reidy, Bierbauer, Heck, Steiger and Beebe were the only members of last year's team to appear with the visitors.

A lot of the fans have dug their hammers out of the red cedar chests and are swinging them vigorously to-day at the expense of the Petes.

Mack McNeal had three errors in yesterday's game at Erie. St. Thomas won by 10-8 in spite of Schaeffer's home run in the ninth with two on bases. Schaeffer emulsted Cy Reidy's feat and had four hits.

Trout had two hits for the Beavers at Ottawa yesterday. He drove in the first Toronto run with a double and helped to chase the winning one over in the ninth with a single.

Sketches of The Bluntmen

Stanley Cresswell, Pitcher.—Born at Peterborough, Ontario, in the year 1893; height, 6 feet, 2 inches, weight 170 pounds. "Stan" is a product of the local City League. Started playing semi-professional ball in the year 1912 with Newmarket. Worked part of a game with Peterborough that season, but was let out.

In 1913 "Stan" paid his own expenses to Preston for trial with the Club. He made good and was with the Club all that season.

Cresswell is young, a big fellow, and shows every promise of developing into a Big League pitcher.

MARRIES TO SAVE GIRL'S LIFE

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y., May 14. — Miss Mildred C. Vourhies and Earl C. Schaer were married by the Rev. J. B. Sweet in the belief that the young woman's marriage was the only sure method of restoring her mental balance and saving her life. She has been at the point of death since two weeks ago, when Mr. Schaffer informed her of his intentions to break their engagement.

The young woman, who was prominent in religious and social work, became unconscious at that time and when she was aroused was delirious, calling constantly for her fiance. As a result the doctors insisted that Mr. Schaffer sit constantly at her bedside in the hope that if she regained consciousness his presence would restore her mind. She became conscious about a week ago, and the sight of Schaffer seemed to restore her mind. The physicians then announced that the only certain means of keeping her from collapsing again was for him to keep his promise to marry her. This he did.

Mr. Orville Jinks, of Peterborough, has been in town the past few days writing his Civil Service examinations.

Messrs Harry Dodds and Wm. Ryan of Peterborough, are writing their Civil Service examinations at Lindsay.—Lindsay Post.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Roberts and children, Jack and Eva, Auburn street, left Wednesday on the midnight C.P.R. train for a two months' vacation, to Wales, where they will visit Mr. Roberts' parents; also friends in Liverpool, Eng. They sailed on the steamer "Empress of Britain."

Mrs. Allison, who has been spending the winter with her son, Mr. P. L. Allison, 510 Gilmour street, has gone to New York for a visit, and is expected to return to the city in August.

IMPROVEMENT IN THE STRIKE SITUATION

A continued decrease in time losses through trade disputes was reported to the Department of Labour during March, as compared with the previous months of the year. The number of disputes was also considerably smaller than that of the corresponding month of last year. Seven disputes resulting in time losses of 32,616 working days were in existence during March as against fifteen disputes and 69,238 working days lost during the same month last year. The first three months of the present year have been very favourable from the standpoint of industrial disputes. Eight new disputes occurred in this period, resulting in time losses of 4,206 days. During the corresponding period of last year twenty-onestrikes were reported, the time losses resulting from these up to the end of March being 39,240 days. Five hundred and thirty-seven employees have struck work or otherwise have involved in trade disputes during the first three months of 1914. This compares favourably with the corresponding period of 1913 when 4,511 workers were affected by strikes and lockouts.

Prices Steady.

The Department of Labour's Index Number of Wholesale Prices rose slightly in March, standing at 136.7 as compared with 136.1 in February and 136.0 in March, 1913. The more important increases occurred in grains and fodder, animals and meats, (especially in poultry), canned salmon, apples, beans, potatoes, flour, oatmeal, beef-hides, and muskrat skins. Important decreases occurred in eggs, jute, brass and lead, and in some grades pine. In Retail Prices, beef, veal, bacon, flour, beans, prunes, and potatoes were upward while there was a gradual decline in eggs, and butter showed a downward tendency.

It is easy in the world to live after the world's opinions. it is easy in solitude to live after your own, but the great man is he who, in the midst of the crowd, keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitude.

English Girl's Story Of Wild Adventures In Balkan War

Describes Horrors of Recent Campaign—How Miss Borthwick and Her Big Tabby Cat Came Unscathed Through Land.

HER EXPERIENCES

(From Montreal Star.)

A little English girl of 22, who has just recovered from wounds, and sickness received during a year's solitary experience in the Balkan war, has just given out her frightful story of those grim battlefields to some newspapers.

She is Miss Jessica Borthwick, and her interest in the Balkans is hereditary, for her father, the late General Borthwick, was employed by Bulgaria in the eighties to reorganize and command the army in Eastern Rumelia, and she found his name still one to conjure with wherever Bulgarian troops went.

The winter found her in her studio in South Kensington—she is a clever animal sculptor. She limps badly, as there is still a bullet in her knee. On the walls hang some of her Balkan trophies—a knapsack and water bottle that she took from a dead Turk for her own use, the tri-colour ribbon badge that she was given by Servians at Monastir, when she had to pass as a British war correspondent to gain admission to the town, a revolver and many another relic.

Photographs taken by herself litter the table, and as she spoke her restless fingers played with clips of rifle cartridges that she had picked up among the dead on the battlefield.

Went to Get Photographs.

"When the Balkan war broke out," she said, "I could think of nothing else, for although I had never been so far East, every place seemed familiar to me, through hearing my father talk, and the names of the officers were the names of the men he had trained. Finally, I decided to go out and see for myself. I raised all the money I could and soon completed my preparations. I meant to get some cinematographs, so I got the necessary camera and learned in three days how to use it.

"My outfit consisted mainly of riding breeches and riding boots, flannel shirt, sweater, and a felt hat or Bulgarian black sheepskin cap. I had a big Burberry cape that served as a skirt when I was in towns and wished to be less noticeable. I took out one revolver, but I added to my arsenal from time to time, for I saw so many on dead officers, and could pick and choose. For a time I carried a Martini rifle as well, taken from a dead soldier. After a year of picking up what I wanted from the dead or from abandoned stores, it seems very hard to be back in London and to have to pay for everything."

In January, 1913, Miss Borthwick made her way to Sofia, and there sought out her father's old friend, the Premier. She told him quite calmly—so adding, one supposes, to his legend that the English are mad—that she wanted to join the Bulgarian army, then operating around Adrianople and towards Chatalja. Premier handed her over to the Minister of War, who gave her a permit, and soon she was in the train on her way to Stara Zagora.

Slept Between the Leaves.

"Everywhere I found that my father's name was sufficient to insure me every respect and assistance. Every officer did what he could for me, some running great risks in smuggling me to the front, where no civilian had a right to be. One officer took me as his servant and I cleaned his boots for a week.

"Through the terrible winter I made my way south to Kirk Kilisse. Near there I lost my first pony. I had been following a bullock transport, which was taking bread for the troops. At night the back wheels of the transport came off; we were in over four feet of snow, and it was bitterly cold. I could get no shelter, so I crept in among the bread, covered myself with the loaves, and soon dropped off to sleep, to the sound of the flapping of the canvas hood in the cart. About 3 a.m. I awoke and thought of my pony, which I had tethered at the end of the waggon. When I patted its nose my hand made a noise as if I had struck a lump of wood, and I found the poor little animal frozen solid. I had a funny lump in my throat and felt more lonely than ever before."

"On the night of March 13, I was told that Adrianople was about to fall, and that I might be able to get a cart to take me there the next morning. Accordingly, on the morning of the 14th, I set out in a cart drawn by two Bulgarian ponies, whic hthe driver thrashed to a wild gallop. Not one of the four wheels of the cart seemed to be the same size and the bottom was of loose planks that had never been nailed down and that furious ride through mountains and rough plains to the fallen city seemed like nothing so much as a nightmare drive to destruction on the upturned skeleton of a sewing machine.

"The open ground before the town was covered with dead bodies of men and horses and bullocks, many of which had lain unburied for weeks. The smell was awful. The river was full of corpses and every well and drinking place had its dead to pollute the waters, so that cholera was rampant. Some of the garrison were marching out as I entered — files of starving men in a state of collapse, for all had been short of food. Indeed, when I entered I could get no coffee, no wine, and the bread was understood to be 50 per cent. sawdust 25 per cent., sweepings and perhaps 25 per cent. good flour.

'Two days later, General Ivanoff, an old friend of my father, gave me a horse—the biggest I have ever ridden, like a transport camel—and I rode over the eastern battlefield. The roads were so thick with mud and clay that we pushed rather than walked. All the area was littered with unburied dead, and the siege guns, after vomiting fire for nearly six months, were now silent, sulky sentries over the battered Turkish camps around."

She had ridden out towards Ferre, and, feeling hungry and thirsty, was looking out for a melon field.

"About eight o'clock at night," she said, "when the full moon was out, I saw what seemed a melon patch, with a lot of round, light coloured objects like melons, on the ground. I jumped off my pony and picked up the nearest 'melon.' Then I dropped it in horror. It was a human skull that was picked clean by the dogs and birds. Then all around I saw dozens of them, with the unburied bodies of women and children, which the dogs were feasting on. Lying among them were beds, mattresses, cooking pots and articles of furniture, all smashed and strewn around when the Greek irregulars massacred the Bulgarians."

Her encounters with the pillaging Bashi-Bazouks were dangerous in the extreme, but by diplomacy she circumvented them. At one place, she reports, "the whole area had been pillaged by the Bashi-Bazouks, who had driven off all the stock, even taking or destroying the silk worms, which were the chief means of livelihood of the people. Luckily I could get water, and that was all that I had from a Tuesday to a Sunday."

A day or two after the fall of Adrianople, she says:

"On the following day I went to the Island Saraille Itschy, among the marshes of the Maritza, where Turkish prisoners had been sent. Dead soldiers robbed of almost every garment, lay there as food for the scavenging birds. But the sight of the living who waited for death was worse. The island was a veritable swamp, with huge trees sticking out, and knee deep in the mud were thousands of starving Turkish prisoners, huddled together for warmth and support, their faces and hands ashy gray, and their eyes sunken into their sockets.

"I saw four men sitting around a little fire, and as it was the first fire I had seen there, I went up to them. I spoke to the nearest but there was no answer. I repeated my question with no result, and then pushed his shoulder. He rolled over—all four were dead."

In Adrianople, Miss Borthwick was stricken with cholera. Feeling ill she hurried to her room—"if you can call it a room," she exclaims, "sixteen windows and no bed!"—but as she approached the house the landlady slammed the door and cried that she must not enter. The ghastly green colour was on her face, and though she went from place to place, all refused her shelter. Finally she crept into a mosque, and lay there unattended, with neither food nor water, for three days, until found and taken to the Red Crescent Hospital, where, under the care of an English doctor, Dr. Haig, she eventually recovered and set out again.

The young lady greatly resented the random shooting of the irregulars, though truth compels us to state that she was guilty of doing a little herself, when worked up to it.

"Ine night I was returning from a ride through the Turkish quarter. I was in riding breeches, with no skirt, and had a cavalry horse, so in the half darkness I might very easily have been taken for a Bulgarian officer. Suddenly several shots were fired at me from the house. Fortunately I was not hit, and I whiped out my revolver and fired six shots at the house from which I had been attacked. The building was only lath and plaster so they must have penetrated. Whether anyone was hit or not I cannot say.

"On another ocasion I had an encounter just outside the town. I was riding over rough ground, all plowed and torn up by bursting shells. Suddenly a shot was fired near me, and my frightened horse plunged, getting its hind legs into a hole. I slid off safely, got hold off the bridle and managed to get him out again. Then the puzzle was how to mount, for this was a big horse, and I really wanted a step ladder. However, at last I got my left foot in the stirrup and clambered up like a monkey. Just as I was getting into the saddle there was another shot, and a small bullet, apparently from an automatic pistol, caught me in the leg. I fired a few shots in what seemed in the darkness to be the right direction, and then I got back to the town as quickly as I could.

"This random shooting was a terrible nuisance. Numbers of Bulgarians were killed—men who could not be spared for this dog's death—at the hands of hidden assassins. All the prowling thieves who could be found were immediately arrested and hanged the next morning, sometimes a dozen at a time."

No doubt we shall have a book from Miss Borthwick before long, detailing her experiences, and it ought to prove exciting enough to satisfy the most extreme taste.

A feminine touch is furnished by the story of Moukova, a veteran of the war. He is a cat, a tabby, twice the usual size, and reached London with Miss Borthwick after sharing her adventures for many a long day.

They became acquainted when Miss Borthwick rode into the deserted village of Moukova, looking for a place to sleep. She found an empty barn, made for herself a bed of maize husks, and tethering her pony outside, went to sleep.

She was awakened by something springing on her chest, and growling. It was a monster cat, which took this means of telling her that the barn was on fire. While she slept the Bashi-Bazouks had fired the village.

Miss Borthwick sprang up, fully dressed, jumped on to her pony, set the cat on the saddle before her, and galloped off. Four months Moukova, as he was named, journeyed on the saddle, and then went with her to England.

But the day after he arrived he strolled ont to see London, and never returned. After all her experiences of the hororrs of war, the loss of Moukova at the moment struck Miss Borthwick as being the greatest tragedy of all.

I have paid close heed to the ways of men,
I have observed what the world calls luck;
And I have silently marvelled now and then
At the potent power of pluck
And this is a bit of truth I hail:
A maxim worth one's heed—
The man who is always afraid he will fail
Stands a very poor chance to succeed.

Does the freshness of your food mean anything to you?

There's only one answer—a decided "Yes!" Then do you know that you can't buy a stale package of

Kellogg's CORN FLAKES

The reason? Because your grocer gets it right from the factory in small quantities—and because Kellogg's are quick sellers and do not remain long on the shelf.

We encourage merchants to place small orders often rather than large ones.

This is why you get Kellogg's Corn Flakes with all their oven-freshness.

10c per package. Look for the signature.

A business man overtook a negro trudging through the snow humming to himself. He talked with him, and found that he was very poor. Finally he asked him if he didn't think he'd be happier if he were rich. "No, boss, all the rich men I work for never laugh."

The garden where flowers bloom is the garden where flowers were planted and tended. The life that shows blossoms of goodness is the one where good thoughts, words and deeds are cultivated so diligently that the weeds of evil have no room or chance to grow.

NOTES AND GLEANINGS

"Not Perpetual Motion but Near It" describes another scheme for lifting one's self by one's bootstraps, exposed in correspondence from Ohio appearing in the current Engineering News. This is a Cleveland man's automatic motor. It runs by sixteen springs, each small enough to be held in the palm, and while fifteen springs furnish power by unwinding they also wind the sixteenth. This is turn unwinds, tightening its neighbour spring, which winds its neighbour, releasing power in endless succession. Of course it can be used in watches, battleships, locomotives, street cars, automobiles, and airships, and in selling stock for a $40,000,00 concern. But its inventor changes the subject when it is suggested that competent engineers try it out.

Prof. Yereks of Harvard proposes in Science that preliminary to a study of human behaviour both obvious and subtle under scientifically controlled conditions, a permanent station be established in Borneo or Jamaica where systematic experiments may be conducted with apes. Much of the simpler work can be done in such experiments on lower animals. Prof. Rerkes describes an experiment on a dancing mouse, to discover the rapidity with which it would modify its habits under given external conditions:

With an apparatus so arranged that the mouse could choose as its route through the experiment box either a dark or a light passageway, I determined the number of experiences necessary in order that the animal should learn, no matter what the special relations of the passageways, only the light one could safely be chosen as a way of egress, since each time the dark passageway was entered a disagreeable electric shock resulted. • • • When the passageways differed markedly (discrimination easy) the stronger the shock the more rapid the learning. When the passageways differed slightly, (discrimination difficult), beyond a certain point, increase in the strength of the shock delayed the learning procers.

CHILDREN'S EYESIGHT

An astonishing number of school children suffer from the effects of imperfect vision, and many of them are unjustly blamed for being unambitious or mentally stupid. It has been shown by authentic investigation under municipal direction that from 20 to 30 per cent. of the children in public schools have defective vision and should wear Glasses.

We make a specialty of examining children's sight by the most improved scientific methods, and if your child does not need glasses we will tell you so frankly, and make no charge for the examination. We carry a special line of heavy weight Children's Spectacle Frames in Gold Filled and Aluminum.

Should your child require glasses we guarantee that the glasses we fit are the proper correction and will give best results.

"THE TERMS OF SURRENDER"

By LOUIS TRACY

"The old man says, 'Git!' an' I got."

"No reason?"

"Wall, if you squeeze it outer me, I'll be squoze. In a sort of a way, it hed ter do with you."

"With me?"

"Yes, sir. The boss says ter me yestiddy, 'Why is Derry Power hangin' roun' Mac's?' Says I, 'He bruk his leg.' 'Pity he didn't break his neck,' says the boss, an' seein' as you'se a friend of mine, I didn't agree with any sich sentiments, an' told him the same. He kind o' curled up then; but this mornin' he gev me the perlite push,—said as he was quittin' Bison fer a spell, an' the ranch would be shut down. Anyways, Derry, I'm mighty glad ter see yer hoppin' aroun'. Git down outer that rig, an' hev a sociable drink."

Power committed his watch, and seemed to arrive at some decision on the spur of the moment.

"You can't wait, now," he said. "You'll be here this evening?"

"Sure."

"Then I'll be around, and I may table a proposition that will please you, Jim," this to the driver, "beat it to the depot. I want to make the ten o'clock to Denver, and we have only twenty minutes."

MacGonigal, as usual, a silent auditor, gazed after the cloud of dust raised by horse and buggy, and was minded, perhaps, to say something. Whatever may have been his first intent, he repressed it.

"What's y're pizen, Jake?" he inquired, and the cowboy named it.

Late that night Power returned. He was so tired that he had practically to be carried to bed; but he contrived to tell the storekeeper that Jake should remain in Bison at his (Power's) expense until certain business conditions had developed. Next day he was too exhausted to take any exercise; but sat in the verandah after breakfast, smoking and chatting with the habitues whose varied surmises he shared, when a stranger whizzed through the township in the buggy, vanished in the direction of the Gulch, and returned with equal celerity of movement a couple of hours subsequently.

"Looks like a lawyer," said some wiseacre. "Thim fellers air on a hair-trigger when a mortage falls in."

"Is Willard's time up?" inquired another man.

"Thar was talk about it afore this dry spell kem an' cleared him out. Of course——"

The speaker stopped suddenly. He was on the point of alluding to Nancy's marriage, when he remembered that Power was present, and, in such circumstances, it is safe to assume that a gathering of rough western miners will display more real courtesy and consideration than may be forthcoming in far more pretentious circles.

"No need to trip your tongue on my account," laughed Power, reaching lasily for a glass of milk and seltzer. "You were going to say I suppose, that when Mr. Willard's daughter married a rich man the mortgage difficulty would disappear."

"Something like that, Derry," was the answer.

"Did you ever hear the amount of the mortage?"

"Five thousand, I was told."

Power laughed again. "Five thousand!" he cried. "Surely Nancy Willard cost more than that! Why, Marten gave me that amount as a rake-off on one job I put through for him this spring."

The words were bitter as gall, though uttered in a tone of quiet banter. None spoke in reply. Each man there had seen Power and the girl scampering together through Bison on their ponies so often that the two were marked down by good-natured gossip as "made for each other." Sympathy now would be useless and misplaced; so there was silence for a while until a safer and collectively interesting topic was broached by MacGonigal.

"Kin anybody here tell me what's going on at the mill?" he asked suddenly.

The "mill," as the agency through which many thousands of tons of low-grade telluride ore were transmuted weekly into a certain number of ounces of gold and silver, was the breath of life to Bison. If it stopped, the greater part of the little town's inhabitants was aware instantly of bare cupboards and empty pockets. Work might cease at the mines for varying periods without causing vital alarm to the community; but the metal pulses of the mill must beat with regularity, or Bison suffered from a severe form of heart disease. Consequently, there was no rush to volunteer information; though some of those present had their suspicions that all was not as is should be with the giant whose clamant voice rang ever in their ears.

"Some books and things were carted from the office to Denver a-Wednesday," said the know-all who had spoken about the mortgage.

"Why?"

The storekeeper's tone was ominous, and the other man gridned uneasily.

"Guess it's what they call an audit," he said.

"Thar's been two audits a year fer ten years at Bison, an' the books hev never gone ter Denver afore."

"Page has been nosin' around, too, like as if he was takin 'stock,'" put in a feeder, whose task it was to guide and shovel ore into the rolls.

"Page oughter know what's in the mill by this time," said MacGonigal, and indeed, the personage under discussion being the manager, the statement was almost exclusively accurate.

"Thar was talk in the papers awhile sence about some new process fer treatin' low-grade ores," commented the feeder, apropos of noting in particular. Then he seemed to wake into cheerful activity. "But what's the use o' meetin' trouble halfways?" he cried. "Goldarn it! people said the mines was peterin' out more'n a year ago, an' we're workin 'full spell this yer week. . . . Who's fer a fizz? I go on at six, an' I hev to eat a line fust."

That evening, before the store filled with the day men, and Power alone was listening, MacGonigal was more outspoken.

"I've a notion that the mill is goin' ter close down, Derry," he said glumly.

"Probably, for a time," said Power.

Such prompt agreement was unexpected; but MacGonigal passed it without comment.

"Nit—fer good. They lost the main vein a year last Christmas, an' the treatin' of ounce ore has been a bluff whiles they s'arched high an' low beyond the vault. No, Derry, Bison is busted. Me for Denver tomorrow, an' any fellar kin hev this store at a vallyation, wid a good rake-off, too—dang it!"

Power was smoking placidly, and the gloomy prophecy of his friend did not apear to disturb him. He even affected to ignore the sigh with which MacGonigal turned away after gazing at him with an expression akin to dismay; for the stout man had the constitutional dislike of his kind to change, and the store had yielded a steady income since the inception of Bison.

"Say, Mac," said Power after a long pause, "if you were to dig deep down into your pants, how much could you ante up?"

"Eight thousand dollars, ef I kep' a grubstake," came the instant response.

"And what is the mill worth?"

"It cost the best part of a hundred an' fifty thousand."

"I asked you what it is worth."

"What it'll fetch."

"Can you figure it out?"

"There's only the movable plant. A lot of money is sunk in cyanide vats, an' rails, an' buildin's. Guess, when you come fer whittle it down ter rolls an' engines, less the cost of takin' 'em ter pieces an' fixin' 'em anywhar, you'd git 'em fer twenty thousand."

"And plenty, too, for a mill erected ten years ago to deal with the high-grade ore." You see, Mac, the scientific treatment of rich ores has developed so rapidly of late that the Bison mill is practicalyy a back number; while we know that it cannot compete with the low-grade extractions now practiced in Cripple Creek and at Leadville. No, you must cut down your estimate. When you buy that mill, Mac, you shouldn't spring a cent beyond fifteen thousand, and begin by offering ten. At best, it would only form a nucleus for real work."

"Me—buy—the—mill!" MacGonigal permitted himself to be astounded to the point of stupefaction.

"Yes, that is what will happen. But not a word of this to anyone. Start in and tell the store, by all means; provided you fix its value on the basis of live business, likely to improve."

"Derry, air you wool-gatherin" or what?"

"Unless I am greatly mistaken, Mac, you and I will gather as much wool during the next twelve months as we are likely to need for the remainder of our lives. I may be wrong, of course, but you will be perfectly safe. You will grab the mill at its breaking-up price, and you should sell the store in any event. All I ask is that you act strictly according to my instructions. It is hardly necessary to repeat that you must keep the proposition to yourself."

These two knew each other thoroughly; though MacGonigal was well aware that certain unfathomable characters had developed of late in the once care-free and even-minded youngster for whom he felt an almost parental tenderness. He made no reply. He asked no question. He knew that when the time came Power would speak, but not until the scheme he had in mind, whatever it might be, was ripe for action. Indeed, ever since the accident, Power had displayed some of the attributes which caused men to hate and fear Marten. He, whose laugh had been the merriest and human sympathies the most marked among all the men who had passed in review before the storekeeper's bulbous eyes, was now apt to lapse into a cold cynicism, an aloofnes of interest, a smiling contempt for the opinions and wishes of his fellows, which had puzzled and saddened his one stanch friend. But MacGonigal's confidence in him had not diminished. Rather was he aware of a broadening and strengthening of qualities already remarkable, and he hugged the belief that, as the image of Nancy Willard faded into impenetrable mists, Power would come back to his erstwile sane and wholesome outlook on life.

So the stout man did not even trouble to put into words the assurance that he might be trusted to hold his tongue as to possible occurrences at Bison. After a prolonged stare at a glorious sunset which silhoutted a sky of crimson and gold, he executed that unaided transit of a cigar across his mouth for which he was noted, and when he spoke it was only to assure the section of Colorado visible through the door that he was dog-goned.

Thereafter events moved with the swiftness which at times seems to possess the most out-of-the-way places in America like a fever.

The stranger whose guise suggested a lawyer to the quidnuncs of Bison was not again seen in the township during the ensuing fortnight; but affrightening rumour, which soon became deadly fact, told of the mill closing down for lack of paying ore. Mr. Page, Marten's representative, promised the sorrowing people that work would be found for everyone elsewhere. Though this guarantee alleviated the crushing effect of the blow, there was much grieving over the loss of more or less comfortable homes which had been won from the wilderness by years of patient effort. Men and women, even in strenuous America, twine their heartstrings around stocks and stones, and the threatened upheaval was grievous to them. It meant the breaking up of families and friendships, a transference to new districts and a trange environment, a scattering of the household goods which might never reassemble in the old and familiar order. Amid the general unrest none gave much heed to the news that the Dolores ranch had found a new owner—who, by the way, according to the joyous version of the foreman, One-thumb Jake, meant to raise horses instead of cattle—but the Bison felt its hair lifting in amazement when the Rocky Mountain News announced that Mr. Hugh Marten had sold the mill to Mr. Peter MacGonigal for a sum unnamed, but variously estimated between the ridiculous (though actual) price of twelve thousand dollars (toward which one-half was contributed by a mortage on mill and ranch) and five times the amount as representing its cheap acquisition as a going concern.

FARMER'S WIFE TOO ILL TO WORK
A Weak, Nervous Sufferer Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
Kaseta, Minn.—"I am glad to say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than anything else, and I had the best physician here. I was so weak and nervous that I could not do my work and suffered with pains low down in my right side for a year or more. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now I feel like a different person. I believe there is nothing like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weak women and young girls, and I would be glad if I could influence anyone to try the medicine, for I know it will do all and much more than it is claimed to do."—Mrs. CLARA FRANKS, R. F. D. No. 1, Maplecrest Farm, Kaseta, Minn.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should be convinced of the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health by the many genuine and truthful testimonials we are constantly publishing in the newspapers.
If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Cut a third off Your Building Bill

The Eureka $135.00.
In building by common methods you buy your Sash, Doors and Mouldings at the mill; that is to say, buy these items "ready cut" or partly so; the reason being that a mill equipped with modern power driven machines can do better work at lower cost than hand labor.
The Sovereign Construction Co. supply your whole house Readi-Cut. We make the same percentage of saving for you on your whole bill that you now hope to make on a few items. It is the system which has made the great structural steel buildings possible, applied to frame construction. We turn out in our mills, the complete house, from sills to ridge boards, readi-cut to fit and ship it to you including a graphic set of plans on which are indicated the location of every piece of lumber in the house.
Our book of "Readi-Cut" Houses tells the whole story—proves our money-saving claims conclusively. It will show you how to make every dollar do double duty.
Sovereign Readi-Cut Homes are not portable houses—when finished they are just the same as any other well-built frame dwellings.
PLANNED BY EXPERTS
Every Readi-Cut Home is the result of careful planning and designing by experts. You will be delighted with the many original plans and building ideas for Bungalows, Cottages, and other types of houses described. It shows you how they are efficiently laid out, windows located for proper lighting and ventilation, rooms planned for suitable placing of furniture. Well-balanced design is a feature of them. Every house is attractive and pleasing in appearance, both inside and out.
$147.00 AND UP
Readi-Cut Homes are made in various sizes and styles ranging in price from $147.00 up. You have an almost unlimited choice. A house for every need, built to meet that need. Every house a marvel of comfort, convenience and utility.
WHAT WE FURNISH
Anything you want in frame or brick veneer construction. Prices to suit all purses, from $147.00 to $5,000.00.
Cut to fit—everything complete—lumber, hardware, nails, windows, doors, glass, paint, plaster-board or lath and plaster, interior trim, etc. There are no "extras."
The Sovereign System is simply the principle of modern, scientific efficiency and cost-cutting applied to home-building—as it has long been applied to large-building construction.

RONUK on Linoleum

Many people do not appreciate the necessity of a dressing for linoleum.
Linoleum is really quite porous. Water and dust penetrate the pores and rot the fibre and fabric, making it brittle and easily worn through, and causing it to crack.
RONUK FLOOR POLISH
—prevents this and doubles the life of linoleum. A light application of Ronuk seals up all these pores, preserves the fibre, retains its pliability, and brightens its appearance.
Ronuk produces a smooth surface from which all dust may be wiped with a dry cloth, it is never necessary to scrub it. Ronuk is sanitary. Try Ronuk on your linoleum as well as on your hardwood floors, and you will be surprised.

LATEST FEMININE FAD.

In London the "Mud Splashed Beauty Spot" is the Proper Caper.

The "mud splashed beauty spot" is the latest eccentricity of women.

The "beauty spot" was revived last year, when there was an attempt to introduce the wearing of white or powdered hair. Although the latter idea did not become fashionable in London, the "beauty spot" has remained. Recently at a society wedding many of the guests wore "beauty spots," but these were not the "mouches"—the French "beauty spots" that are made of court plaster and stuck on the face—but the mad splashed "spots," which are put on with cosmetics.

Women are now to be seen in the streets of London wearing "mud splash" spots. These seem to be placed anywhere on the face; not, as the original idea was, to draw attention to a dimple or to beautiful eyes or to any other good feature, but to look as though a passing motor omnibus had on a muddy day disfigured the face with a mud splash.

A woman seen in Bond street had a mud splash beauty spot almost on the bridge of her nose.—London Cor. New York Times.

Saving by Slot Machine.

Budapest is the first city in the world to set up slot machine savings banks. The machines are arranged for the receipt of two coins—the crown, worth about 20 cents, and the twenty filler piece, worth 4 cents. They return a ticket for each coin deposited, and these tickets bear interest from the date of their issuance. The rate paid varies with the current bank rate and ranges from 3 to 4 per cent. One hundred and ten tickets may be exchanged for a banknote.

Has a Dogs' Directory.

A "dogs' address book" has just been published in Frankfort, Germany, by a society for the protection of animals, and it is provided that every dog whose name is entered in the directory is to carry a badge bearing the number against the entry. If a lost or strayed dog should be taken to the society's offices the owner can immediately be informed and be restored quickly to the possession of his pet.

A Deadly Disease.

"Wooden tongue," a deadly malady that rarely occurs in human beings, has caused the death of Mr. J. Crabb, a saddler of Haverfordwest, England. It is believed that only a couple of cases have ever occurred in England. How Mr. Crabb contracted it is a mystery, but it is supposed that in the course of his work he must have handled harness which had been used on a horse which had died from the disease. It is one of the most dreaded diseases known to the medical profession, and the patient undergoes intense suffering. Attention was called to the disease recently in a report by the medical officers of health for the city and port of London, when they stated that they had found 4,949 ox tongues imported from the Argentine which were infected with it.

What Ancients Ate.

The wheat-eating Carthaginians were no match for the pork-eating Romans; the goat-eating Greeks easily overcame the herbivorous Persians; while the beef-eaters of England and the sausage-fed German battalions have proved their bravery and endurance on a hundred stubbornly-contested fields. Yet, even this rule has its exceptions, says The Family Doctor," for the British army contains no better soldiers than that of the Scotch and Irish regiments, to whom meat was a luxury until they found it in their daily ration. So, after all, whatever the physiologists may say, scientists have found that a flesh diet may not be particularly conducive to ferocity of character.

Jefferson Davis Relics.

Two dueling pistols, a double barreled pistol and appurtenances belonging to Jefferson Davis in wartimes, seized by Union troops near the close of that contest and which have been in the custody of the war department nearly fifty years, will be turned over to Joseph A. Hayes of Colorado, whose wife is the eldest daughter of the former president of the Confederacy.—Argonaut.

Nothing "Equally as Good."

Dorothy Dix says man demands of the woman he loves, "She must be a fool, a sage, a lover, a prude, a cook, a lady, a parlor ornament and a kitchen utensil." Dorothy takes a very pessimistic view of man, and there is no doubt about his being a tessellated scoundrel, but there is no substitute for him.—Houston Post.

Revenge.

It is recorded that once during the rehearsal of a musical comedy Mr. Charles Brookfield, the late reader of plays, came upon a composer wandering about the corridor of the theater muttering angrily to himself. "Why, what's the matter?" Mr. Brookfield asked. "You look very ferocious." The composer growled out, "As I was passing along the back of the stage just now I heard one of the scene shifters—the impudence of the fellow!—strumming one of my new songs on the rehearsal piano." "Good gracious!" exclaimed Mr. Brookfield in astonished and sympathetic tones. "Why don't you get square?" "Get square?" repeated the outraged composer. "How?" "Go and shift some of his scenery!" replied Mr. Brookfield.—London Tatler.

Nerves Were So Bad
THOUGHT SHE WOULD GO OUT OF HER MIND.

Diseases of the nervous system are very common. All the organs of the body may be sound while the nerve centres may be affected.

Many women become run down and worn out by household cares and duties never ending, and sooner or later find themselves with the nerves shattered, and the heart action weakened.

On the first sign of any weakness of either the heart or nerves, flagging energy, or physical breakdown, do not wait until your case becomes hopeless.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will at once quieten the nerves, strengthen the heart and build up the entire system.

Mrs. Archie Goodine, Tilley, N.B., writes:—"When I was troubled with my heart two years ago, I was very bad. My nerves were so unstrung that sometimes I would almost go out of my mind. I doctored myself with everything I could get, until at last I got four boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and they have cured me. I cannot speak too highly of this wonderful remedy, and will recommend it to all sufferers."

Price, 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A Famous Old London Quarter.

London's Soho district, where Hogarth lived, is rich in artistic and literary associations. Mozart and William Hazlitt lived in Frith street, and Dryden, Burke, Edmund Kean, Charles Kemble and Hannah More in Garrard street. Douglas Jerrold was born in Greek street, and David Hume had lodgings in Little street, where Rousseau stopped with him in 1776. In the Turk's Head, at the corner of Greek street and Old Compton street, Dr. Johnson and Sir Joshua Reynolds founded the famous literary club which included Garrick, Goldsmith, Burke, Gibbon, Boswell and Dr. Burney among its members.

When Success Came to Lamb.

Charles Lamb's discovery of his genius was as nearly accidental as might be. When he left school it was necessary for him to take a clerkship and support the family. He wrote jokes for the papers and received for them the munificent sum of 12 cents apiece. Many experiments in authorship proved unsuccessful, among them a farce which was hissed off the stage the first night. It was not until he was 45 years of age that the first Essay of Elia appeared.

Works Both Ways.

"They bore one, these society calls don't you know," declared the young lady. "They bore one."

"Sometimes they bore two," responded the young man, taking the hint and likewise his departure.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

SAVING WATERLOO.

Danger of Battlefield Being Built Upon Starts Movement.

For nearly 100 years the blood-drenched field of Waterloo has been a place of reverential pilgrimage for the people of Europe. Now, owing to the continuous outward pressure of the increasing population of Brussels and the all-conquering progress of the electric tramway, says The London Daily Telegraph, the scene of the final overthrow of all Napoleon's hopes and dreams is threatened by the builders. We are warned that unless active steps are taken, and that without delay, trim little villas will soon stand on the very ground where the British army under Wellington won historic fame, where Blucher with his Prussian soldiers, swelled the tide of victory, and where, at last, Napoleon was forced to realize that his hour of overwhelming defeat had arrived.

The news of the threatened desecration of this ground, hallowed by memories which we have good cause to cherish, comes to us at the very moment when preparations are in progress for the celebration of the centenary of the battle. Fortunately, the Belgium Government is as anxious as we can be to intervene in order to prevent the act of vandalism. An influential committee in Brussels, under the presidency of Lieut.-Gen. Baron de Heursch, has already collected the nucleus of a fund where with to buy off the builders. The Duke of Wellington, jealous, as he naturally is, for the name and fame of his great ancestor, has placed him at the head of an organization in England, which is about to appeal for subscriptions for the same end. The Belgian Government has promised if sufficient support be forthcoming to intervene and secure this battleground as an heirloom of Europe for all time. We cannot doubt what the response will be to the British appeal. A mere matter of $50,000 is required from us. The cause is one which will stir the hearts of all Englishmen. We have always been proud of the part we took in freeing Europe from the iron yoke which Napoleon was imposing on it in pursuit of his grandiose ambition of founding a vast empire to dominate the destines of the world. Waterloo is the place of sepulture of many thousands of British soldiers—just ordinary fighting men of our own race, but heroes who paid the price of victory and whom we cannot afford to forget. We should be false to our past if we failed to take every possible measure to save a site so precious to our memory from being covered with bricks and mortar. Generation of Englishmen who have come and gone since June, 1815, have gathered up the rich harvest which these men's splendid deeds assured, and we of this day, who glance down the vista of years and can see in truer perspective the events of which Waterloo was the astounding climax, have most reason for gratitude.

City of the Dead.

"Abydos, Egypt's City of the Dead," was the subject of an interesting lecture given before the members of the Royal Society by Mr. T. Eric Peet.

Mr. H. R. Hall, who presided, said that the excavations made in connection with the Palestine Explorations Fund during the past winter at Abydos, in the so-called Osireion, had given most unexpected results. One result was a discovery of what the Greek authors called the tomb of Osiris, where the head of the god was supposed to be preserved. It was a very considerable addition to the knowledge of ancient Egypt. The building, in point of age as well as architecture, seemed to be much like the tomb of the Sphinx at Cairo. There was a sort of court with colonnade on each side with the central portion open to the sky. There were 15 or 16 inches on the sides of the wall corresponding to the niches mentioned in the Book of the Dead. Below the niches on either side the walls went down to a depth of about 12 feet, and at that depth Prof. Naville came to water. The building was really a large tank or pool, with communications on either side connected with the worship of Osiris. During the lecture a description was given of a dog's cemetery, containing the mummified remains of some 50,000 sacred dogs found in one of the caves.

Horse-Radish Industry.

The cultivation of horse-radish is a thriving industry, a writer in The Country says, and he describes a three-acre farm devoted to this industry which keeps two men busy, one of them making good money out of his miniature farm. One advantage of this crop is thus described: "The horse-radish farmer can well lie back and rest in easy security for he has a crop that only [illegible] suicidal motives attack."

"RUNNING A BILL."

Running a bill is subtly demoralising. When you open a new account, you are scrupulous to pay the bill very soon after it is rendered; you wish to impress your creditors with the fact that you are an uncommonly desirable patron. After a while you feel that he has learned this fact, and you let him wait for his cheque while you impress a new set of creditors with your punctuality and solvency. So you keep putting off and putting off the creditors who are "old friends" until finally it becomes a scramble to prevent their sending in an account headed by that discouraging item, "Bill Rendered." When you sink into the "bill rendered" class, you have entered the second stage of indebtedness. The third is marked by the receipt of dunning letters, the fourth by personal visits from collectors, the fifth by menacing communications from lawyers.

Spring Cleaning.

A town youth got a job on a farm, and the farmer put him to work at cleaning.

"It's the spring," the farmer said, "and I want you to make the pig-sty and the cow-stable and the hen-house and all the other homes of the stock, clean and sweet and comfortable."

The new hand from the city resented with a will for two days. But, on the third day, he rushed into the farm kitchen with both eyes closed, his mouth swollen, and red lumps standing out all over his face and neck and hands.

"Give me my money," he said, "I'm thru."

"What's the matter?" the farmer asked.

"Matter?" said the youth. "No more country jobs for me. Matter? Bothered if I know what's the matter, but it happened when I started to spring clean the beehives."

Effect of the Sermon.

It was the morning of the Sabbath. As Sandy was making his way homeward after attending kirk the minister happened to overtake him. "Eh," said Sandy, "that was a powerful discourse on 'Thrift' ye preached this morning." The minister smiled benignly. "A'm glad ye were able to profit by it," was his gratified reply. "Profit!" exclaimed Sandy. "Why, mon, I would 'ha' put ma saxpence into the plate wi'out a thought for yer providential words. They saved me fourpence there and then."

A Nice Calculation.

A tourist in Scotland came to a wide ferry. It was stormy and the wind was constantly increasing. The Scotch ferryman agreed to take the tourist across, but told him to wait until he had first taken a cow across. When he had returned and started across with the traveler the latter became curious. "Will you tell me why you took the cow over and made me wait?" he asked. "Well, now," explained the ferryman, "ye see, the coo wot valuable, and I feared th' wind wud increase so th' boat micht upset on that good trip."

Lady: "Please send me a ton of your best coal."

Coal Merchant (just returned from week-end in Paris): "Yes, madam. Will you have them in la cart or coal de sack?"

"Why, look here," said the merchant who was in need of a boy, "aren't you the same boy who was in here a week ago?"

"Yes, sir," said the applicant.

"I thought so. And didn't I tell you then that I wanted an older boy?"

"Yes, sir. That's why I'm back, I'm older now."

Just Normal.

"Are you as perfect physically as you seem to be?" he asked.

"Certainly," she replied.

"Has there ever been any insanity in your family?"

"Never."

"Have you a depraved taste of any kind?"

"Certainly not."

"Are your teeth in good condition and do you see and hear perfectly?"

"Yes."

"Are you ever bothered by insomnia, or headache, or indigestion?"

"Not at all."

"Thank heaven! Now let's make love a little while."

Disappointed.

"I saw you and your hurband at the play last night, Mrs. Wedgcomb. How did you like it?"

"I'm sorry we wasted our money on it. Several people told me I would be shocked, but I wasn't."

First Clubman—"Well, how are you?"

First Clubman—"My dear chap, I didn't mean ek I thought I was in for rheumatic fever, but just managed to stave it off, and today a twinge in my left shoulder suggests—well, it may be neuratis or—"

Second Clubman—"Er—so-so, perhaps. Last welt literally."

Changed His Mind.

"Then you didn't ask for her hand?"

"No; when I went to interview her father he was busy with the furnace. He said to come down, and after watching his struggles for half-an-hour I didn't want to get married."

It: When did you first recognize that you loved me?

She: When I found myself getting angry whenever anyone called you a fool.

Gladys: It's warmer to-day, dear.

Claude: Yes, and I'm so glad the summer's coming, and we shall be able to wear less clothes and be fashionable.

What Made Her Say It?

They had been married just one year. That was why he risked losing his train by allowing her to fasten a bunch of violets on to his coat. But his foot tapped the floor impatiently, nevertheless, and he frowned as he wondered if his wife's kindly thought would cost him his cosy corner seat.

"George," said his wife tremulously, "you don't love me as you used to!"

"My darling heart of hearts," he exclaimed, desperately eyeing the clock, "whatever makes you say that?"

"Because, George," she answered, "when we were first married it used to take you a whole hour just to say goodnight, and n—now!"—tears interrupted her words, and ran down her cheeks—"you can k—kiss me and c—catch your train all in four minutes!"

"I call it an unwarrantable insult," said the company promoter, angrily.

"Why, what's wrong?" asked his partner, in surprise.

"Did you see what that old scoundrel did?" roared the company promoter. "He carefully counted each of his fingers after I shook hands with him."

The Harder Job.

A writer sought legal color while in Glasgow by haunting the docks. There he fell into conversation with a bargeman who consumed great quantities of liquor.

"You drink a good bit of whisky, don't you?" asked the author.

"Naething tae speak o'," said the other.

"About how much a day?"

"Oh, nae mair nor a quart."

"Why," protested the author, "I couldn't drink that much water in a day."

"An' I wadna dare try it," said the Largeman.

CAPTIVE GOLF.
Defaulting golf-club official trying to impart a little interest to the daily round.

Common Enough.

"I should like to see some spats," said the precise gentleman.

"Well, stick around," suggested the new floorwalker. "The saleslades are starting 'em all the time."

Expert Opinion.

Sundayschool Teacher: "Was it right of Elijah to raise the widow's son?"

Reddy Brokrow: (eagerly): "How much was in the pot, and what kind of a hand did Lige have?"

Laying the Blame.

Visitor: "Where's all the folks gone to? Don't see a soul.

The "Old Man" (on the doorstep): "All shot to pieces. Durn these 'Home Economy' magazines anyway. The wife's been gone since Friday trying to find an unheard-of drug to use in a 'simple' remedy for freckles; the cook's been working since last evening on a five-minute hasty-pudding recipe; and my daughter is laid up with burning herself in a 'Home Mechanic' bath-tub that she made out of a thimble, two sieves, and a mile of lead pipe."

His Objection.

Mrs. Hankins (after morning service): "Why didn't you like the new rector?"

Hankins: "I don't think the man is sincere. The idea of choosing the Golden Rule for his text, and then preaching to us for more than two hours."

This Way Out.

Adam (looking at her critically): "You seem to be quite different from me."

Eve: "That's the first compliment you ever paid me."

Equal Division.

"We all think our work is the hardest," observed the humorist on his vacation.

"Yew bet!" agreed the farmer. "I hev to talk like this, and yew hev to spell it."

Cruel Criticism.

Mrs. Dorgan (with ear toward neighbor's flat): "Whisht, Dan! The Hegan girl do be singin' 'You Made Me What I Am Today.'"

Dorgan: "She must be referrin' to her singin' teacher."

Present Problems.

Friend: "So you still have the 'problem play.' What's the problem now?"

Theatrical Manager: "To make it smutty without getting pinched."

Uncle's Knowledge.

Little Jimmy came to Toronto from his Northern Ontario home, where he had never seen a colored person. One day when he was out walking with his Uncle Bob, they happened to pass a colored woman, and the little fellow asked:

"Say, uncle, why did that woman black her face?"

"Why, she hasn't blacked her face—that is her natural color," replied the uncle.

"Is she black like that all over?" asked Jimmy.

"Why—yes."

"Gosh, uncle, you know everything, don't you?"

Good Idea.

Bald-headed Party: "No, I can't go to the masquerade tonight, I've no costume."

"One half of the women in this world retail gossip," remarked Mr. Stubb, as he lit the after-supper cigar.

"Be considerate of you not to say the[illegible]them retail gossip," snapped Mrs. Stubb, as she washed the dishes.

"Oh, no, only half, Maria. The other half wholesale it."

Rather Harsh.

The Girl: "I say, Algy, why do you make your own cigarettes?"

Algy: "Because the —er—doctor said that I must take more—er—exercise."

Wise Father.

Brown: "I wanted to get married when I was twenty-one, but my father said I didn't have sense enough. So I waited until I was thirty."

Cora: "And you married at thirty?"

Brown: "Oh, no; at thirty I had too much sense to want a wife."

Doctor: "I consider the medical profession very badly treated. See how few monuments there are to famous doctors or surgeons."

Patient: "Oh, doctor, look at our cemetery!"

"He is the most tender-hearted man I ever saw."

"Kind to animals?"

"I should say so. Why, when he found the family cat insisted on sleeping in the coal bin, he immediately ordered a ton of soft coal."

"What do you think of married life?" asked the henpecked man, addressing the youthful bridegroom.

"Bliss is no name for it," said the young husband, enthusiastically.

"You are right," said the henpecked one, gloomily. "Bliss is no name for it."

The Age of Uplift.

Madge: Was it a good play?

Marjorie: Splendid. We expected the police to raid it every minute.

Why She Was Angry.

The curtain had gone down after the first act and the prima donna was angry.

"I won't go on again unless the people in that left hand box make less noise," she declared. "They nearly drove me into hysterics."

"Why!" exclaimed the stage manager in surprise, "I didn't hear any unusual noise."

"You didn't? Why, they encored that upstart of a contralto four times!"

Might Come in Useful.

"Isn't it strange that nothing we possess in this world will be of any use in the next?"

"Oh, I don't know. You might hang onto that little book you have entitled 'What to Do in Case of Fire.'"

"Miss Vamper has not a particle of tact."

"What has she done now?"

"The other evening when Mr. Jaggles, who is notorious for not paying his debts, asked her to sing, she went to the piano and sang 'Trust Him Not!'"

The advertising manager was in a rage.

"What's the matter?" a colleague asked.

"Matter enough!" was the reply. "The fools have placed Mme. Soprano's testimonial for a cold cure on the same page with the announcement that she had a sore throat and couldn't sing."

All Off.

A man very much out of breath ran into the railway station and made a wild rush for the ticket-seller's window. A few moments later he came back and sat down with an air of dejection.

"So you missed your train," remarked his neighbor. "I suppose there was a woman at the ticket-window fumbling for her pocket-book?"

"Worse than that," replied the disappointed one. "There was a fat man trying to get thru the turnstile."

TELLING THE TIME.

"Ten o'clock, eleven o'clock, twelve o'clock, and then what comes, Bobbie?"

"Daddy, without his boots."

She Knew the Commandments.

A teacher in a big elementary school had given lessons to an infants' class on the Ten Commandments. In order to test their memories she asked:

"Can any little child give me a commandment with only four words in it?"

A hand was raised immediately.

"Well?" said the teacher.

"Keep off the grass," was the unexpected reply.

Why Fashions Change.

"Have we taught anybody that new dance?" asked the professor of the art.

"Yes," replied the assistant.

"Then it's time to declare that it's dying out and get something new."

A Safe Background.

A man rather untidy in his personal habits was discussing the question of a new waistcoat with a friend.

"What color would you advise?" he asked the friend.

"Why," said the friend, "I'd get one of soup color!"

Qualified.

"Professor, I know my son is rather slow, but in the two years that you have had charge of his education he must have developed a tendency in some direction or other. What occupation do you suggest as a possible outlet for his energies, such as they are?"

"Well, sir, I think he is admirably fitted for taking moving pictures of a glacier."

Preparing for the Season.

"What's this—black panels for the dining-room?"

"I'm going to make a desperate effort to have my husband at home for dinner when the season's away, anyhow. So I have leased a wire and shall operate a cornet-band in the dining-room."

Put Him Foot-in-It.

A club of eccentric young men had one of their rules that on Tuesday evenings any man who asked a question in the clubrooms which he was unable to answer himself, should pay a fine of ten dollars.

One evening McLoughlin asked the following:

"Why doesn't a ground squirrel leave any dirt around the top of his hole when he digs it?"

After some deliberation, McLoughlin was called upon to answer his own question. "That's easy," said he; "the squirrel starts at the bottom and digs up."

"All very nice," suggested a member, "but how does he get to the bottom?"

"Well," answered McLoughlin, "that's your question!"

Not to Be Trifled With.

A New Yorker tells of a unique experience in an establishment known as the "Palace Hotel," in a small town of the Middle West.

This New Yorker had been assigned to a third-storey room. About the first thing he noticed when he had unpacked his suit case, was that no water or towels had been provided for him. Accordingly he rang the bell. No one answered.

Another ring—no reply. Four times did the New Yorker endeavor to get an attendant.

Finally, in desperation, the New Yorker placed his thumb upon the bell and held it there until the summons was heeded.

A waiter entered. He was a giant of a man, gaunt, black-visaged and forbidding.

"Did you ring that bell?" he demanded in a rumbling voice.

"I did," said the New Yorker, with as much business as he could assume.

"Well," said the big waiter, with a fearful scowl, "don't you do it again." And he withdrew.

SUMMER OUTING SUITS

The sports of tennis, golf, canoeing and gasoline launching "in the good old summer time," call for spotless white linen and pique. The golf costume must be hardier than the tennis costume; and a silk skirt, worn with a short skirt of plaid worsted, makes an admirable regalia for any but the hottest days. A belted sweater or topcoat must be ready to slip on whenever the player pauses on the breezy links.

Tennis costumes may include the silk skirt or mohair; or may be in the form of a complete frock of linen or pique. Such a frock should be simple but well cut, and the long sleeves should unbutton at the wrist so that they may be rolled back. If white buttoned boots are worn to the clubhouse, they must be exchanged before going on the courts for rubber-soled tennis shoes.

Particularly smart are tennis frocks with straight skirts, buttoned down the front and side and loose Norfolk waists, over a silk tie of gay colour. The very smart tennis maid this season will have a silk sweater in burnt onion yellow to don after the game. Yellows and light browns are the fad in sport "togs," and knitted yellow silk sweaters will look like gorgeous yellow tulips blossoming on beach and green.

The modern bathing dress is simply a pretty silk frock cut off at the knee. The new models are gay with tunics, sashes and V necks, some of them even showing frills of net set into the decolletage, and thus proving themselves to be merely sand-bathing suits, not intended for a dip in the briny. Mohair and taffeta are the favoured materials, and much of the soft, lustrous pussy-willow taffeta is used, often in combination with mohair. Scottish plaid and Roman striped silks are used as trimming on suits of plain, dark-blue or black taffeta, and there are silk suits with scalloped ruffles piped with white.

Some of the accessories for new bathing costumes include corsage flowers made of rubber in imitation of roses, carnations, and the like; rubber sashes in Roman striped effect; rubber garters, shirred like ribbon, and having perky bows at the side. Bathing caps are innumerable, and are more becoming than ever. The new models are a bit smaller, accommodating the smaller coiffure now fashionable. Most convenient are bathing cases of rubberised silk in envelope style and closed with a snap button. Such a case will contain the bathing dress, silk tights, cap, accessories, and so on, and will fit nicely when filled, into an ordinary leather travelling bag. The rubber envelope case keeps the lining of the bag from being stained or injured with water, and when one reaches home the bathing dress should be carefully rinsed before drying. The life of a silk bathing dress may be prolonged for two or even three seasons if it is rinsed in clear water every time it is worn in our lakes.

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

The average Christian is too "touchy." He manages to get himself insulted too many times in a year—about the seventy times seven. The gospel piles the figures on the other side of the court. Christians must bear patiently the offences of the world. Even a brother's offence must be forgiven once, twice, thrice, again and again, into indefinite hundreds of forgotten pardons. But how painfully true is the remark that Christians show temper about as quickly as quick-tempered sinners! Let there be a mastery of this rebel self. The lips that pray and sing praise should not so easily quiver and turn white in rage. The true disciple is sweet-spirited, loving, gentle and calm.

Family Worship.

The influence of family worship is great, silent, irresistible, and permanent. It affords home security and happiness, removes family friction, and causes all wheels of the home machinery to move on noiselessly and smoothly. It promotes union and harmony, expunges all selfishness, allays all petulant feelings and turbulent passions, destroys all peevishness of temper, and makes home intercourse holy and delightful. It causes the members to reciprocate each other's affections, hushes the voices of recrimination, and exerts a softening and harmonizing influence over each heart. The dew of Hermon falls upon the home where prayer is wont to be made.

* * *

Hamilton says that six things are required to make a happy home. Integrity must be the architect, and tidiness the upholsterer. It must be warmed by affection, lighted up with cheerfulness, and industry must be the ventilator, renewing the atmosphere and bringing in fresh salubrity day by day; while over all, as a protecting canopy and glory, nothing will suffice by the blessing of God.

* * *

A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches. Don't be spiteful or mean if you can help it. Don't consider it your duty to be a common carrier for any sort of scandal. Don't trifle with those you love, nor tread on the heart of a friend. Don't think evil even of those you do not like; the world is wide enough for all; leave them alone. Don't try to pull down those above you, but always seek to lift those beneath you to your own level. Don't make yourself disagreeable to anyone simply because you know how. Don't yield servile submission to tobacco, whiskey, or any other degrading habit, but have manhood and womanhood enough to be decent and wholesome, and masters of your own bodies. Don't be suspicious of others who are just as good as you are, and perhaps a little better.

* * *

The Use of Children.

For what are these child-angels made, that are sent down to this world to bring so much love and rapture, to go from us in such bitterness and mourning? is the question asked by Mrs. Stowe and then she answers it as follows: "If we believe in Almighty Love, we must believe that they have a merciful and tender mission to our wayward souls. The love wherewith we love them is something the most utterly pure and unworldly of which human experience is capable, and we must hope that every one who goes from us to the world of light, goes holding an invisible chain of love by which to draw us there. Sometimes I think I would never have had my little Daisy grow older on this earth. The little child dies in growing into womanhood, and often the woman is far less lovely than the little child. It seems to me that lovely and loving childhood, with its truthfulness, its frank sincerity, its pure, simple love is so sweet and holy an estate that it would be a beautiful thing in heaven to have a band of heavenly children, guileless, gay and forever joyous—tender spring blossoms of the kingdom of light. Was it of such whom He had left in His heavenly home our Saviour was thinking when He took little children up in His arms and blessed them, and said, "Of such is the kingdom of heaven."

We earnestly entreat every young man after he has chosen his vocation to stick to it. Don't leave it because hard blows are to be struck, or disagreeable work performed. Those who have worked their way up to wealth and usefulness, do not belong to the shiftless and unstable class, but may be reckoned among such as took off their coats, rolled up their sleeves, conquered their prejudice against labour, and manfully bore the heat and burden of the day. Whether upon the old farm where our fathers toiled diligently, striving to bring the soil to productiveness; in the machine shop or factory, or the thousand other business places that invite honest toil and skill, let the motto ever be, perseverance and industry.

At all times, in this wintry life the presence of those we love is like a gleam of sunshine through the clouds, lighting up one particular spot amid the shadows, and giving lustre and warmth and loveliness to all beneath the ray. The passing gleam still seems brighter than the full sunshine.

THE APPLIED VEST A CLEVER NEW TOUCH TO A TAILORED FROCK.

Whereas the tailored suit and frock has lost much of its old time severity, it is still trim in its lines. Among the new materials favored this season for the more practical purposes, are gabardine, mannish serge, taffetas and the new figured moires; these last are especially fascinating as, instead of the old indefinite water mark, they show dainty figures, roses, butterflies and various other designs. The vested costume shown in No. 6285-6284 is fashioned of the new rose figured moire in Egyptian brown; the fronts of the vest are cut with an extension that forms a girdle in the back, and the skirt has a circular peplum which is shorter in back, the fullness being laid in two soft box-pleats. Moire ranges in width from 36 to 45 inches and in price from $1.25 a yard and up. To copy this costume in size 34, requires for the bodice (6285) 2½ yards of 42 inch material and for the skirt (6284) 4 yards of the same width.

The young girl's dress shown in No. 6305 is fashioned of taffetas in a delicate shade of old blue. The frock closes in back, has a kimono blouse with elbow sleeves and a three-piece skirt. If a garden frock were to be made after this design it would be extremely dainty to have the foundation dress of batiste and the flounces of net. For a girl of 16, this design requires 5¾ yards of 36 inch material.

No. 6285—sizes 32 to 42.
No. 6284—sizes 22 to 32.
No. 6305—sizes 14 to 18.

NEW GLASS UTENSILS

New uses for glass in table ware and household utensils are being found constantly. The new trays for cut sugar are unique. They consist of a long, narrow trough resting upon a standard, and hold but a small quantity—from six to a dozen blocks, according to the length. Somewhat like the sugar trays are the biscuit holders for square crackers or sweet biscuit. These are large and deep, and the crackers are placed in them with the corners up and down. These two dishes give a touch of novelty to the setting of an afternoon tea table.

A low bowl filled with a mass of flowers, makes a lively table decoration; wire frames are generally used; but the last word is the flower dish complete in glass, including the dome-shaped cover of laticework. It is very ornamental, for even if the flowers are not massed closely, a glimpse of the glass framework does not mar the effect, but rather adds to it when the crystal reflects a gleam of light, or a tint from the blossoms.

If something novel in salt and pepper boxes is desired, those with the screw tops of glass will be sure to please. They will not corrode with the action of the salt, and the labour of cleaning them is reduced to the minimum. Sugar sifters come in the same style, and have the same good points in their favour; both are to be had in blown or cut glass.

Milk and butter require special care, whether on the table or in the refrigerator, and glass is a very safe choice for containers or protectors of the dairy products. An excellent stopper for the milk-bottle is made of heavy opaque glass, which may be sterilized after each using. It has a spreading top which covers the whole mouth of the bottle, preventing any dirt from collecting on the edges.

For butter, the modern covered boxes of transparent glass are a great convenience, and come in several sizes, holding from one pound upward. Any speck shows up on the shiny surface, so there is no excuse for overlooking smudges. The lids have a wire fastener to close them tightly, and one may have the choice of either round or rectangular boxes. There are no corners in the round ones to collect grease.

Many of the best pastry cooks are now using glass rolling pins, formed from a cylinder of glass revolving about a handle of wood. In addition to their great cleanliness, they are good because they may be made ice-cold by placing in the refrigerator for a short time before using, and every maker of pie crust knows how much more flaky it is if the ingredients are kept well chilled.

FURNISHING A BOY'S ROOM

One of the first things to be considered is the treatment of the floors and walls. Sidewalls finished in brown make a most attractive background, with the ceiling in ivory or light buff. For this use a flat paint of the shade mentioned, as it is very serviceable and can be easily cleaned by washing with soap and water. Or a plain brown oatmeal paper may be used and the ceiling kalsomined. This also looks well. If the floor is not of hard wood give it two coats of inside floor paint of a light tan colour. For floor covering select a large rug of plain brown or with brown as the predominating colour, or two or three smaller rugs of the same colouring. The rugs can be easily taken up and cleaned.

Mission is the best wood for a boy's room. If two boys are to occupy the same room twin beds with open head and foot boards are preferable, and if not, a three-quarter size will do. A chiffonier will amply supply accommodation for his clothes and a clothes tree will be of great convenience. A mission table with flat top and racks beneath at each end for books will serve as a desk and study table. One arm and one or two straight back chairs will complete the furniture.

Pretty and inexpensive curtains of soft scrim material reaching to the sill, will look well with such a room. On the walls the boy himself may hang the pennants of his favourite colleges with a big one of the school he attends over the headboard of his bed, and he will have other pictures of his chums and favourite animals, which will help to make his room look cozy.

To give the room the appearance of a study a davenport bed could be used. This, when opened at night makes a most comfortable bed and by day is a very attractive piece of furniture.

IN THE SUMMER KITCHEN

Too many utensils to be kept bright and clean are a burden to the soul—when the soul yearns to be otherwise enjoying the sunset light, the morning breeze, or soft afternoon airs under the whispering pines. The bungalow or country house kitchen—especially if the mistress of the home expects to do the cooking herself—should be adequately, but simply, furnished. A few utensils and those the most convenient should be the rule.

If a fireless cooker can be afforded, it will pay for itself ten times over in comfort and convenience. What joy, indeed, to put all one's dinner in the cooker while breakfast dishes are being washed up, and then to spend the morning out of doors, care-free, knowing that all one will have to do when dinner time arrives will be to set the daintily cooked meal on the table, smoking hot and perfectly done.

A double boiler is a great kitchen comfort. Besides cereals, the faithful boiler will cook custards, sauces, and steamed puddings all by itself, while one does something else, with no worry about scorching of the ingredients in the boiler. A casserole is another indispensable. Delicious ragouts may be prepared of left-overs in a casserole.

Last night's roast beef or ends of steak will become a tender and tasty stew if committed to the mercies of the casserole along with a few seasoning ingredients. A covered self-basting pan is another time and trouble saver when one wants to spend the morning in the hammock and let the chicken for dinner attend to itself.

VEAL SCALLOP.

Chop cold roast veal very fine, put a layer in the bottom of a pudding dish, season with salt and pepper, cover with a layer of rolled crackers and bits of butter; wet well with milk and continue until dish is full. Wet the whole with broth and milk. Invert a pan over dish so as to retain steam and take one half hour.

STUFFED BAKED POTATOES.

Bake six medium smooth skinned potatoes, cut in halves and scoop out the pulp. Pour half a cupful of milk over one-quarter cup bread crumbs and one tablespoonful of butter, add one cup of cold chicken, minced fine, one beaten egg, salt and pepper and a little chopped parsley. Fill the shells with this mixture and cover with the mashed potatoes, beaten light. Set in a hot oven until a golden brown.

ENORMOUS DEMAND FOR "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

1,152,000 Boxes Sold Last Year.

Six of These Fruit Liver Tablets for Every Man, Woman and Child in the Dominion.

In seven short years, "Fruit-a-tives" has become the most famous and the most widely used medicine in Canada that has ever been introduced to the people of the Dominion. Even those who take "Fruit-a-tives" regularly and recommend these famous fruit juice tablets to their friends, probably have no idea of the enormous number of "Fruit-a-tives" that are being used by those wishing to regain their health.

Last year, over eight thousand gross boxes of "Fruit-a-tives" were sold. As there are one hundred, forty four boxes in a gross, this means that over one million one hundred thousand boxes were sold in 1912. And this year, this number will be still further increased.

This means a box of "Fruit-a-tives" for every six persons in Canada, or six tablets for every man, woman and child in the country.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold in every section of the Dominion. On the rugged Atlantic coast, throughout the Maritime Provinces, among the French in Quebec and the English in Ontario, all over the great Prairie Provinces and on the shores of the Pacific, "Fruit-a-tives" is the best selling medicine in stock.

This is true because "Fruit-a-tives" gives results. For chronic Constipation, Indigestion and Stomach Trouble—for bad Blood, Skin Eruptions and Eczema—for Rheumatism, Sciatica and Lumbago—for Kidney, Bladder and Urinary Troubles—"Fruit-a-tives" cures when nothing else will.

In the head office in Ottawa, are hundreds of letters and photographs from grateful men and women who have been cured of sickness and suffering by "Fruit-a-tives." Many of these letters and photographs have been published by permission and have induced other sufferers to try "Fruit-a-tives." This is one of the factors in the demand for "Fruit-a-tives," which is now sold in every city, town, hamlet and cross roads store.

50c. a box—6 for $2.50 trial size, 25c., at all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

GETTING A START

By NATHANIEL C. FOWLER JR.

(Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Practically all stenographers, bookkeepers, clerks, salesmen, and other clerical workers are allowed, with full pay, from one to two weeks' vacation, these periods beginning in June and ending in September.

Comparatively few people realize the importance of vacation and the necessity of using it to the best advantage. This week or two of off time represents practically all the vacation they are likely to receive during the year.

Thousands do not plan their vacation in advance, and do not arrange to get the most out of it. Many of them visit relatives, decide upon the wrong place and return to work more fatigued than if they had not gone away at all.

The value of vacation is not so much in the rest it gives as in the change of environment. Comparatively few workers need a rest. What they should have is a change, a complete change, of interest and of environment.

If one lives on the seashore two weeks in the mountains or inland will do much more good than double this time spent near the salt water. If he is located in an inland town, a trip to the ocean, to a lake, or to a higher elevation, if he cannot easily go to the water, will give him that change of climate so necessary for recuperation.

Of course, there are exceptions; but, upon general principles, a complete change of air and climate is to be recommended.

I should advise every one, strong or weak, to consult his physician and allow him to designate the place best suited to one's individual case.

Boarding at a good boarding-house or hotel is to be preferred to housekeeping, if one keeps house during the year, for, although hotel fare may not be as satisfactory as the home table, the change is likely to counteract the disadvantages.

Loafing is not resting. If your work is strenuous and manual, you should rest the greater part of your vacation, taking but mild exercise. If your work is clerical, it is better for you to take up some activity which will give both your mind and your body a change from the usual routine of your life. Many physicians prescribe "roughing it," if one has a sufficiently good constitution, and if it is not carried to the extreme. No form of strenuous physical exercise is to be indiscriminately recommended. For those who lead sedentary lives, however, exercise, like walking, fishing, yachting, rowing, and camping (when one does his own work, yet makes an easy job of it), is necessary, and it is well to get out into the open, either on the water or in the woods where one can wear old clothes and get close to nature.

Good food is essential, and it would better be plain and wholesome than that which is served at the fashionable hotel table.

I should advise you not to select a place, a hotel, or a boarding-house without careful investigation. What satisfies one may not suit another. With the limited time at your disposal, you cannot very well move from place to place. If you make a mistake, it is difficult to rectify it. Read the advertisements of summer resorts, send for their printed matter; then investigate each place through friends or acquaintances. Ascertain the advantages and the disadvantages.

Above all, plan your vacation in advance. Look upon it as a matter of business and give it the same attention you would give other important matters. Don't take chances. Be reasonably sure before you pack your trunk and start for the country.

Blood was like Water

Was given up to die of Anaemia by two doctors

A Letter of Unusual Interest Describes this Remarkable Cure

You will learn by reading this letter how medical doctors knock proprietary medicines and try to keep people from using them and learning of their value.

This letter also shows how medicines of proven merit often cure the most complicated cases after doctors had given up hope. In this case two doctors said Mr. Hyndman could not get better, and, in fact, he daily grew weaker so long as he followed their treatment. This is a remarkable victory for Dr. Chase's Medicines and you will find the details of the case interesting.

Mr. T. Hyndman, Farmer, Rupert, Que., writes:—"I had been gradually failing in health for two years and tried many remedies, among others I used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and found them doing me good. Some neighbors told me the Doctors said they were dangerous so I quit their use and went to the doctor. Under his treatment I got so weak I was unable to raise my head from the pillow, and he told me that I had Anaemia of the blood and could never be better again, so I sent for another doctor and he told me the same. I could not take their medicine and was continually vomiting, so I gave them up and said 'kill or cure I will again try Dr. Chase's medicines.'

I used altogether fourteen boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and six boxes Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and now I can work from six o'clock in the morning until seven at night and I don't poke at it either. Any man that works a farm knows what kind of a job it is. I honestly believe that I owe my life to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Pills, and I praise them everywhere I go. Many of the people here use them to keep the system in good condition and prevent disease."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has no rival as a means of enriching the blood and building up the system. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Write for booklet.

THE DANCE CRAZE IN NEW YORK

"To a student of social and sociological phenomena, the present phase of the dance craze presents a curious change from its early stages," remarked a man who goes about a great deal after dark in New York. "Sometimes of late I have been tempted to think the course of the visitation from the Bowery, Brazil and elsewhere had been run, but after thinking over it, I am inclined to believe that the current has merely changed, I aver now that dancing has come to stay, but the motive which attracted so many to it at the outset of the modern dance movement—and I speak as a person who knows something of human nature — has been almost entirely submerged.

"What led many men to learn the turkey trot—now considered everywhere in New York a vulgar dance and largely eliminated, was no mere desire to dance. But when people of good taste and discrimination found there could be art in dancing after the new fashions, and made the steps a little difficult and graceful, a reformation began. It is now pretty generally considered the height of bad form to hold one's partner closely, and open steps are all the fashion. The one-step, which is really the successor of the turkey trot, but as far removed from it as a human being is from the gorilla, is now danced in a great variety of ways. The hesitation, being more difficult, has not claimed devotees to the number of the one-step, but it is claiming more all the time.

"The tango, which became so popular as an exhibition dance, had a short-lived existence as a general dance. In fact, I have never seen more than a dozen couples doing it in any of the restaurants or tea dances. It was difficult to learn, and few men would take the time. When the maxixe was introduced, it simply swept the tango away. It was voted more graceful, and men could learn it more easily. The result has been that many men who would not learn the tango have taken up the maxixe, and at almost any dancing place, you will see numerous couples glide out upon the floor when the band strikes up one of the two tunes that are commonly played for that dance.

"In the course of a number of visits lately to some of the places where dancing goes on in the afternoon and evenings, I have been expressed with some curious changes in the bearing of the visitors. The number of those who do not get up to dance is very small, and the number of really graceful dancers is very large. I have seen almost no vulgarity among the dancers. Even at the unchaperoned places, everybody seems to be a lady or gentleman when on the floor. The fashion some women had to making exhibitions of lengths of hosiery has died out, so far as I have been able to judge.

"Unfortunately, drinking and smoking among young women seem to have increased tremendously. At a Broadway restaurant the other afternoon, almost every woman in the place—and many were under twenty, was puffing away furiously on a cigarette, and most of them were drinking something else than lemonade or tea. Dancing does inspire thirst. At a restaurant where there is some sort of supervision, a couple, next a party of which I was one exhibited the other night unmistakable signs of wanting to get acquainted, and finally the man moved over to our table, and insisted upon introducing his wife. They had been sitting behind glasses filled with green liquid and ice, and the woman said she herself had consumed up to that time thirteen creme de menthes, followinging a dinner where they had had champagne.

"Yes, there has been a change in the spirit of dancing. Already lots of people who have gone mad over it last year have given it up, but still it has numerous devotees, and the dancing teachers are still getting plenty of pupils, I am told, a fact that would surprise anybody who had gathered information from going about that surely everybody in New York had learned to dance by this time. I know of many society people who have decided that they wanted something new to divert them. Nevertheless the tea dances and the dinner dances seem to be thronged.

"Yet I was surprised a few nights ago upon revisiting a weekly dinner dance which last winter used to be thronged, to find it sparsely attended. More than half of those present were teachers. And, judging by the expression on the faces of most of the dancers nowadays, dancing has come to be a very serious occupation.

"One thing must strike the spectator who remembers women's figures two years or even a year ago. It is that almost everybody who has been dancing has lost a lot of weight.

"I was introduced to a bright girl the other night who gives dancing lessons.

"'Almost every woman in this room must be a teacher,' she remarked.

"'Why?' I asked.

"'Because every one of them looks as thin as a broomstick' she replied.

"I looked about. What she said seemed true. Even she herself was no exception."

Saved by Artificial Breathing.

Dr. S. F. Iwanoffsky, a Russian surgeon, reports the case of a peasant of twenty one who, following an angina of probably diphtheritic origin, was stricken with paralysis. After two weeks of total paralysis some movements of the arms appeared, but a few days later respiratory trouble began. The breathing rose to forty to the minute and became superficial, with momentary stops. It was necessary to resort to artificial respiration. With the assistance of pupils in the infirmary school this was kept up day and night from Feb. 5 to Feb. 20. On the latter day the patient began breathing naturally, but difficulty in swallowing arose about the same time. On Feb. 20 it became necessary to begin artificial respiration again. This was maintained until March 1, when natural breathing returned, and the patient recovered.

Convinced Both English and Arabs.

Lieutenant Waghorn found it difficult to convince the British postoffice of the value of the isthmus of Suez as a means of shortening the letter route to India. He guaranteed to transmit a bag of letters to India and return with others to England in the same time it took the letters to go. He was granted permission to make the attempt and difficulties at once cropped up. Cost at Port Said was $30 a ton, at Suez $100, so he loaded camels with coal and took them across the isthmus. When he reached Suez with the letters the steamer which he had arranged to meet him was not there. This difficulty he surmounted by chartering an open Arab boat and forcing the crew at the pistol point to take him the 800 miles down the Red sea to Jeddah, where he found a steamer to take him to Bombay and the return journey he completed well within the time. Thereafterward the isthmus route became the overland route, for Waghorn was able to convince the Arabs that the protection of the mails was better than looting them. English gold being his strongest argument.

Saving Cigars.

"We must economize if we are to be married soon, George," said the great young thing.

"I know it, dear," replied her companion on the sofa as he moved an inch closer.

"And are you trying to save on your cigarette allowance?"

"Oh, yes! Don't you see, I just took those two cigars out of my vest pocket and placed 'em on the mantelpiece."—Tuesday Statesman.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

BEING TOO RECKONABLE!

Deane had hardly had time to hang up his coat when the telephone bell rang.

"Gracious, there it goes!" said Mrs. Deane. "Will you answer it, please, Hal? My hands are in the biscuit dough."

"What was it?" she asked a little later when he entered the kitchen.

"Oh, somebody who wished to let Miss Rockwell know that she would be 15 minutes late to her music lesson to-morrow morning. I ran down to Miss Rockwell's flat and told her."

"I'm glad it was you this time," Mrs. Deane laughed. "I must say I've had about all the telephone messenger work I care for in one day."

"It's no more than neighbourly to take a message to her now and then, Kate. She's a pretty little woman."

"Yes, she's a pretty little woman, all right," said Mrs. Deane. "And if it were only now and then I shouldn't object to playing messenger boy. But it seems to me that every time I start to do anything I am obliged to stop, either to take some word to Miss Rockwell or to call her to the 'phone. I consider that she is overstraining the neighbourly duty a little."

"I think you must be overtired to-night, my dear. It's not like you to show impatience over such a small matter," remarked Deane with a tender tolerance that his wife found rather trying. "Will there be time for me to shave before dinner?"

"Yes, while the biscuits are baking. Ah, there's the 'phone again. Please answer it."

Mrs. Deane smiled as she heard her husband open the door of the flat and run downstairs after a word at the telephone. This time he did not return to the kitchen to report, and she did not see him again until they sat down to dinner.

"Please pass me one of those brown boys, Kate," he said when he had carved. "Your biscuits are a trifle overdone, aren't they, my dear?"

"Overdone! Most of them were burned to a crisp. I thought we might manage to eat these few that weren't scorched quite so badly as the rest. It's certainly too annoying to have perfectly good material wasted in this way."

"Is the oven getting skittish?"

"The oven is all right, thank you. It's the telephone that's to blame. It rang while you were shaving, so, of course, I had the pleasure of going down to Miss Rockwell. A new pupil had called up for an appointment and Miss Rockwell was rather undecided as to what answer to send. So I had to wait while she went through her schedule, and by the time I had transmitted the message to the pupil the biscuits were—well, as you say, a trifle overdone. Still, of course, it's a great privilege to be neighbourly. And especially as she is such a pretty little woman."

"Now, you know what I meant by that, Kate. And we ought not grudge a little trouble for anybody who lives under the same roof with us. But it is annoying, I'll admit it, when there are biscuits in the oven. I dare say, however, that there won't be a repetition of the extreme telephone activity."

These hopeful words had scarcely left Deane's lips when the door bell rang. There was a little twinkle in Mrs. Deane's eyes as she watched her husband advance to the door, for she was familiar with the double ring that had just sounded.

"I ran up to ask if I may telephone me aunt, who isn't well," announced Miss Rockwell, the moment the door was opened. "I had intended to run around and see her to-night, but I'm too tired after a busy day. So, if you don't mind, I'll just have a little chat with her over the 'phone."

Deane did not respond to the exceedingly sweet smile with which his wife beamed upon him when he resumed his place at the table. Indeed, he appeared to be too deeply engrossed in his dinner even to look her way, and silence reigned in the dining hall and did not cease until after the Deanes had risen from the table.

"Now that I'm up here, I'll just ring up one or two other friends that I wish to speak to," called Miss Rockwell cheerily.

"Go to it," answered Deane in a tone that caused his wife to look at him reprovingly, but which did not dampen the ardor of their neighbour, who did not finish her telephone conversations until after Mrs. Deane, with her husband's assistance, had washed the dishes and set the kitchen and dining room in order for breakfast.

"I hate to have you do this kind of work, Hal, when you come home tired," Mrs. Deane said protestingly.

"I'd much rather help you with the dishes than listen to all that flubdub Miss Rockwell is indulging in," he replied.

Some time later Miss Rockwell finished.

"Thanks, so much," she called, as she hung up the receiver. "I do not know what I should do if it were not for your kindness."

"She may have to find out what she can do without it," remarked Deane rather grimly after the door had closed behind her.

"Oh, don't take it too hard," said Mrs. Deane. "Very likely, as you say, there won't be another siege like this very soon."

"There won't be if I know myself. Great Caesar, there's the 'phone again! I wonder if we can, by any chance, be for us."

"No, dear," answered Mrs. Deane in a moment. "It's for Miss Rockwell. Will you please just step downstairs and tell her that Miss Baker will not take her lesson to-morrow? She will call up Friday and arrange for another date."

"She will, will she?" muttered Deane, starting out of the room with heavy steps.

When he returned he sank into his own easy chair with an air of exhaustion, and his wife looked at him questioningly.

"I delivered Miss Baker's message," he explained, "and then I inquired firmly, but politely why she didn't have a telephone of her own. And what do you thing that woman said?"

"I'm sure I don't know."

"She said she had thought of it, but that a telephone is such a bother that she dreaded the interruptions. Isn't she the limit? If she doesn't move out of this building this spring we shall. I can't stand her much longer."

"And she's such a pretty little woman, too," added Mrs. Deane wickedly.

The Germans—as all extensively traveled persons know—are great sticklers for titles. One must not only say Herr Cancellarius Bolz, Herr Dr. Baron Meier, Herr Professor Schmidt; one must also say Frau Cancellarius Bolz, Frau Dr. Baronin Meier, Frau Professor Schmidt. Also there are fine distinctions in titles. If one title is higher than another by so much as a hair's breadth, the wayfaring man must not call the rightful owner of the higher title by the lower title. Never!

A certain public schoolteacher, who already enjoyed the title of master was promoted to head master. Next day young Fritz, quite unaware as yet of the honor that had come to his instructor overnight, greeted him with his usual cheery "Good morning, master."

"Perhaps," said the new head master with dignity—"perhaps you'd rather just call me Adolf."—New York Post.

WHITEWASH FOR CEILINGS.

Take a five-cent piece of lime, which you can get at any hardware store. Put lime into a pail, out-of-doors, as when you put water to it it will bubble and boil. Use hot water, about five quarts, or enough to slack it to a thick paste. Keep away so you will not get burned. After it is cooled off, take a little, thin with cold water to a milky fluid and add a few drops of bluing to give it a whiter or tiny bluish cast.

You will have to use your judgment. Now apply with whitewash brush. It is better made a day or a week before using. This will give two coats to a medium sized room.

I'm as bad as the worst, and, thank God, I'm as good as the best.

YOUR HAIR NEEDS PARISIAN SAGE

It Quickly Removes Dandruff, Stops Falling Hair and Scalp Itch.

Just because your hair is full of dandruff, thin, streaky, dull, and never will do up to look pretty, do not think it must be so. Beautiful hair, thick, fluffy, lustrous and absolutely free from dandruff is only a matter of a little care. Hair is like a plant—it needs attention.

A little Parisian Sage, one of the most helpful and invigorating tonics, frequently applied and well rubbed into the scalp, will work wonders. Just one application stops itching head, removes dandruff, cleanses the hair and scalp of all dust and excessive oil. It goes right to the hair roots stimulating them and furnishing the nourishment that is needed—the hair becomes soft, fluffy, abundant and radiant with life.

Parisian Sage not only saves the hair and stimulates it to grow long and heavy but gives it that incomparable gloss and beauty so much desired by both girls and women of all ages.

Get a bottle from the Warne Drug Co. at once. Use it as directed and if you are not both surprised and delighted with results they will return your money.

Parisian Sage is faintly perfumed—no lasting odour — not sticky or greasy, and is sold in 50-cent bottles at drug and toilet counters everywhere. There is no other "Just-as-good." Accept nothing else.

OLD CHURCHYARD VERSE

Churchyard verse has peculiarities all its own, and usually displays at least heartfelt emotion. But there is at least nothing especially pathetic about an inscription in the God's Acre of St. Paulinus, at Crayford, in England, on one Peter Isnell, "a pious and mirthful man," who was for 39 years clerk of the parish and died on his way to assist at a wedding. He was a much-married man, but he did not allow such trifles to interfere with his merriment, according to his epitaph, part of which runs:

In his youth he was married like other young men,
But his wife died one day, so he chanted Amen!
A second he took — she departed — what then?
He married and buried a third with Amen.

Can't Raise Rent.

Nor is there much sign of grief about the following, on a gravestone at Folkstone, in Kent, England:

A house she hath, it's made of such good fashion
The tenant ne'er shall pay for reparation,
Nor will her landlord ever raise her rent,
Or turn her out of doors for non-payment,
From Chimney-money, too, this cell is free,
To such a house who would not tenant be.

Possibly it is some relief in a mysterious predestination which caused the writer of this epitaph, upon a baby's headstone at St. Leonard's, Bromley, Eng.:

As nurses strive their babies in bed to lie,
When they too liberally the wanton pay;
So to prevent his future grievous crimes,
Nature, his nurse, got him to bed betimes.

In Binford Church, Oxfordshire, Eng., is a bit of ancient verse well worthy of preservation in the anthologies, in which occur the following:

In bliss is hee,
Whom I lov'd best.
Thrice happy shee,
With him to rest.
So shall I bee
With him I loved,
And he with mee,
And both us blessed.

Husband's Tribute.

A fine tribute of a husband's grief is contained in an epitaph in St. Nicholas churchyard, Southfleet, in the south of England, which runs:

She was,
But words are wanting to say what,
Think what a wife should be,
And she was that.

But most of such poetical tributes are merely glittering dross in comparison with the lovely and forlorn cushatery:

I coo and pine, and ne'er shall be at rest
Till I come to thee, dearest, sweetest and best.

This is in the quaint old burial ground at St. Michael, Hartlip, Eng. Perhaps one of the most exacting in the matter of political symbolism is this from St. Martin's Home:

Here lies a piece of Christ, a star in dust,
A vein of gold, a China dish which must
Be used in Heav'n, when God shall feed the just.

SUFFERS FROM PAINFUL RHEUMATISM

Liniments of No Avail—Must be Cured Through the Blood

Why are there so many failures in the treatment of rheumatism? Why are so many sufferers resigned to a life of pain, despairing of a permanent cure?

Because rheumatism defies any treatment that does not build up and purify the blood. The poisons of rheumatism are in the blood and it is only through the blood that the disease can be fought successfully. Unless the blood is weak and impure rheumatism cannot get a foothold. When it does the thin and impure blood is not strong enough to overcome the poisons alone. It must be strengthened and purified. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the best blood-building medicine you can take. They make new blood with every dose and promptly check further progress of the disease. They make the blood so pure and strong that not the least trace of rheumatism remains. Mr. R. J. Sinclair, Goshen, N. S., says: "About two years ago I was laid up with rheumatism. For two months I could not walk and had to stay in an invalid's chair. My feet were badly swollen and my arms seemed to be paralyzed. I had been using doctor's medicine for a long time, but it did not seem to help me, and the doctor finally told me that the only thing that would cure me would be a change of climate. At this time I decided to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial and got a supply. After I had taken them for a while I found they were helping me, and I got a further supply and they completely cured me, and I have not been sick one day since. I strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for this trouble."

You can get these Pills from any dealer in medicines or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Magnificent View.

The view from Jellapahar Hill in northern British India is conceded to be the most sublime natural spectacle on the planet. Here, standing at an elevation of 8,000 feet one looks down upon a canyon deeper and vaster than that of Arizona and across which giant mountains tower nearly four miles above the observer's point of view. Though at a great distance, their full height of almost 29,000 feet is exposed to the eye.

"WE SHALL ALL BE CHANGED"

(Written for the Boston Monitor.)

One of the most beautiful and inspiring concepts given by the New Testament, writings is the gracious persuasion with which mankind are besought to change their basis of thought from the material and finite to the spiritual and infinite. Christ Jesus proclaimed an impartial and universal deliverance from evil, from sin, disease, poverty, fear and mental distress, through the power of Truth and Love. His gospel demanded a purification of human consciousness so that good instead of evil should govern the thoughts and actions of mankind. The Master, however, understood how mortals are oppressed by the stolidity of the carnal mind, and he knew that divine Love alone could lead them to the place, where, as the sons of God, they should proclaim their independence of the limiting conditions of this mortal mind and their absolute unity with the divine Mind or Principle, called God. The Apostle Paul especially calls attention in his writing to the process of change which all men must undergo as the right idea of the Christ comes to them to redeem them from "the old man with his deeds," and to enable them to "put on the new man, which is renewed in knowledge after the image of him that created him." "Behold, I show you a mystery," he writes to the church at Corinth. "We shall all be changed. . . . For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality."

The most helpful and the right way to consider these statements is to feel the gladness of them. Paul knew the infinite promise of Truth and Love. He knew what healed the sick and the sinful and the impoverished, and what would always do this whenever mankind willingly exchanged the old for the new, the false for the true. He could speak with authority, for he had himself surrendered all pride of intellect and social position when he first determined to follow after the Christ Mind, and he gladly foretold the time when all others should become as little children and learn the freedom and the happiness and the strength of thoughts that are simple, holy, loving and true.

The teachings of Christian Science as given in its text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," coincide with and repeat the declaration of Paul. This Science is proving to-day, as was proved by the Master and his disciples, that the human mind is ignorant of the way to attain truth, happiness, or real health of thought and body, and that it is the privilege of each and every one to exchange this human, unsatisfactory state of thought and its inharmony for the saving, spiritual idea of divine, eternal Truth and Love that really makes free. "The effect of this Science," we read in Science and Health (p. 162), "is to stir the human mind to a change of base, on which it may yield to the harmony of the divine Mind." This is the process, and the effect is seen in the rejuvenated lives of thousands upon thousands who have been saved from torment, mental and physical, which is neither native nor necessary to any child of God. Again we read (p. 322), "When understanding changes the standpoints of life and intelligence from a material to a spiritual basis, we shall gain the reality of Life, the control of Soul over sense, and we shall perceive Christianity, or Truth, in its divine Principle. This must be the climax before harmonious and immortal man is obtained and his capabilities revealed."

The inevitable change in human consciousness from the ways of the flesh to the ways of God is now proceeding individually and universally, under the government of divine Love. These times are especially significant in relation to the universal recognition of the Christ. The idea of the supremacy of God, the omnipotence of the divine Mind, Truth, and Love, is finding present demonstration and on all sides wisdom hastens to put away reliance upon that which has been proved all too unreliable—matter, human organization, will power and the cunning contrivance of the human thought. Experience is showing, and must show, that Spirit, the divine Principle of all actual harmony and immortality, is indeed supreme in the affairs of men. A period of reconstruction, wherein evil is relinquished for the good which excludes it, is often attended with suggestions of confusion and anxiety, but the appearance of the good is inevitable, and the only possible outcome of progress is that of "the earth gone, glad with heaven here."

for the one Mind is revealed as unlimited and all-inclusive Love. One should view with gratitude all progress out of the limited into the "glorious liberty of the children of God."

It should not be forgotten that each day presents new opportunities for that change from error to Truth, from matter to Spirit, which must come to deliver each individual from his troubles and his shortcomings. The opportunity for the expression of good is multiplied for all as the sum of the knowledge of God in the world increases. How good, or healthy, or happy, or helpful to others one may be to-day can never be determined by past mortal events. No one knows how easy it may be found in the light of advancing Science to be and to do right to-day, irrespective of the inclinations or peculiarities of former days. There are well-springs of spiritual capacity and content which for each and every man only await a proper discovery through the active knowledge of the God who is Love. "Behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation." One never knows himself until he has beheld himself to be the image and likeness of the infinite God, nor has he ever known his brother man except according to the same light of spiritual revelation. When the truth-seeker has made the discovery of man in the Science of being he will no longer be afraid of the experiment of righteousness for himself or others, nor of the changes which he may notice in the things about him. Mankind are hampered in their endeavour to attain goodness by false human concepts of all things. The revelation of the Christ idea as found in Christian Science brings to light a new man as the only real man and in beholding the truth through this spiritual idea all are led to a freedom and ability which material thought can never comprehend or experience. Thus is humanity delivered from all that is discordant, unnatural and unlawful and unabled to "put on immortality." Thus, as Paul again explains in his second letter to the Corinthians. "We all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord."

EATING RELIEVES STOMACH TROUBLE

A Prominent Physician's Advice.

"Eat good foods and plenty of them. Dieting in many cases is almost criminal. Get back to normal. To do so you must have the proper quantity of nourishment. You need it for brain or physical work. Probably there is nothing the matter with your stomach except acidity. That is merely an abnormal secretion of acid in the stomach. Neutralize that acid and your stomach trouble will end at once. Neglect may mean ulcers if not cancer of the stomach. Do not take patented medicines or pepsin tablets for dyspepsia. Simply take a neutralizer of acid. Decidedly the best neutralizer is ordinary bisurated magnesia. It is inexpensive and you can get it at any drug store. Take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water after each meal. The relief will be immediate."

Humane Society Record.

The completed record of work for last year issued by the Royal Humane Society shows that the huge total of 867 cases of gallant action in saving or attempting to save life have been dealt with, and that 984 persons have received recognition in the form of medal, testimonial, or pecuniary award. As a result 888 persons have been rescued, but in 136 cases help came too late and life was lost; while in nineteen cases would-be rescuers also lost their lives.

THE TUNING FORK.

It Is Now Being Used to Diagnose Diseases.

A brand new use has been found the tuning fork. The little instrument which has for centuries been used to give musicians the correct pitch is being found of great service in the diagnosis of disease. So valuable has it proved that it promises soon to take its place beside the stethoscope and thermometer as an essential part of every good physician's equipment.

Dr. James Castle, the eminent specialist in tropical medicine, has been making experiments with the tuning fork and is enthusiastic over its possibilities as an aid to correct diagnosis of various ailments.

Dr. Castle finds that if a tuning fork be set vibrating and the shaft placed against the body, wall and moved about, a note varying with the density of the organ immediately beneath will be transmitted to a stethoscope. In this way he has repeatedly been able to locate the limits of the liver almost to a man's breadth.

The fork Dr. Castle uses has a specially designed "striker" attachment so that it need not be removed from position for the purpose of re-vibrating.

He has found the tuning fork very useful in cases of small localised pleurisy situated low down in the chest which by ordinary methods cannot easily be differentiated from abscess of the liver or a liver pushed upward by abdominal distention. He compared the results with those obtained by X-ray photographs and found that they were absolutely accurate. He believes that the method will prove of advantage in diagnosing broken bones.

He has further found that the fork gives out different tones for fatty liver than from those of cirrhosis.

Another physician, Dr. Seymour Taylor, is using the tuning fork with great success in exploring the chest. He finds it specially advantageous in marking out lung cavities or dilated tubes, but even in these conditions certain physical factors, such as the presence of much fluid or gas, will lessen the diagnostic aid of the fork.

When a cavity is dry the reverberation of the dominant note is distinctly increased over a cavity, and is diminished as the instrument is carried away from the lesion. Again in most with hard, almost solid ribs, the sounds are better conducted, as one would expect, than in children and young persons with more elastic ribs, which are not such good conductors of sound.

No Need Being Old Or Wrinkled Before 75

Lillian Russell says any woman who has wrinkles before she's 75 is herself responsible for them. Sunshine and fresh air she considers more valuable as complexion preservers than nostrums and cosmetics.

The chief objection to cosmetics is that at best they only temporarily cover up defects. They are certain true aids to Nature, which may be applied with directly opposite effect. Ordinary mercolized wax, for instance, actually removes a bad or sallow complexion, by gradually, almost imperceptibly, peeling off the worn-out scarf skin. Just one ounce, procurable at any druggists, will soon unveil an entirely new and natural complexion, with an exquisite girlish colour. Of course cutaneous blemishes, like pimples, freckles, fine lines, moth patches, liver spots, disappear with the discarded skin.

To prevent or remove wrinkles, a face bath, which also produces natural rotundity, is made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. This is immediately effective and gives no sunward after-effect.

Dear Sir—

Re Policy $420186

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of the cheque of the Fidelity & Casualty Company of New York for the sum of $5000.00, being the amount of my claim for double liability under my policy in this company, arising out of the accident which resulted in the loss of the sight of my left eye. I wish you would be kind enough to convey to the Company my thanks and warm appreciation for the prompt and entirely satisfactory manner in which my claim under my policy has been settled in full.

It may be of interest to you to know that when I first took this accident policy in your Company it was due solely to the very friendly and cordial relationship that has always existed between your agent, Mr. George E. Elliott, and myself, but when I received the Company's cheque this morning, through your office, I was deeply impressed with the fact that I, in common with the vast majority of people, never before realized how prudent and important it is to carry an Accident Policy in a Company that settles so promptly, Yours faithfully,

LIFE IS SAVED BY THE USE OF NEW PULMOTOR

Isaac Watson, After Receiving a Heavy Voltage in Trimming Street Lamp is Revived by Wonderful Instrument.

WAS HURT IN FALL.

A few days ago a demonstration of the resuscitating powers of the pulmotor, was given to the City Council, and to the medical fraternity of the City. One of these machines was purchased by the Fire, Water and Light Committee of the City Council and last night, about 9.05 p.m. was instrumental in saving the life of Mr. Isaac Watson, married man, aged about twenty-eight, who resides on McGill Street. Watson is "night man" in connection with the Hydro installation in the City, and was making his customary rounds, trimming the arcs. He was busily engaged trimming a lamp, outside Shortley's store on George Street, when, without warning, he fell to the pavement. It was at first conjectured that teh ladder on which he was working had slipped, but the investigation of those who rushed to his assistance revealed the fact that he had sustained a shock of rather high voltage. A 'phone message was at once sent to the Fire Station, and a few seconds afterwards, oxygen was being forced into his lungs by means of the pulmotor. Dr. Amys, who was attending the Citizens' Banquet, at the Oriental Hotel, was also sent for and rendered what medical aid was possible until the arrival of the ambulance. He made reference to the accident later in the evening. The injured man was removed to Nicholls Hospital, where his injuries were attended to. It was found that his hands were burned from the shock, and that the left leg was fractured at the knee and a shoulder dislocated.

According to the statement of Dr. Amys, Watson's case would have been a well-nigh hepless one had it not been for the pulmotor; in fact he was dead. As it was, he had regained consciousness before the ambulance had arrived. It was stated that Watson was not wearing his rubber gloves, which were found in his back pocket.

There are a number of high tension wires in this vicinity, from several power units, but luckily the injured man only came into contact with one.

As is usual, a crowd of large proportions soon gathered, and it was with difficulty that the policemen on duty could clear a passageway for the ambulance.

Mr. Watson's condition in the hospital is as good as can be expected.

Both Dr. Amys and Chief Howard are delighted with the results obtained through the operation of the pulmotor, last night.

The firemen have all been instructed in the use of the machine, which is a device so simple that a child can operate it.

The policemen also are being instructed in its use. It was the knowledge thus gained that prompted P. C. Phimister to 'phone for the machine. As soon as the Fire Department had been notified, the Chief was called up at the Oriental Hotel, and told of the matter. He beckoned Dr. Amys, who, upon his arrival at the scene of the accident, shortly before the arrival of the pulmotor, commenced the old method of artificial respiration which would have proved of little avail. The biggest drawback was the crowd which had gathered. It took a squad of firemen and four policemen all their time to keep back the throng of idle, curious people, who, regardless of a life which might be at stake, kept surging upon the centre of the accident, just to "get a look" and not caring whether the life was lost or saved. It is the intention of Chief Howard to inform his men that whenever a call for the pulmotor is received, a length of rope is also to be carried, and that particular portion of the street roped off.

Chief Howard stated to an Examiner representative that when the machine was first brought into action the man was apparently quite dead and not a pulse could be felt. "That machine is worth its weight in gold" said the Chief.

THE CLANCY PROPERTY SOLD

Congregation of Mark St. Methodist Church Buy New Church Site at Hunter and Mark Streets

THE PRICE PAID

The congregation of Mark Street Methodist Church, of which Rev. C. E. Cragg is Pastor, has purchased the Clancy property in East City, at the corner of Hunter and Mark Streets. This is a spendid site for a Church, and the erection of a handsome edifice will be a decided improvement to the ocality. It is not the intention of the congregation to build during the present year, but for some time past the Church has been inadequate to accommodate the ever-increasing crowds that attend. To secure this property it was necessary to buy at once, but just when the new Church will be commenced is indefinite.

The price paid is said to be in the neighbourhood of $2,700.

A Distinguished Visitor At Knox Church

Rev. Dr. Hanson Will Dedicate the New Organ To-morrow

Knox Church pulpit will be occupied to-morrow by one of the most distinguished preachers in the Canadian Presbyterian Church, in the person of Rev. Dr. Hanson, of Montreal. Though in Canada a year and a half he is known from the Atlantic to the Pacific and the thousands who listened to him at the great Pre-Assembly Congress of the Presbyterian Church, last year, in Toronto, have kindly recollections of his daily inspiring messages. Seeveral years ago he visited Canada with Archdeacon Madden of Liverpool and it was then that Erskine Church, Montreal, sought to keep him in Canada. The second attempt was successful and Dr. Hanson gave up his work in Belfast to undertake the heavy task of Erskine Church, Montreal. Previous to his work in Belfast, Rev. Dr. Hanson was minister of Marylebone Presbyterian Church, London, where he was a close friend and neighbour of Rev. Dr. Griffith Thomas, now of Toronto. Dr. Hanson is a very fluent and inspiring preacher, and one who never fails to reach his hearers with an effective Gospel message.

A COMPLAINT AGAINST A LOCAL MOTORIST

An information was sworn to after court this morning against a local motorist. Jos. Martin the informant, Chamberlain street, speaking to an Examiner representative this morning, stated that yesterday evening, he was cycling west on Hunter street between Water and George, at a slow pace, and the motorist was coming in the opposite direction at a fair rate of speed. In turning from Hunter on to George street, Martin states that the autoist did not keep on his right side of the road, or as near to the sidewalk as the law calls for, and collided with him.

Martin saw that a collision could not be averted, and jumped from his wheel, which was badly damaged from the impact which occurred a few seconds later.

MOTOR LEAGUE HAS ALREADY DONE GOOD WORK

Many Things in the Interest of Motorists Has Been Carried Out—Road Signs in the Country

DR. DOOLITTLE'S ADDRESS

There are now about 230 auto owners in Peterborough and the vicinity. It is to the interest of each of these to support any movement that will aid in improving road and other conditions or in any way aid to the usefulness and enjoyment of the automobile.

The majority of the owners of last year became members of the local Association which is in affiliation with the Ontario Motor League. Some of the recent owners have not yet become interested, and in order to awaken an interest this article is written with a view of enlightening them as to the work of the Ontario Motor League and also of the local Association.

The Ontario Motor League has been very active in securing and preventing legislation that will be advantageous or detrimental to the interests of auto owners, and has succeeded in such instances as: License money being spent in connection with good roads, preventing of an extreme increase in the license fee, erection of road signs, posting of pickets on the main roads warning drivers against exceeding the speed limit, supplying a lawyer for defence in certain cases where a verdict against the auto owner would be a precedent in other cases, interchange of visiting courtesies along the Niagara frontier, etc., a list that could be easily lengthened, but is already long enough to prove that satisfactory work is being done.

The League also publishes a magazine—Canadian Motorist—forwarded free to members of the League — which contains interesting news as well as useful information in the care of cars, etc.

The local Association aims at improving road conditions both in the city and the surrounding country and last year entertained the County Council and the Road Commissioners at South Beach. This bore fruits in the betterment of certain roads.

This year, so far, the work has consisted of the erection of road signs, and already the roads leading to Buckhorn, Bobcaygeon, Young's Point, Norwood, Port Hope, Millbrook, Keene, Hastings, have been marked while all roads leading to Peterborough have been indicated so that tourists will have no difficulty in finding our city.

The Entertainment Committee are making arrangements for another outing for the County Council to Hastings, for a League outing at South Beach, for a basket picnic at Bewdley, for drives around the city for the inmates of the various institutions in the city—in short, for a summer of enjoyment for League members.

Come to the meeting on Tuesday night in the Bank of Montreal Chambers and hear Dr. Doolittle explain fully the work of the Ontario Motor League, and Mr. Peck, M.P.P., the recent legislation in connection with the Good Roads Commission. Every one in any way interested, whether the owner of an automobile or motorcycle or not, is most cordially invited.

THE NEW BY-LAW WASN'T OBSERVED THIS MORNING

Neither Names Nor Weights in Evidence in the Market Building

WILL BE ENFORCED

In the market building this morning there was a brisk trade done, the supply of butter and eggs being very large, and the demand for those articles being good. But outside on the square there was not a very good representation of the farmers of the district, and the supply failed before noon.

"How are your potatoes selling?" was the oft repeated question.

"At $1.50 per bag, but they're sold out," was very often the answer.

Potatoes were selling at 35c. a peck and $1 50 a bag. There was a fair supply, but the vegetables changed owners very rapidly during the morning.

There was one thing, the scarcity of which was more apparent than the lack of any product, and that was the tags bearing the names of the owners of the baskets and tickets indicating the weight of the fowl offered for sale. In spite of the fact that the by-law has been in force for a couple of weeks now, demanding that the saleswoman display their names, and the weight of the fowl they are selling, those who conformed to the law in the market this morning were decidedly in the minority. It was only an occasional basket, and only an occasional fowl that bore any evidence at all of the new market regulation.

The condition of affairs seemed to be evident to Sanitary Inspector Spence on his tour of observation, and he reminded many of those who offered butter, eggs or other products for sale, that the law would have to be conformed with.

There was a marked scarcity of chickens and other fowl could not be located on the market. Chickens sold at from 60c. to $1.00 each, and there were very few left when the noon hour approached. There was plenty of butter and many eggs, the former selling at from 24c. to 27c. a pound, and the latter at 21c. to 23c. a dozen.

Apples were offered outside at 50c. a peck, but the supply was exceedingly limited. Rhubarb was in evidence everywhere and a great quantity of it was sold.

CITIZENS ENDORSE THE PLANS TO BEAUTIFY CITY

Unanimous and Spontaneous Expression of Approval of Scheme for Civic Driveway as Initial Step for a More Picturesque Peterborough

REPRESENTATIVE GATHERING

The Citizens' banquet in the Oriental Hotel last night, held for the purpose of focussing attention upon the plans of civic beautification, which had been prepared by a committee representing the Horticultural Society, the Board of Trade and the Ad Club, was featured by two splendidly practical addresses by Park Commissioner C. E. Chambers, of Toronto, and B. R. Morton, B.S.F., of the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa. An incidental feature was the fact that guests began to assemble at 6.30 p.m., and proceed to depart at 11.30 p.m., during which time full justice was devoted to the luncheon courses and to the topics relating to the proposed scheme for rendering Peterborough more picturesque.

Stripped of its verbosity and social garnishings the banquet, with respect to the visiting speakers, emphatically endorsed the plans of the working committee. It demonstrated the correctness of the contentions of those who for years have urged and undertaken similar to that which was so auspiciously inaugurated last night. It proved that citizens of all walks in the daily round of life are interested in the beautiful, and it drew a pleasing unanimity of support from all those present in so far as they were personally concerned, and in regard to their connections with various local associations. Without any attempt at facetious reflection upon the favourable efforts of the Oriental fare combined with the inspiring music of Mr. Asa Huycke, Mr. Wm. Wilson, and Mr. J. Minnecole, the assembly heartily endorsed the idea of a civic driveway linking the various parks and the more comprehensive proposal of beautifying the city, as involved in details which will doubtless be gradually evolved. The fact that the enthusiasm shown at the conclusion of the remarks of the two visiting speakers had not waned several hours later when the National Anthem was sung, was a strong indication that the gathering was deeply interested in the present impetus to make Peterborough a lovelier city for its residents.

A LENGTHY TOAST LIST.

The toast list was a lengthy one, and enabled expression of a general opinion upon the proposed schemes. Mr. Frank Wise acted as toastmaster, and to Mr. Harry Beal fell the honour of proposing the toast "Our Guests."

Mr. Chambers, in reply, stated that one of the first steps in beautifying a city was the linking up of the parks. He had driven over the route of the proposed driveway, and he felt that Peterborough had a splendid foundation upon which to begin the work outlined.

PIRATING OF RAILWAYS.

"I have noticed," he said, "that railways have been pirating your water front. You should not lose the water front, for you will not be able to get it back easily. I have been told that certain parts of the water front have been disposed of to private and corporate interests. I think this is a distinct mistake. In Toronto we have suffered from this condition, so much so that we find it necessary to spend millions of dollars upon a great undertaking for the beautifying of our water front. Don't make the same mistake any more if you can possibly avoid it."

DEFINITENESS NECESSARY.

Mr. Chambers emphatically stated that three conditions were necessary if Peterborough's plans were to bear fruit. First, definite plans must be laid out; secondly, definite financial assurance must be secured, and, thirdly, the work should be placed in the hands of a body of men commissioned to control the scheme, its future and what it involved.

He expressed disfavour of the plan of constructing sidewalks whose outer edge formed the street curb. "You can't get a boulevard when the walk is laid next to the roadway," he said. "I counted many sidewalks on residential streets next to the curb, destroying the possibility of having boulevards or of turning those streets into a parkway."

"You want the street pavement a reasonable width, and all the boulevard and park features you can get on the streets."

WIDTH OF STREET.

Mr. Chambers favoured a roadway 24 or 26 feet wide. A width of 24 feet

BAND TO VISIT MANY CITIES

Official Programme of the Approaching Tour in the Old Country is Announced

MANY GREAT EVENTS

Following is an outline of the great events in London, Eng., in which the Peterborough Temple Band will take part:

Thursday, June 30, 7 p.m.—Reception of international delegates at Royal Albert Hall, by General Booth.

Friday, 3.30—Opening ceremony of the great Salvation Hall, built especially on the Strand for the International Congress Company.

7 p.m.—Introduction of National Temple.

Saturday, 3.30, June 13 — Great meeting on Thames embankment and march to Hyde Park.

5.00—Hyde Park, great open air demonstration.

7.30—Great European, American, and Canadian demonstration at the Salvation Hall.

Sunday—All day at Clapham Junction Grand Theatre; meeting led by Chief of Staff Commissioner Howard.

Monday, June 15, 11 a.m.—At the great Central Hall, all Canadian demonstration, led by Commissioner Rees.

Monday, 3 p.m. — Demonstration, led by British Commissioner Higgins.

Monday, 7.00 — "Work in other Lands," by General Booth.

Tuesday, June 16 — All day with God, led by General Booth.

Wednesday, June 17—7.30, in Central Hall; Assisting Commissioner Booth Tucker, of India.

Friday, June 19, 7.30—Central Hall, Assisting Commissioner McKee.

Saturday and Sunday at Ealing Hippodrome; Assisting Commissioner Rees.

Friday, June 26, 3.30—Savation Hall; Women's social demonstration.

June 22, 7.00 p.m.—Empire meeting, led by General Booth.

Friday—All day at the Crystal Palace, when over 500,000 people will attend and a choir of 4,000 voices will sing and a Band of 400 musicians will play to one drum and under one baton.

Thursday—Farewell of delegates at Royal Albert Hall.

The other cities visited will be Plymouth, Reading, Tunridge Wells, Smithson, Portsmouth, Worthing, Sheffield, Leeds, Bradford, Liverpool, and two or three others to be decided upon.

Band Secretary Henley is sailing one week ahead of the Band, so that all the billeting and information will be complete. Adjutant McElbiney is very enthusiastic over the distribution of the Peterborough souvenirs, and hopes to benefit the City much with thirty good, reliable men, and their music, besides himself.

The financial strain upon the Adjutant is very heavy indeed and he may have to call upon some of his rich friends to help him, next week, not however unless it is a dire necessity.

Annual Meeting Monday Night

The St. George's Choral Society will wind up a very successful year on Monday evening next when their annual meeting takes place in Coleman's Parlours at 8:30 o'clock p.m. There will be important business to be transacted and all members are expected to be present. The executive committee will meet at 8 o'clock the same evening.

SATURDAY, MAY 16, 1914

THE "NORONIC" ON THE STAND.

Hon. Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, declared that Canada could not build warships. We were not much surprised at that; he harks back to Tory ancestry in holding "the colonies" in contempt. But we were surprised at Premier Borden declaring that Canada could not build a Canadian navy in fewer than twenty-five or fifty years. Both statements are wrong, and have been proved wrong. We have only to call as a witness the new steamship "Noronic" of the Northern Navigation Company, in connection with the Grand Trunk system. In another column of this issue is printed a partial description of the splendid new steamer which makes her initial trip on the Sarnia - Fort William and Port Arthur route on June 3rd. The "Noronic" is Canadian built, from keel to truck and all its furnishings are Canadian. Canadian enterprise conceived it. Canadian capital financed it. Canadian brains designed it, and Canadian skill put together Canadian materials in what is rightly described as "the last word in naval architecture." Borden, Churchill, and the Canadian skeptics that think with them, should be ashamed of discrediting Canadian enterprise and ability and resources, uttering a slander upon Canadian initiative, enterprise, skill and patriotism. They should be doomed to take a trip on the "Noronic". They would find it one of the staunchest, the swiftest, the completest craft "that walks the water like a thing of life," that will for years supplement the work of one of the greatest railways in the world in fusing the people of the east and west, mutually enriching them by the interchange of natural and industrial products and aiding in the work of development of the infinite resources of the best and potentially greatest country in the world. Canada can't build ships! The craven spirit behind such an idea cannot be justified by the acutest political exigency; it is fatal to self respect self reliance, self help, and self development, and emergence form pitiful dependence.

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL.

Last night's symposium in the interests of the beautification of Peterborough was a splendid success, and the promoters of it—the representatives of the Horticultural Society, and the bodies acting with it, the Board of Trade and the Ad. Club—can be classed as public benefactors. They are entitled to the congratulations that are equally due them and the citizens at large upon the outcome or at least impulse of their undertaking. There is no immediate outcome, but the most important influence of the occasion was the spirit of cooperation and even, enthusiasm, aroused. In addition to the bodies mentioned were present the city fathers, the Board of Education, the Utilities Commission, the professions and a smart sprinkling of public spirited citizens. The presence of Mr. C. E. Chambers, Park Commissioner of Toronto and of Mr. B. E. Morten, B.S.F. of the Forestry Department, Ottawa, in their official capacity was an important feature, and the addresses they gave were illuminating and should inspire to action. A detailed report of the meeting will appear in our news columns. However it is not too much to point out that the address of the two experts in facts, deduction and theory, endorsed everything that has been said upon the subject of city beautification and the kind, planting and care of street trees, in the columns of the Examiner from day to day for years.

Now that the ball has been started rolling officially, so to speak, we are at only the beginning of a new era. What is needed is the application of our good resolutions and our excellent theories and the implementing of our enthusiasm. To secure these, however, there must be concentration of authority, the cooperation of the bodies interested and of the citizens generally is indispensable in the way of providing means and being a foundation for practical action, and arousing and maintaining public spirit and enthusiasm. But enthusiasm, no matter how intense or interest however strong, will not effect anything without a responsible directing head. The city council is properly the body to best at the head of such an enterprise; but it has too many other irons in the fire and the attention of members is now too largely diverted from their private affairs—an important point, as most of our aldermen depend upon their daily occupation for their living—to permit them to give the attention to the plan of the committee and the general subject of city beautification they deserve. It is satisfactory that the council and school board are in sympathy and are behind the general proposals and it is hoped they will maintain this attitudeand lend their moral and material support. But the actual work, the planning of details, the planting and doing, the actual work is beyond their proper jurisdiction. We must have some such body as a special commission, call it park commission, or boulevard commission, or whatever is liked, which should be composed of citizens who know and care about the things that pertain to the successful and consistent beautification of the streets and public places of the city. Till we have the matter entrusted to some such consituted authority, we shall have ineffective, haphazard and unsatisfactory results. Space to-day forbids adequate dealing with the thousand and one subjects and details indicated at last night's meeting, but in due course they will receive attention in these columns. Meanwhile we all have to congratulate ourselves upon the strong fillip imparted and the aesthetic impulse given to our corporate bodies and citizens generally. The seed has been shown, the spirit aroused, and what is needed is some central directing authority competent and conscientious to care for the crop and reap the harvest.

"Sleep The Key To The Timepiece Of Life," Says Noted Scientist

The Greatest Enemy of Death and the Most Vital Factor for Long Life.

SLEEP HALF YOUR LIFE

BERLIN, May 11.—That sleep is the "key to the timepiece of life," the "greatest enemy of death," the most vital factor for long life, and that the sending of children to school at 7 and 8 o'clock in the morning, as is done in Germany, is "barbarous" and a "measure of life," are some of the statements made by Prof. Carl Ludwig Schleich in an article printed last week in a publication on "How to Prolong Life."

Prof. Schleich is one of the most eminent surgeons and medical authorities in Germany, and is also widely known in other countries. The local anaesthetic which he discovered is used by surgeons and physicians for operations in every civilized land.

Dwelling upon the necessity and results of optimism to longevity Prof. Schleich quickly passes over the necessity of hygiene, moderation, and temperance, and declares that the secret of long life lies in two things—elasticity of the veins and arteries and sleep.

"What can we do," he asks, "to protect our elastic, rubber-like cell tube system and prevent the loss of energy through what is known as 'exhaustion?'

"I know nothing more important than gymnastics of the blood vessels of the skin—systematic 'turn exercises' of the millions of little ringlet-like muscles of the blood vessels in the skin—and second—the art to sleep developed to a tyrannical point.

"Everybody feels instinctively that sleep is the greatest physician for the suffering of the day. Sleep is not only the 'beautiful brother of death,' as the ancient Greeks characterised it, but is in fact the enemy of death.

"Sleep quietly one half of your life away. You will have twice as much of the other half. This is a maxim that ought to become a part of our flesh and blood. The oft-repeated 'eight hours for work, eight hours for pleasure, and eight hours for sleep' is unquestionably false. The civilized man or woman of to-day must learn to sleep at the very least ten hours out of the twenty-four if he or she expects to check the increased wear and irritability of his or her modern nervous life and temperament. The extra two hours, I believe, should be taken from worktime rather from the hours for pleasure and recreation."

The professor says that there are many who cannot even sleep eight hours, not to mention ten. These, he says, must by "iron force" learn the art of sleeping: Go to bed at 9, 10 for a time you lie awake four hours you will soon find that you drop asleep in time, and hours long within half an hour after retiring.

"Human and animal life are naturally times for sleeping and awakening," declares Prof. Schleich. "Those who postpone or omit this time and endeavour to find in the sham sun of electricity the allotments of daylight will sooner or later fatigue their hearts and blood vessels. Because sleep is that pause during which the throbbing blood tubes, which pulsate like the heart, driven at half power, shall in the preserver of the spiral electricity of the blood vessels—it is the key that winds up the timepiece of life.

"In Berlin alone it is the postmaster barbarity and a deliberate massacre of life when I see children, pale, sleepy and shiftless, dragging themselves to school at 8 o'clock in the morning. This unnatural, anti-hygienic and brainless violence upon the sleep of our little ones should be stopped. Here, indeed, is the principal cause for the checking of the stream of life and the principal reason for degeneration and childlessness. Why in the world could not the schools begin at 9 o'clock."

Prof. Schleich concludes by saying: "I declare war on that part of society which systematically robs body and soul of peace, rest and sleep. I declare war on theatre and concert managers and long time endurance debaters. They are destroyers of arteries, accomplices of heart disease, and promoters of arterial sclerosis.

"Force yourself to sleep and you will master life."

Prof. Schleich's practical advice, aside from ten hours of sleep, to "gymnastics of the blood vessels," he says alternate warm and cold water in your morning shower, and rub yourself with brushes or coarse towels until you are "red as a lobster" all over.

"Do this with tyrannical regularity, and you can bid defiance to Father Time for many years," concludes the professor.

Scout News

Articles on the Boy Scout Movement have been appearing in the Examiner, from time to time, published in the Examiner, every Saturday. As interest was lost in the movement, the articles were discontinued but now, as there is every indication that the Scout Movement will again find favour with the lads of the City, the Scout column will be recommenced. The column will contain news of interest to scouts, troop news from the different organizations in the City, and also from other outside points.

There are at present in the City two troops of Boy Scouts, one under the direction of Rev. F. J. Sawers, and the other is supervised by Mr. James Milby, Scoutmaster, and Mr. C. Brooks, Assistant. There are also three Patrols in the latter troop, and a fourth one of smaller boys.

The various patrols are under the following officers:

1st Patrol—H. Blake, Leader; F. Sheppard, Corporal.

2nd Patrol—P. Wyley, Leader.

3rd Patrol—Wm. Adams, Leader; U. Parker, Corporal.

The troops of the Knox Church Troop are having a reactionary period after the dull winter months. At Downers Corners, on May 24th, several boys will take their examinations for second class badges.

Troops 5 have been invited by Mr. and Mrs. Paskins to their home on Victoria Day. This holiday was spent last year at the same place, and the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Paskins was much appreciated.

Many thanks to "One of the Old Brigade" for his timely letter.

The following story is compiled by one of the Scouts, and may possibly stir ambitions in others:

THE STORY.
HIS GOOD TURN.
(By Scribe).

The day was one of those fine June days. The sky was clear and blue and the small white clouds were slowly drifting across the sky. The birds were singing and all nature was gay. The scouts of Wicklow Hill were out for their Saturday afternoon hike, and all were pleased and happy. They had just finished their morning games and were sitting down under the spreading boughs of an oak, when the scoutmaster suddenly noticed it still had been a very good turn that day. He then glanced at the patrol which and found it united with the exception of one, named by a boy by the name of George Astley, whereupon he asked him what had happened, and, the scoutmaster's surprise, he replied: "Those things" seem to be getting thick. I was in for a good time today." The scoutmaster said no more on the subject, and the boys got ready to march and continued hiking. [illegible] particular boy, George Astley, [illegible] the other boys [illegible] and they were just sitting down for dinner. George entered the [illegible] and, sat down and nibbled at a piece of oatmeal biscuit, but ate little. His mother, fearing that he was ill, asked him what was the matter. He told her that he had not done his good turn that day, and that he thought the day would pass without his being able to do some good turn. Then his mother replied: "Never mind, George, something may turn up between now and bedtime." And little did he think that such would be the case. He had scarcely began to eat again before a faint rap was heard at the door. George immediately dropped his knife and fork and and went to see who was there, and, to his surprise, an aged man asked if he might have supper and a bed for the night. Mrs. Atkins immediately told him that he might have both if he would not mind sleeping downstairs. The old man then answered that he would in no way mind that, but said, "I have one thing, however, on my mind, and if you will keep the thing a strict secret I will confide in you." "Any secret told us will be strictly kept." The old man drew a bundle of papers from his pocket, and after some time, selected a large packet containing a land map. "This," said he, "is a map that was given me by a western land agent, and all the squares marked represent pieces of land which were given me by him. The other day I had an offer of a small sum for them, by a man who told me that he would buy them to get them off my hands. I did not, however, accept this offer, as I thought there was something suspicious behind it, and what I would like was to get some reliable person to take the chart to my brother, who lives at the Crossroads, and explain to him my offer. The reason for this is that he has been recently in that part of the country and could tell me if the lands are worth more, and if there are any minerals on the lands." Ben then looked at the knotted scarf, and, after a few moments thought, he said:

"Sir, if you will trust me I will go." The old man considered for a moment, and then said, "Well, you

ORDERS FOR THE WEEK.

A parade will be held on Monday evening, at 7.30 sharp, at Knox Church, for instruction in Ambulance work.

Friday, at 7.30, ceremonial parade. Full uniform. Streets to be carried.

F. J. Sawers, District Commissioner.

J. Milby, Scoutmaster.
C. Brooks, Assistant Scoutmaster.

All boys in the City will parade next Friday at 7.30, when the Rev. Sawers will grant a short talk on re-organization of the Scout work in Peterborough.

The boys of the Ashburnham troop have not paraded on Friday as yet, but they are expected this coming Friday.

The Rev. Sawers has been endeavouring to get in touch with troops at Bobcaygeon, Millbrook and Pontypool. How successful his efforts have been is not yet known.

The fact that Major Walker of the 57th Regiment, who was instructed to look into the matter of saving Boy Scouts left in the parade on the occasion of the visit of the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General of Canada, did not report very favourably on his surveys, called for much criticism. The lads and likewise the leaders, are determined this His Royal Highness shall see a good parade of the lads in what he terms an interest.

The following incident was told by a commissioner. On Saturday last, he told a Scout that Kitchener troop call at a [illegible] The Scout [illegible] the instructions, and incidentally asked him about the Duke of Connaught's visit, and if the Scouts were to take part in the proceedings. When informed of the opportunity of the possibility, he considered that he could bring in twenty lads at least.

In connection with this movement, it is said that 60 Petes enough lads could be linked into Troops, Mr. Sawers, as before mentioned, is getting into touch with other towns, and it is expected that 120 lads could be got together for an investiture by the Royal visitors, and would make a good showing.

A knowledge is vain that tends not to the practice of some duty.

On the dates and hours mentioned below, we will give our first "At Home" to the Ladies of Peterboro'.

Under the direction of the Gurney Foundry Co. and ourselves a series of talks will be given on the subject of

"Kitchen Engineering"

Kitchen Engineering deals with How to Cook, more than What to Cook.

That is to say, a meal to be a complete success, must be prepared in proper order.

The Soup should first be ready, then the Entrees, then comes the Roast or other Meats and the Vegetables, then Dessert

Experts have been at work finding out how this can best be done on a Gas Range.

And at this series of Lectures we will put this information at your disposal.

You will find these talks interesting as well as instructive.

You will find it of assistance every day to know how economical, simple and satisfactory it is to Cook by Gas on a Gurney-Oxford Range.

During the Afternoon Lectures Tea will be served, and orders for any Stoves placed at the time will be accompanied by a useful and appropriate souvenir of the occasion.

HOME LIFE IN MEXICO

Many Old Rules and Customs Still Observed---In Courtship Father Must Be Consulted First

When the situation in Mexico claims so much attention, it is interesting to know something of the women of the country, and the life of the home which is always so deeply affected by war time. Home life in Mexico is very intimate and domestic, in the palatial dwelling as in the poorest hut. The husbands and sons and brothers are made much of by their "women-kind," and the men for their part hold their homes in high respect. A Montreal man, who lived for some time in Mexico, has told the writer that one can meet a Mexican gentleman for years at clubs and in public places, and never be introduced to his family—the stranger receives very cordially. But once properly vouched for, hospitality.

The houses in the cities are square, flat-roofed buildings of two or three stories, but round an open patio or court-yard, with pretty gardens, fountains, and statuary. Much of the family tree is carried on in the patio. The walls of the houses are thick, built of brick or stone almost invariably covered with stucco of a yellow deepening with time. Windows open as to neat little balconies, which often figure in the courtship of the Romeos and Juliets of the south. Some of the finest buildings are faced with porcelain tiles of different colours, arranged in beautiful patterns. The homes of the peasantry are for the most part huts of adobe, and dried in the sun. But in all homes, parents and grandparents are treated with great deference. The young Mexican of the better class keeps up the graceful custom of kissing the hand of his mother.

The ladies of Mexico are very punctilious as to the observance of certain rules of etiquette, especially with regard to new arrivals. It is the newcomer who it supposed to make the advances, the reverse of our custom; and if she neglects to do so, social ostracism is likely to be the penalty. A new arrival in any town or city of Mexico, although his or her advent may be known to every man, woman, or child in the community, and may have been publicly discussed for weeks beforehand, must solmenly announce the fact in print, and send a copy of such communication to everybody of consequence in the town. Letters of introduction are also "de requeur." While the average Mexican is invariably polite and courteous to the stranger, he is only friendly and hospitable to the visitor who comes well recommended. He is very particular to whom he introduces to his women-folk.

While the most conservative heads of some of the old Mexican families still maintain rigidly their privacy and reserve, the emancipation of the younger generation has proceeded apace. Whereas even twenty years ago, or even less, no Mexican lady would descend from her carriage when shopping, but would expect the storekeeper to bring out all his wares to exhibit to her—no matter how inconvenient to him or to the passers-by—to-day Mexican ladies conduct their bargaining at the counters, and otherwise attend personally to their household requirements. They go about unattended, instead of closely veiled and with a duenna; they play golf, tennis, and even attend polo matches, as spectators, be it understood. They send their girls to school, instead of educating them at home.

As to the marriage, the first overtures are made to the father, if he be living, to the mother, if he is not, the girl coming into the scheme only after permission has been given by the parent or guardian. The girls of a family are very carefully watched by their parents or guardians, and are afforded but little freedom as we understand the term. Letters addressed to them are almost invariably opened and read before passing into their hands. The result is that many surreptitious billets doux are exchanged. In many cases the daughter does not leave the parental roof even when she is married, but the husband is addded to the family membership.

Committee to Supervise Civic Improvement Work

Moved by J. W. Miller, seconded by W. A. Logan, that the Presidents of the Peterborough Horticultural Society, Board of Trade and Ad. Club be appointed a Committee, with power to add to their numbers, for the purpose of continuing the work of civic improvement so successfully launched here this evening. We would recommend that steps be taken by this Committee to have local committees appointed in the different wards to act under its central direction in carrying out the details of the scheme of civic improvement, as outlined here, this evening.

PROGRESSIVE CHANGES BY GORDON-DAVIES CO

Reinforced by a Well Equipped and Well Stocked Grocery Store

Liberal and continued prosperity depends upon holding customers after you get them, and upon keeping them well informed in regard to your stock and prices. This appears to be one of the business ideas of Gordon-Davies, Limited, purveyors of meats, groceries and provisions, 340 George Street. They have worked up an excellent trade by their "good goods, right prices, and prompt delivery" methods, and are determined to hold what they have.

The Gordon-Davies store windows are aways dressed so appealingly that customers must come in. Orderliness and cleanliness inside is of special consideration. They are not afraid to quote prices and to quote them boldy. They turn their stock over quickly and seldom have any excuses to offer about being out of something in general demand by their customers. They keep track of goods asked for and put in stock whatever they find the public require. They buy very closely and only the very best in the market.

Recently the Gordon-Davies store has been undergoing extensive remodelling and refitting, with the result that a very marked improvement has been moved back to the rear porrangements. The large refrigerator hasbeen moved back to the rear portion of the store, in order to afford increased accommodation for their grocery section, which has become an important department. Greater attention is to be given to groceries, vegetabes and fruits. Improved grocery fittings have been installed, including the Walker bins, which are so admirally adapted for cleanliness and sanitary purposes. The stock of general groceries has been strengthened and varied, so as to include a wide range of table supplies and enhance the needs of all classes.

The changes introduced in the store have all been aimed at with the view of having a pure food store—including meats, poultry, eggs, butter, vegetables, fruits and groceries—where housekeepers may be able to order their entire shopping list of table supplies without the trouble of having to shop from store to store.

SWAT THE CATERPILLAR

Editor of The Examiner.

—Sir,—Your humorous reference to the caterpillar may fall wide of the mark upon people who are insensate to the ravages of the pest or are indifferent to the betterment of the world. There is nothing that should arouse our activities more at this season than to combat their misfeasance, and especially does this refer to municipal bodies.

What has our Council done or what is it doing? It is such neglect that has brought municipal bodies into disrepute. I noticed some time ago in your paper that attention was called to one of the most prolific breeding grounds of this pest along the old Cobourg Raigay line, starting in Ashburnham and running through the Township of Otonabee. Are the people of Otonabee indifferent to their own welfare or are they lying in deep oblivious slumber?

Yours, etc.,
Fellow.

CHURCHES WILL SEND DELEGATES

Interest in the Peterborough County Temperance Convention which will be held in the Public Library, Peterborough, next Tuesday, has grown rapidly during the past two weeks. Most of the churches in the county, including those at Havelock, Norwood, Lakefield, Keene and other centres, as well as the country circuits, have appointed three or more delegates in addition to which other temperance interests of the county will be represented at the convention. It promises to be possibly the largest temperance convention ever held in the county.

The object of the meeting is to determine what action the temperance interests of the county will take in the next Provincial election. As the delegates that have been appointed include many strong Conservatives and Liberals the outcome of the meeting will naturally be awaited with interest. It is anticipated that strong delegations will be appointed to wait on both party conventions to urge the appointment of delegates whose candidature and platform will be acceptable to the temperance interests. Both morning and afternoon sessions will be held. The officers of the Association are extending an invitation to all who are interested in the temperance cause to attend.

SELECTION OF SEED POTATOES

By Richard Wellington.

In selecting potato tubers for seed purposes, the grower should keep in mind the following well known principles:

1. Select seed true to variety and type.
2. Avoid abnormally elongated and tapering tubers as they are degenerated or run out and will produce only low yields.
3. As a general practice discard the small tubers for seed purposes, as they were obtained largely from poor hills. Small tubers produced by high yielding hills, however, are preferable to larger tubers from poor hills.
4. If you are dependent upon big selection, use tubers weighing at least five ounces for seed and you will find that this will eliminate a large percentage of the inferior strains.
5. Plant hills with one seed piece and during the summer mark the most vigorous hills with stakes and save the tubers that yield best and are truest to type for next season's seed plot.
6. If hill selection is carefully carried out, there will be little, if any need for change of seed. There are records of several growers who have maintained their yield for long periods by careful selection.
7. If your seed stock has been running out by improper selection, purchase new seed true to variety and type from a reliable grower or seedsman.
8. Stick to the standard varieties that have been proved by trial successful in your locality and avoid or test only in small way the new or little-known sorts.

The New Pride Of The Inland Seas

The "Noronic" of the Northern Navigation Company and Marine Consort of the Grand Trunk System—The Last Word in Naval Art

QUEEN OF THE LAKES

When the S. S. "Noronic" swings out from Sarnia, on June 3rd for its initial trip over the Lake Superior route for the Northern Navigation Company, all Canada can point to it and say a "Canadian Creation" from its mammoth keel to its towering heads.

Not only is the "Noronic" the masterpiece of Canadian hands and minds, but it is "Canadian Owned." The Dominion has just cause to be mighty proud of the Giant of the Inland Seas," for it marks a big advance in the science of modern steam ship navigation. The "Noronic" has been called the final word in art of naval architecture.

When the greatest craftsmen of Canada, at the Port Arthur ship yards had expended their energies on the "Noronic" it was sent down to Sarnia for its final grooming by educated Dominion hands.

In this Ontario city the "Noronic" took on its final tasty interior touches, while the great commercial cities of Canada supplied the mammoth liner with its utensils. From Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa came the Empire's finest furnishings. The exquisite white linen which adorns the "Noronic" dining tables, the silverware, all the rich furnishings of the parlour cabins, the state rooms, and in fact everything on this great liner benefitted Canadian bank accounts.

And of what value is this great ship to Canada and its people you ask? It will bring two flourishing sections of the great Canadian Empire into the safest and swiftest communication with each other and will bind closer that tie which exists between the United States and the Dominion.

The great resources of the Canadian Northwest and rich trade centres of Eastern Canada are brought closer together with the coming of the "Noronic." Also mother earth's dividends of the American northwest are opened up to all Canada.

Commerce is the backbone of the nations of the world. The "Noronic" will build with the greatest possible safety this muscle and fibre of national industrial health. It will also pour into the vast Northwest settlers and moneyed interest of the east. Its work is that of pioneer in one long battle with forces of the sea to promote civilization.

"The Noronic" has been designed to the purpose of carrying people and freight from "The Gateway to Eastern Canada," Sarnia, to the "Gateways to the Great Northwest," Port Arthur and Fort William, Canadian hands and Canadian brains have made possible this Canadian Construction.

Prevention of Dust By Use of Calcium Chloride

Since the majority of the roads of the country are earth, gravel or water bound macadam, one of the chief phases of the dust problem is the laying of dust on these roads. It is generally conceded that water sprinkling, at least by the methods commonly employed, is not practicable for the majority of such roads on account of the frequent difficulty of obtaining water near at hand, and the consequent excessive cost. Therefore various artificial dust layers have been produced, many of them acting with water to produce the desired effect.

With the exception of calcium chloride they are bituminous materials; and their effectiveness depend upon their property of retaining moisture applied to the road surface and absorbing moisture from the atmosphere. It is applied by either the "wet" or the "dry" method. By the first it is dissolved in water and applied from an ordinary sprinkling cart, a solution of from 1 lb. to 1 1-2 lbs. to each gallon of water being used.

The second method is especially applicable where water is not easily obtained. By this method the dry material in its granular form is spread directly upon the road and allowed to dissolve by the absorption of moisture from the air. One pound being said to extract and retain from 1 lb. to 1 1-4 lbs. of water from the atmosphere. The manufacturers recommend the use of about 1 1-2 lbs. to the square yard of road surface for the first application, though smaller amounts may be used with satisfactory results. For the second and subsequent applications, less than 1 1-2 lbs. per sq. yard may be used. —F. W. E. Doan in the Canadian Municipal Journal.

Ladies Of The George St. Church Held Concert

Enjoyable Programme Was Presented in the Sunday School Room of Church Last Night

The Ladies' Aid of the George Street Church held a benefit concert in the Sunday school room of the Church last night, which was fairly well attended. The concert was for the purpose of raising funds for charitable purposes, and the programme was pronounced an exceedingly enjoyable one. During an intermission a sale of home made candy was carried on with much success, and the net proceeds will considerably augment the funds at the disposal of the ladies for charitable purposes.

The Rev. R. G. Peever occupied the chair and the following programme was very successfully rendered.

Selection—Sunday school orchestra.
Recitation—Miss Beatty.
Solo—Miss Hanson.
Recitation—Mrs. (Rev.) Lewis.
Piano duet—The Misses McKee.
Solo—Mrs. Renwick.
Recitation—Miss Pentland.
Selection—By the Orchestra.
Solo—Miss Sanderson.
Violin solo—Miss Telford.
Solo—Mr. Johnson.

The orchestra was under the capable leadership of Mr. W. H. Cunningham.

WHY IS DAVID NOT IN HEAVEN? (ACTS, 2: 34.)

This will be the subject of another lecture of the I.B.S.A. series to be given in the Princess Theatre Sunday, 3 p.m., by Mr. J. Trappy. This is said to be one of the most interesting lectures of the entire series, as it deals with many questions which have perplexed Bible students for so long. The speaker claims that Jehovah's great plan can be understood only by "rightly dividing the word of truth," and the great trend of our day towards doubt and infidelity comes from not appreciating the beauty and harmony of God's great message of love.

Fatal Season For The Seal Fishers

With the arrival of the s.s. Diana, the sealing voyage for 1914 closes. The voyage stands out unfortunately as the worst voyage ever known for the toll exacted in life and limb. It has been marked by the loss of 77 lives and the maiming of a number of others in the case of the disaster to the crew of the Newfoundland, and the loss of the Southern Cross with 173 souls. This terrible loss has aroused the sympathy of thousands of people at home and abroad, and now some $200,000 is in sight to cope with the distress and destitution which these disasters have brought in their train. The disasters of the voyage are such as to give a pause to the country and to make those in authority and those interested in the voyage, ship owners and sealers alike, stop and think as to what can be done to eliminate the risks which have proved so deadly this year, from the voyage. Everybody feels that legislative provisions must be made to safeguard sealers from such deaths as some of them met on board of the Southern Cross and on the ice when hunting from the Newfoundland.—St. John Telegram.

WHAT MOTHERS SAY OF BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Thousands of mothers use no other medicine for their little ones but Baby's Own Tablets. Once a mother has used the Tablets she will use no other medicine. Concerning them Mrs. Geo. M. Binns, Clifford, Ont., writes: "Enclosed find twenty-five cents for another box of Baby's Own Tablets as I would not be without them. When a baby is cross and fretful I give him a tablet or two and he is soon well and happy again. I know of no other medicine to equal them and find them far superior to Castor oil." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FOSSAL BALM
Goes Right to the Spot

If you have a cold in the head—if your nasal passages are inflamed, stuffed up, smarting—or if you suffer from chronic nasal catarrh—you can get quick relief by using Fossal Balm.

This is an antiseptic, healing salve put up in a collapsible tube so formed as to make it remarkably easy to use. When the elongated cap is removed it uncovers the nozzle-shaped end of the tube, about half an inch long. This is inserted in the nose and the tube squeezed gently, depositing a little of the Balm well up in the nasal passages. A little rubbing of the nose, and the indrawn breath, distributes the Fossal Balm throughout the passages, where it comes directly into contact with the inflamed membranes and the germs of disease. The latter it kills—the former it soothes and heals. The smarting irritation disappears—the nostrils unsheared, making breathing easy—and the catarrhal conditions, if they exist, are corrected.

Get a 50c tube of Fossal Balm from your Druggist, or write for it direct to us. National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Montreal.

RESOLUTION ENDORSING THE PROPOSED CIVIC DRIVEWAY

Moved by R. J. Boden, seconded by W. E. Conway, that this gathering of citizens, having heard with pleasure and gratification the report of the special committee of the Peterborough Horticultural Society, that has been cooperating with the officers of the Board of Trade and Ad. Club in the movement for the civic beautification of Peterborough, desires to most heartily endorse the proposed civic driveway, to compliment and thank those who have worked so faithfully in promoting the movement and perfecting the details as well as those who have contributed financially, and to call upon the City Council and other civic bodies, and the citizens of Peterborough generally, especially those who live along the proposed driveway, to cooperate with the originators of this movement in carrying it to a successful conclusion. We desire, also, to approve of the slogan—"Picturesque Peterborough," and to express the hope that its suitable character may soon be exemplified by the improved appearance of our City.

BUSINESS IMPROVING

Mr. J. S. Denins, Assistant to the President, C.P.R., and head of the Department of Natural Resources of that Company, arrived from the West this morning on a visit to headquarters.

Speaking of conditions in the west, Mr. Dennis said business both on the railway line and in the cities and towns is quiet, but improving, owing to the very fine spring and the early movement of people to the west. It is not very generally recognised that following the extraordinary development experienced in all the western provinces of Canada during the past few years resulting as it has in the rapid growth of urban centres, there must naturally be a period of check in this class of growth until the settlement and development of the agricultural areas catch up. The inflated conditions of business and speculative dealing in real estate which always accompany rapid development in a new country have now passed in the west and the progress which is being made is on sound lines. It is early, of course, to speak of crop conditions, but the spring has been exceptionally favourable and the crop has been planted under extremely favourable conditions and includes an area of at least one million acres in excess of last year. The immigration as a whole has shown some falling off, but the decrease has consisted largely of the artizan and labouring class and the class of immigrants looking for land for actual farming, especially from the United States is of a high order and the larger number are intending going in for mixed farming and stock raising instead of a straight grain-growing, which is an exceptionally good feature and indicates that the farmer of the Western Provinces is realizing the value of beginning 'sane' agriculture much sooner than has been the experience in the early settlement of the Western States. The land colonizing campaign of the Canadian Pacific has been very successful so far this year. A large number of the best class of farmers have been located in the West and there is every indication that now that the exceptionally favourable terms of the Company's policy is becoming more widely known and realized in the United States and Northern Europe, the number of settlers to take up and develop land will steadily increase.

They Cured All Of His Troubles

What Nova Scotia Farmer Says of Dodd's Kidney Pills

Just Why John A Campbell Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills to Everybody who has Kidney Disease.

Hillsdale, N.S., May 15—(Special)—"I can recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to everybody suffering from Kidney Disease." These are the words of Mr. John A. Campbell, a well-known and highly respected farmer living near here. Mr. Campbell suffered from Kidney Disease for three months. He used two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pils with the result that he says emphatically "Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me of all my troubles."

It is well to note that Mr. Campbell says he was cured of all his troubles. For when you cure the Kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills the result is new health and vigour all over the body. The Kidneys are the organs that strain all the impurities out of the blood. When the Kidneys are wrong they fail to do their work and the impurities remain in the blood, the circulation becomes clogged and the net result is lassitude and weakness all over the body. Dodd's Kidney Pills correct all this and give new life and energy all over the body.

BETTER FARMING SPECIAL

The Better Farming Special, which will be run by the Canadian Pacific Railway in cooperation with the Saskatchewan College of Agriculture, will, it is expected, start on June 15 or within a few days of that date. It has been arranged that the special will cover the Weyburn-Lethbridge line as far as Shaunavon, while it is possible that it may go 26 miles further west to Estend. It will travel on the main line west of Moose Jaw and cover the Expanse, Express and Vanguard branches. In all 30 meetings will be held, including such places as Strasburg, Craven, Lanigan, Colfinnay, etc. This special train will be the first of its kind to tour this part of the Dominion for the purpose of providing education in agriculture, and the Saskatchewan Government has given Canada the lead in every instance in giving to the farmers in the outlying districts facilities for accumulating knowledge in farming and agriculture.

CITIZENS ENDORSE

is quite sufficient, and with it you can get a 15 foot boulevard on either side and a six foot sidewalk on the other side. With this you have the foundation for making an avenue.

SPACING OF TREES.

In parts of Peterborough, Mr. Chambers stated that there were twice as many trees as were needed. They should be spaced anywhere from 20 to 30 and 39 feet apart. The latter space was good enough for the appearance of the street. He urged that if the trees are not already under the jurisdiction of some person that no time be lost until some one was placed in control.

SYMMETRY OF STREETS.

"In Toronto we select two or three promising streets, and with the cooperation of the residents prepare to decorate the fronts from one end of the street to the other. Depending upon the distance the residences are from the street line, we plant a border the whole length of the street 10, 12, or 15 feet from the curb. In this way you get a whole effect. No matter what individual citizens might do, in this way you get special thought and special planning in the work of beautifying the streets. It may be difficult to do somethings at the outset, but get the people interested first.

INTEREST THE CHILDREN.

"Take steps to interest the children in this proposal. If they become interested they will take a pride in preserving what you do. Children, you know, are naturally destructive. We found it a great advantage to interest them through the medium of school gardens, and gradually they came to take care of property outside the schools. They introduce better ideas into the homes, and they help spread the desire for beauty in the streets. I would just as soon interest the children as the Board of Trade any day."

No man, woman or child could be better engaged than in this work. If every one would co-operate in the carrying out of the schemes for beautification it would not be long until results would be apparent.

In conclusion Mr. Chambers again emphasized the necessity of definite plans, carefully thought out before undertaken and prepared with forethought.

Trees Neglected.

Mr. Morton, of Ottawa, also replied to the toast. He said that in walking around the city he first concluded that the trees were being neglected. Further on he began to wonder what the Park Commissioner could be thinking of and finally he wes forced to the conclusion that Peterborough had no Park Commission. There has been no planting of trees. Each individual has planted whatever trees he chose. Some have been trimmed with round heads, others trimmed tall and still again others that were not trimmed at all. He suggested that the trees on one street be confined to a particular variety.

A Tree Census.

"Take a census of all the trees on your streets and mark down their locations on paper. Know what condition they are in and the spaces from the other trees. In this way you can begin a plan of handling trees.

You can then decide what trees should come out. There are too many trees on some of your streets now. Over one-half your trees are soft maples. They are a poor trees and not suitable for a city. They branch too low and are less suitable for trimming purposes. You should get rid of these trees slowly, replacing them with better trees.

Best Trees for the City.

Avoid the Manitoba Maple. It is no good. Also avoid the poplar. If you have any pull with the powers at Ottawa, get them to take out the poplars planted along the canal. That was a serious mistake. Replace them with elms or hard maples."

The trees which Mr. Morton recommended for use on Peterborough's streets were the hard maple, the elm, the red maple, and red oak.

He recommended the basswood for sections of the city near railways and factories, in places where there is dust and dirt in the air. The horse-chestnut should not be planted on streets. The leaves show the dust very readily, and when they fall on the pavement they are as slippery as banana peels. This tree is suitable for a big lawn or a park where it has a chance to develop.

On the streets avoid planting the white maple, poplar and Manitoba maple.

Picturesque Peterborough

In proposing this toast Mr. Basil Hall remarked that it was too bad the present scheme had not been undertaken in 1825. There were plenty of trees here then; in fact the whole City was well covered with them. Mr. Hall stated that Peterborough had a splendid natural beauty which could be developed by attention to places where the most good can be done. There are beautiful vistas in this city that cannot be excelled anywhere in the country.

Peterborough Not Extravagant.

In replying to the toast Mr. Cowan presented figures showing the expenditure of various cities in the Province on parks. Toronto expends $1.75 for each individual in the City on parks and beautification work; Hamilton spends 46 cents per capita; London, 31 cents; Guelph, 20 cents; and Peterborough, 4 1-2 cents. Mr. Cowan presented a map of the proposed driveway as prepared by City Engineer Parsons, who had given every support to the preliminary working out of the new scheme. He hurried over the driveway route and stated that with the co-operation of the citizens the idea would soon be materialized.

"I do not think it is wise to criticise the Council. As soon as the people show that they want this the Council will not hold it up. We are looking ahead to several years' effort. We undertook to raise $1200, which would be spent at the rate of $400 a year. The citizens were approached and some gave as high as $25 a year for the three years. Others gave $15, $10 and so on, and I am glad to say that, to-night the full $1,200 has been subscribed. We do not intend to devote all our energies to the new scheme. We will make a canvass of the people along the proposed route to enlist their support to the driveway scheme and the Horticultural Society will supply horticultural articles at reduced prices. We hope the Council will co-operate to the extent of improving the streets along the driveway. We hope there will be an effort to plant trees in a systematic manner along the route."

Mr. Parsons was called to the long distance telephone shortly after he began his speech. He was speaking of the necessity of knowing the 'soils most suitable for the trees to be used in the city, when he was interrupted.

The Provincial Government.

Alderman Duffus proposed the Provincial Government and pointed out that an effort should be made to secure larger grants for horticultural purposes.

Mr. E. A. Peck in reply stated that the Provincial Government insisted on cities being clean, but not on their being tidy. Large grants were given to agriculture because the expenditure of the public money was intended for the material advancement of the citizens. Horticulture is of some importance to the Province, but it does not assist in the material welfare of the people. This present proposal is an extension of the idea of beautifying the county. There are lovely lakes to the north and south of us and the Province may have a great deal to do with this in the near future. A large sum of money has been voted for the development of roads in the province.

The City Council.

Mr. G. O. Cameron proposed the "City Council" toast stating that all agreed that the City Council was making an honest effort to make the city worth living in. The Mayor has in public and private tried to induce young men to take an interest in public affairs. The result is that the Board of Trade and Ad Club got in line. Both are largely composed of young men, and if the Mayor did nothing else during his term of office his work would not be in vain. After this scheme has been brought to a successful issue the Council should see to it that a proper curb is placed on the assessor who will not be permitted to fine people for the improvements to their property.

Mayor Buller.

Mayor Buller stated that he was glad to know the young men were taking hold of the Board of Trade. He called attention to his stand in regard to sidewalks being placed within the tree line. He had always been in favour of it with the exception of one case. It is cheaper to put in a curb than to pave the whole street from sidewalk to sidewalk when the latter are outside the tree line. Mayor Buller promised his hearty support to the scheme.

Alderman Anderson regretted that the grant to the Horticultural Society had not been larger than it was. He was in favour of making a larger grant knowing what the society was undertaking, but other expenses prevented more generosity.

Alderman Duncan remarked that many of the trees in the city are dead or punky, and about half of them should come out. An effort to keep the proposed driveway in repair could be made by the use of the repair cart idea which will be carried out this summer. The Board of Works has been so busy up to the present with the street pavement, sewer connections, etc., that there has been little opportunity to do anything else.

The City of Peterborough.

This toast was proposed by F. D. Kerr and replied to by S. R. Armstrong, both gentlemen ably speaking for the general body of citizens, and their attitude toward beautifying the city.

School Board and Horticultural Society.

R. Denne proposed this toast. In reply Dr. Morrison stated that the Board recognized the fact that the education of the boys and girls was not gained entirely in school rooms and books. Their education from nature is just as important and for that reason the Board has provided ample grounds for play and for decorative purposes. The Board had arranged for a landscape artist to come to Peterborough to properly lay out the school grounds.

F. R. Yokome, editor of The Examiner, remarked that his vanity had been touched by the endorsation of all the proposals for civic improvement in advocation of which he had written editorials for the past twenty-five years. There was some satisfaction in seeing an energetic effort being made to add to the city's beauty. It needed only taking advantage of the beauties which Nature had provided and enhancing them by thoughtful attention. The cost of planting trees need not be regarded as a burden. Planting 166 trees to every 5,000 feet and setting them 30 feet apart 166 trees could be placed in the ground at a cost of $83. Mr. Yokome remarked that he would continue his references to the proposal in future editorials.

Other Toasts.

In the absence of R. Hicks, the toastmaster proposed the Public Utilities Commission to which W. H. Moore responded.

The Automobile Club was proposed by G. A. Dillespie and responded to by Dr. Amys and Fred Roy.

The Retail Merchants' Association proposed by C. H. Williamson and responded to by N. C. Cameron.

The Manufacturing Interests proposed by Daniel O'Connell.

SHOULD PAVE THE MAIN ARTERIES FIRST

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The petition to have Hunter street paved away out west to the suburbs at Belmont avenue should not be granted until the central sections of the city are first paved, and also the main arteries of thoroughfare leading to the country, such as (1) Charlotte street, which leads to the western townships and the frontier along Lake Ontario, viz., the Gravel road; (2) Hunter street east leading through Ashburnham to the Lift Lock and to Norwood and Warsaw and intervening townships; (3) George and Water streets northward leading to Lakefield and all the back country; (4) George street south leading to the end of the car line and steamboat wharf, as well as the locks and the country beyond, and (5) McDonnel street westward leading to Jackson Park, Chemong Park, Bridgenorth and Bobcaygeon and intervening country. Hunter street west is not a thoroughfare, and leads to nowhere.

Yours truly,
Amicus.

IN REGARD TO EXCURSIONS

Editor of the Examiner:

The Board of Trade was ostensibly formed to inaugurate a new era in the development of our industrial life, but after many years if ineffectual effort and regeneration, one would suppose fro mreading thepapers that it had departed from its original purpose and gone into promoting the excursion business, for it is stated that "The Board of Trade has secured two excursions in June." Does anyone imagine for a moment that to be the case? These excursions, like all others, are undertaken privately by parties who intend to visit some particular spot for an outing without regard to the Board of Trade or any other influence. It only lies with the Mayor to see that the excursionists are well treated and not go away with a bad impression of the city. Former exursionists have been heard to say: "It is a nice place if it was not for its dusty streets and the stench of its slaughter houses."

Yours truly,
City.

ORCHARD AND GARDEN NOTES

Sweet alyssum, golden feather, and lobelia are good annuals for borders.

Sweet peas, asters, calendula, pansies, stocks, and cosmos are excellent for cut flowers.

If the weather is warm and settled, plant a little Golden Bantam sweet corn.

Muskmelons may be started in paper pots or strawberry boxes about five weeks before they can be set in the field.

Kohl Rabi is one of the garden vegetables that should be more widely grown. It is much like the turnip in quality although easier to grow.

The wild cucumber, gourd, scarlet runner bean, and morning glory are excellent quick-growing vines for covering unsightly fences and stumps.

Nasturtiums, portulaca, California poppies, and bachelor buttons will do well on almost any soil so long as there is plenty of sunshine.

Start an asparagus bed this spring. A small plot of well-enriched land will produce a nice lot of asparagus. Conover's Colossal and Palmetto are good varieties.

APPROACHING BALDNESS

May Be Checked By Using Herpicide

The above expression is one which is used frequently in connection with hair preparations. Just exactly what is meant by it in each instance is a question. Baldness is not a disease and hence, does not permit of a cure. It is a result invariably to be traced to the dandruff germ, and if the condition has become chronic, that is, if there is complete atrophy of the hair follicles, a "cure" is absolutely impossible.

Approaching baldness; seen in falling hair, may always be checked and if the hair follicles are not atrophied the hair may be induced again to grow.

This is accomplished by regular applications of Newbro's Herpicide, which cleanses the scalp and eliminates the dandruff. Checking the accumulations of scarf skin, removes the most common enemy to beautify hair.

Soft, glossy, fluffy hair cannot grow on a scalp infested with dandruff any more than a delicate plant can grow on an ash heap. The scalp must be kept clean and free from dandruff. The best remedy for doing this is Newbro's Herpicide which receives the highest endorsements from professional men, the stage and the best people everywhere.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c. and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Applications obtained at all first class barber shops and hair dressing parlors.

Address the Herpicide Co., Dept. E., Detroit, Mich., enclosing 10c. in postage or silver for sample and booklet.

SPRING MANAGEMENT OF BEE

The bees are at their lowest ebb when taken out of the cellar in the spring. There are only old, worn-out bees from the preceding fall in the hive, greatly decreased in numbers by winter losses. The old bees will die in about five weeks so the queen now begins to lay eggs in the wax cells which the bees feed and keep at a temperature of about 95 degrees. To provide food for the growing swarm the bees begin to forage the surrounding country for honey and pollen. To keep the brood warm they cover it with their bodies and wings. If there is no pollen or honey in the hive, or if the brood gets chilled, the larvae or young bees will die, and their white bodies will be found in front of the hive in large numbers some morning.

A good bee-keeper will not allow this waste of life. He will feed his bees sugar syrup if there be no honey in the hive or put some scented rye flour in a sunny place near by to take the place of the pollen if no natural pollen can be had. It is especially important to keep the hive warm by covering it with tar paper, sacks, or blankets, and closing part of the entrance, and to see that there are no cracks or openings left in the hive through which the wind may blow. Such management lays the foundation for a large crop of honey.

GENERAL AGENT

"HOIST" IS MOVED

E. M. Macdonald Demands Defeat of C.N.R. Resolution.

FIRST VOTE ON TUESDAY

Hon. G. P. Graham Opposes Proposed Aid to C. N. R. on Ground That Contract Is an Improvident One —Mr. Macdonald Says Promise of C.N.R. to Run Over the I.C.R. Is Not a Concession.

OTTAWA, May 16.—A slim house and vacant galleries greeted the C.N.R. debate yesterday. The first line-up will come on Tuesday, when the House will divide upon E. M. Macdonald's motion to postpone the further considerations of the Government proposals until that day six months hence.

Mr. Edmund Bristol (Con., C. Toronto), in resuming the debate, dealt mainly with the arguments advanced by Mr. Bennett, which he characterized as unfair and unfounded in fact. The Calgary member had spoken of the road as almost worthless, yet he must have known that the Canadian Northern carried one-third of the western wheat last season and had proved to be a real competitor to the Canadian Pacific. The Canadian Northern had brought about freight reductions in the west which saved $50,000,000 to the people of Canada.

It was absurd and unjust to speak of Mackenzie and Mann as mendicants because they asked for financial aid upon good security. If they were mendicants, then every man who borrowed money on collateral from a bank should be denounced as a beggar.

Hon. George P. Graham, who followed, hadn't anything to say against Sir William Mackenzie, Sir Donald Mann or the Canadian Northern enterprise. He believed that Canada needed three transcontinental railways, and that the Canadian Northern should be finished as speedily as possible.

Mr. Graham said that if the road had to be completed by the Government, it would be better for the Government to borrow the money upon its own credit and apply it on construction. He thought, at the time at least, that the Government should take possession and control of the system. The Government would gain little advantage, being a minority stockholder, or from having one representative on the board of directors.

Mr. Graham said he would oppose the resolutions because he thought the contract made by the Government was an improvident one. The so-called securities had no real value. The Government should require statutory declarations from Messrs. Mackenzie, Mann and Lash as to their financial resources, and the Government should not come to the assistance of the road unless the proprietors risked their private fortunes in carrying the enterprise.

J. J. Carrick (Con., Rainy River) went after R. B. Bennett vigorously. He said that the Calgary member was a disappointed office-seeker who was sore because he had not been taken into the Cabinet. His bitterness arose from the fact that Mr. Meighen and not Mr. Bennett was Solicitor-General. The Conservative members had been sent to Ottawa to follow R. L. Borden, not to follow a "bucking broncho from Alberta."

"We have a new party in this country," Mr. Carrick continued, "of which the member of Calgary is chief and the member for Kingston (Mr. Nickle) is first lieutenant. The member for Prince Edward County (Mr. Hepburns) was to be chief whip, but declined the honor, and the member for Brandon (Mr. Aikins), who was to be the only private, has started for the woods."

Mr. Carrick said the Canadian Northern had done a great deal for Port Arthur and Fort William and New Ontario. Years ago the town of Port Arthur held up a C. P. R. train in order to collect a small debt, and Sir William Van Horne had declared that the grass would grow in her streets. The grass had begun to grow, but the Canadian Northern had mowed it down.

E. M. Macdonald (Lib., Pictou) moved the six months' hoist. He said that last year Mr. Lash had toyed with the Finance Minister and put it over him so grossly that this year Mr. White refused to deal with the Canadian Northern host and turned them over to Mr. Meighen. Now it would be found that Mr. Lash had also put it all over the Solicitor-General.

The House was told that it was a great concession to have the Canadian Northern accept running rights over the Intercolonial. As a matter of fact, the Canadian Northern and the Canadian Pacific as well had been allowing big money for years for such running rights. Now the Canadian Northern not only got them for nothing, but Mr. Lash had made Mr. Meighen believe that the Government was scoring a great victory.

AN INTERNATIONAL AFFAIR.

Cartier Monument Unveiling Will Involve Three Rulers.

MONTREAL, May 16. — Arrangements were completed yesterday for the participation in the unveiling here of a statue of Sir George Etienne Cartier, on Sept. 7, by King George, President Raymond Poincare of France, and President Wilson of the United States. They will do so by electricity. King George will press a button at Sandringham, which will unfurl a British flag. A button pressed by the President of France, in Paris, will raise the tri-color, while when President Wilson touches another button at the White House in Washington, the Stars and Stripes will be hoisted.

The actual unveiling of the monument will be performed by Sir Charles Tupper, who will make an attempt to come to Canada for the purpose. If unable to do so he will release the drapeaux around the statue by cable from his residence in England.

F. D. MONK IS DEAD

Ex-Cabinet Minister Succumbs to Hardening of Arteries.

TRIBUTES IN THE COMMONS

Late Hon. Mr. Monk Was Fifty-Eight Years of Age and Had Been Ill Since Shortly After Leaving the Ministry in 1912 — Resigned His Seat Last March—Father Was Prominent Jurist.

MONTREAL, May 16.—Hon. F. D. Monk, former Minister of Public Works in the Dominion Cabinet, died here yesterday morning.

Mr. Monk resigned his seat for Jacques Cartier on March 3 last, owing to the continuance of his ill-health. He had been absent from Parliament since his resignation of the portfolio of Public Works on Oct. 22, 1912, hoping against hope that he would recover sufficiently to attend to his Parliamentary duties.

The late statesman had been suffering from hardening of the arteries. It was noticed Thursday night by his physicians that he was sinking and the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church, to which he belonged, were administered by Rev. Father Trefle, a personal friend.

The end came about 3.25, the daughter of Mr. Monk and his two sons, F. A. and J. D. Monk, being present. Mr. Monk was conscious to the last.

Among the earliest callers on the bereaved family was Henri Bourassa, a very old friend of the dead former Minister.

Frederick Debartzch Monk, D.C.L., K.C., was born at Montreal in 1856. He was a son of the late Hon. Samuel Cornwallis Monk, a judge of Court of Queen's Bench for the Province of Quebec, his mother being of French descent. He graduated in law at McGill University and was called to the Bar in 1878. He represented Jacques Cartier in the Dominion Parliament from 1896 to 1914. He was Minister of Public Works in the Borden Cabinet from Oct. 10, 1911, to Oct. 28, 1912, when he resigned, being out of sympathy with the Borden naval policy. Owing to continued ill-health he relinquished his seat on March 3, 1914.

Hon. Mr. Monk was leader of the Conservative party in Quebec from 1900 to 1904. He was said to have been the best bilingual speaker in Canada, and his unfailing courtesy and kindliness made him popular on both sides of the House.

Premier Deplores Death.

OTTAWA, May 16.—The death of Hon. F. D. Monk drew tributes to his worth from Premier Borden, Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Hon. C. J. Doherty and Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux in the Commons yesterday. The Premier said that he and Mr. Monk were first elected members of the House at the same time, and ever since they had been closely associated in public affairs. Though there were sometimes marked differences between him and Mr. Monk on public policies, yet those differences never interfered with their personal friendship. He was a man of distinguished qualities, a great Parliamentarian, of great ability and industry and of commanding presence in the Parliamentary and public affairs of Canada.

Mr. Doherty said that the death of Mr. Monk was a loss to the country.

GREER EMPTY HANDED.

Moyes Never Went To Algonquin Park, Say: Detective.

TORONTO, May 16. — Inspector Greer returned to the city yesterday from Algonquin Park, having failed to find any trace of J. W. Moyes, who is wanted by the police in connection with the failure of the Ontario West Shore Railway.

Mr. Greer said he doubted if Moyes ever was in Algonquin Park at the time his counsel stated he had gone north in search of health. He vouchsafed the opinion that Mr. Moyes was too well advised to be silly enough to go north at a time when he might be wanted on a charge. In view of the fact that Moyes left the city while the investigation was in progress, Mr. Greer ventured the criticism that those interested in the case might have taken some action to have him watched until the result of the inquiry was decidedly known. As the matter now stands, it is up to the Toronto police, who held the warrant, to execute it. If any assistance is wanted in this direction Deputy Attorney-General says the provincial authorities will provide it.

Inspector of Detectives Kennedy states that there will be no let-up in the hunt. Circulars will be sent broadcast giving Moyes' description and photograph.

The general impression is that Moyes left Toronto and went north to Scotia Junction. From there he may have gone to Parry Sound and taken a boat to Sault Ste. Marie and thence into United States territory; or on the other hand he may have gone back by way of Ottawa.

Home Rule For Scotland.

LONDON, May 16.—The Commons yesterday discussed the Home Rule for Scotland bill, a private member's measure proposing to establish a single chamber of the Scotch Parliament, consisting of 140 members, and which is "intended to represent an instalment of the devolution policy initiated by the Home Rule Bill."

S. I. Macpherson (Lib.) moving the second reading, declared there existed a strong demand in Scotland for the control of local affairs.

Prohibition Rejected.

HALIFAX, N.S., May 16.—By a margin of one vote, 24 to 23, the motion by Mr. Tanner with the object of providing prohibition for the city of Halifax, was defeated in the House of Assembly yesterday afternoon after a discussion of about two hours. Premier Murray opposed the amendment on the ground that prohibition would make conditions worse in Halifax.

Prisoners at Bracebridge Defer Plea to Murder Charge.

SPENDING LED TO CAPTURE

Men Accused of Slaying Robert Hayde Near Honey Harbor Were Arrested Without a Struggle, But Only After a Long Search by Detective Miller — Hayde Had Large Sum In Pocket.

BRACEBRIDGE, Ont., May 16.—Arrested Thursday at Honey Harbor on suspicion of complicity in the murder and robbery of Robert Hayde, the Tomahawk Point grocer, on March 27, Peter and Andrew Moreau were brought here last night from Midland by Provincial Inspector John Miller. Magistrate Spencer remanded the prisoners until next Thursday.

Suspicion in the Moreau brothers was first attracted by the manner in which they are alleged to have spent money shortly after Hayde was murdered, while previous to that time they were like the majority of settlers near Tomahawk Point, living in a hand-to-mouth fashion, depending on farming in a small way and fishing for their sustenance.

Provincial Inspector Miller was reticent about the case. From what information could be gleaned from him the evidence that will be produced by the crown will be almost entirely circumstantial, although he stated that he felt sure he had secured the murderers in the Moreau brothers.

When Miller arrived the ice which connected the island was unsafe, and his investigation was hampered. When he became satisfied that the Moreau brothers knew something of the murder he started to search for them, but it took two weeks to locate them. They submitted to arrest without any fight.

The prisoners, who so far have denied any connection with the crime, are French-Canadians. Peter, who is about 24 years of age, is married and has a four-weeks-old baby. Andrew is about 18 years old. They were a dejected-looking pair, poorly clad, sullen and untalkative. During the trip from Midland scarcely a word passed between the two brother.

It is understood that while the detective has been in the bush much stolen property has been located, as well as two illicit whisky stills, and further arrests are expected any minute.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Noah Whitbread, 59, mayor of Westport, died at his home in that village after a short illness of pneumonia.

The Nova Scotia Power Bill passed its third reading in the House of Assembly and was transferred to the Legislative Council.

Among those present at the morning session of the Becker trial in New York yesterday, was Hon. J. J. Foy, Attorney-General of Ontario.

Walter Webb, 70, Dundas, a Galt town employe engaged in the electric light service, scaled a pole, which broke under his weight, and he fell a distance of thirty feet, being killed instantly.

King Haakon and Queen Maude of Norway yesterday opened with imposing ceremonial an exhibition at Christiania, commemorative of the Centenary of Norwegian independence from Denmark.

Rosa Salemi, aged 40, of Palermo, Italy, who already is the mother of a large family, gave birth to two boys and three girls Thursday. The mother and her five new-borns are doing well.

According to The London Standard not a single member of the Liberal party was present at Earl Curzon's recent ball for his daughter, the reason being the word went round to boycott the function.

Just a week and a half after he had left home to learn steamboat engineering on the steamer Durston, Clark Knowlton, 16 years old, son of ex-Alderman G. A. Knowlton, of Fort William, was drowned at Toledo, O.

HAD ELABORATE PLANT.

Headquarters of International Counterfeiting Gang Is Raided.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 16. — The discovery of a gang of international counterfeiters became known yesterday when it was made public that United States secret service operatives seized a counterfeiting plant at Seattle, valued at $3,000. Detectives are working on clues concerning the identity of the men who have been operating in Western Washington and British Columbia and eastward throughout Canada as far as Ottawa. The counterfeiters have been turning out twenty-dollar Canadian bank notes and Canadian five-dollar bills, and secret service men estimate that at least $10,000 of this money has been issued on the Pacific coast in the last six months.

Two Army Aviators Dead.

NORTH ALLERTON, Eng., May 16.—Two more British army aviators were killed yesterday when here during a combined flight by a squadron of military aeroplanes from Scotland to Salisbury Plains.

The victims were Lieut. J. Hanson of the Royal Fusiliers and Sergt. Dudmore, who was acting as mechanic.

The accident occurred while the aviators were trying to land in a dense fog. The machine struck the ground sharply and overturned the two occupants being killed by the motor falling on them.

Canteen Scandal Trial.

LONDON, May 16—The trial opened at the Old Bailey, London, Thursday, of the civilians alleged to have been implicated in the great army "canteen scandal," who had been committed, after a long magisterial investigation, on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government by a representative of Lipton's, Limited.

Big Amusement Park on Fire.

ROCHESTER, N.Y., May 16.—Fire late last night threatened the destruction of Ontario Beach Park, an amusement resort on the shore of Lake Ontario, about seven miles north of this city. A device called the Virginia Reel, and a bath house were destroyed, entailing a loss of approximately $10,000. An off shore wind saved the rest of the buildings, worth about $200,000.

DUEL DOUBLY FATAL.

Two Men Killed In Sanguinary Affray at a Dance.

NORTH BAY, Ont., May 16.—Woman River, a small hamlet on the C.P.R. main line, 200 miles west of North Bay, was the scene of a tragic shooting affray Thursday night, which resulted in two men being shot to death.

A public dance was being held, and it is said that considerable liquor was consumed by the male dancers, with the result that a free fight occurred. John Chapman of L'Orignal and Lee Fortin of Woman River drew revolvers and began shooting at each other. Both men were shot dead.

Preparing For Advent of Permanent Pavement

The Grand Trunk gates at Simcoe street have been made ready for the time when that thoroughfare will be covered with a permanent pavement. The underground cables which operate the gates are placed in pipes which in the winter are filled with oil. Surrounded with oil the cables are completely safeguarded from injury by the frost or water, and there will be no necessity of tearing up the street to get at them. In the past much of this was needed, and the gates were repeatedly put out of commission during the winter. The gates at Charlotte street were remedied in this connection also.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Petes Play Snappy Ball And Capture Second Game of Series

Ken Tracey's Effective Pitching Held Cockneys in Check and Bloomtmen Took Full Advantage of Hammond's Charities-----Final Score After a Pretty Battle Was 3 to 2 --Some Sensational Fielding.

Looking like a new team and playing snappy clever ball behind steady, effective pitching by Ken Tracey, the Petes turned the tables on the London Tecumsehs yesterday and won a 3 to 2 decision over the Reisling crew. Tracey pitched one of his old-time games. Every one had to hit to get on as the Detroit boy's control was perfect, and not a visitor sauntered, while with men on the sacks "Trace" was most effective. He showed his nerve in the seventh when after the first two men had singled and had been sacrificed along, he fanned Cy Reidy the batting star of the series and caused Mullin to roll an easy grounder back at him.

The Bloomtmen fielded snappily behind Tracey. They executed a pretty double play in the fifth that prevented trouble and First-baseman Gorman pulled off a Hal Chase play on Bierbauer's bunt in the eighth, nipping Long at the plate as he tried to score what would have been the tying run. The outfielders all had pretty catches and Wilcox in left pulled off three beautiful running grabs of fly balls. He speared two in the first innings that looked like sure hits' coming in like a flash to nail the ball on the bound and tagging Linnes were charged to Price, who had a couple of bad throws to first, neither of which had anything to do with the run-getting.

The visitors also contributed some classy fielding and the game was a pretty one for the four hundred fans. Lamy, the speed boy in centre field, tore off a grand running catch of Wilcox's hard smash to right centre, and also had a fine peg to the plate that cut off a run.

Kelly did the receiving for the Petes and the Erie boy made a fine impression on the fans. He showed speed and lots of pepper, pegged out the only two base runners that tried to steal and looked good at the bat. The youngster certainly shaped up fine in there yesterday and had the crowd all with him when the game was over. His throw that nailed Linneborn on a delayed steal showed quick thinking and incidentally Second-baseman King made a grand play on the same episode, taking the ball o nthe bound and tagging Linneborn on the run.

Altogether the Petes looked a 100 per cent. better than on oponing day. They were hitting the ball on the nose, and they cashed in with their safeties where they counted the most.

Hammond, a big-right-hander with considerable stuff, was the London twirler. He only allowed seven hits, but his lack of control was very costly. In the first innings he hit Fox and Wilcox, and in the third he passed the same pair, and the Petes' three runs resulted, thanks to timely hitting by Byrne and King. After the third the big fellow held the Petes pretty well in check, but he was lucky to escape a score in the eighth, a fast double play coming to his rescue.

It was a fine game of glorified rounders, and a treat after the opening day travesty.

The game by inning:s

First Innings.

London — Linneborn died on a grounder to Price. Wilcox made a beautiful running catch of Long's short fly to left and duplicated on Lamy's fly to the same field. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough—Blount fanned. Fox was hit. Wilcox also was hit. King drove a beautiful single to centre, scoring Fox, while Wilcox went to third, and King to second on Lamy's throw to the plate. Byrne scored Wilcox with a sacrifice fly to Lamy. Gorman flied to Long. Two runs, one hit, no errors.

Second Innings.

London—Bierbauer grounded to King. Whitcraft fanned. Reidy singled over third, and was out stealing by a block, Kelly to King. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough—Price grounded to Mullin. Kelly doubled along the left field foul line, reaching second by a pretty slide. Tracey grounded to Mullin, Kelly going to third. Blount cracked one back at Hammond and was out at first. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Third Innings.

London—Mullin fanned. Danford died on a high one to Gorman. Hammond struck out. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough — Fox walked and stole second, Danford's throw going to centre field. Wilcox also worked Hammond for a pass. King sacrificed, Bierbauer tagging him on the line. Byrne singled to centre, scoring Fox, but Lamy got Wilcox with a nice throw when he tried to score on the play. Byrne went to second on the toss to the plate. Gorman flied to Lamy. One run, one hit, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

London—Blount made a pretty catch of Linneborn's hard smash to left centre. Long doubled to left, Wilcox making a good stab for the drive. Price went back and grabbed Lamy's high one. Bierbauer flied to Fox, a nice grab by the right-fielder. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough—Price singled on a line to right. Kelly sacrified, Mullin to Linneborn. Tracey grounded to Linneborn. Blount fanned. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

London—Whitcraft flied to Wilcox. Reidy dropped a Texas Leaguer back of second. Mullin hit to Price who heaved high to first. Reidy going to third and Mullin to second. Danford cracked one at Byrne, who pegged to the plate cutting Reidy off. Kelly chased him back nearly to third tagging him out, and then heaved to King, getting Mullin trying to go back to second. No runs, one hit, one error.

Peterborough—Fox fanned. Lamy robbed Wilcox of a hit by a beautiful running catch. King doubled to deep left centre. Byrne grounded to Hammond. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Sixth Innings.

London—Hammond fanned. Linneborn singled to right. He tried the delayed steal and was out, Kelly to King. Wilcox made a nice running catch of Long's fly to left.

Peterborough—Gorman died on a fool fly to Bierbauer. Price fanned. Kelly also missed three. No runs, hits or errors.

Seventh Innings.

London—Lamy singled to short. Price making a pretty one-handed pick-up and neat throw that would have retired a slower runner. Bierbauer scratched a hit on a bounder which Tracey deflected past Byrne. Whitcraft sacrificed, Tracey to King. Reidy fanned, and Mullin died on a grounder to Tracey. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Peterborough—Tracey missed three Blount died on a high one to Bierbauer. Fox was out on a hard smash to Lamy. No runs, hits or errors.

Eighth Innings.

London—Danford dropped a Texas Leaguer into short centre. Hammond struck out. Linneborn singled over second. Long doubled to right centre, scoring Danford and Linneborn. Lamy was safe on Price's bad throw. Bierbauer bunted to Gorman who got Long at the plate. Whitcraft's smash to Byrne forced Lamy at third. Two runs, three hits, one error.

Peterborough — Wilcox singled over second. King hit into a double play, Whitcraft to Linneborn to Bierbauer. Byrne singled to centre and stole second, Danford's throw being wide. Gorman walked. Price died on a grounder to Mullin. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Ninth Innings.

London—Reidy died on a smash to Tracey. Steiger batted for Mullin and grounded to Tracey. Danford went out the same way. No runs, hits or errors.

Summary—Two base hits, Long 2, Kelly, King; struck out, by Tracey 6, by Hammond 6; bases on balls, off Hammond 3; sacrifice hits, King, Byrne, Kelly, Whitcraft; stolen bases, Fox, Byrne; double plays, Byrne to Kelly to King, Whitcraft to Linneborn to Bierbauer; left on bases, Peterborough 7, London 6; first base on errors, London 2; hit by pitcher, Hammond 2 (Fox, Wilcox). Time 1:50. Umpire Bedford.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Wilcox fielded like Ty Cobb yesterday. Three of his catches were very difficult.

Three of the Tecumseh hits off Tracey yesterday were scratchy. Two of them were high flies that dropped back of second base. Blount was playing deep on both occasions.

King had two solid hits yesterday. One a long double to the fence in left centre.

Cy Reidy cashed in with two safeties. The Tecumsehs' right-fielder has had eleven hits in the last four games.

Lamy, champion skater, is a speedy runner as well. His running catch of Wilcox's hard smash was a feature.

Frank Fox did not have a hit, but he got on twice, stole a base and scored two runs, a good day's work.

Hammond put the three runs that beat him on the bases through his wildness.

Joe Byrne fattened his batting average with two hits out of three times up.

Tracey retired the side in the ninth on three grounders which he fielded himself.

To-day's game is called for 3 o'clock.

The Petes climbed out of the cellar yesterday, St. Thomas dropping a notch owing to their defeat at Erie.

Price made a beautiful one-handed pick-up of Lamy's hard smash, but had no chance to get the runner.

Kelly threw nicely to the bases, and his work in running down Reidy and getting Mullen by a nice peg to King was high class.

It looked bad in the seventh with runners on second and third and Cy Reidy up, but Tracey coolly went to work and fanned the hitter.

Umpire Bedford had two close decisions at the plate and showed he's not a homer by calling them both against the Petes

Count Tisza Challenged to Fight.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, May 15.—Count Stephen Tisza, the Hungarian Premier, yesterday challenged to a due Stephen Rakovsky, a fellow committeeman, after a lively altercation in a committee room of the Hungarian Parliament. Seconds were at once appointed.

Bryne Is The Leading Hitter

Third Baseman of Petes Has .429 Mark—Batting Averages

A glance over the Petes' box scores since the season opened shows that Joe Byrne is leading the regulars with the willow, the third-sacker having smashed out nine safeties in twenty one trips to the plate giving a .429 percentage. Catcher Kelly has the very respectable average of .375 in three games, and "Peggy" Swartz has a .333 mark. Gorman, with four to his credit, is the leading run-getter. Here are the figures:

	G	AB	R	H	Pc.
Sterling	1	2	1	1	.500
Byrne	6	21	2	9	.429
Kelly	3	8	1	3	.375
Swartz	3	15	1	5	.333
King	6	23	3	6	.217
Blount	6	23	0	4	.174
Wilcox	3	6	1	1	.167
Ryberg	3	12	0	2	.167
Price	6	21	1	3	.130
Gorman	6	17	4	2	.118
Schettler	4	9	0	1	.111
Fox	6	22	2	2	.091
Tracey	2	6	0	0	.000

And Now For The Senators

The Ottawa Senators, League leaders, will be the attraction at Riverside Park on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and record week-day crowds will undoubtedly welcome the Shag-men on their first visit of the season. The Ottawa team have won four out of their first five starts, but the Petes will give them a battle all through the series. The champs have always found the local gang a stumbling block, for the Petes have generally played like big leaguers against the Easterners. The game will start each day of the series at 3.45 o'clock.

GOLF BALLS

By George Fitch

A golf ball is a piece of currency which varies in value from 50 cents to 75 cents. It is legal tender on all golf courses.

Golf balls are made of fine rubber by an extensive and complicated process which causes them to cost more than watermelons or nail kegs. A golf ball is about 1 1-2 inches in diameter when it is bought, but after it has been driven into the long grass it shrinks to the size of a nickel's worth of radium and is extremely difficult to find.

Golf balls are very elastic and when hit brutally with a long, large-headed club they sometimes fly almost 1,000 feet. In these days of persistent and almost paralytic peace, about the only danger the average business man faces is that of being shot with a golf ball. When such a ball is travelling at its best speed it is almost as dangerous as a charge from an old-fashioned blunderbuss.

Millions of golf balls are made each year in this country, but the visible supply does not increase. In fact there is no visible supply of golf balls. After a ball has gone into use it is invisible most of the time. In the art of crawling under a leaf or down a worm hole, no insect, however well equipped with legs, can excel a golf ball. Each year garlands of bright, new white balls are manufactured, and by winter each one of these balls has retired to some quiet spot on a golf course where it will not be interfered with by man. Some day, thousands of years hence, archaeologists, digging around the United States, will find vast deposits of golf balls in various spots. These spots will represent the golf courses of to-day.

The golf ball is an education in extravagance and also in the art of holding one's temper. If a man can drive two or three nice new golf balls into the mysterious unknown without getting mad and biting his club in two he is scandalously extravagant. And if he isn't extravagant he mislays his temper even more than he has mislaid the balls.

Wolgast Wealthy From Many Fights

"Exile" writing from New York to the Manchester Guardian, says:

A genius for "figures" estimates that Wolgast has earned a matter of £37,200 in four years and a half, yet folks wonder why girls—that is boys leave home. No longer champion, people flock to see him fight—he never "boxed." He has made money faster since losing to Ritchie than he made it while he was title holder, and the sole reason is that when Wolgast enters the ring he fights. He had over 100 bouts before 1909 when Tom Jones met him, and he had quite a bank roll then, but the amount quoted had been earned since then. Straight from a farm, unlettered, knowing nothing but how to take punishment, and worth a quarter of a million dollars. Decidedly I hold a grudge against my father that he so limited my opportunities by trying to make me that very questionable thing—a gentleman and a scholar. The rest must stay behind the veil.

SIX MONTHS FOR SUNNY JIM

"Mr. Wilson, James Wilson, the same old Jim Wilson, Sunny Jim," said Magistrate Dumble, when he called upon that worthy this morning, in the Police Court. "You are charged with being a vagrant, having no means of supporting yourself. Are you guilty or not guilty?"

"Not guilty," came the reply, but Jim didn't know what plea he had made. As a matter of fact, he had to be assisted into court by a police constable.

Jim came out jail a week ago and has been drunk practically ever since.

He was arrested by P. C. Dennard this morning, shortly before eight o'clock, in a very drunken condition.

According to the evidence of P. C. Reid and P. C. Hayward, "Sunny Jim" is a regular and very consistent drunkard and vagrant.

This morning, before court, he wanted to know if he was to be hanged. When his Worship said he would hear evidence, Jim jumped to his feet and shouted vigorous protests and claimed that he was not being given a fair deal.

After the evidence was all given, without hesitation, the Court pronounced a sentence of six months in Central Prison."

"I'll meet you when I get out," he shouted to an officer in the Court. This is the first time that Davy Dumble has ever handed me six months."

Another man who was arrested in Sunny Jim's haunt, Benjamin Hobson, and another frequenter of the Court, was also charged with being a vagrant. "Give him six months, too" said Sunny Jim.

Hobson, however, claimed that he was working in the country, but had come to town on Thursday, and fell in with bad company.

Ben promised to get right back to work if the Court would let him go. He was accordingly allowed to go, but was informed that if he came back again it would be six months next time.

Another old timer, John O'Donghue and another of the party rounded up, was also charged with being a vagrant. John said he had been working with the street construction gang, but his arm had given out, and he was forced to lay off but claimed he could start again on Monday. He will have to take this course, or he, like his other companion, will find board, lodging and lots of work in the Central Prison.

John Bailey and George White, two sidewalk cyclists, were each assessed $2 to be paid in ten days. His Worship would have liked to have added to the costs, but suddenly bethought that this was Saturday, not Monday.

The charge against Louis Yeotes of assaulting a fellow Greek, was dismissed, being of a petty nature. The Court stopped the case in the middle of the evidence for the prosecution.

The "Maple Leaf" Band Discourses Sweet Music.

There are many things—like the modest violet, "born to blush unseen"—or unheard. How few people appreciate the fact that twice, weekly an Alfresco Concert, of good quality, is given outside the Royal Theatre by the Maple Leaf Band, the members of which, under the able conductorship of Mr. A. Armitage, have been brought to a high pitch of musical attainment, and this is all free gratis and for nothing! ELECTIONS IN JULY

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., May 16—(Special Cable)—General elections early in July are now regarded as almost certain according to a statement from the Liberal circles close to the Government. Colour is lent to this rumour by the fact that Lloyd George had a long conference with the King yesterday. This would mean that Parliament would pass the Home Rule and Welsh Disestablishment Bill, and appeal to the electorate after they were rejected by the Lords, which, of course, is inevitable. Even the optimistic Liberals admit that the prospects of such an election are not of the brightest. There is a great danger of a Liberal Labour split, and the Nationalists are likely to kick over the traces unless they are promised that there shall be no amending bill to the Home Rule Bill. Without doubt Ulster's preparations for civil war will scare to the Conservative side many independent voters who look with horror on such possibility of bloodshed within the Kingdom.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. W. S. Wilson, violinist, has today resumed his studies under Jane Hamboung of the Hamboung Conservatory of Music, Toronto, after several weeks' indisposition.

Rev. E. K. Johnson of Bethany Tabernacle has gone to attend the annual council meeting of the Christian and Missionary Alliance at Nyack, N.Y. He expects to be away for two weeks.

Miss Vida Harris of Campbellford, returned home yesterday after a visit with Mrs. W. Peters, 681 Reid Street.

At noon to-day, Mr. Isaac Watson, the victim in last evening's accident, was reported as doing nicely.

THE ROUTE FOR NEW CIVIC DRIVEWAY

The route of the proposed civic parkway commencing from Central Park goes west on McDonnel to Park, north to Smith Street, west to Jackson Park, which is circled then down the boundary to the new West Ward school, east on Weller to Belmont to Hunter, and south on Park to Charlotte Street. There is a cut off here permitting a choice of a short route to the centre of the City or the longer route south on Park to the C.G.E. works and De Laval buildings, east on Princess, south to Lansdowne and east to the vicinity of the Little Lake Cemetery, where a turn will be made north to Crescent and George, then up to Hunter Street. The route then turns east on Hunter Street to the canal, back to Concession Street, north to the Nicholls Oval, west to Inverlea Park and returning to Central Park.

In the centre of the City, merchants have already promised to beautify their business places with flowers and manufacturers have already begun to decorate their premises.

OBITUARY

EDWARD WEBB.

The death occurred this morning in the Nicholls Hospital of Edward Webb, one of the old residents of Peterborough. He was taken ill some weeks ago with a paralytic stroke. The late Mr. Webb was in his 83rd year and was well known among the older citizens. The funeral will take place from the residence of Mr. Walter Squires, 520 Albert Street, and will likely be under the auspices of the Sons of England. The funeral arrangements were not completed at noon to-day pending the arrival of Mr. Ed. Webb, Jr., of Orillia.

J. J. TURNER & SONS PLEASED ST. KITS WITH DECORATIONS

The following letter has been received by J. J. Turner & Sons, from St. Catharines, where the local firm decorated the town upon the occasion of the visit of the Duke of Connaught. The letter speaks for itself:

J. J. Turner & Sons,

Peterborough, Ont.:

Gentlemen,—On behalf of the Publicity and Entertainment Committee of the Board of Trade of St. Catharines, I desire to express our appreciation of the manner in which you decorated the city for the visit of Their Royal Highnesses, the Duke of Connaught and Princess Patricia, on May 11th.

Expressions of appreciation of the decorations were heard on every hand, and their Royal Highnesses passed very complimentary remarks.

Your staff of decorators, under your Mr. Campbell, were very courteous and did everything asked of them by the committee.

Yours very truly,

Henry B. Sargeyne,

Chairman Publicity and Entertainment committee, St. Catharines' Board of Trade.

Two More Stores On Charlotte St.

Are Being Opened in The Residence of R. J. Wolstenholm

Two stores will be opened in the premises of R. J. Wolstenholm, Charlotte street in a short time. After a residence of eighteen years Mr. Wolstenholm vacated his home yesterday, and this morning the remodelling of the house was begun under the direction of James Marshall.

The principal alterations are being made on the ground floor where two stores will be provided. They will have large plate glass windows and will be thoroughly equipped for retail business.

This is another indication of the growing importance of Charlotte street as a retail rival of George street.

A SUCCESSFUL FISHING TRIP

Messrs. Thos. M. Howard, K. G. Lech, Cyril Lech, and M. Sine, of Bancroft, have returned from a fishing trip nine miles north of Maynooth. They report having caught 250 speckled trout in two days. These fish varied in length from eight to fourteen inches.

According to the story, as told by Mr. K. G. Lech, if each man could have handled a dozen rods, they could have caught many more. As it was, each had two rods, and it took them all their time to land the speckled beauties. The expedition was to have lasted for one day, but the party agreed to stay two, and accordingly were bivouacked in woods for one night, with a few spruce branches as a covering. Mr. Jos. Sternberg, of Maynooth acted as guide.

Mayor Refuses Official.

MONTREAL, May 16. — On the ground that T. McG. Black, park superintendent, was an American citizen, Mayor Martin yesterday ordered him reduced to a temporary assistant superintendent, and placed a French-Canadian, Dr. Bedbeik, in his place. "I will not have a foreigner drawing a salary of $2,500 a year in Montreal," said the mayor, when it was pointed out Mr. Black had been recommended by influential people in the city.

Earthquake Shocks Continue.

CANTANIA, May 16.—Earthquake shocks continue with alarming frequency. Mount Etna is extremely active. A number of the houses shaken by previous shocks have fallen. Fortunately, there have been no fatalities and the populace of the city and countryside is camped in the open.

Suffragettes' Arson Squads.

LONDON, May 16. — "Arson squads" of militant suffragettes yesterday set fire to and destroyed costly grandstands at the County Cricket Grounds in Birmingham and London.

Vesuvius Active.

NAPLES, May 16.—Mt. Vesuvius is again active. A dense column of vapor and tongues of flame were coming out of the crater last night.

Barge Ceylon Raised.

KINGSTON, May 16. — The Donnelly Wrecking Co. has raised the barge Ceylon, owned by the Montreal Transportation Co., which ran ashore late last autumn five miles from this side of Long Point in Lake Ontario. The vessel carried 45,000 bushels of wheat. Part of the cargo was removed before winter, but the weather was too rough to release her. The barge was towed to Kingston and does not appear to have suffered any great damage as the result of the winter's gales.

Sir John Willison Speaks.

BELLEVILLE, May 16.—Sir John Willison of Toronto last evening addressed the Canadian Club on "Reminiscences of Public Men in Canada." Previous to the address a dinner was held, presided over by M. H. Sneyd, president of the club.

Youth Murdered Three.

IRONTON, O., May 16.—Mrs. Hannis Massie, 75, her son Robert and daughter Mary, aged 45, were murdered Thursday night at their country home at Grassy Ridge, two miles from Ironton. Miss Mary was found in the kitchen with her hands tied behind her back and her throat cut. Robert was found in the back yard with his head battered in, and the mother in the front yard with her throat cut and skull crushed.

Harley Beard, 18 years of age, arrested at Chicago yesterday afternoon, confessed to the murder.

Take Exception to Statements.

FORT WILLIAM, May 16. — The chief of police and license inspector say there is no truth in statements which Rev. H. A. Berlis is reported to have made before the Presbyterian W. H. M. S. in Toronto Thursday night about the beer joints and disorders in the foreign section here.

The Times-Journal continues scathingly upon the license apparently allowed preachers to make unwarranted statements regarding communities.

TORONTO, May 16.—It is stated here this morning and believed to be correct that the missing president of the Ontario West Shore Railroad, for whom Provincial Detective Greer scoured Algonquin Park, is right in the Toronto General Hospital with nervous breakdown. Stock Markets

A. E. Stanton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

NEW YORK, May 15.—Chas. Baring says to-day:

The stock market made new high prices to-day and then reacted slightly. If we should get a sharp bulge to-morrow with the leaders from 1 to 2 points higher than they were to-day, profits on half your longs may be taken, as such a bulge would be followed by another setback lasting the better part of next week, which should carry the active issues from 2 to 4 points before the new top prices. I would not, however, take profits unless U.P. sells 159 and others in proportion.

U.S. sold 61¾ to-day, and I would certainly get out of this stock on further bulge. You will be able to replace it at least 4 points lower.

M.N.P. sold at 63 to-day, would take profits on any further good bulge.

Otherwise there is nothing new from what I told you in recent letters. You have to exercise a little more patience as next week provided we get a sharp bulge to-morrow, is likely to be reactionary, but this reaction will surely be followed by a rapidly rising market beginning no latter than next week from Monday.

SIX MONTHS FOR SUNNY JIM

"Mr. Wilson, James Wilson, the same old Jim Wilson, Sunny Jim," said Magistrate Dumble, when he called upon that worthy this morning, in the Police Court. "You are charged with being a vagrant, having no means of supporting yourself. Are you guilty or not guilty ?"

"Not guilty," came the reply, but Jim didn't know what plea he had made. As a matter of fact, he had to be assisted into court by a police constable.

Jim came out jail a week ago and has been drunk practically ever since.

He was arrested by P. C. Dennard this morning, shortly before eight o'clock, in a very drunken condition.

According to the evidence of P. C. Reid and P. C. Hayward, "Sunny Jim" is a regular and very consistent drunkard and vagrant.

This morning, before court, he wanted to know if he was to be hanged. When his Worship said he would hear evidence, Jim jumped to his feet and shouted vigorous protests and claimed that he was not being given a fair deal.

After the evidence was all given, without hesitation, the Court pronounced a sentence of six months in Central Prison."

"I'll meet you when I get out," he shouted to an officer in the Court. This is the first time that Davy Dumbe has ever handed me six months."

Another man who was arrested in Sunny Jim's haunt, Benjamin Hobson, and another frequenter of the Court, was also charged with being a vagrant. "Give him six months, too" said Sunny Jim.

Hobson, however, claimed that he was working in the country, but had come to town on Thursday, and fell in with bad company.

Ben promised to get right back to work if the Court would let him go. He was accordingly allowed to go, but was informed that if he came back again it would be six months next time.

Another old timer, John O'Donghue and another of the party rounded up, was also charged with being a vagrant. John said he had been working with the street construction gang, but his arm had given out, and he was forced to lay off but caimed he could start again on Monday. He will have to take this course, or he, like his other companion, will find board, lodging and lots of work in the Central Prison.

J. J. Turner & Sons,

Peterborough, Ont.:

Gentlemen,—On behalf of the Publicity and Entertainment Committee of the Board of Trade of St. Catharines, I desire to express our appreciation of the manner in which you decorated the city for the visit of Their Royal Highnesses, the Duke of Connaught and Princess Patricia, on May 11th.

Expressions of appreciation of the decorations were heard on every hand, and their Royal Highnesses passed very complimentary remarks.

Your staff of decorators, under your Mr. Campbell, were very courteous and did everything asked of them by the committee.

Yours very truly,

Henry B. Burgoyne,

Chairman Publicity and Entertainment committee, St. Catharines' Board of Trade.

Two More Stores On Charlotte St.

Are Being Opened in The Residence of R. J. Wolstenholm

Two stores will be opened in the premises of R. J. Wolstenholm, Charlotte street in a short time. After a residence of eighteen years Mr. Wolstenholm vacated his home yesterday, and this morning the remodelling of the house was begun under the direction of James Marshall.

The principal alterations are being made on the ground floor where two stores will be provided. They will have large plate glass windows and will be thoroughly equipped for retail business.

This is another indication of the growing importance of Charlotte street as a retail rival of George street.

A SUCCESSFUL FISHING TRIP

Messrs. Thos. M. Howard, K. G. Lech, Cyril Lech, and M. Sine, of Bancroft, have returned from a fishing trip, nine miles north of Maynooth. They report having caught 250 speckled trout in two days. These fish varied in length from eight to fourteen inches.

According to the story, as told by Mr. K. G. Lech, if each man could have handled a dozen rods, they could have caught many more. As it was, each had two rods, and it took them all their time to land the speckled beauties. The expedition was to have lasted for one day, but the party agreed to stay two, and accordingly were bivouacked in woods for one night, with a few spruce branches as a covering. Mr. Jos. Sternberg, of Maynooth acted as guide.

Mayor Reduces Official.

MONTREAL, May 16. — On the ground that T. McG. Black, park superintendent, was an American citizen, Mayor Martin yesterday ordered him reduced to a temporary assistant superintendent, and placed a French-Canadian, Dr. Badbois, in his place. "I will not have a foreigner drawing a salary of $2,500 a year in Montreal," said the mayor, when it was pointed out Mr. Black had been recommended by influential people in the city.

Earthquake Shocks Continue.

CANTANIA, May 16.—Earthquake shocks continue with alarming frequency. Mount Etna is extremely active. A number of the houses shattered by previous shocks have fallen. Fortunately, there have been no fatalities and the populace of the city and countryside is camped in the open.

Suffragettes' Arson Squads.

LONDON, May 16. — "Arson squads" of militant suffragettes yesterday set fire to and destroyed costly grandstands at the County Cricket Grounds in Birmingham and London.

Vesuvius Active.

NAPLES, May 16.—Mt. Vesuvius is again active. A dense column of vapor and tongues of flame were coming out of the crater last night.

Barge Ceylon Raised.

KINGSTON, May 16. — The Donnely Wrecking Co. has raised the barge Ceylon, owned by the Montreal Transportation Co., which ran ashore late last autumn five miles from this side of Long Point in Lake Ontario. The vessel carried 45,000 bushels of wheat. Part of the cargo was removed before winter, but the weather was too rough to release her. The barge was towed to Kingston and does not appear to have suffered any great damage as the result of the winter's gales.

Sir John Willison Speaks.

BELLEVILLE, May 16.—Sir John Willison of Toronto last evening addressed the Canadian Club on "Reminiscences of Public Men in Canada." Previous to the address a dinner was held, presided over by M. H. Sneyd, president of the club.

Youth Murdered Three.

IRONTON, O., May 16.—Mrs. Denis Massie, 75, her son Robert and daughter Mary, aged 45, were murdered Thursday night at their country home at Greasy Ridge, two miles from Ironton. Miss Mary was found in the kitchen with her hands tied behind her back and her throat cut. Robert was found in the back yard with his head battered in, and the mother in the front yard with her throat cut and skull crushed.

Harley Beard, 18 years of age, arrested at Chicago yesterday afternoon, confessed to the murder.

Take Exception to Statements.

FORT WILLIAM, May 16. — The chief of police and license inspector say there is no truth in statements which Rev. H. A. Berlis is reported to have made before the Presbyterian W. H. M. S. in Toronto Thursday night about the beer joints and disorders in the foreign section here.

The Times-Journal commends scathingly upon the license apparently allowed preachers to make unwarranted statements regarding communities.

IS IT THE TORONTO GENERAL

TORONTO, May 16.—It is stated here this morning and believed to be correct that the missing president of the Ontario West Shore Railroad, for whom Provincial Detective Greer scoured Algonquin Park, is right in the Toronto General Hospital with nervous breakdown. No person of that name is a patient there, but rumour says he is there under an assumed name.

Stock Markets

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

NEW YORK, May 15.—Chas. Baring says to-day:

The stock market made new high prices to-day and then reacted slightly. If we should get a sharp bulge to-morrow with the leaders from 1 to 2 points higher than they were to-day, profits on half your longs may be taken, as such a bulge would be followed by another setback lasting the better part of next week, which should carry the active issues from 2 to 4 points before the new top prices. I would not, however, take profits unless U.P. sells 159 and others in proportion.

U.S. sold 61¾ to-day, and I would certainly get out of this stock on further bulge. You will be able to replace it at least 4 points lower.

M.N.P. sold at 63 to-day, would take profits on any further good bulge.

Otherwise there is nothing new from what I told you in recent letters. You have to exercise a little more patience as next week provided we get a sharp bulge to-morrow, is likely to be reactionary, but this reaction will surely be followed by a rapidly rising market beginning no latter than next week from Monday.

Bridge Was Dynamited

Mexican Federals Destroy Structure Near Vera Cruz

ON ROUTE TO THE CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, May 18. — Brigadier-Gen. Funston reported from Vera Cruz yesterday that the Mexicans had dynamited and destroyed the San Francisco bridge, on the line of the Interoceanic Railway, 28 miles out from Vera Cruz.

This bridge was one of the most important on the line of the Interoceanic road, and its destruction greatly increases the difficulty of this route for an American invasion.

The San Francisco bridge crossed the Antigua ravine and was 164 feet in length and 14 feet high. The Interoceanic is a narrow-gauge line, and has not been used for the removal of refugees from Mexico City. It also was the second choice as a route for the American troops to the Mexican capital, the broad-gauge line of the Mexican Central being preferable.

Gen. Funston does not say how the San Francisco bridge was destroyed or by whom, but apparently it was the work of the Federal troops.

Gen. Funston also reported a rumor that Gen. Navarette, the Federal commander, is in the neighborhood of Vera Cruz with a force of 3,000 men. The fact of the actual blowing up of the bridge was not so disconcerting to the Washington officials as was the evidence which it presented of the continued activity of Huerta's forces almost within the shadow of Vera Cruz. This uneasiness was increased by the suggestion by Gen. Funston of the nearness of the Mexican commander with his 3,000 followers.

Huerta Jailing Grumblers.

VERA CRUZ, May 18.—Huerta is still pursuing a policy of cowing disloyal residents of Puebla by jailing all those suspected of sedition. Many hundreds of arrests have been made in the past ten days, and some of the most prominent and wealthy Mexicans in the city have been consigned to the army. The latest victims of political persecution are Doctors Jesus Alfaro and Juan Guateau, and Prof. Luis Ibarra. Alfaro is the director of the general hospital of the state, and Guateau is a professor in normal school. Ibarra is a close friend of Juan Sanches Azcona, former secretary to Madero, now the representative of the Constitutionalist Junta in Paris. Azcona after Madero's murder fled from the capital and was arrested in Ibarra's house.

Remains Reach Montreal.

MONTREAL, May 18. — The body of the late William Wainwright, senior vice-president of the Grand Trunk Railroad, arrived in Montreal Saturday morning from Atlantic City. At the station the remains were met by several of the higher officials of the Grand Trunk, with the immediate relatives of the dead official, and conveyed to the family residence, 156 Metcalfe street.

AVIATORS MEET DEATH.

Three German Army Lieutenants Killed In Accidents.

HALBERSTADT, Prussian Saxony, May 18.—A fatal military aeroplane accident occurred here Saturday evening. Lieuts. Wiegandt and Fellinger were instantly killed while attempting a landing at the aerodrome. The motor was shut off, and making too sharp an angle, the monoplane capsized and dropped 2,000 feet.

FRANKFORT - ON - THE - MAIN, Germany, May 18.—The Prince Henry aviation competition began yesterday at Darmstadt. The start was made at four o'clock in the morning, and eighteen military aviators and thirteen civilians took the air. About thirty additional military aviators will take part in the contests later. These embrace duration and military reconnaissance features.

One fatal and several minor accidents occurred. Lieut. Wais fell at Pforsheim owing to the explosion of his motor. He was slightly burned, but his passenger, Lieut. Mueller, was killed. Lieut. Hidessen and passenger also suffered a fall, but escaped with slight injuries.

Prince Henry of Prussia witnessed the start.

Starting at Darmstadt the reconnaissance contest will cover a total distance of about 1,103 miles. This is divided into two stages, the first including the towns of Mannheim, Pforsheim, Strassburg, Frankfort, Coblenz, Cologne and return to Frankfort. The second stage will begin on Wednesday next and will include the towns of Frankfort, Brunswick, Hamburg, Hanover, Minden, Muenster, Bremen and return to Hamburg.

Lieut. Beulau completed the first stage of the journey, a distance of 480 miles, at 11.55 o'clock yesterday morning, and six others had finished by two o'clock.

NATIONALISTS RETALIATE.

Limerick County Council Endorses Home Rule Army Scheme.

LIMERICK, Ireland, May 18.—The County Council unanimously resolved yesterday to support the Nationalist volunteer movement which was started for the purpose of organizing a national force to uphold the authority of the crown and government of Ireland on the same lines as the Ulster force.

Thomas Lundon, Nationalist member of the House of Commons for East Limerick, during the course of a speech, said that the day the Home Rule bill was placed on the statute book 200,000 volunteers would parade in Dublin to prevent the withdrawal of the dearly won measure.

Waif's Memory Wins Uncle.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 18.—Helen Sherman, a waif, who for two years has been a charge of the Wisconsin State Industrial School, now has a real home. Her foster father is Charles Page, a millionaire of Tulsa, Okla.

One day recently Miss Mary J. Berry, superintendent of the industrial school, referred in Helen's presence of Mr. Page.

"He is my uncle," interpolated the girl.

Subsequent investigation by Miss Berry revealed that the girl had told the truth. The uncle was communicated with and he promptly adopted his niece.

Again the Entente Cordiale of France and England — By F. Matania, in The Sphere. M. Raymond Poincare, President of France; Queen Mary of Great Britain, King George, and Madame Poincare. They are drawn standing at the gala performance of the opera during the playing of the National Anthems of Great Britain and France. If true to life—and Matania's drawings usually are—his latest picture of their Majesties indicates that the hand of time and worries of State are leaving their mark on both King and Queen. The King, for this occasion, was in the uniform of an admiral of the fleet, and the Queen wore a dress of gold tissue. Macadame, Poincare was in white. The artist depicts the moment when the royal party were met with a storm of cheering from the crowded house.

BRAKESMAN LOST LEG AT ORILLIA

ORILLIA, May 18.—James Gibson, of Allandale, a Grand Trunk brakeman, had a leg cut off below the knee while shunting in the Canada Wood Specialty yards at the foot of Coldwater street here Saturday. Gibson was trying to board the train and lost his hold.

TOWNS SWEPT AWAY.

Yukon River Reported To Be Rising at Rate of a Foot a Minute.

TACOMA, May 18. — Fairbanks, Alaska, cables that Circle City, Eagle City and scores of woodchoppers and mining camps with many native villages along the Yukon above Fort Yukon have been destroyed by the worst flood in the history of the north, according to meagre reports received last night. Fears are entertained that Fort Yukon has been swept away.

"Ice jammed somewhere below here and water rising at the rate of more than a foot per minute. Everybody taking to foothills." This was the brief message flashed from the wireless station at Circle City and picked up at Fort Gibbon.

Flood marks on the Yukon show that water in the past rose more than a hundred feet when ice jammed in the canyons. Circle City and Eagle City are only thirty feet above the Yukon's normal level.

LABOR TROUBLE GROWS.

Montreal's Army of the Unemployed Causes Anxiety.

MONTREAL, May 18. — Grave fears are entertained in police and civic circles of an outbreak among the unemployed thousands of Montreal. So serious is the situation that guards have been posted at the residence of Mayor Mederic Martin day and night, while the vicinity of the City Hall is patrolled constantly. One night last week the new City Hall annex was watched carefully, for it was rumored that the out-of-works had threatened to dynamite it.

The crowd, which is unemployed, is in an ugly mood. It is composed of eight or ten thousand foreigners, who have been coming to the City Hall every day for three weeks, looking for work. They mass on the Champ de Mars daily, and listen to bitter speeches from Socialists and others, who roundly denounce the civic authorities for not having work for them. They have crowded into the hall on several occasions, and raided the quarters of the mayor. The police are alarmed lest they do some serious damage, for they are of the races and condition liable to produce anything.

TO VISIT NEWFOUNDLAND.

H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught is Planning a Trip There.

OTTAWA, May 18.—H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught will pay a visit to Newfoundland on July 5, his first since coming to Canada as Governor-General.

His Royal Highness will be met at Quebec by H. M. S. Essex, a cruiser from the Atlantic squadron, which is now en route from Bermuda to Quebec. She is expected to arrive in Quebec on June 4, and will remain there until she takes the duke to Newfoundland a month later.

His Royal Highness will, it is understood, spend about 10 days on the island, and will receive an official welcome on his arrival.

Langlois Appointment Condemned.

QUEBEC, May 18.—The official organ of the Catholic Church in Quebec, L'Action Sociale, under the heading, "A National Shame," publishes a three-column editorial denouncing the recent appointment by the Gouin Government of Mr. Godfroy Langlois, editor of Le Pays, to the position of representative to the Province of Quebec in Belgium.

"Mr. Langlois is the 'villifier' of his province and his race. Mr. Langlois is the managing editor of Le Pays, which all the bishops of the Province of Quebec were obliged to condemn," says the paper.

Many Masons In Line.

ST. LOUIS, May 18—Approximately 16,000 Masons marched in a parade which preceded the laying of a corner-stone for a new building of the Masonic home of Missouri here yesterday. Governor Elliott W. Major of Missouri declared it the largest gathering of Blue Lodge Masons ever assembled.

CUT IN CABLE TOLLS.

Week-End Messages To Australia Will Be Cheaper Now.

OTTAWA, May 18.—A greatly reduced cable rate for week-end messages, subject to slight delay, has been arranged between Canada and Australia and New Zealand. The announcement was made Saturday by Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster-General, who has been negotiating with the British and Australasian postal authorities in connection with the proposals for a cheaper week-end rate over the state-owned cable. The new rate, which goes into effect forthwith, provides for week-end messages from Canada to Australia and New Zealand at $2.80 for the first twenty words or less, and 14 cents for each additional word. The regular cable rate between points in Canada and Australia is now 58 cents per word. The new rate for deferred messages is only 14 cents. The week-end messages sent at the new rate may be subject to a delay of 24 to 48 hours, but the arrangement should be of material advantage to business men or others where a comparatively short delay will not matter.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

President Wilson was presented on Saturday with a Canadian flag and a fez by a party of Mystic Shriners from Al Ashar Temple, Alberta.

King Christian X. and Queen Alexandrine of Denmark arrived in Paris yesterday to pay a two days' official visit of courtesy to France.

The body of Richard Connell, 50, a resident of Thurlow Township, was found in a barn at Shannonville. He had apparently taken a dose of poison.

The grandstand and other structures at the Bromwich Racecourse were burned yesterday by suffragettes. The damage amounts to about $15,000.

Oliver Madox Hueffer, correspondent of The London Daily Express, has been expelled from Mexico City although he was the bearer of a British passport.

Winston Churchill spent the week-end flying at Sheerness. Yesterday, accompanied by Gustav Hamel, he negotiated a flight over the harbor, looping the loop six times.

Within a week Harry K. Thaw will leave the hotel apartments in Concord, N.H., where he has lived for eight months. Accompanied by Sheriff Drew and a policeman, he will spend some time on Lake Massasecum.

Spanish Ambassador Riano at Washington received a despatch from Mexico City, stating that a vigorous investigation of the disappearance of Orderly Samuel Parks immediately would be made by the Huerta authorities.

Envoys Are Welcomed

Representatives of Huerta Cordially Received at Washington

THEY ALL SEEM OPTIMISTIC

WASHINGTON, May 18. — The arrival here yesterday afternoon of Gen. Huerta's three representatives sent to the mediation conference to open at Niagara Falls next Wednesday, gave the most tangible evidence thus far presented of the efforts now under way to compose the Mexican conflict.

Saturday night the Mexican delegates were the guests of honor at a dinner at the Spanish embassy. Other guests were the three mediators, Ambassador da Gama of Brazil and Ministers Naon of Argentine and Suarez of Chili, and the commissioners of the United States, Justice Joseph R. Lamar and Frederick W. Lehmann, with the American secretary, H. Percival Dodge and numerous American, Spanish and Mexican officials.

Secretary Bryan could not attend, owing to an engagement to see a Greek out-door pageant, given here for charity. The dinner was said to be purely one of courtesy to the arriving delegates and without political significance.

Little excitement but considerable confusion attended the arrival in Washington of the three Mexican delegates.

Spanish Ambassador Riano and Counsellor Walls of the Spanish embassy, representatives of the mediating South American nations, and the remaining officials of the abandoned Mexican embassy, Secretaries Huerta and Fernandez, and Military Attache Avalos, were in the official group that greeted the delegates.

Senors Rabasa and Rodriques were smilingly appreciative of the courtesies tendered them. They firmly declined, however, to be drawn into any discussion of their mission.

At 5.30 p.m. the three Mexican delegates, under the auspices of Ambassado Riano, made an official call on the mediators, assembled to meet them at the Argentine legation.

Before the departure of the Mexican delegates they were about the lobby of their hotel looking far more refreshed than on their arrival. They received newspapermen courteously but without breaking their silence concerning their mission. The State Department had engaged quarters for the delegates, but they insisted that they must pay their own way.

Though the Mexicans would make no statement, declaring that it would be inexpedient for them to say anything in advance of the negotiations, it was learned from quarters in close touch with them that they were decidedly optimistic regarding the chances for mediation. They have little idea how long the task of arranging a settlement will keep them at Niagara Falls, but they are thoroughly confident that their trip will not have been in vain.

TWO MEN PERISH.

Guelph Waterworks Employes Killed By Cave-In.

GUELPH, May 18. — Wilfrid McRae and Alfred Brake, two employes of the waterworks department, were suffocated Saturday while engaged in an excavation for a water main. They were below the surface a little over four feet, when without any warning about fourteen feet of earth caved in on them. Both men were in a stooping position. A fellow workman had just left to get a crowbar from the sewerage men, who were working close by, when the cave-in occurred. As soon as he discovered what had happened help was summoned from the men nearby. They dug with all their might, but when the men were reached both were beyond aid. McRae just breathed his last as he was reached, while Brake was quite dead.

An inquest will be held.

Wilfrid McRae, with his wife, lived on Strange street, while Alfred Brake, with his wife and family of ten children, some of whom are quite small, lived on Suffold street.

Gas Stove Explodes.

GUELPH, May 18.—An explosion of a gas stove caused considerable damage to the house of Mr. M. Wolfe, 16 Harrison avenue, Saturday. The explosion blew the stove to pieces and two windows were very badly smashed up, and the kitchen otherwise wrecked. Mrs. Wolfe, who was in the kitchen at the time, luckily escaped with some severe bruises about the face and hands. Her injuries are not of a serious nature.

Touched Live Wire.

KINGSVILLE, Ont., May 18. — A young son of H. Govern's had a narrow escape from death when his hand came in contact with a live wire which passed through a tree he was climbing on Main street. The wire carried 2,200 volts and the shock made the child lose his hold and fall. The branches of the tree broke his fall and he escaped with but a slight burn on his hand where the wire had scorched it.

Two Killed In Duel.

LEXINGTON, Ky., May 18.—Word reached here Saturday that Hubbard Minlard, aged 17, son of County Attorney J. B. Minlard of Leslie Co., and Joseph Hensley, a member of a prominent Leslie County family, had killed each other in a pistol duel at [illegible] Creek, near [illegible].

HOUSE SAT SATURDAY.

Grain and Explosives the Chief Items Under Consideration.

OTTAWA, May 18. — The House met Saturday morning, for the first time this session, and proceeded at once to deal with a number of Government bills.

Mr. Foster's bill to amend the Canada Grain Act was passed, also Mr. Coderre's bill to amend the Companies' Act by authorizing "share warrants" and the issue of debentures of sums less than one hundred dollars.

Mr. Coderre, as Minister of Mines, also piloted through committee his bill respecting the manufacture, storage and carriage of explosives in and about quarries and mines.

Mr. Henderson (Halton) enquired if the clause as amended would apply to the storage of "Cracknek," an explosive used generally and to a large extent in quarries. Mr. Henderson naively pointed out to the House that unless the explosive was subjected to rough usage there was no danger of it exploding. Mr. Coderre replied that no decision respecting this explosive had as yet been reached, but the matter was under consideration by the Government.

FOUND NEARLY DEAD.

G. T. R. Constable at Bridgeburg Had Been Waylaid.

BRIDGEBURG, Ont., May 18.—County Constable George Wilson, who up to a month ago was a special officer of the Grand Trunk, was waylaid near the Michigan Central Railway depot here Saturday night and severely beaten. He was found unconscious at half-past three yesterday morning, and it is believed that he lay two hours before he was discovered by customs officers. Dr. J. R. Mencke was called, and it was only after two hours' work that Wilson regained consciousness and it was believed that when found he was almost dead. Wilson, when he could talk a little, said that he knew who had assaulted him, but he would not give their names.

During the three months he was employed by the Grand Trunk he became very unpopular with the men.

CHILDREN'S EYESIGHT

An astonishing number of school children suffer from the effects of imperfect vision, and many of them are unjustly blamed for being unambitious or mentally stupid. It has been shown by authentic investigation under municipal direction that from 20 to 30 per cent. of the children in public schools have defective vision and should wear Glasses.

We make a specialty of examining children's sight by the most improved scientific methods, and if your child does not need glasses we will tell you so frankly, and make no charge for the examination. We carry a special line of heavy weight Children's Spectacle Frames in Gold Filled and Aluminum.

Should your child require glasses we guarantee that the glasses we fit are the proper correction and will give best results.

Bessemer's Ill Luck.

Sir Henry Bessemer was one of those inventors that ill luck pursued and from whose clutches he finally escaped by indomitable perseverance. In 1333 the British government was losing $500,000 a year by the fraudulent misuse of embossed deed stamps. Bessemer rendered this impossible by the use of perforated dies which dated the stamps. He presented the invention to the government, which forgot its promise of a permanent appointment, but thanked him. His great invention in the manufacture of steel so impressed the ironmakers that they paid him $13b,000 for licenses and "wanted their money back." He had forgotten the proportion of fools to wise men. It took him two years to render the process "foolproof," and he pressed his point home by the setting up of his factory in Sheffield.

Turned the Tables.

In his reminiscences Henry Holiday tells a story of a Londoner, "Romeo" Coates, who thought he was a born actor. Coates paid a large sum to be allowed to play Romeo at Drury Lane, where he appeared bedizened with jewels and was received with vociferous applause by a public who appreciated the joke. Some of the young men who were the favored associates of the prince regent concocted a practical joke at the expense of Coates. They got a sheet of the prince's note paper and sent him an invitation to dine at the pavilion. The prince got wind of the trick, and when Coates was ushered in and the jokers were looking to see his discomfiture he turned the tables on them by receiving his visitor with great politeness and giving him a place of honor.

HAD INDIGESTION.
Almost Despaired of Ever Getting Well.

When your food has not been properly digested, your body has not received the benefit it should. The exertions of the gastric juice have been confined entirely to removing the unmasticated, undigested portions of food, which they cannot properly digest as speedily as possible from the body, therefore only giving the blood a small percentage of nourishment with which to feed the tissues. No wonder then that Indigestion and Dyspepsia attack the stomach. No medicine can surpass Burdock Blood Bitters as a cure for this particular disease. It regulates the bowels, promotes perfect digestion, makes pure blood, tones the stomach, and thus restores perfect health to the debilitated system.

Mrs. Mary MacKay, Hunter's Mountain, N.S., writes:—"I was troubled with Indigestion for more than ten years. I tried several Doctor's medicines claiming the power to cure, but all without success. Having heard of the many cures effected by Burdock Blood Bitters, I decided to give it a trial. After taking two bottles I was completely cured. My appetite which was very poor, is now good, and I can eat most everything without any disagreeable feelings. I can strongly recommend B.B.B. to anyone suffering from Indigestion."

"THE TERMS OF SURRENDER"

By LOUIS TRACY

Every practical miner knew that the ore bodies were exhausted, and many and quaint were the opinions privately uttered as to Mac's sanity. Even the astute Page—once the deeds were signed and the money paid—expressed the hope that the storekeeper would not rue his bargain.

"Of course," he said diplomatically, "you may find purchasers for some of the plant; but milling machinery is a special thing, and you will be lucky if you sell the stuff soon. I suppose you have a purpose in view for the buildings."

"Guess there's some stuff ter be found in the tailin's an' a few pockets of ore in the mines," said MacGonigal.

The manager shook his head. "You can take it from me that when Marten sucks an orange there isn't much juice left for the next fellow," he said. "You bought the place with your eyes open, and I still think you may get your money back, with a small profit; but I advise you strongly not to lose a day in advertising the rolls and accessories, while the man who has taken over the Dolores ranch may buy the buildings. They will come in useful as barns."

"I'll chew on that proposition," said MacGonigal.

Page thought him slightly cracked; but shook hands affably, and caught the next train for Denver. He was completely flabbergasted when an assistant whom he had deputed to superintend the removal of Bison's citizens to new spheres of labour informed him that Messrs. Power and MacGonigal were signing on the whole of the miners and millhands at established rates of pay, and that operations were to be started forthwith on a new strike in the Gulch. When he had recovered somewhat from the shock of this announcement he strolled into the government record offices, and examined the registry of recent mining claims. The he found that a location certificate had been obtained by John Darien Power for 1,500 feet on a well defined crevice, at least ten feet deep, situated in the Gulch, Dolores Ranch, Bison, in the county of Bison and state of Colorado. Other certificates had been issued to cover more than a mile of the main contact, and, to clench the mighty right, John Darien Power figured as the legal owner of the land. In a word, he was "a valid discoverer" on his own property.

Page was a shrewd man, and he did not commit the error of underestimating the ability of the rival who had engineered this subtle stroke.

"I'm buncoed this time, and no mistake," he muttered, and hurried back to his office, pallid with wrath and foreboding.

There he met Benson, and told him what had happened. The private secretary, rather staggered at first, regained his complacency when he had glanced through some letters and cablegrams received from their common chief.

"The boss has approved of every move in the game," he said, with a half-hearted laugh. "You see, here he authorizes us to take even less than MacGonigal paid for the mill, and, when Willard repaid the loan, he refused to accept it, but cabled that the money was a gift from Mrs. Marten. So I don't think he can hold us responsible."

"It's not the responsibility I'm kicking at, but the smooth way in which I was bested," growled Page. "Now, who'd have thought Power had it in him?"

"Well, I would, for one," said Benson.

"Why, you hardly knew him."

"I met him under exceptional conditions."

"But how the deuce did he manage to locate that lost vein—I suppose that is what he has found?"

"Perhaps it was a gift from the gods."

"I do wish you'd talk sense," said the irritated manager.

"What you would call sense might not pass for wisdom on Olympus," smiled Benson.

"Will you kindly tell me what you are driving at?"

"I can't. But look here, Page—which of us is going to write the story to the boss?"

"You are, and don't forget to put in these remarks of yours. They'll help some."

"Shouldn't I cable? Marten may want to know of this new move."

"Yes, I suppose that is the right thing to do. When you have coded the message, I'll go through it with you. There must be no mistake this time."

Thus, within a few hours, Hugh Marten, established at the Meurice in Paris, received news which certainly took him aback; for he was a man who seldom brooked a successful interloper. At first he was annoyed, and had it in mind to discharge Page by telegram. There would be no difficulty in giving "Messrs. Power and MacGonigal" a good deal of trouble. To begin with, the lawyers would allege collusion against Page, and an investigation into the purchase of the ranch might reveal loopholes for legal stilettos. Indeed, his alert brain was canvassing all manner of chicanery possible through statutes made and enacted when his wife came in, flushed and breathless.

"Hugh," she cried, "I've had heaps of fun this afternoon! Madame de Neuville brought me to the Duchesse de Brasnes' place in that quaint old Faubourg St. Germain, and the Duchesse took such a fancy to me that we are invited for a week-end shoot at her castle, one of the real chateaux on the Loire. You'll come, of course?"

"Why, yes, Nancy."

"You say yes as though I had asked you to go to the dentist."

"I'm a trifle worried, and that's the fact."

"What is it? Can I help?"

Marten hesitated; though only for an instant. His wife was more adorable than ever since she had discovered what wonders an illimitable purse could achieve in the boutiques of the Rue de la Paix; but there was ever at the back of his mind a suspicion that she looked on her past life as a thing that was dead, and was schooling herself to an artificial gaiety in these glittering surroundings of rank and fashion.

"The truth is that I am vexed at something which has happened in Colorado—at Bison," he said.

"You have had no ill news of Dad?" she cried, in quick alarm.

"No, he's all right. I told you he had sold his ranch. Well, the purchaser is that young engineer, Derry Power."

He watched her closely; but trust any woman to mislead a man when she knows that her slightest change of expression will be marked and understood. Mrs. Marten's eyes opened wide, and she had no difficulty in feigning honest surprise.

"Derry Power!" she almost gasped. "What in the world does he want with the ranch?"

"It seems that he contrived to find the main vein which we lost in the Esperanza mine."

"Oh, is that it" She was indifferent, almost bored. Her mind was in the valley of the Loire.

"Yes. That idiot Page was kept in the dark very neatly; so he sold the mill at a scrap price—by my instructions, I admit—and now Power and MacGonigal have everything in their own hands."

Nancy's eyebrows arched, and she laughed gleefully. "Just fancy Mac blossoming into a mining magnate!" she cried. "But why should this affair worry you, Hugh?"

His hard features softened into a smile—in this instance, a real smile—for he was intensely proud of his pretty wife.

"I hate to feel that I have got the worst of a deal," he admitted. "But that's all right, Nancy. We won't quarrel with old friends at Bison. Run away and write to your duchess while I concoct a cable."

And so it came to pass that Page, instead of receiving a curt dismissal, was told to place no obstacles in the way of the new venture, but rather to facilitate it by fixing a reasonable price on land and houses not covered by the sale of the mill, should they be needed by Marten's successors at Bison. In fact, by an unexampled display of good will on the part of his employer, he was made to offer these properties to Power at a valuation. That somewhat simple though generous proposal had a highly important sequel when Francis Willard, rendered furious by learning how he had been ousted from the ranch, sought legal aid to begin a suit against Power. Even his own lawyer counselled abandonment of the law when the facts were inquired into. Power's title was indisputable, and Marten's action in selling the mill, no less than his readiness to make over other portions of the real estate if desired, showed that the whole undertaking had been carried through in an open and businesslike way.

Willard was convinced against his will; but, being a narrow-minded and selfish man, who had not scrupled to imperil his daughter's happiness when a wealthy suitor promised to extricate him from financial troubles, the passive dislike he harboured against Power now became an active and vindictive hatred. He believed, perhaps he had honestly convinced himself of this, that the young engineer had secured the estate by a trick. It was not true, of course, because he had jumped at the chance of a sale when approached by the Denver lawyer acting for Power. But a sound and rancorous nature could not wholly stifle the prickings of remorse. He knew that he had forced his daughter into a loveless marriage; he could not forget the girl's wan despair when no answer came from Sacramento to her letters; he had experienced all the misery of a craven-hearted thief when he stole the letters Power sent to Bison until Marten assured him that equally effective measures at the other end had suppressed Nancy's correspondence also. Because these things were unforgivable he could not forgive the man against whom they were planned. Penury and failing health had driven him to adopt the only means by which he could break off the tacit engagement which opposed a barried to his scheming; but the knowledge that he had sinned was an ever-present torture. A certain order of mind, crabbed, ungenerous, self-seeking, may still be plagued by a lively conscience, and Willard's enmity against Power could be measured only by his own fiercely repressed sufferings.

"Curse the fellow!" he said bitterly, when the lawyer told him that a suit for recovery of the ranch must be dismissed ignominously. "Curse him! Why did he cross my path? I am an old man, and I do not wish to distress my daughter, or I would go now to Bison and shoot him on sight!"

So John Darien Power had made at least one determined enemy, and it may be taken for granted that, had he visited the Dolores ranch instead of Denver on the first day in the open air after his accident, no money he could command would have made him undisputed lord of the land and all it contained.

But evil thinking is a weed that thrives in the most unlikely soil. To all appearance, with Nancy wed and the foundations of a fortune securely laid, Willard's animosity could achieve small harm to Power. Yet it remained vigorous throughout the years, and its roots spread far, so that when the opportunity came they entangled Power's feet and he fell, and was nearly choked to death by them.

"NA-DRU-CO DYSPEPSIA TABLETS Proved of Great Value to Me"

There is only one explanation for the numbers of enthusiastic letters that we receive praising Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, and that is that these tablets certainly do cure any kind of stomach trouble.

Here is a typical letter from Miss Eliza Armsworthy, Canso, N.S.:

"It is with pleasure I write to inform you that your Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets have proved of great value to me. I tried remedy after remedy but without any lasting good. Having heard of your tablets curing such cases as mine I decided to give them a fair trial. They proved satisfactory in my case."

The remarkable success of Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets is such a success as can only come to an honest remedy, compounded according to an exceptionally good formula, from pure ingredients, by expert chemists. If you are troubled with your stomach just ask your Druggist about Na-Dru-Co Dyspepsia Tablets, compounded by the National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, and sold throughout the Dominion at 50c. a box. 143

ARE YOUR POTATOES DISEASED?

Diseased potatoes in Canada lost us the advantage of the United States market. We must stamp out these diseases if we are to regain our position. Are you in a position to recognize the diseases when you see them?

In order to assist farmers in identifying potato diseases, H. T. Gussow, Dominion Botanist, has prepared a folder describing such diseases as potato canker, powderry scab, hollow potato, internal brown streak, little potato disease, dry rot, wet rot, common potato scab and stem and rot. A valuable feature of the folder is the full sized color illustrations of diseased tubers. Potato growers who suspect the presence of any of these diseases are requested to send specimen to the Dominion Botanist at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. The folder wil be sent free on application. —Farm and Dairy.

NEWBURY, ONT., May 29th, 1913.

"About four years ago, I was in a dreadful run-down condition, weak and hardly able to walk up stairs. Weakness peculiar to women was the chief trouble. I had Headaches that almost drove me wild, and most distressing constipation. I took many dollars' worth of medicine from the doctors without any good results.

A neighbor advised me to take "Fruit-a-tives" and they proved to be the best medicine I ever got and the only medicine to do me any good. A SYMBOLIC DEATH AND RESURRECTION

Real Baptism Is Burial of Human Will Into the Will of God.

STORY OF MAN'S REDEMPTION

Water Baptism Merely a Symbol of Consecration — Not Sprinkling, Nor Pouring, But Immersing—The Old Creature Buried In Baptism—The New Creature Arises to Walk In Newness of Life—Baptised With Christ's Baptism—Importance of the Symbol—Greater Importance of the Real Baptism — Dead to Everything Except the Will of God.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its insertion.]

May 17.—Pastor Russell, whose Photo-Drama of Creation not only presents the story of man's redemption, but also outlines the history of earth from the beginning of its existence, preached to-day upon the subject of Baptism. His text was, "Therefore we are buried with Him by baptism into death; that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life."—Romans 6:4.

On opening his discourse, the Pastor called attention to the fact that his text did not read, buried by baptism into water, or sprinkled with water, but "buried by baptism into death." In the context, the Apostle says not one word about water baptism. Water baptism, the Pastor declared, is merely a symbol, or picture, of the real baptism; and the Apostle Paul explains from various points of view the real baptism, without which the symbol is a mere form. Whoever receives the real baptism thereby becomes a member of the Body of Christ, a member of the New Creation. But whoever has not real baptism is not a New Creature, not a member of the Body of Christ, though he were baptized in water a thousand times.

The Pastor next showed that the real baptism is a baptism into Christ's death. This baptism takes place at the moment when one consecrates himself fully to the Lord—making a complete surrender of his will to God, thenceforth to follow His leadings and to render obedience even unto death. As the Scriptures sometimes represent it, we give our hearts to the Lord. This burial of our wills into the will of God is reckoned to be our death as human beings. Therefore, the Apostle says, "Ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God." From the moment of consecration we are no longer counted as human beings, of the earth, earthy, with earthly hopes, aims and objects, but as New Creatures in Christ. This burial of our wills into the Divine will is instantly followed by our begetting to newness of life—to a new nature.

The Pastor next discussed the subject of water baptism. Christian people, he declared, are a unit in understanding that the New Testament teaches baptism, but there is great confusion of thought respecting its mode and significance. By the second century of our Era, he asserted, the great falling away from the faith, predicted by the Apostles, had gained such headway that very superstitious views were held by the church nominal. Water baptism was supposed not only to cancel sins that were past, but also to bring its recipient certain favors from God which could not otherwise be secured. Not only did believers seek baptism for themselves, but they brought their children for baptism; and since these were too young to enter into covenant relationship with God for themselves, an arrangement was made whereby others than the parents might become sponsors for such children.

Continuing his theme, the Pastor reviewed briefly the various theories on the subject of baptism held by the different denominations. He then explained wherein these are not in harmony with the Scriptures. Neither sprinkling nor pouring could in any sense of the word be considered a picture of death and burial. He called attention to the fact that the Greek word signifying baptism—baptizo—has the significance of immersing, covering, plunging; and that wholly different words are used in the Greek when sprinkling, pouring or raining is meant. So fully did he cover every phase of this subject that he left no doubt that immersion is the Scriptural form of baptism.

The Pastor then discussed the doctrine of baptism as set forth in the Baptist and Disciple denominations. He showed that our Disciple friends are preaching the baptism of John the Baptist, not baptism into Christ; and that our Baptist friends, while they have the right form, as have also the Disciples, have emphasized the symbol rather than the reality—consecration unto death. This portion of the discourse was especially interesting and profitable. Apparently the Pastor sustained his point fully; for he harmonized all the Scriptures bearing upon the subject. It is only after we see clearly the confusion involved in the various theories of Christendom that we are prepared to appreciate the simplicity of the Scriptural teaching.

Having established the facts that water baptism is a figure, a symbolical picture, of consecration, and that immersion is the Scriptural form of baptism, the Pastor then dwelt upon the subject as presented in Romans 6. There the Apostle sets forth the deep significance of burial with Jesus. From the time that the Christian gives his heart to the Lord he is reckoned dead. Thenceforth as a New Creature in Christ he should walk in newness of life—that is to say, his daily course should be altogether different from that of the world. The Christian is under laws much higher than any human law. His is the highest standard there is—the Law of God.

The Pastor then explained in what way the Christian who is buried in baptism with Christ rises to walk in newness of life. To the consecrated Christian "Old things have passed away"—old ambitions, old motives, the thought of making a great name, of owning the earth or of accomplishing something noteworthy of a worldly kind, etc. All these have given place to higher ambitions, new motives—the hope of having favor with God, being new His dear children, anxious to know His will and do it. To these the first general law is given—the Golden Rule—which is the least of all the Divine laws. "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you," is the primary Law of God for all Christians. To be a representative of the Lord every Christian must love his neighbor as himself, must deal with him as kindly and as generously as he would have that neighbor deal with him.

But the Christian must do much more than observe the Golden Rule, continued the Pastor. Had Jesus done no more than keep the Golden Rule, mankind would not have been redeemed by the precious blood of God's dear Son. He could have done just as much for others as He would ask any one to do for Him, and not have died for the fallen race of Adam. His sacrifice included much more than merely keeping the Golden Rule. The Golden Rule, the speaker declared, is the Jewish Law, which Israel could not keep because of their fallen condition.

It was then explained how it is that the Christian can keep the law which the Jew failed to observe. St. Paul declares that while the Church of Christ is no more perfect in the flesh than is the Jew, yet God is dealing differently with the Church. He is scrutinising their hearts and judging them according to their intention. If He sees that in the heart the Christian is striving to love his neighbor as himself and to do unto others as he would be done by, He is pleased; and He has made arrangements whereby those who are thus striving may remain in His family despite their failures and shortcomings. These they may confess, and they may ask forgiveness for Jesus' sake and be forgiven.

The Pastor then showed that God has made a provision for the Church which He did not make for the Jews. Israel was under a typical Law, with a typical mediator, who could not offer real atonement for their weaknesses and have them judged according to the mind. But, through Jesus Christ, the Father has made this...

Was Confined To His Bed For Four Months With Rheumatism.

Mr. W. H. Riley, Ruddell, Sask., writes:—"It is with the greatest of pleasure that I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all suffering with rheumatism. I was so bad with this terrible disease, I was unable to get up from my bed for four months, and nothing seemed to relieve me until a friend recommended Doan's Pills. I had my doubts about them, but was so desperate I would try anything suggested to me. After taking half a box I was able to get up, and after taking two boxes could get around quite well. After taking six boxes I was completely cured, and able to work for the first time in five months, and have not had a touch of rheumatism since. Anyone who saw me then would not know me now, as I am strong and active since taking your valuable medicine."

Doan's Kidney Pills help the kidneys to flush off the acid and poisonous impurities which have collected, and thus clean out the kidneys, and dispel the rheumatism from the system.

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Church; and they are judged according to their intentions, according to their will. Therefore when they are living up to the Golden Rule to the best of their ability, the righteousness of the Law is fulfilled in them. As the Apostle says, "The righteousness of the Law is fulfilled in us, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit." Even though we can never fully catch up with the spirit of the Law after which we are walking, yet "the blood of Jesus Christ His Son cleanseth us from all sin."

The Christian, however, has in his vow of consecration agreed to do more than merely keep the Golden Rule. He has covenanted to give up all of his earthly interests, to do the will of God and to drink the cup which He pours for those who follow in the footsteps of Jesus. Whatever the consecrated Christian sees to be the will of God respecting him he is to do—he is to drink that "cup," doing so with as much pleasure as possible, delighting to do the Father's will, even though the cup be bitter.

The Pastor emphasized this point by reference to the experiences of the Master. Shortly before His death, James and John had requested that they might be privileged to sit, the one on His right hand and the other on His left, in His Messianic Kingdom. It was not selfishness that prompted the request, but deep love and appreciation of their Lord. James and John were so earnest, so zealous, that the Lord especially loved them. In reply to their request, Jesus asked, "Are ye able to drink of the cup that I shall drink of, and to be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with?" This is the condition of discipleship. You cannot be in the Throne unless you drink the cup.

The Pastor then demonstrated conclusively that the baptism to which our Lord referred in His reply to the request made by James and John was not water baptism. He quoted another saying of Jesus on the same subject—"I have a baptism to be baptized with; and how am I straitened until it be accomplished!" That baptism was accomplished when on the cross He cried, "It is finished!" This, the speaker declared, is the baptism which every true follower of the Master must undergo—immersion of one's own will into that of the Heavenly Father. The water baptism is a symbol of that baptism, but the real baptism of Christ was His immersion into death—fully, completely, giving up His life to do the Father's will.

Whoever would be with the Master in His Throne must be so fully consecrated to do the Divine will, so ready to drink our Lord's cup, that he will accept whatever the Father may permit to come to him. He is not to pour his own cup, and say that he will do thus and so; nor is he to bury himself. This is beautifully pictured in the water baptism. There the candidate gives himself into the hands of the administrator, and submits his will to that of the other. Symbolically he says, "Lord, into Thy hands I commit myself. Take me, bury me—in whatever way Thou dost think best."

Figuratively, the Lord lays hold on one thus consecrated and lets him down into death; and it is of His power that this one will be raised up to the perfect life beyond the veil—to glory, honor and immortality, sharing His resurrection, the First Resurrection. But only those who are buried in the likeness of His death will be raised in His likeness. Thus this picture of baptism corresponds exactly to the Scripture which reads, "I beseech you, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God—your reasonable service."

The Pastor went on to explain that this is something more than merely the Golden Rule, which calls only for justice, not sacrifice. Those who drink of the cup of Christ must ignore self and its preferences. They must submit to injustice for the sake of Christ; they must sacrifice also. If they suffer with Him they shall also reign with Him; and the sufferings of the present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in the Lord's saints.

Pastor Russell considers the symbolic baptism of great importance. He acknowledged that great confusion exists among Christian people on this subject, but holds that the real baptism of the human will into the Divine will is the all-important matter. But whoever knows about the true symbol and then refuses to be immersed, thereby proves that he is not fully dead to his own will. Those who have never perceived that immersion in water is the only true symbol are not under obligation, however. Thus it has been with many true Christian people who have had the real immersion into Christ. But when these come to see the matters as the Scriptures present it, they are responsible according to their knowledge.

Contrary to his custom, the Pastor here digressed and related his personal experience in regard to baptism. Born of Christian parents, he had been sprinkled in infancy. But when, years afterward, he came to see the subject in the light of the Scriptures, he had a severe fight with himself before he became obedient to the Word. Excuse after excuse presented itself to his mind—people would think him a turncoat, etc. Finally the matter so troubled him that he settled it once for all in favor of what he saw was right—the plain teaching of the Scriptures.

The point the speaker made was that if he had refused to be obedient in this respect, it would have meant the stoppage of his progress in the way of the Lord. He needed to take that very step to prove that his heart was right. If he had not done so, his refusal would have proven that his will as a human being was not wholly dead. When he saw this point clearly, he gave over to the Heavenly Father of the Land...

The Pastor believes that many of the Lord's people are stumbling in just the same way. He did not wish to be understood as meaning that water baptism is the all-important thing; for he pointed out that saintly people who have not been immersed will be in the Kingdom, because they did the best they knew and rendered prompt obedience to all that God showed them. But as soon as any consecrated child of God is shown something more than he has hitherto seen, the responsibility of that greater knowledge rests upon him; and there is no escape from it. A failure then to obey as to the symbol would mean a withdrawal of the sacrifice from the altar.

The Pastor declared that all who make full consecration of themselves to the Lord to be dead with Him, to be joint-sacrificers with Him in the service of the Truth, are to reckon themselves as separate and distinct from the world around them. They covenant to die to earthly things, and may thereafter use these only as servants of the New Creation. As New Creatures in Christ they become alive through the Redeemer to Heavenly hopes and prospects, aims and ambitions. In harmony with this thought, their lives should be new—separate and distinct from those around them.

Baptism into death, he maintained, is the real baptism for the Church, even as it was for our Lord and Head. Water baptism, he repeated, is only the symbol, or picture. Those called and accepted of God, who are willing to drink of the Redeemer's cup and to be baptized with His baptism, will indeed be granted the privilege, and will be assisted in carrying out their heart's desire in this matter. Those who shall be immersed into death shall also have a share in the First Resurrection and in the glories of the coming Kingdom, for which we pray, "Thy Kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth, even as it is done in Heaven."

Wisteria and Wisteria.

Ernest H. Wilson, the distinguished naturalist, has a good laugh on the botanical sticklers. Incidentally he has put in the wrong no end of writers in books, newspapers and periodicals, not to mention the creator of one of the most fashionable colors of recent years for women's apparel. It is all on account of one of the most gorgeous of flowers which Japan and China have ever sent to this country—the wisteria. Before I am snapped up on my spelling of a word we are in the habit of pronouncing that way, but spelling wistaria, I will say that right here is where Mr. Wilson has caught the botanists and the rest of the world napping. Although the magnificent vine whose long purple or white racemes are one of the glories of springtime in the northeastern part of the United States was named after Dr. Wistar of the old Philadelphia family, there was a slip up in the spelling. Christened wisteria when it was introduced it must so stand for ever according to inviolable botanical law. The same is true of the stewartia—it should be properly stuartia.—Spur.

Playing Cricket by Sound.

Pupils of a school for the blind in England play cricket by sound.

With a wicker ball, in which is contained a bell, the bowler prepares to attack the wicket. When a reporter visited the school the boys were practicing their game. "Play!" shouted the bowler, and in reply came the batsman's "Right bo." On hearing this the bowler knew in which direction to send the ball. His fast underhand went straight for the wicket, and the batsman, judging by the tinkling bell knew when to hit.

"I know exactly how far to run," he said afterward, "because there is a mat at the bowler's end which I 'feel with my bat."

"The fielders," said the head master of the school, "have the most difficult part to play. But if the ball touches their cheats the batsman may as well consider himself out, for immediately a fielder feels the touch of the ball his arms fold around it with amazing rapidity."—London Cor. New York Times.

Verse Mistaken For Poetry.

It is curious how persistent the belief is that rime constitutes poetry. J. A. Steuart quotes a stanza from a battle hymn by Burns and inquires whether it is mediocre and how much of it depends on dialect. It does not depend on dialect, and it is not mediocre, but it is not poetry; it is rhetorical verse. The lines

A fig for those by laws protected;
Liberty's a glorious feast;
Courts for cowards were erected,
Churches built to please the priest, have not the faintest suggestion of poetry; they merely make a terse statement in rime.

To most people everything that rimes is a "piece of poetry," even to "Thirty days has September" and other jingles of the kind. No definition of poetry will help. The only true knowledge of the matter comes by instinct.—London Chronicle.

People Have Learned To Think For Themselves

On Health, Disease and Medicine--No Longer Mystified Terms--Give Credit to Medicines That Cure

A decade or two has witnessed a wonderful change in matters regarding health and sanitation. The magazines and newspapers abound in information and people have learned to think and study for themselves. They no longer follow blindly the instructions of doctors but soon grow sceptical if results are not satisfactory.

And it is results that count. It does not pay to be prejudiced against a medicine just because it is advertised. Almost every medicine that is largely advertised first proved a big success in private practice.

If you are suffering from some derangement of the nerves, for instance, you will be interested in what people are saying almost daily in this paper about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It is truly wonderful the cures that are being brought about by this great prescription of the famous Receipt Book author.

Nervous prostration, nervous headaches, nervous dyspepsia, irritability, melancholia and all the distressing forms of nervous depression and exhaustion are being cured by this great food cure.

So many business men and business women find themselves tired in mind ad body, unable to sleep and rest and yet do not realize how close they are to nervous breakdown and paralysis. Women in the home, too, find the work and worry more than their systems can bear, and long for the help that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food can so well supply.

Study out the symptoms for yourself and if you need a restorative for the nerves put Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to the test. The results will surprise and delight you.

THE BEST HARDY FLOWERING SHRUBS

ALL who have visited the Ontario Agricultural College know of the wonderful beauty of the college campus due to the wise use of shrubs and trees. The following list submitted to Farm and Dairy by Prof. H. L. Hutt includes a few of the best of the hardy ornamental shrubs from among the 200 varieties that have been tested at the college during the last 20 years. The list is given in the order of blooming, and covers the season fairly well from May to September.

1. Forsythia (Golden Bells).—A loose, open-growing shrub about four feet high, not entirely hardy here, but valuable because of its very early flowering. In bloom about the end of April. Flowers large, golden yellow bells, appear before the foliage and last two or three weeks. The flowers show best against a dark background of spruce or other evergreen.

2. Ribes Aureum (Golden Currant).—A vigorous growing bush about six or eight feet in diameter. Flowers golden yellow, very abundant, and have delightful spicy fragrance. In bloom the second week of May, and lasts two weeks.

3. Pyrus Japonica (Japan Quince).—A showy bush six or eight feet in diameter, with handsome glossy dark foliage. Flowers large and showy, either brilliant scarlet, salmon, pink, or white. In bloom about middle of May, and lasts nearly three weeks. Produces fruits which are very aromatic and sometimes used for jelly making.

4. Prunus Japonica (Flowering Almond).—A very handsome small shrub about three feet in height. Bears a great profusion of pink flowers like little roses. In bloom about the third week of May, and lasts a week or 10 days.

5. Caragana (Siberian Pea Tree).—A very hardy, showy little bush, about five or six feet in diameter. Has a great luxuriance of fine light green leaves which appear early in spring, and are followed about third week in May with an abundance of small clusters of pea-shaped yellow flowers. Bloom lasts a week or more.

6. Syringas (Lilacs).—The lilac is valuable because of its hardiness, richness, and freedom of bloom, its delicate fragrance, handsome foliage, good habit, vigor, healthfulness, and easy culture. The older the bush the more freely it blooms. There are now several hundred varieties, including both single and double flowers of nearly all colors, ranging from pure white through pinks and reds to lilac and purple. With a good selection of varieties, the bloom may cover the season from the third week of May to the first week of July. The following are a few choice varieties:

(a) Marie Legraye, single white, free flowering, large blooms.

(b) Madame Leroine, double white, late flowering.

(c) Charles X, lilac or purplish red, profuse flowering.

(d) Ludwig Spacth, dark purplish red.

(e) Congo, wine-colored red.

(f) S. Japonica, tree lilac, creamy-yellow flowers, blooms about July 1st.

7. Pyrus augustifolis (Bachtel's Double-flowered American Crab).—A crab apple tree of medium size and very hardy. About four years after planting it begins to bloom and bears large, double pink flowers an inch and a half in diameter. In bloom about June 1st, and lasts about two weeks. At a distance they look like small roses, and are very fragrant.

8. Spiraea Van Houttei (Van Houtte's Spiraea).—This is one of the best of the spiraeas. It makes a graceful, symmetrical little bush, about five feet in diameter, with slender drooping twigs. The bloom is pure white, very profuse, appears the first week in June, and lasts about two weeks.

9. Viburnum opulus sterile (Snowball).—This is a hardy, tree growing shrub about 10 feet high, which bears large round clusters of pure white flowers, which look like snowballs. In bloom about first week in June, and lasts over two weeks.

10. Lonifera tartarica (Bush Honeysuckle).—A very hardy symmetrical bush 10 feet or more in diameter. Has an abundance of bloom every year, which appears the first week of June, and lasts about a week. The bloom is followed by showy red or orange fruits, which make the bush attractive long after the bloom is gone. There are red, pink, and white varieties, all of which are worthy of a place on the lawn. May easily be grown from seed.

11. Diervilla rosea (Rose-colored Weigela).—This is a handsome bush, which is only half-hardy when young, but becomes hardier with age. It makes a bush four or five feet in diameter. The flowers are large and bell-shaped, appearing among the foliage the first week in June and lasting nearly three weeks.

12. Philadelphus coronarius (Garland Syringe).—A hardy, vigorous bush about 10 feet in height, bears large white flowers like orange blossoms. In bloom about middle of June and lasts over two weeks.

13.—Rhus cotinus (Purple Fringe or Smoke Tree).—A hardy, thrifty shrub, which grows 10 or 12 feet high and makes a shapely bush. About the middle of July it comes in bloom, and from then on till autumn is covered with curious fringe or plume-like flowers, which are very showy.

14. Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora.—A somewhat straggling growing shrub, which may become six or eight feet high, but is better of being pruned back severely every spring, in the same way as roses. Bears large panicles of white flowers. In bloom about the middle of August, and lasts three or four weeks.

The following list contains a number of good shrubs, not included in the list of one dozen best, yet any or all of them are worthy of a place on grounds where there is room for them: Althea (Rose of Sharon), Berberis Thunbergii (Japanese Barberry), Clethra alnifolia (Sweet Pepper Bush), Cornus alba (Siberian Red Osier), Daphne Cneorum (Garland Flower), Deutzia, Euonymus alatus (Burning Bush), Kerria Japonica (Globe Flower or Japanese Rose), Ligustrum Ibota (Privet), Robinia hispida.

A WONDER WORKER

"It heals like magic," is a favourite expression when Dr. Chase's Ointment is used. It works quickly, stops all itching at once, often heals in a single night. For eczema, salt rheum, barbers' itch, skin irritations or eruptions, it is a most satisfactory treatment. Being antiseptic, it prevents blood poisoning.

The Boy Scout Movement in Canada

SINCE Sir R. Baden Powell's visit to Canada in 1910 the Boy Scout movement has received a tremendous impetus, and the organisation is now on a firm basis.

Something like 20,000 boys are on the roll, which is a large number considering the various organisations that are catering to boys' work.

The work done by the boys is splendid and not one bi behind their brothers in England, whether it is in camp, rallies or even in craft exhibitions, in all of which the Canadian boys can hold their own. The badges won have been many, and the standard of examination is extremely high. Perhaps the brightest spot in the Scout work is the number of boys who have been presented with medals or certificates for saving life at risk of their own. The Chief Scout for Canada is the Duke of Connaught, who has always taken a keen interest in the work, and under him is the Dominion Council, who are representatives of the Provincial Councils, the latter Council govern the work in their province, who in turn are assisted by the District Councils, who are responsible for the organisation in their particular town or district.

Both Ontario and Quebec have found it necessary to have the services of a Provincial Secretary and staff to devote their whole time to the movement, both offices are kept extremely busy on the work. The Western provinces are now thinking of establishing similar offices, and when organised the effect will soon be seen.

During the Duke of Connaught's stay in Canada he has taken every opportunity to inspect the Scout. During the Toronto Exhibition some 4,000 Scouts were assembled from Ontario, and some excellent displays were given by the lads. Last year in Montreal the whole organisation turned out with full equipment of mounted Scout, cyclists, trek waggons, ambulance squads, bands, etc., and were warmly congratulated on their smartness by the Duke.

At the time of the Coronation of King George Canada sent over some 120 officers and Scouts, who were given a very prominent position on the line of march. During their stay in England, which lasted some six weeks, the boys were entertained in a lavish style.

Camping no doubt forms the principal part of scouting, and no better facilities to enjoy camp life are to be found than amongst the beautiful Laurentian Mountains north of Montreal. Easy access is made by the splendid train service of the C. P. R., who recognise that that country is the playground for Montrealers and cater for their comfort and pleasure.

Camp Tamaracouta, where the Montreal Boy Scouts have their camp, is situated on the Canadian Pacific line, 47 miles from Montreal. The property comprises over 300 acres, with a lake roughly a mile long and from 200 to 500 yards wide, where facilities for boating, sailing, canoeing and swimming are all that could be desired. A solidly built wharf with a springboard and a floating wharf anchored 20 yards from the shore are sufficient equipment for the most expert swimmers, while a sloping beach farther down the lake affords an opportunity for teaching boys to swim. The camp flotilla consists of three sailing dinghies, six canoes (these only for the use of those who can swim), and ten large flat-bottomed Vercheres row boats.

At one end of the lake there is situated a splendid headquarters and mess hall. The latter is capable of seating 175 boys, and when the tables are cleared away makes an ideal place for games on rainy days, or for concerts and lantern lectures in the evenings. Under the mess hall are the kitchens, headquarters, stores, workshop, and a modern and efficient cold storage plant. One part of the ground is given up for a baseball field, which also serves for football, cricket, and athletic meets. On the far side of the lake a shooting range has been fitted up, where practice is possible under supervision with absolute safety. The surrounding country is thickly wooded with innumerable lakes and streams and short trips in the nature of hikes and overnight camps are often taken.

Specialists for the various badges that the boys earn are at hand, to teach the boys, with the result that very few Scouts who attend camp return to town without several badges to their credit. A medical man is in attendance with a fully equipped hospital ten ready for any emergencies, but except for sunburns and stubbed toes his services are very seldom required.

The camp is open to any Scout in Quebec for ten weeks, and is under manent orderlies. The latter are selected from the Scouts in the city, and naturally there is quite a little competition for the position. The number of Scouts attending last year was about 325, while this year the number reached closer to 500. The cost of the camp is reduced to the lowest, as it is the Council's desire that it should be in the reach of every Scout in the province, so that it is possible for a boy to go to a camp, including transportation, for a week, for the small sum of $3.00 to $3.50.

New Sport
Sailing on Wheels

The boys of New York have invented a new sport, sailing on wheels. It is not a rich boy's sport exclusively, but is within the reach of every lad, for the only requirements are a few old roller skates or wheels, a soap box or a couple of planks, a few long sticks for masts and spars, some cord for sail ropes and a sufficient quantity of light, strong fabric for sails. Clinton Smith and Harold Phillips are the pioneers of this form of sailing.

The street on which they live is paved with asphalt and is wind swept from end to end, and the boys and girls of the vicinity have long been familiar with its advantages for roller skating.

"It was plain to me," said Clinton Smith in telling about it, "that if I could coast before the wind on roller skates it ought to be equally possible to sail before it in a contrivance mounted on wheels. So, taking the ice-boat as a model, I designed a land boat with two boards fastened together crosswise and mounted on the wheels of roller skates, attached a mast and sail to its forward end and gave it a trial.

"The wind was blowing a gale from the Hudson River at the time and I was swept along at a great rate toward Broadway. I had to let my sail go flying out in front before I could stop. After a few more trials I found out that all I had to do to stop the boat was to turn her round into the wind exactly as you would do if you were sailing a boat on the water.

Here Harold Phillips, who had been listening to his friend, had this to say:

"I don't know whether it was Clinton or I that first thought of a wheel boat. All I know is that we showed up with our boats on Dyckman street on the same afternoon. I guess we both ought to have equal credit, as our boats were so different that no one could say that one of us had copied from the other.

"Clinton's boat is simply an iceboat on roller skates, while mine is a play wagon made out of a soap box. We both use the forward wheels for a rudder, Clinton steering with his feet, while I steer with ropes. We are going to have a race in a few minutes. Wouldn't you like to wait and see it?"

The reporter answered yes, and, taking his stand among a group of children at the finishing line, prepared his camera to snap the contestants while the race was in progress.

For a while the race was even. Then it became apparent that Harold Phillips was to be the winner. Wheels, with their greater circumference, began to offset their superiority over roller skates.

Snap! went the reporter's camera and the race was over.

"I'll beat you yet," said Clinton Smith, as he shook hands with the victor. "You won to-day with your bigger wheels. Next time we race I'll carry more sail."

WHAT A DOG DID.

A fine dog is a mascot for the Christiana, baseball team of Wilmington, Del. He was with the team one day when the auto broke down near Middleton, says "Boys' Life." A note was tied to his collar and he was told to take it to Wilmington. It was twenty miles to the clubhouse and the team had their doubts as to the dog's comprehension, but he started off briskly. Arriving at the clubhouse, the dog jumped upon one of the members and rubbed against him till he saw the note and read it. The man took another machine, and, with the dog beside him, went after the stranded players and brought them home about midnight.

The Boston Public Library has issued a second revised edition of its "List of Books for Boys and Girls." It includes authors, titles, and subjects in a single alphabetical arrangement, the subjects being intended to meet requirements of the schools and to cover the range of children's interest. There are about 4,000 entries in the list, the alertness of which is indicated by the fact that there are references to fourteen Boy Scout books.

Fly Swatting Is Useless

Our Dominion Entomologist says: "I am convinced that the practical results of the fly swatting campaigns that have been carried on by some of our newspapers are useless as fly reducers." But the fact that one ten-cent packet of WILSON'S FLY PADS is capable of killing a bushel of flies proves them to be the best of all fly-killers and recommends their continuous use to good housekeepers. WILSON'S FLY PADS are sold by all grocers and druggists everywhere.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

PHILBIN ON THE STAGE

"Speaking of trials," said Mrs. Philbin in a conversational tone, "Albert has gone on the stage!"

"Not really?" the other women shrieked after they had caught their breaths.

"No," said Mrs. Philbin, "not really—just on the amateur stage. But it's lots worse than real acting. I don't know anything better calculated to make a said, grown-up man kick up his heels, buy new necktie and generally conduct himself in a kittenish way than a request that he lend his presence to an amateur production. It bolsters him up in his secret conviction that he is a perfect mine of undiscovered genius.

"'Oh, me!' he said at first., 'You don't want me! I never acted in anything in my life and I can't do it! I'd ruin the piece! Get some one else! I'd ruin the piece! Get some one else!' Afterward he told me that he hated to disoblige them but he really couldn't do it. I congratulated him on his good sense whereupon he looked at me as though he had caught me trying to poison him. He said he regretted to see how little confidence I had in his ability and was pained at my exhibition of jealousy.

"Then he raced to the 'phone and told the committee that just to oblige them and help them out of a hole he'd take the part.

"After that Albert was lost to the family. He passed three whole evenings running his hands through his hair and memorizing his part. If I spoke to him he would stare at me wildly as though he belonged to another sphere and resented my advent into it.

"After he went to the first rehearsal life became very hard at home because Albert took to going over what he called the 'business' of his part. It is disconcerting to have a man, even if he is your husband, rush at you from behind portieres and wander about with the furniture in his hands muttering to himself!

"Mrs. Lemmock called one evening and walked in just as Albert tore through from the dining room into the parlour shaking his fist and yelling, 'I have you now, you moral leper, and your life—your life is not worth an hour's purchase!' You can't blame Mrs. Lemmock for taking it personally, especially as Albert's fist was flourished within an inch of her nose.

"During this time if I remarked to Albert that the cook was going to leave he would stare at me and say, 'Ah—at last, Montmorency, I have unasked you!' It was impossible to carry on any conversation with Albert for weeks. He was always bursting out with bits of his part. Fully he insisted on my learning the part that dovetailed with his so that he could practice at home.

"Now, I love my husband and always try to please him, but I consider this my crowning act of self-sacrifice. Of course Albert was working for public applause, but if anyone wants to know what is my idea of zero in pleasant pastimes I should mention rehearsing a part that you aren't going to play. Anyhow, it's upsetting to have your own husband lean over you tenderly, gaze into your eyes and make desperate love to you in dime novel style. It makes you feel so queer!

"By the third rehearsal Albert had begun to talk about his art and to speak of well known stage people by their first names. He mentioned the public as though he had it eating out of his hand and he adopted the stage walk. When he stalked downstairs he thudded like a camel and when he stalked upstairs I always thought of elephants. He knocked all the bric-a-brac to pieces parading through the rooms and when he talked he either boomed or hissed. He demanded potatoes in a voice of tragedy and took to standing before mirrors in profile, frowning over his shape. He said the mirrors were old and worn out and gave him a curve out instead of a curve in.

"He got terribly fretful and when I objected he told me that I should make allowances for the artistic temperament and that the stage manager had told him if he had gone on the stage when he was a youth he undoubtedly would have rivalled Mansfield. Albert gloomed and tyrannised and had me jumping six ways at once hunting up his costume and buying grease paint and eyebrow pencils and false hair and letting him repeat his part to me and assuring him that he was entrancing in it.

"When I was worn to shreds the play was given and I had my revenge. I went around into the wings to see if Albert needed any help and fell over a shivering, crouching, chattering individual trying to hide between a canvas tree and a rustic gate. To my amazement it was Albert.

"He grabbed me with two ice cold hands and clung to me for dear life. He said he'd die if he had to get out there before all these people. Oh, he moaned, wouldn't I save him?

"I looked him in the eye and said, 'Albert, this is just another phase of the artistic temperament and I won't flicker an eyelash to help you! And if you fail in your part I—I'll leave home!'

"Albert was ill two days after the play from the nervous strain and when he got up and around he was quite sane again. And I may add, he's a great deal more humble than he used to be!"

"TIZ" GLADDENS SORE, TIRED FEET

Be puffed-up, burning, tender, sweaty feet—no corns or callouses.

"TIZ" makes sore, burning, tired feet fairly dance with delight. Away go the aches and pains, the corns, callouses, blisters, bunions and chilblains.

"TIZ" draws out the acids and poisons that puff up your feet. No matter how hard you work, how long you dance, how far you walk, or how long you remain on your feet, "TIZ" brings restful foot comfort. "TIZ" is magical, grand, wonderful for tired, aching, swollen, smarting feet. Ah! how comfortable, how happy you feel. Your feet just tingle for joy; shoes never hurt or seem tight.

Get a 25 cent box of "TIZ" now from any druggist or department store. End foot torture forever—wear smaller shoes, keep your feet fresh, sweet and happy. Just think! a whole year's foot comfort for only 25 cents.

Guatemalan Customs.

It is curious to learn from Domville-Fife's book on Guatemala that the Guatemalan peasants do not know how to make coffee—at least not according to European ideas. Yet 190,000 acres of their land are planted with coffee trees. Some of the natives instead of roasting the coffee pulverise it, boil it for some hours, bottle the result and call it essencia de cafe. They serve this concoction with boiling water.

The dolls the little Guatelmalan children play with are babies of stone—ancient images hundreds of years old. For these they have a fervent affection.

Mr. Domville-Fife observes that the Guatemalan word for a kiss is tetennamiquiltatli. We prefer our own.

Thackeray's Criticism.

In "Bar, Bat and Bit," by the Hon Sir Edward Chandos Leigh, is the following Thackeray story:

Thackeray and others were great frequenters of Evans', in Covent Garden kept by Paddy Green, where the most beautiful glees used to be sung. There was a little coterie there, and I was honored by being allowed to join the coterie. We used to devour chops baked potatoes and other adjuncts to a homely supper after the theater. One night I found Thackeray alone at the table when up came a small, obsequious gentleman, who rubbed his hands together and addressed Thackeray with the most fulsome compliments. When he passed on I said to Thackeray, "Pray tell me who is that?" His answer was, "He calls himself an artist, but he paints as much in butter as he does in oil."

Arms and the Child.

Girl scouts exist in Germany also. Instead of camp fire girls they call them something that sounds like a mixture of Fenimore Cooper and musical comedy—Pathfinderesses is the literal translation. Apparently, too, they go in for being military with true German thoroughness. One reads how a head game warden presented himself at the shop of a dealer in firearms in Berlin and desired to purchase a revolver. "A revolver!" said the dealer "I'm sorry, sir, but I've just sold the last gross of revolvers in the shop to the Potsdam battalion of girl scouts."—New York Post.

Answer of a Diplomat.

"You replace Dr. Franklin," said the French prime minister, Count de Vergennes, to Thomas Jefferson, the newly arrived representative of the United States. "I merely succeed him. No one could replace him," was Jefferson's reply.

LOOPING THE LOOP.

I. C. Hucks Explains How Sensational Trick Is Done.

The common opinion ha looping the loop is dangerous and a mere circus trick, does not fit in with the facts of the case, in my view, says I. C. Hucks, the famous aviator. Looping and upside-down flight are necessary and valuable tests, which prove the reliability of a machine as nothing else can do; for the machine which has been successfully flown in this way has shown that its construction is proof against the uncertainty of the elements, and it can, therefore, be relied upon for rough weather flights.

But not only do upside-down flight provide a valuable test as to a machine's reliability. They also test an airman's ability very thoroughly, and a pilot who can keep his head under such circumstances should be equal to any emergency. For this reason I believe the value of upside-down flight as a test for pilots will soon be recognised; and within five years I expect that every aviator will have to fly upside-down, and probably loop the loop, before he can obtain the highest flying certificate — the superior brevet.'

It was after seeing Pegoud loop the loop at Brooklands that I made up my mind to try the feat, and, with this object in view, approached Bleriot's agents over here. In the end, I went before him and passed through a sort of examination, which evidently satisfied him, for after that all was plain sailing.

For up-side-down flight the airman's feet are fastened to the rudder. He is strapped round the waist and thighs on to the seat, and also round the shoulders. These straps, which are called "the harness," are finally fastened on the stays of the body.

The aviator must now climb to a height of not less than 3,000 feet, and when at this level he may proceed at any moment to drop the nose of his machine for a dive of about 600 feet, during the course of which you drop like a stone at a most terrifying speed. You then pass beyond the vertical and find yourself flying upside-down.

One of the most critical points in this flight is reached when the centrifugal force sends the aviator's weight into his harness, without which he would leave the machine. This is the moment when anything but a very sensitive touch on the control levers would impose an unbearable strain upon your monoplane.

Having flown upside-down for about a mile, another nose dive of some 300 feet is made, when the pilot brings his machine round again into its normal position.

In order to loop the loop it is not necessary to do such a steep dive as in the case of inverted flight. The idea of the loop is that the machine travels in a fairly steep dive. Meanwhile, the engine is kept running, and the machine is helped over the highest point in the circle by the engine, the loop being completed by force of gravity.

I estimate that a loop can be made in a circle of 80 to 100 feet, and the pilot must drop 200 or 300 feet for every loop made.

It is really remarkable how a machine will regain its normal position when the pilot fails to make a complete loop. On one occasion I tried to make a loop without sufficient momentum, with the result that my machine got up almost to the critical point, then stopped and fell backwards on its tail, thus bringing me back to the normal position once more.

From what has been said on the subject of looping the loop you will probably realize that for this type of work it is necessary to use specially prepared machines.

The advantage of an engine that will run in all positions is obvious, but the ordinary engine would cease to run in a normal machine during looping experiments, because the tanks are not designed to supply petrol under such circumstances.

The Royal Washing.

When the court is at Windsor Castle and Buckingham Palace the laundry work is done by contract. The royal washing bill amounts to $30,000 per annum. At Balmoral and Sandringham a certain amount of the work is "done at home." In this connection an amusing incident occurred one Sunday morning during the last stay of the court in the Highlands (says the London Daily Express). The weather had been bad, and as the indoor drying accommodation is limited, a quantity of linen was undried on the Sunday morning. A brisk wind sprang up, but the Queen's rigid orders, prohibiting unnecessary work on the Sabbath, kept the laundry-maids inactive. Presently, however, Her Majesty with the rest of the royal family, drove off to church, and no sooner had the carriage disappeared round the bend than out came the linen. Careful note of time was taken, and an outlook posted as the doxology time approached. At the critical moment everything was whisked in, and the Queen drove home by the drying ground, unconscious that garments and table cloths had been drying in the open on Sunday.

Color of War Vessels.

That the war color of British naval vessels was selected because of its invisibility by day rather than by night, is the statement recently made by a naval officer, and tests seem to show that a vessel painted in this color, while difficult to see in daylight, is easily picked up and made visible by a searchlight at night. In one case a vessel painted in the war color was detected at a distance of 17,000 yards under the searchlight. There seems to be an insuperable difficulty in connection with this. For night work alone black is believed to be the best color, but this is a color too easily distinguished in daylight to be considered.

Bankruptcy.

"Pa, what's bankruptcy?" a little boy once asked.

And pa, who had been "bit" that week, answered bitterly:

"Bankruptcy, my son, is where you put your money in your hip pocket and let your creditors take your wallet and coat."

UNWARRANTED CRITICISM.

Robinson Crusoe Meets Defeat at the Hands of a Woman.

Just as the sun was setting over the long stretch of ocean that swept away from the deserted islanders where a few weeks before they had been cast adrift, he came upon her from his daily toil. She was sitting at the foot of a tree making canoes out of bark.

"If this were a summer resort," he said gravely, "those things might be salable—possibly. May I ask what you are making them for?"

"I like to keep busy," She was a very attractive woman.

"Look here!" he said, for the first time his manner suggesting a slight roughness, "you haven't done anything to help me since we landed."

She raised her eyes almost indignantly.

"Indeed! Haven't I read aloud from our only book? Haven't I taught you how to breathe correctly?"

He dropped down beside her. Her attitude made him laugh.

"I've a curiosity to know something," he said. "Will you answer me?"

"Certainly."

"Well, then, since we've been marooned here I've had to scratch around to keep us alive—do the Robinson Crusoe act—and I haven't discovered yet a practical thing you can do. You can't cook; you can't sew; you can't measure or get any kind of a line on anything accurately. What I want to know is what did you do when you were home?"

And she replied superciliously: "Just to show you that you are mistaken I will tell you. I was the head professor in a young ladies' private school."—Life.

And so the soldiers in the Pankhurst people's army mutinied because they were not allowed to smoke at a meeting! Now, isn't that just like men? They're utterly hopeless!

TO CHECK A COLD

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep the cough loose, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. S. M. Moore, Shortreed, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

Local Bakers Raise Price Of Bread To-day

Eleven Cents a Loaf is the Price That Will be Paid Henceforth by Local Consumers

REASONS FOR INCREASE

The bakers of the City are onw getting one cent per loaf more for their bread. This change went into effect this morning and the price in future will be 11 cents instead of ten.

The bakers claim that this has been brought about owing to the ever-increasing overhead expenses of manufacturing, delivery, etc., and in order to keep the bread up to a high standard of quality it was found necessary to make a slight increasing in the selling price.

They also claim that even with the increased price, that bread is cheaper here than in many places throughout the province.

Lindsay is cited as one of these places as getting 12 cents per loaf, as well as Toronto and other places that could be named.

With the increased price the bakers say they will be enabled to still further their efficiency in producing an even higher standard of quality.

According to information received by the Examiner this morning the decree of the Board of Health regarding white caps, smocks and gloves has had no influence on the price of bread.

Drowns Himself in Swamp.

BROCKVILLE, May 18. — Edgar Cliffe, 33, residing with his mother and two sisters at Cliffe's Crossing near Lansdowne, was found drowned in a swamp hole on his farm by neighbors who had gone in search of him. It was noticed that for some days Cliffe had been acting strangely, and fears were entertained that he was suffering mentally. He left the house to look after his team in the barn, and when he did not return within a reasonable time search was made with the above result. It is supposed that he ended his life while temporarily insane.

Murderer Declared Sane.

MONTREAL, May 18. — Tomaso Bernardi, sentenced to hang here on Friday next, was reported sane by a committee of experts who examined him Saturday. His guards at the jail said he was sane, too. When he was first arrested he sank rapidly until it was thought he would die before his trial. When it came he was but a shadow of his former self and seemed to know little of what was passing. Since his conviction he has regained his health and is reported sane. He murdered a man on McGill street last summer for stealing his Italian sweetheart.

They've Had Enough.

CLEVELAND, O., May 18. — Because of an accident last night in a race at the motordome at Luna Park, in which three racers and two spectators were injured, the officials of the park announced that the motordrome would be permanently closed.

Senator Coffey Better.

LONDON, Ont., May 18. — The condition of Hon. Thomas Coffey showed still further improvement yesterday. The Senator is still in a critical state, but as he has been a little better each day since Thursday his physicians now hold out excellent hopes for his ultimate recovery.

Must Stand Trial for Murder.

SYDNEY, N.S., May 18. — Mrs. Ben Atkinson, whose hearing on the charge of being an accessory after the fact in the murder of Benjamin S. Atkinson, was concluded Saturday, has been committed to stand trial before the Supreme Court on that charge by Magistrate Hearn.

Fell Into Vat.

BERLIN, Ont., May 18. — While making his rounds at the Breithaupt Leather Co.'s tannery Friday night, August Kaufman, the nightwatchman, accidentally fell into a vat of boiling liquid. He called for help, but before assistance arrived he got out himself. He was terribly burned.

Customs Cruiser Arrives.

HALIFAX, May 18.—The new customs cuiser Margaret, which recently arrived here from the shipyards at Southampton, sailed at noon Saturday for Quebec, where she will enter the St. Lawrence revenue service. The Margaret is commanded by Capt. May.

Bishop Brent Declines.

NEW YORK, May 18. — Bishop C. H. Brent of the Philippine Islands and a former Canadian clergyman, declined the Bishopric of the Episcopal Diocese of New Jersey in a cable message received at the Episcopal Board of Missions.

Glass That Won't Splinter.

An ingenious process for producing glass which will not splinter has been devised by a French inventor. One side of each of two glass plates is covered with a thin coating of gelatin, a thin clear plate of celluloid is laid between these two surfaces, and glass and celluloid are then united by strong pressure into a single pane.

FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

John W. Skillen of Sidney, Ohio, Has Found a Remedy.

Experts declare that the reason stomach disorders are so common in this country is due to hasty and careless habits of eating. Stomach troubles and run-down conditions usually go together.

John W. Skillen of Sidney, Ohio, says: "I had a bad stomach trouble for years and became so weak that I could hardly walk or do any work. My appetite was poor and it seemed impossible to get any relief. Since taking 'Vinol' I find a remarkable improvement in my health, my digestion is much stronger and I have gained in weight. I would not be without Vinol."

Vino makes weak stomachs strong because it strengthens and tones up the weakened, tired and overtaxed nerves of the digestive organs. Vinol is easily assimilated by the weakest stomachs and is delicious to the taste.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

SCHOONERS CAUGHT.

Fishing Craft Are Fast in Big Ice Drift In Strait of Canso.

HALIFAX, N.S., May 18. — One hundred fishing schooners, bound north for bait, were reported to have been caught fast in drift ice in the Strait of Canso while on their way to the Gulf of St. Lawrence. In response to an appeal to the Canadian Government for assistance the steamer Minto was despatched to the scene Saturday. Some of the schooners were said to be in danger of being crushed in the heavy floes.

Tritonia Released.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., May 18. — The steamer Tritonia, from Glasgow, which has been imprisoned in the ice of Notre Dame Bay for two weeks was released by the sealing steamer Bellaventure Saturday. She suffered only slight damage about the fore part.

DO YOU KNOW HOW TO ENGINEER A MEAL?

There will be A SERIES OF LECTURES given in the TURNBULL STORE on the subject of "Kitchen Engineering," to which the Ladies of Peterboro are invited

The Gurney Foundry Co., Toronto, Canada's largest makers of Gas Stoves, have made a study of the subject of cooking a meal in such order that the courses are ready as wanted. That is to say, you will hear at these lectures how to engineer a meal so that the soup, for instance, will be ready first; then the roas; then the other courses, and dessert.

The modern way to cook, is by Gas. A Gas Range is lighted in a moment; the fire is ready for use instantly. There is no coal or ashes to carry. No waste fuel; as soon as you are through with the fire, turn it out. You don't light the WHOLE stove if you only require to heat an iron, or make a pot of tea.

And in order to make GAS COOKING even more efficient and satisfactory, the Gurney Foundry Co. have prepared a course in ENGINEERING a Meal. These Lectures will be brief interesting talks on this subject.

Every housewife who appreciates how satisfactor it would be to know how to go about the preparation of a meal with the certainty of its being a sure success, should hear these talks. They will be held in the afternoons from four to six o'clock, and on two evenings at quarter past eight. In the afternoon tea will be served with our compliments. This is an interesting, profitable way to spend a half hour.

We give below the dates and hours at which these Lectures will be held:

NO SEAL ON OTONABEE'S LOCAL OPTION BY-LAW

Mr. G. N. Gordon Made the Discovery While Acting For John Fox Charged With a Breach of the Local Option Law—Mr. Gordon Claims By-Law Has No Power in This Case Because of Omission

AUTHORITIES TO DECIDE

While acting as counsel for John Fox, who appeared in Norwood on Friday, charged with being drunk in Otonabee, a local option district, Mr. G. N. Gordon discovered that the Township's by-law did not bear the seal of the Corporation of Otonabee, and claimed that the by-law was powerless.

Messrs. Pearce, Squire and Mathison were hearing the case. Mr. Gordon asked for the by-law and upon looking it over, the first thing that caught his attention was the absence of the Corporate seal. He then stated that he would put in no defence and claimed that no conviction could be made for the reason that the by-law was not properly sealed. The objection raised has been referred to the License Department, and will be considered by the proper authorities.

If the point brought out by Mr. Gordon is upheld the question arises as to the money which has been collected in the past under the Township's by-law. If the seal means anything it should surely be affixed to every by-law. In any event the matter is an interesting one and many will wait the decision which will be delivered from Toronto.

ADMIRAL DRURY PASSES AWAY

LONDON, Eng., May 16.—Admiral Sir Charles Carter Drury, G.C.B., who was Second Sea Lord of the British Admiralty from 1903 to 1908, died to-day. He was born at Rothsay, N.B., Canada, in 1846.

PAVEMENT LIFTED BUT NOT BECAUSE OF ANY IMPERFECTIONS

A square yard of last year's pavement has been lifted on George street in front of Rich. Hall's store, and Mayor Buller desires to correct any impression that this was due to any fault in construction. The Mayor stated that the Utilities Commission had a valve there which they wanted to raise to the surface, and which was overlooked last year when all preliminary digging should have been performed. The Council is in no way to blame for this late work which has been done by the former Waterworks Commission. In the same regard, the repairs that were made on Hunter street a few weeks ago were necessitated from the fact that a patch of the pavement had been burned. Otherwise the pavement has been most satisfactory and wears well. Mayor Buller desires to set at rest and criticisms that may be made by citizens who have noticed the lifting of the bithulic surface for the purposes outlined above.

THE WILLS ARE PROBATED

Margaret Huston Left an Estate Valued at $4,628.95—The Will of Late William Mackey

LETTERS OF GUARDIANSHIP

Application for letters of probate in the will of William Mackey, by Joseph Burgess Pearce. The deceased left a will of $9,850.97. Those benefitting by the will are Winnifred Elliott, grand-daughter of Norwood, Ont., $200; Mary Elizabeth McCracken, daughter, Roseneath, $600; Margaret Jane Scott of Havelock, daughter, $600; Lilly Mabel Webster, daughter of Norwood, $600; Robert Mackey, Norwood, son, $600.

Application for probate in the will of the late George Edward Rosborough, who died here, saving $1662.05, has beenmade by H. Rosborough of Sudbury. By this will, Stella Mary Rosborough, daughter, of Pittsburgh, Pa., benefits to the extent of $1,000, and Hall Rosborough, son, $662.05.

Minne Huston, City, has made application at Surrogate Court for probate in the will of Margaret Huston, who left an estate valued at $4,628.95

The beneficiaries are Jennie Huston, daughter, 340 Charlotte Street, City, $1157.24.

Elisabeth MacIntosh, Hamilton, a daughter, $1157.24.

Edith Sunderland, 356 Water Street, daughter, $1157.24.

Minnie Huston, 340 Charlotte Street, daughter, $1157.24.

His Honour Judge Hayeke has granted letters of guardianship to Frances E. M. Roberts, spinster, of this City, of Eldrid Cambridge Cumberland, Keith Oswald Cumberland, Helen Phylis Cumberland, and David Eric Cumberland, the infant children of David Cumberland, and Helen, Catherine Florence Roberts Cumberland, deceased.

The mother died at Bridgenorth on October 17th, 1913. In giving letters of guardianship, His Honour also gave a certain portion of their estate and declared that these, consisting of monies, should be issued to said petitioner.

An Example Of Co-operation

At Yara, Ont., a fire which started at 2.30 on the morning of Saturday, May 2nd, destroyed the block in which the Bell Telephone office was located, together with the switchboard, and all equipment, as well as the cable and pole in front of the building.

Long distance connection was reestablished with Owen Sound at once and men and equipment rushed from there. Toronto was notified to hurry forward additional equipment, and a switchboard was obtained from another office in the district. By 5 p.m. of the same day, complete local service was being given from the office across the street. By 11 a.m. next day (Sunday) all rural and long distance lines were also in working order.

Taking into account the extensive and intricate repairs necessary, this is surely quick work. Such a result is only possible to an organization with great resources, and it is perhaps just in such emergencies that the great Bell system is most appreciated.

YOUNGSTERS FOUND SOME DYNAMITE

Little Wesley White of Campbellford Seriously Injured and Playmate Was Thrown Into Air

IN NICHOLLS' HOSPITAL

Little eight-year-old Wesley White, of Campbellford, arrived in the city on the 9:10 G.T.R. train this morning in a serious condition as a result of an explosion which occurred yesterday while he was playing with a comrade in that town.

It seems that while playing near where the construction work on the Trent Canal is going on in Campbellford yesterday afternoon, young White and a comarade came upon a dynamite cartridge which had been overlooked by the men in charge of the blasting. Suspecting its nature, but not imagining just how serious the consequences might be, the boys attached a make-shift fuse, in the shape of a piece of paper, to the cartridge, and lighted it. The resultant explosion threw one of the boys right over a fence into the neighbouring field, blew off part of Wesley White's right hand, and one of his cheeks.

When he was brought to Peterborough to-day he was rushed to the Nicholls Hospital where Dr. Carmichael attended him. He is in a serious condition owing to the laceration of his hand, and the condition of his face, but his recovery is hoped for.

His playmate, though precipitated several feet into the air, was not injured except from the shock of his fall to the ground.

W. O. W. ATTEND DIVINE SERVICE AT ARMY TEMPLE

Last evening the local Woodmen of the World attended annual divine service at the Salvation Army Temple. They gathered at their splendid hall on George Street, from where, headed by the Salvation Army Band, they marched to the Temple. There they were welcomed on behalf of the Army by Adjutant McElhiney, who greeted them cordially because of the great purposes they stood for.

Adjutant McElhiney read the story of Joseph and his brethren, which is the basis for one of their degrees, and Mrs. McElhiney spoke very acceptably indeed.

The former addressed the assembled Woodmen on the story of Joseph and his brethren, emphasizing Joseph as a type of our Lord, his serving his brother, his betrayal, his being sold and his ultimate triumph, his treatment of his enemies and his praying for them all paralleled instances in the life of Jesus Christ.

He believed that the world was getting better because of the great work that the Woodmen of the World and similar fraternal institutions were doing. They were visiting the sick, burying the dead, caring for widows and orphans. In conclusion the speaker quoted in reference to the work they were doing, the Saviour's words: Inasmuch as ye did it unto the least of these, my little ones, ye did it unto Me."

The band and songsters rendered special music which was greatly appreciated. Adjutant McElhiney's address made a profound impression on the audience and was an eloquent expression of a worthy message.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Adjutant and Mrs. McElhiney, and the Salvation Army Band, after the Woodmen had returned to the hall.

FIRST BATHING RESORT MAY BE END OF LAKE ST

Special Committee Asks City Engineer For Plans For Dressing Quarters at This Location—No Swimming at Inverlea Nor Jackson Park

TRUSTEES OPPOSED TO IT

The first concrete step towards establishing a public swimming place was taken on Saturday night when the special committee appointed to deal with this matter, instructed City Engineer Parsons to prepare plans for a building to be used as dressing quarters at the east end of Lake Street.

Ald. Johnston, who presided, stated that the Nicholls estate trustees did not wish Jackson Park and Inverlea Park to be used for public bathing places. Ald. Johnston stated that there was a suitable location just above Inverlea Park which might be secured.

Play Grounds.

Quite a number of sites for playgrounds were considered by the committee, and it was moved by Mayor Buller, seconded by Ald. Dobbin, that an effort be made to secure options of the best located in the list and that in the meantime an endeavour be made to obtain their use for the older boys' baseball games.

Those present at the meeting were Ald. Johnston, Mayor Buller, Ald. Dobbin and Dr. M. A. Morrison.

It is understood that a suitable dressing room could be erected for at least $225.

The City can secure the old Crowley property north of the Smith Street bridge, and on the east side of the river, for $1,200. Quite a number of properties in various parts of the City were considered.

WOMAN CARRIED OFF 5 LBS BUTTER

Market Incident With a Smooth Flavour in Which Woman Said She Left Purse in Store, Walked Away Before She Could be Stopped

WAS GOOD BUTTER TOO

A smart trick was worked on the market on Saturday by which some Peterborough woman got away with five pounds of butter without paying for them. She approached Miss Garbutt, daughter of Mr. Wm. Garbutt, who resides near Nassau and asked the price of butter.

Miss Garbutt replied that she had received 27c a pound.

Said the woman: "They are only asking 25c over there."

Miss Garbutt intended to sell her butter for 27c which she had obtained, and said so to the prospective purchaser. The woman tasted the butter and said she would take four pounds. Then she changed her mind and said she might as well have five pounds. While Miss Garbutt was estimating the total of 5 times 27 the woman opened her hand bag and ostensibly felt around for her purse.

"My goodness," she said, "I have left my purse at So. and So's and there's $20 in it," and without further ado picked up her basket with the five pounds of butter and disappeared. All of which was a rather smooth little game. The police were notified.

TOWNS SWEPT AWAY BY YUKON FLOOD

Special Wire to The Examiner:

TACOMA, May 17.—Fairbanks, Alaska, cables that Circle City, Eagle City and scores of woodchoppers' and mining camps with many native villages along the Yukon above Fort Yukon have been destroyed by the worst flood in the history of the north, according to meagre reports received to-night. Fears are entertained that Fort Yukon has been swept away.

"Ice jammed somewhere below here and water rising at the rate of more than a foot per minute. Everybody taking to foothills." This was the brief message flashed from the wireless station at Circle City and picked up at Fort Gibbon.

Flood marks on the Yukon show that water in the past rose more than a hundred feet when ice jammed in the canyons. Circle City and Eagle City are only thirty feet above the Yukon's normal level.

HON. ADAM BECK COMING TO EXPLAIN RURAL RADIAL LINES

The Power Committee decided to arrange with Hon. Adam Beck to visit Peterborough in the near future to deliver an address explaining the proposal regarding Rural Radial lines. It will be remembered that Mayor Buller was one of the big delegation that waited on Premier Borden in regard to aiding this movement, and His Worship also visited Toronto with practically the same delegation.

On Saturday night the committee decided to pay its share, $25, toward the cost of arranging for these deputations, advertising, etc., and Mayor Buller gave an account of the trip and the details of the proposal, all of which have been published already in The Examiner.

Mayor Buller stated that efforts were being made to bring Hon. Adam Beck to the city to speak to the people of Peterborough and the surrounding districts on the proposed Rural Radial lines, how they are to be paid for and what they hold out to the people. The committee decided to write him and invite him to come to Peterborough at his earliest convenience.

FRATERNAL SUNDAY ON 28TH OF JUNE

Three Thousand Are Expected to March in Procession to Various Churches of the City

MEETING ON SATURDAY

Fraternal Sunday is to be observed in this city the 28th of next June. This was decided on Saturday night when a meeting of the representatives of the various fraternal societies in thic ty was held in the Sons of England Hall, Hunter street. Committees were appointed and it was decided to ask Chief Howard to act as Marshall of the procession, and Mr. E. Reid, a well known local member of one of the societies was appointed deputy-marshall. It is expected that 3,000 men will march in the parade.

On Sunday, June 28, all the Fraternal societies in the city will march. The members of the various lodges will meet at their respective rooms at 6 o'clock and march to the Market Square, where the parade will be formed. The Ministerial Association are arranging for the ministers to exchange pulpits on that evening, and it will not be known just what churches the societies will visit, until it is announced at the Market Square that evening.

Different sections of the parade will visit different churches, including George street, St. Paul's, St. Andrew's, Murray Street, and St. John's churches.

A CHANCE TO LEARN TO SWIM

Pool at Y. M. C. A. Will be at Disposal of Boys of The City

The swimming pool at the Y. M. C. A. will be at the disposal of all the boys of the city this week from 4 to 6 o'clock each evening. All b.'s between the ages or 10 and 17 who cannot swim, are invited to go to the Y and learn to do so. Supervisors will be present, and everyone will be given an equal opportunity. Last year a great number of boys took the opportunity of a similar offer.

This is a very liberal offer of the officers of the Young Men's institution, and it is hoped that a large number of boys will take advantage of the opportunity offered to them. The water will be heated to a comfortable degree.

TRAVERS IS DEFEATED IN FIRST ROUND

MISS AILEEN COUGHLIN QUALIFIED DRUGGIST

In the list of successful students at the recent School of Pharmacy examinations appears the name of Miss Aileen Coughlin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Coughlin, Aylmer street. Miss Coughlin was one of the only two young lady students of the present year and obtained a fine position in the class results. After securing her matriculation at the Collegiate Institute she was engaged for a number of years with McDermid and Jury, where she made many friends who will be pleased to learn of her success at Pramacy. Her diploma entitles her to full standing as a druggist, and is probably the first girl graduate of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute to qualify for this profession.

Wm. German Says he Predicted Last Year the Present C. N. R. Request—Will Look For More Money on Ground That Government is in Partnership With Them

J. E. ARMSTRONG DEFENDS

OTTAWA, May 16—William German of Welland resumed the debate on the Canadian Northern resolution in the House of Commons this morning. "When the fifteen million subsidy proposal was before Parliament last year," declared Mr. German, "I was one of those who prophesied that it would be little more than a drop in the Caandian Northern bucket. I undertake to predict that this forty-five millions, which we are asked by the Government to vote, will not be half enough to bring the Canadian Northern up to the standard of the National Transcontinental. In two or three years any way, Mackenzie & Mann will be back again for more. And their strongest argument will be that the Government is now in partnership with them and must therefore, see them through. "There was," said Mr. German, "no difference of opinion on the Opposition side that the road should be completed and placed upon an earning basis, so that the people could get some of their money back as soon as possible. But they were united also in the demand that a thorough enquiry should be made. The great majority of the people were of the same opinion." The people," declared the member for Welland "are becoming tired of being bled for railway enterprises upon the mere 'say so' of promoters."

J. E. Armstrong, (Conservative), of East Lambton, declared that Parliament had no right to investigate the private affirs of Mackenzie & Mann. A thorough investigation has been made of a public corporation, the Canadian Northern, that was all that was necessary or that could be expected. "Mackenzie & Mann," declared Mr. Armstrong, "are men of sterling worth, sterling Canadians, through whose back-bone and integrity and perseverance a great national enterprise has been brought near to completion."

FIRST PEACE MEDIATOR HAS ARRIVED AT FALLS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., May 18. The first of the A.B.C. peace conference between the United States and Mexico to arrive in Niagara Falls was Raoul S. Naon, Minister from Argentine, who came in this morning at 10 o'clock. After a brief visit to points of interest on the United States side, Senor Naon and party were driven across the border to the Clifton Hotel. From the seclusion of his room the Argentine minister sent word that he had nothing to say to newspaper men. Canadian customs officials passed the baggage of the party without inspection.

WILL SIEZE GUNS FROM GERMANY

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 18.—Admiral Badger has notified authorities that he has under surveillance two more German steamers, presumably carrying arms for the Huerta forces. They will not be permitted to land. If the arms are landed they will be seized and returned to Germany. In the meantime, however, Carranza's constitutionalists are receiving arms and ammunition at Tampico without hindrance.

CRITICISM FOR KIPLING

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., May 18.— (Special cable.) — Rudyard Kipling's stump speech Saturday night, in which he averred that the government was ready to provoke murder in Ulster to serve their own ends, has developed a storm of vitriolic criticism of the popular poet. The Daily Chronicle describes him as a little gutter snipe. Other Liberal paper are equally venomous in their comment. The Daily Mail, Conservative, doesn't approve very much of Kipling's assisting the Unionist cause. It is quite plain that all parties would be better satisfied if Kipling had confined his attention to poetry and left politics alone for the present. There is little change in the Home Rule situation.

Mayor Buller Favours Park on Corner of Hunter and Burnham Sts. Down to River

How would the general public favour a park on the property immediately north of the Riverside Ball grounds? Mayor Buller believes that this would be an ideal location for a breathing place, and has already put machinery in motion to open negotiations with property holders. His Worship's idea is that the Dickson companies property on the corner of Hunter and Burnham street should be secured and the other lots where the old Rapid Tool buildings stands and the mattress factory.

This would provide a park stretching from Burnham street down to the river. In the event of a high level bridge across the river, it is felt that this use of the property would be all the more desirable. At any rate Mayor Buller has broached the idea to Mr. J. C. Shook, and it is felt that something may come of the movement. The property could be filled in where needed, and would have a splendid slope down to the river front, the presence of the water being a decided asset. The location is practically in the heart of the city, the site is a spacious one, and the park would be on the waterfront. His Worship has enlisted Alderman Anderson in the scheme and an effort will be made to get options. The fact that this locality is on the direct route to the Lift Lock, and to Riverside Park, are strong points in its favour, and there is also the fact that East City residents have been overlooked in the providing of public parks. If the property owners will be reasonable in their demands there is a strong probability that the Mayor will go through with the idea as far as it lies in his power. Mayor Buller, of course, desires whatever co-operation can be secured.

THE CITY BEAUTIFUL.

The adoption of a definite plan for the addition of a drive system to Peterborough's attractiveness is only a beginning; so far, on paper only, except for the endorsation of the large and representative meeting of Friday night. The plan proposed, however, embraces only perhaps a fiftieth part of our street area. Before even this much is done, and before the rest of the city is included, a great educative work is to be done, before whatever is done in the way of city beautification will not be lost labour—wasted expenditure. City beautification, whether of boulevard or lawn, will not last unless means are adopted to prevent its destruction after it is completed, or even in course of construction. We must have something done to arouse a public spirit of decency towards the labours of public-spirited citizens.

Now, we see fine boulevards prepared and lawns laid down; and at once an unthinking and unkind part of our citizens proceed to tramp the life out of them. This especially applies to open lawns at street corners. In some places the public has tramped away the corners of a lawn for a distance of three yards each from the intersection of the sidewalk. And boulevards similarly situated are guttered into cow-paths by the people who take the odious "short cut." The existence of this condition means the existence of a spirit that will have to be laid before we can do anything effective or permanent, or satisfying, in the way of beautification of our streets. Such a spirit in its manifestation, is not only destructive of actual accomplishment, but is a strong deterrent to people who would like to improve their street surroundings. But the very idea is discouraging, when they see that others who have done such work, have only done it to have it immediately destroyed or marred by the public, in whose interests as much and, collectively, more, than. In that of the owners of property adjacent such beauty and tidiness is created. The interests who are cooperating in the improvement of the city in the form of the definite plan proposed, will have to do something more than plan, plant, prune and water. They must put a good deal of effort in the crusade for a higher civilization that will protect and preserve the beauty and tidiness they may create. They must enlist the churches in the first place; for the protection of the beauty of public and private places is a matter of religion—it involves the sum of all religion, in our human relation—"do unto others as you would have others do unto you," and "thou shalt love thy neighbour as thy self." The pulpit should preach the broader religion of aesthetic altruism, and our schools should have the cult of the beautiful in nature and the more beautiful in refinement of human character, prominent and even preeminent in their curriculum. Here is indicated a great deal of missionary work before we can, with hope of permanent results, turn the first sod of the work of definite improvement of the city beautiful.

LACK OF FORESIGHT.

Lack of foresight is a mild term to apply to the cause of conditions existing at a corner of Park Street, resulting from the neglect of a former city council. In putting down the sidewalk at the intersection of Charlotte street west with Park street, the space between the curbs was narrowed down to a mere conduit compared with the width of the road surface of the rest of the street. And to permit of the extension of the street railway westward, the sidewalk must be moved inwards and eliminate seven or eight feet of a nicely improved lawn of a private citizen. The expense will not be great — only about 200 dollars — but it will be one of the expenses that would have been avoidable by a little foresight, and one of the hundred similar unnecessary expenses that go for to explain a twenty-six mill rate. The present situation at the point named was preventable and the blunder when it was made was very much like a gratuitious one. When the location of the pavement was made, and before construction began, the Examiner called the attention of the council to the danger of narrowing down the roadway at point where three street cars intersect, in the way of accidents to vehicles. But in face of the warning, in face of the facts, the location of the sidewalk was persisted in even after the matter was officially brought to the notice of the city. The walk was built, the street surface for vehicles was destructively narrowed, and now the extra expense procuring new surveys, of removing a well built walk and building a new one will have to be added to our already formidable list of civic expenditures. This in itself is a small matter, but a similar lack of foresight prevailing in hundreds of other cases is responsible for a formidable amount of duplicated, useless and unnecessary expenditure.

In this case a large elm will have to be sacrificed, but that won't hurt the feelings of aldermen. Within the past two or three years several grand old street trees, monumented in size and dignity, have been ruthlessly cut down; and the assertion is ventured that the members of the council whose duty is to prevent such vandalism hadn't the least idea that the ghastly work was being done. This is only another illustration of the lack of system in civic matters, the lack of coordination of civic service, the lack of definite responsibility, all embraced in the general term, lack of foresight, lack of mature deliberation and intelligent decision before action is taken—action which is often wrong and results in mistakes costly to correct.

BACK TO THE SIMPLE LIFE.

If all the parents taught their children how to hoe a garden or milk a cow, the high cost of living would come down to earth. It's teaching the boys how to thump the piano, and the girls how to tango and drink pink tea, that will make potatoes ten dollars a barrel faster than anything else.—Lethbridge Herald.

IT'S MR. BORDEN'S MOVE.

A civil servant appointed by the Borden government has admitted that he wrote an anonymous letter to a Halifax newspaper attacking the Liberal majority in the Nova Scotia Legislature. Premier Borden used to have some pronounced views on civil servants interfering in politics. These views he incorporated in the "Halifax platform." Of course, he will immediately decapitate the offending Halifax civil servant.—Ottawa Free Press.

JUSTICE IN DISTRESS.

As many persons are killed in the United States every three years as were killed in the South African war, which lasted the same length of time, asserts a writer. We have in this country an average of 9,000 homicides annually, and in only one out of every hundred cases is the proper penalty visited upon the slayer. Most of the remaining ninety-nine slayers are never caught. The few that are caught wriggle out of the hands of the law.—Chicago Tribune.

HANNA AND HURON.

This issue between Hanna and Huron is going to be an important feature of the coming campaign. Mr. Hanna has evidently weighed the temperance people and the bar in the scales of his political calculation and thinks the latter the heavier for electoral purposes. So, on the eve of the election, with liquor money jingling already in his campaign trousers, and expecting more to come, he goes to flagrant lengths in his favour to those who are a present help in all times of Government trouble.

What Ontario must do is to show once for all that the temperance cause is a real cause and its advocates real men. Church synods and assemblies have been passing resolutions to abolish the bar for years past. The time is come for the members of those bodies to back their words with votes. Crush the man who tries to crush temperance in Huron.—London Advertiser.

"Well, even at that, the party only lost a Nickle." This is a snarl from Government House. The Ottawa Journal, once "independent" (when independence paid) can see nothing good in independence now that straight party support is more lucrative.—Ottawa Free Press.

GOVERNMENT BY A CAUCUS

If there is any doubt in the public mind as to the ability of Sir James Whitney to resume and continue his work as Prime Minister of Ontario, that doubt is being created by the politicians who are supposed to be Sir James Whitney's friends. It is these politicians who are circulating reports of a premature dissolution and election to be held in the summer of the early fall of this year. No public reason is assigned for the premature election. It is said that the Conservatives are anxious to go to the election under the leadership of Sir James Whitney. But what the people of Ontario are anxious to know is not who is to lead the hosts in the election, but who is to govern the Province afterwards.

The hurrying on of the election would mean that on the Conservative side, there is uncertainty as to the leadership. In plain words, it would mean that the name of Sir James Whitney would be used dishonestly, for electioneering purposes. If by that electioneering device, the government could be returned, the caucus could then choose some other leader, and control the Legislature, furthering or opposing legislation according to its own pleasure and caprice.

The straightforward, honest way is to hold the election at the regular time. At that time the people ought to be informed who is really to be the leader of the Conservative party, so that they may choose between him and Mr. Rowell and between the policies of the two leaders. It is not fair to ask any man, whatever his politics may be, to vote in the dark, so as to allow a group of politicians to choose any leader and carry out any policy they please.

Belated Rally Failed To Save Petes From Defeat On Saturday

London Won The Rubber Game by 6 Runs to 4---Decision by Umpire Bedford Having Considerable to do With the Final Count---Fielding of Mullin and King the Feature of a Good Exhibition---Petes Scored Four Runs in the Ninth Innings

A decision by Umpire Bedford in the seventh innings of Saturday's battle cost Peterborough the rubber game of the series with London the Tecumsehs winning by 6 to 4. Up to the seventh the Cockneys were leading 5 to 0. With two out in that frame and men on second and third Long cracked a liner to short right. Fox came in on the dead run and apparently made a beautiful shoe string catch of the drive. His Umpt, however, ruled that the ball had been trapped, not caught and the decision was responsible for two runs as Fox made no effort to head off the base-runners. Bedford undoubtedly called the play as he saw it, but Fox claims that he caught the ball fairly and he is backed up by dozens of fans who saw the catch from the right field bleachers.

The decision aroused the ire of the fans who made things warm for the arbitrator for the balance of the session. They had frequent opportunities to pan him too, as he had a couple of decisions at first base afterwards that he called against the Petes, and in both cases it looked as if His Umpe had guessed wrong. Altogether it was a bad day for the official, as the players kicked frequently on his decision on balls and strikes.

Manager Blount selected Bob Sterling as his gunner and the big fellow had a troublesome passage. When right he is one of the best pitchers in the League, but he was not right Saturday. The plate was swinging for him and he passed six Cockneys and plugged another, three of the complimentaries being converted into counters. When he did get the ball over the visitors swung their war clubs lustily, but fine support kept the scoring down until the closing stages.

The Petes' infield had a busy afternoon as the twenty-one assists in the box score will show, and they gave Sterling gilt-edged assistance. Second-baseman King handled fifteen chances with only one skip, doing some fine fielding. His error, which by the way was the first of the season, did no harm. It was a fumble of Lamy's grounder, but he got Long at the plate, trying to score from second on the play, and no damage was done. Price made several pretty plays on hard-hit ground balls, and started a lightning double play that prevented trouble in the second.

Heinie Steiger, who hurls from the port side, was on the hill for the visitors, and in spite of the fact that he was up against eight right-hand hitters, got by in fine style. Until the ninth it looked as if he was going to shear a liberal coat of white-wash over the Blountmen, as he had held them scoreless and allowed only four hits up to that stage. Sensational fielding by Third-baseman Mullin was a big factor in Steiger's success. The visiting guardian of the danger corner tore off half a dozen beautiful stops cutting the Petes out of two or three hits by his grand work.

The Petes delighted the crowd by a ninth-inning rally that demonstrated their fighting spirit. With the score 6 to 0 and every close decision apparently going against them, they hopped onto Mr. Steiger in the last session with a dashing attack that with the assistance of several boots, gave them four runs. Steiger's luck remained with him, however, as Bierbauer cut Wilcox out of a hit by a fine stop of a hard-hit ball inside of first-base, and when Miller, batting for Price slammed out a hot one, the pitcher knocked the ball down and Linneborn was able to make the play at first.

The game by innings:

First Innings.

London — Linneborn grounded to King. Long died the same way. Lamy walked and stole second. Bierbauer tripled to left centre, scoring Lamy. Whitcraft drew a pass. Reidy grounded to King. One run, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough— Blount was safe on Steiger's fumble. Fox sacrificed, Steiger to Linneborn. Blount stole third. Wilcox died on a high one to Snyder. King grounded to Mullin. No runs, no hits, one error.

Second Innings.

London—Mullin singled to left. Snyder hit into a fast double play, Price to King to Gorman. Steiger walked. Linneborn popped to Price. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough— Byrne grounded to Steiger. Mullin made a swell play on Gorman's grounder to third, getting the runner. Price died on a roller in front of the plate, nicely fielded by Snyder. No runs, hits or errors.

Third Innings.

London—Long singled to left. Lamy sacrificed, Kelly to King. Bierbauer grounded to King, advancing Long. Whitcraft flied to Fox.

Peterborough— Kelly lifted a high one to Mullin. Sterling grounded to Steiger. Blount beat out a roller in front of the plate. Bierbauer missed Steiger's throw to nip Blount off first and the runner went to second. Fox went down on a fast roller to Linneborn. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Fourth Innings.

London—Reidy grounded to Price. Sterling grabbed Mullin's hot grounder with one hand and threw him out. Price made a grand stop and threw on Snyder's warm grounder. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough— Mullin robbed Wilcox of a hit by a pretty pick-up. King fanned. Byrne singled over second. Gorman flied to Reidy. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

London—Steiger perished on a bunt to Byrne. Linneborn was out on a grounder to King. Long walked and stole second. King fumbled Lamy's grounder, but got Long at the plate, trying to score on the play. No runs, or hits, one error.

Peterborough— Price was out on a roller to Mullin. Kelly fanned. Sterling grounded to Steiger. No runs, hits or errors.

Sixth Innings.

London—Bierbauer died on a bounder to Byrne. Whitcraft singled over second. Reidy flied to Blount. Whitcraft was out stealing, Kelly to King. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough— Blount was hit on the head. Fox bunted a fly to Mullin in trying to sacrifice. Blount was out stealing Snyder to Bierbauer to Whitcraft. Wilcox died on a grounder to Mullin. No runs, hits or errors.

Seventh Innings.

London— Mullin was hit. Snyder sacrificed, Sterling to King. Steiger dropped a Texas Leaguer back of second. Linneborn grounded to Price, Mullin being held on third. Fox made a beautiful play on Long's grounder to right. It looked like a catch, but Umpire Bedford called it a pick-up and both Mullin and Steiger scored. Long stole second. Lamy flied to King. Two runs, two hits, no errors.

Peterborough—King fanned. Byrne singled over second. Gorman singled to the same field and Byrne was out, Lamy to Mullin, trying to go to third. Price died on a grounder to Whitcraft. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Eighth Innings.

London—Bierbauer doubled to right centre. Whitcraft sacrificed, Gorman to King. Reidy squeezed Bierbauer home with a bunt to Sterling, who threw high to the plate. Mullin grounded to King. Snyder singled over second, scoring Reidy. Snyder stole second. Steiger walked. Linneborn popped to Price. Two runs, two hits, no errors.

Peterborough— Kelly grounded to Mullin. Sterling died the same way. Blount went down on a roller to Steiger. No runs, hits or errors.

Ninth Innings.

London— Long drew a pass. Lamy doubled over third, scoring Long. Bierbauer bunted to Sterling and was out at first, while Lamy was out trying to score on the play. Wilcox went back and grabbed Whitcraft's long smash. One run, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough— Fox singled to left. Wilcox grounded to Bierbauer. King cracked a hit to short, scoring Fox. Byrne singled past first, King going to third. Whitcraft let Gorman's grounder roll through his legs, King scoring, and when Long threw high to third Byrne also counted. Miller, pinch hitter for Price, made a good bid for a hit, but Steiger partially stopped the drive and Linneborn completed the play. Kelly doubled along the left field foul line, scoring Gorman. Ryberg, batting for Sterling, fanned, and it was all over.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

The ninth inning rally pleased the fans.

King's work at second base was a feature. The keystone corner guardian has had but one fumble in seven games.

Umpire Bedford left the grounds under police protection.

There were just two over the even thousand fans in attendance.

Catch or pick-up, Fox's play that caused all the trouble was a grand piece of fielding.

Third baseman Mullin of the visitors was invincible. Every ball hit at him stuck to his glove.

A little luck on two hard hit balls in the ninth might have reversed the decision.

Sterling did not strike out a man, something new for the big fellow.

Twenty-one assists in a nine innings battle is away above the average.

Two fast double plays were pulled off by the Petes.

Joe Byrne again led in the hitting, with three singles out of four trips to the plate. The third sacker has hit safely in every game played so far.

Meet me at the 10 cent store and I'll buy you a pair of spectacles," was an invitation one of the Cockneys handed Umpire Bedford and he got away with it, too.

Cy Reidy made a lot of noise on the coaching lines and had a busy afternoon with the crowd in the right field stand.

Blount's steal of third in the first innings was a nice piece of base running.

Canada's hope in the Diamond Sculls —Bob Dibble—The Canadian and American Champion who left on the 14th for the great English Henley.

Early News From Stoney Lake Points

Steamers Are Being Put in Shape For Season—"Handy Boy" a Novel Craft

STONY LAKE, May 18—Messrs. Claude and Heber Rogers, Norman Geale and John Crane motored to Kawartha Park, last Friday.

Mr. H. W. Stock has had his new icehouse and garage painted white.

The steamer "Islands" took a consignment of freight to Lovesick last Wednesday.

Mr. McFarlane, who has been lock master at Lovesick during the last fifteen years, is about to open up his hotel at Young's Point.

Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerad has had his tug "Ajax" and three scows repainted and fitted out for another season's strenuous running. Truly the "Ajax" eats no idle bread. From the beginning of the season to the end she is on the "clean sail" racing between two scows, one being loaded the other being emptied, and always towing one behind, empty, up, and loaded down. The scows are just long enough to fit in a lock chamber with the tug, hence no time is lost in making double lockages.

The "Manita," owned by Mr. Wm. Robertson, has had an entire new hull built under her.

The "Naiad," Capt. Carson's private yacht, which keeps an eagle eye on the Yankee fishermen, has had a new superstructure built on, which should improve her appearance greatly.

The "Bessie Butler," according to rumour, was to remain tied up this summer, but evidently this is not so, as her decks are being cleared for another season's programme of entertaining, most likely in the waters of the Ward Lord of Victoria, unless he takes the notion to have another motor trip in Europe.

"Handy Boy," Claude Rogers' new tug, will soon be dropping anchor off Big Island, while her (pardon me) "his" master pays a flying visit to his two cottages. "He" is something entirely new in this part of the world. Not that a tug is a new thing, but "Handy Boy" is to be different from all the other craft of the same class. "His' dimensions are 40 x 11, with a special, gently-curved, rock-climbing bow; "his" keel extends beyond the planking several inches to prevent him from being blown to and fro by the angry winds of Clear Lake. "He" will sport two funnels (smoke-stack) like tanks, which will contain hot air, under high pressure, but no smoke will issue from his "innards" for he is to be of the smokeless variety.

Instead of "eating" coal he will "drink" coal oil, to be taken through a special Buffalo, six-cylindered engine of seventy horse power, one-man control. "He" will start on gasoline and as soon as "he" gets warmed up to his job "he" will switch off on to coal oil. "He" will be so hard to crank that an electric starting device will have to be used to turn him over, when there is no 'wind"; but after "he" gets going, compressed air from the tanks will be pressed into service. "Handy Boy" will be used in towing for Forest Products, Limited, with which Mr. Rogers is associated.

SENATORS HERE TO-DAY

Shaughnessy's Crew Arrive For a Three Game Series With the Blountmen

Manager Shaughnessy and his crew of Ottawa Senators blew into Town on the early C. P. R. train, this morning, ready for a three-game series with the Petes. The Champs have a good many old faces on their line-up, as well as several new ones. The chief change is in the pitching staff, three new twirlers (Hall, Schocker and Peterson) accompanying the Shagmen. Shortstop Smykal is an absentee, being caled away by the illness of his mother, and his place is being taken by Fried, a sensations young infielder. Dolan, Rogers, Lape and Kane of last year's Senators are all along. Kubat, who started in yesterday's game, may work against Peterborough to-day. If not Kane will likely get his first start of the season. Each game of the series will start at 3.45 o'cock. Cresswell is the most likely choice in the pitching line for the Petes, while Mully Miller may be able to break into the game.

A Plea For Good Sportsmanship

Assistant Crown Attorney Wearing Refers to Saturday's Incident

Peterborough, May 16, 1914.

Sporting Editor Examiner:

Dear,—May I be allowed to suggest that right now at the beginning of the baseball season you invoke a spirit of true sport that the good name of this City may be preserved. Whether the umpire Saturday gave a correct decision or not as to the stop made which let two London men in, he at least acted conscientiously. For my part, I admired his pluck in being unafraid to give an adverse decision in the face of certain hostility. We are good fans, let us be good sports.

Yours truly,
Joseph Wearing.

A Chance For Local Ball Teams

Here is a chance for a local ball team to arrange a game. The following letter was received by The Examiner to-day:

Toronto, May 18, 1914.
35 Lindsay Ave.

Dear Sir,—Would it bep ossible to arrange a baseball game with your team for the 22rd and 25th day of May. We will stay in your city the three days, if we can arrange a game. We are a senior club, and believe we can put up a god game of ball against your team. In regard to expenses, we would like you to either guarantee our railway fare or make us some kind of a fair offer, that would help to defray our expenses. We are strictly mateur.

Hoping we may hear from you as soon as possible, we remain,
Yours very truly,
ED. WEALE,
Mgr. Dovercourt B. C.

The Central School baseball team handed out a 6—3 defeat on Friday last, to the Queen Mary nine, in the second game of the Senior series. The batteries were, for the Central Shool, White and Soden, and for the Queen Mary, fielded a grand game, White was the star of the game. He pitched fine ball all through the game, and will, by his present appearance, make a good ball player. Soden received his shots in good style The line-up was as follows:

Central School—Cherrett, Mahood, Ward, White, Frost, Northey, Soden, Gibson and Hewson.

Queen Mary — Webb, Graham, Thompson, Flowers, Williamson, Wotten, Schrivers, Paterson, Catchpole.

Wotten, playing short for the Queen Mary, fielded a grand game, and was the star for the losing team.

SPLENDID NEW ORGAN IN KNOX CHURCH WAS FORMALLY DEDICATED YESTERDAY MORNING

Rev. Dr. Hanson of Montreal Preached at Both Services—Congregation Express Thanks to Rev. Mr. Keith

SPLENDID INSTRUMENT

Yesterday morning, before a congregation that filled every available space in the Church, the splendid new organ of the Knox Presbyterian Church was turned over by the organ committee to the people, and formally dedicated. The occasion was an auspicious one and, to use the words of the Pastor of the Church, who was the moving spirit in the securing of the instrument, marked a decided step forward in the work of the Church.

Yesterday morning and evening Mr. Geo. Kenyon, organist,, presided at the organ, which is beautiful in appearance and music-giving qualities. The numerous oragn pipes, the colour of gold, are very artistically arranged, behind and above the pulpit. The pipes are decidedly ornamental and improve the appearance of the interior of the Church. In tone, the organ is rich and beautiful and a credit to the manufacturers and is destined to become a cherished possession of the Church. A detailed description of the instrument has already been published in the Examiner.

The dedication of the organ took place yesterday morning immediately after an invocation, led by the Rev. H. J. Keith. Dr. J. M. McCulloch, on behalf of the Organ Committee, addressed the congregation and told briefly the events which led finally to the installation of the organ. He told how Mr. Keith was given three weeks' leave of absence, and how at the end of that time, returned with written pledges for $1,300 which had been collected, mostly in Montreal. This was the beginning of the congregation's efforts to purchase an organ, and about nine months ago the contract for the organ was entered into, the instrument to be installed by May 15th. True to their contract, the Company had installed the organ, so that yesterday, May 17th, the organ was used in the public services. Dr. McCulloch expressed the gratitude of the congregation to Mr. Keith and presented him with the gold key to the organ.

The Rev. Mr. Keith thanked the congregation and the large number of visitors for their presence. He said that the Church owed much to Rev. Dr. Hanson, who had materially assisted in making arrangements that opened the way for the speaker to get the first subscriptions.

In connection with the dedication of the new organ the Rev. Dr. Hanson of Montreal, well known in Presbyterian circles throughout Canada, preached at both services.

In the morning he took his text from Paul's Epistle to the Galatians, 1st chapter, 11th and 12th verses. The Gospel, said the speaker, was not fashioned after any earthly fashion or derived from any earthly source. The apostle in writing to the Galations was inexorably firm on two points. Firstly in regard to the superhuman origin of his apostleship. The apostle's proclamation of religion for all, whether or not they entered through the Jewish church, was severely opposed by the ritualists, who looked upon him as a traitor to the Jewish faith. But when they challenged him he replied to this effect: "I care not if you do not recognize me, for I have the authority, for my apostleship from Jesus Christ."

Secondly the apostle emphasized the superhuman origin of his message. It was not the conclusion he had reached after a long period of thought, but a message which in its entirety had been given him by God."

His doctrine of atonement was marked out from all other doctrines of atonement, outside of the new testament. There was a doctrine of atonement in every religion the world over.

The human or heathen doctrine of atonement was a result of the fact that man feared God so much that he gave of his best to turn aside His anger. The Christian doctrine was "That God so loved the world that he gave His only begotten Son."

In the heathen doctrine, man tried to reconcile God to them; in the Christian doctrine God tried through the sacrifice of His Son to reconcile the world to Him. One doctrine arose out of man's fear of God: the other out of God's Love for man.

There was an intellectual difficulty in conceiving that God took the burden of the sins of the world upon Himself. But suppose that He had not lifted so much as a finger to relieve the sufferings of the world and free the oppressed, then He would be morally lower than man—the creature would be greater than the Creator. Then there would be an insurmountable moral difficulty. But that was not so and the difficulty in the conception of God was only an intellectual one.

The price of high achievement had always been sacrifice unto the uttermost. The appeal of Christ was not to believe this part or that part of the Bible, but to believe in Him.

In conclusion the Rev. Dr. Hanson said that faith in Christ was not a mere mental impression or a moral emotion. It was a vital bond between man and God that no one could sever. The Christian religion was not a large philosophy that had to be applied to each life. It was so simple that a very babe could nestle in the Saviour's arms. It was a trust in the personal Christ.

The large congregation was impressed with the message, which was delivered in an eloquent manner by the speaker.

Services in connection with the new organ were also held in the evening, and on Tuesday night a recital will be given by prominent organists.

CONSERVATIVE SAYS FELLOW BENCHER WAS UNTRUTHFUL

OTTAWA, Ont., May 18.—When the House resumed this morning J. A. M. Aikens, Conservative member for Brandon, rose to a uestion of privileges in connection with certain personal remarks made about him by J. L. Carrick, Conservative member for Thunder Bay. The statement which the hon. member for Thunder Bay made," said Aikens this morning, "is absolutely untrue. It is equally ally. This house is a deliberative assembly and every member who speaks is expected by people to speak the truth and all soberness. The statement of the member for Thunder Bay was devoid of either truth or soberness." Aikens and Carrick occupy seats in the same row. The latter was not present to-day.

FARM HELP ON THE WAY

Mr. W. Might, the local immigration agent, has received word that a party of experienced farmers are expected this week. These men are married and are thoroughly reliable. Farmers requiring such help, would do well to get in touch with Mr. Might right away, as they are likely to be snapped up quickly.

NEW PIPE ORGAN PLEASED LARGE CONGREGATION AT SACRED HEART CHURCH

An exceptionally large congregation attended the Church of the Sacred Heart on Sunday evening upon the occasion of the opening of the new pipe organ. Pontificial vespers, which were sung, afford a wealth of music and every opportunity was provided for hearing the new instrument to the best advantage. The acoustic properties of the Church were tested as never before and the husbanding of the music within all parts of the edifice were strikingly apparent. The sounds rolled from the organ loft out bentath the vaulted roof and impinging upon the sanctuary wall were evenly diffused through all the lower parts of the Church. As a result, the organ has a setting that enhances its tone power to a large extent enabling the clear and distinct hearing of the notes in all parts of the building.

The various hymns and offertoires called into employment practically all the resources of the organ which, in many of the stops, has a tone quality which intrinsically, is almost devotional. This is probably not particularly peculiar to any individual pipe organ, but it readily explains the advantages of the instrument in connection with religious services. Various parts of the main divisions of the organ at the Sacred Heart Church were used last night for their separate effects, and the swell organ was especially helpful in the accompaniment to the congregational singing of "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name." In short, from a purely musical standpoint the new instrument made a fine impression. Its utility and beauties will doubtless be more generally appreciated by the congregation of the Church at future services when the contrast with the small organ which has provided music in the past will be more pronounced.

Mr. John Armstrong, as organist, laid bare the depths of the instrument. There were no evidences of his having used a small organ for five years and only a week's practice on the new instrument. His playing showed a skill and sympathy that are demanded of a capable organist. His selections were from Mozart, Batiste, Wigand and Gounod.

The Choir won fresh laurels in the singing of the difficult pontifical vespers. "O Salutaris" was splendidly sung by Miss K. Masterson and Ed. Bartley. The Tantum Ergo was also rendered by a male quartette, composed of Messrs. A. New of St. Peter's choir, Mr. Bartley, Mr. P. Henshaw and Mr. Kearns. Mr. Bartley sang the solo bass parts in the Dixit Dominus; Mrs. Jos. LaPlante, the alto solo in Laudate Domino; Miss Annie Simona, the soprano obligato in Ave Verum; Miss M. E. Theobald, the soprano solo in "Deus in Adjutorium," all of which presented an idea of the Choir's strength.

Mr. Henshaw sang in good voice the Laudate Pueri, and another beautiful hymn was the Magnificat, sung by Miss Mastersop, Mr. Bartley and the Choir. There were several hymns sung by the entire Choir and the whole musical service although an exacting one, was in keeping with the importance of the occasion.

Bishop O'Brien Present.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien officiated during vespers, assisted by Rev. Father Phelan and Rev. Father McGuire of Douro. Ven. Archdeacon Casey, of Lindsay, and Rev. Dean McColl, were also present. Bishop O'Brien, speaking from the 2nd Epistle of St. Paul, to the Corinthians, 4-15: "For all things are for your sakes, that the abundant grace might through the thanksgiving of many redound to the glory of God." His Lordship said it was a consolation and a satisfaction to him to be present on the occasion of the opening of the new pipe organ, marking, as it did, the finishing touches to the church which was erected scarcely five years ago. The fundamental reason for the beautiful instrument as with the other beautiful objects used in the church, was to be found in the mind of God. In Genesis we read that notwithstanding the beauty of all created nature, and the majesty of the universe, God formed a creature who could give Him a measure of adoration and glory befitting Him. God made man to His own image and likeness, and for the purpose of being eternally with Him in Heaven. Nothing short of the fruition of God's design would ever satisfy the longings of the human heart. "Thou hast made us for Thyself, O Lord!" Every one is called upon for an eternity of happiness in the Kingdom of Heaven. What purpose can the Catholic Church have but the salvation of souls? If it should ever pursue anything else it would be unfaithful to its mission for it was created for the sanctification and salvation of souls.

Bishop O'Brien touched upon the many facilities in the order of grace for the aid of man. Also in the order of nature God has been prodigal in things He has placed at the disposal of man. But "all these things are for your sakes that the abundant grace might through the thanksgiving of many redound to the glory of God," Herein lies the reason why the Church of God makes use of the many things of this life, the arts and sciences, and all the beauties in nature and grace in order to lead men to heaven. That is the reason the organ is placed in the church. It is not to entertain, but to elevate the mind to a meditation upon the beauties of heaven. If natural sounds can be so beautiful what shall be said of the angelic choirs in heaven before the Divine Majesty.

The church should not be regarded as a specimen of architecture, nor erected merely to the honour and glory of God, but as God's home upon earth.

The history of the pipe organ Bishop O'Brien stated, was found largely in the history of the Catholic Church. The first idea of the organ is mentioned about 300 years before Christ, but it was not until the seventh century A.D. when Pope Sylvester 2nd gave the first large order for a pipe organ to be used in sacred ceremonies. From the 6th to the 11th centuries many large organs were built in Europe, and it was at that time that the first organ was in England, in Winchester Cathedral. In the 17th and 18th centuries still greater strides were made, and now practically every church in the world has its pipe organ. In Europe we find the greatest organs, although in the United States and Canada there are very large instruments. Casavant Bros. recently built a great organ in one of the large churches in Toronto. Although from 1,200 to 1,500 years old and many developments have been made to it, nothing really particular has been added to the fundamental principle upon which the organ is based. The home of the pipe organ was to be found in the requirements of the ceremonies and offices of the Catholic Church.

Bishop O'Brien paid a tribute to the memory of the benefactor, the late Martin McManus, and to his wife and adopted daughter, in whose names the new organ was bequeathed to the church. His Lordship complimented the organist, the choir and Casavant Bros., and thanked all those who in any way assisted in the installation of the new instrument.

HUERTA TO INVESTIGATE DEATH OF PTE. PARKS

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 18. — The Brazilian minister to-day notified the State department that General Huerta had promised to make a complete investigation regarding the death of Private Parks of the U. S. army, and when the guilty parties in the Mexican army are convicted, they will be summarily dealt with.

FOUR MEN ALIVE IN THE COLUMBIAN'S THIRD BOAT AFTER DRIFTING 2 WEEKS

The Rest of the Fifteen Who Put Off From Burning Vessel Died One by One From Hunger—Were Eating Their Boots

THE FOUR MAY LIVE

BOSTON, May 18. — Four survivors of a boat load of fifteen, who escaped in the third boat of the freight steamer Columbian, burned at sea on May 3, were picked up yesterday by the United States revenue cutter Seneca, forty miles south of Sable Island, according to a despatch received here from the cutter last night.

When their short allowance of biscuit and water had failed, they maintained life by chewing boot leather and the few stray crumbs of hard tack. Rainwater served them when their cask went dry. The first two days after drifting away from the flaming Columbian they saw three steamers, too far away to be signalled.

The despatch from Captain Johnston of the Seneca follows:

"Sable Island, S. S. Seneca: 10 a.m., forty miles south Sable Island, rescued lifeboat with Officer Robert Teire, sailors Oscar Kendal, Peter Belanger, Fireman Michael Ludwigsen, survivors of fifteen. Oiler Geo. Hull died tenth, Peter Triel to-day, others between, namely: Engineer Margetta, Fireman Anderson, Antonio, Richmen, Gustafson, Jakob, Boy Dickmen, Cook Schrimberger, Sailor Christensen. All died from exposure and hunger. Short allowance biscuit and water. Eating biscuit crumbs and boot leather when rescued. Saw three steamers first two days, none since. Much rain. Fine to-day. All under doctor doing well. Signed, 'Johnston'."

Although the survivors were too weak from their sufferings to tell the story completely, the revenue cutter's officers gathered that some of the sixteen who had hastily piled into the third boat had been so badly burned that they died within the first few days. It was decided to lighten the boat by casting the bodies overboard at once. Some who had tumbled from their bunks at the first explosion and had rushed on deck half clothed succumbed to the cold. Others, weakened by starvation and thirst, gradually sank into lethargy that was scarcely to be distinguished from death.

Somehow the survivors managed to keep the boat head-on to the seas when the weather became rough, but for the past few days little or no effort could be made to guide the craft. Day by day the numbered dwindled until the five who were left sank limply to the bottom of the boat and awaited the end.

When the lookout of the Seneca, scanning the horizon for bergs on the ice patrol, sighted the small boat through his glasses, not a sign of life was seen. The Seneca put on all speed running down to the lifeboat and sent her gig alongside. The emaciated survivors were quickly transferred to the deck of the cutter and brandy forced between the parched lips.

As all the men were in apparent need of hospital attention, the Seneca was pushed under forced draught to Halifax, the nearest port.

Men's Social Bible Class

Of the George Street Methodist Church Were Entertained

The Men's Social Bible Class of the George Street Sunday School met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Shields on Friday evening last, where a most enjoyable evening was spent. Every one present expressed themselvs as being highly pleased. Light refreshments were served during the evening. As this was the last of a series of pleasant evenings spent by the Class during the winter months, the Executive have in view a picnic in the near future, so that any one who would like to join the class will find something doing all the time. A warm welcome is at all times extended to strangers and any others who would like to join with them in class session in the parlour of the Church at 3 p.m. each Sunday. On Sunday afternoon the Ladies Class, of which Mrs. Kendry is teacher, joined with them in class session. Mrs. Kendry kindly taught both classes. At the close Mrs. Kendry was voted a hearty vote of thanks for the the manner in which she handled the lesson for the day.

BROKE WINDOWS TO BE DEPORTED, GETS 2 YEARS IN CENTRAL

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, May 18.—Thomas Ward, a young Englishman, dissatisfied with conditions here, who smashed three large plate glass windows with the avowed object of securing deportation to England, was, instead, given two years' imprisonment for his offence by Magistrate Denison to-day.

MILITARY JOTTINGS

Artificer Quarter Master Sergeant Crute, Canadian Ordinance Corps, Halifax, N.S., is at the armouries for the purpose of making several changes to the guns used by the 36th Field Battery, C.F.A. The sights will be readjusted and other changes made.

Regimental Sergeant Major Webb, W. O., of the Canadian Signalling Staff left on Saturday for headquarters at Ottawa, after giving a month's instruction in signalling to the members of the 57th and the signalling corps of the P.C.I. Cadets. It is believed that the 12 boys who took the course passed successfully.

Corporal Derwent will arrive to-morrow and will remain with the Artillery Corps until they go into training on June 13th. Instruction will be given to all who wish to go to camp.

Corporal Salmon, who was the instructor here last year, has had an increase. It was a son. Congratulations to Fish.

A Recital On The New Organ

The capabilities of the new organ at Knox Church, which was dedicated yesterday, will be demonstrated to-morrow evening when Dr. Gorman Anderson, of Toronto, will give a recital. Dr. Anderson is one of the most accomplished musicians in Toronto, and is organist of the new St. Andrew's Church in that city. He will be assisted on this occasion by Mr. W. S. Hamilton, the noted Scotch tenor soloist. Mr. Hamilton has sung in The Messiah and other oratorios, and has appeared in most of the large cities in the Old Country.

EXTRA REMUNERATION FOR JOHNSTON GREER RE HYDRO EXTRA WORK

The Power committee of the Council met on Saturday night with Ald. Johnston in the chair and Mayor Buller and Aldermen Anderson, Duncan, Lankford and Dobbin present.

Ald. Johnston stated that Johnston Greer, who is in charge of the Hydro-Electric sub-station, had requested that his assistant be put on the City's pay sheet. Mr. Greer has been doing considerable extra work of late on the City's Hydro lines. He has been paid $125, out of which he paid his assistant for trimming the lamps.

Ald. Duncan— Mr. Greer said he would have other work on the system for an assistant when the trimming work would not be as heavy as in winter. It means we are going to pay Mr. Greer $125 a month for his work. Mr. Jeffrey told us there were lots of men in Toronto who could be got for $65 a month. I would go carefully with this.

The matter of extra remuneration to Mr. Greer while finishing the construction work on the street lighting system was referred to Mayor Buller and Ald. Johnston.

No More Construction Work.

A letter was read from the Hydro-Electric Commission advising that further work on construction be deferred until the whole system had been taken over.

HENRY CLEWS REVIEW SHOWS CONFIDENCE.

NEW YORK, May 16.—The Mexican difficulty is by no means over, and must still be compared to a sleeping volcano. Nevertheless, there is much more reason to hope that Mr. Wilson's policy of patience may tend to peaceful settlement. As long as Huerta backs and fills and Carranza and Villa refuse to stop fighting, it looks as if the A B C mediators will not be able to accomplish much. Meanwhile the recent triumphs of the Revolutionists have inspired them with increased confidence, and it now does look as if they were fairly on their way to win out. Should they succeed in capturing the City of Mexico, Huerta, the bone of contention, will then be eliminated, and so far as our Government is concerned peace will result thereby. Then if the leaders are as wise as they are brave and successful, they will listen to reason and consent to a free and fair election, and will find no better friends than the people of the United States. Carranza and Villa are at the present juncture virtually fighting our battles at their own cost in lives and money. So by all means let the work go on to a successful finality, and thereby save our brave soldiers and money.

The developments of the week as a whole have been favourable. Notwithstanding familiar discouragements and pessimistic habits to which many fall weakly submitting, there are several important and fundamental reasons for taking a more confident view of the future. The crop outlook is more encouraging than for many years; and even if some setback should occur, as is not improbable, the margin of advantage is so great as to still afford splendid promise. This is especially true of wheat, and the corn outlook is also excellent and promises a liberal increase in acreage. Moreover, the fruit outlook is satisfatcory, and indications point to a fair increase in the acreage of cotton. May has been a cold month in all parts of the country; consequently some crops are rather backward, but a few days of warm weather would quickly recover all lost ground from this cause. Another satisfactory element is the general soundness of business conditions. Persistent liquidation has weeded out nearly all sweak spots. There is little overtrading or over-expansion in any direction. For some time past business has been conducted on a hand-to-mouth and bedrock basis. Commodity prices have shown a very considerable decline. There are no over supplies of desirable merchandise, and basic conditions generally are exceptionally sound. The situation is positively ripe for a fresh forward movement in trade and industry as soon as confidence is restored. Confidence is the chief element lacking.

Still another favourable element is the growing impression that before very long some concessions will be made to the railroads in the matter of rates. These concessions will probably be kept down to the minimum, but a genuine disposition to deal justly by the railroads would undoubtedly have a more favourable effect than the mere concessions in rates.

The financial strain in Paris and Berlin which first developed with the Balkan war has evidently not yet culminated. Recently it has been aggravated by the losses incurred in Brazilian, South American and Mexican securities, while the growth of the socialistic vote in the French elections has deepened the general depression. On the other hand the financial embarrassments in London have been successfully tided over and there is a decidedly more hopeful feeling at that centre. European nations have revived their scramble for gold upon a somewhat unexpected scale. The twelve great banks of Europe now hold nearly $7,000,000,000 of gold, or about $280,000,000 more than a year ago. The causes for this accumulation are not clearly made known, though apparently due to the worldwide prevalence of distrust.

Should we keep out of trouble with Mexico; should the railroads receive fair play, and should the crops approach anything near their present promise, we may look for at least a partial revival of confidence and business activity. Already there are symptoms of a coming turn for the better in the iron trade. Nevertheless, prudence is still advisable, particularly until the Mexican situation begins to clear.

Weather Too Fine To Be Locked Up

John Donoghue Thought So But Magistrate Dumble Had a Different Opinion

Three local men were each charged at the Police Court this morning with being found drunk, on Saturday last. They pleaded guilty and were assessed $2.

Magistrate Dumble glanced at the information before him and, noticing the name of John Donoghue wanted to know if the Chief had installed a lethal chamber. We should do the same with this man as we do with the dogs, put them in a room and turn the gas on."

John was in Police Court on Friday last, charged with drunkenness, but was allowed to go on the understanding that he would go to work. Instead of doing this, John said he was not feeling very good and took a couple of drinks and got one too many. Seeing that the Court contemplated taking somewhat drastic measures in his case, said "You wouldn't shut me up this weather." John said he could go to work at noon. The decision of the Magistrate was that he be confined to prison walls until he got work.

A local man was charged with being found under the influence of liquor on April 29th, being then on the prohibited list. He pleaded guilty and was assessed $10, to be paid forthwith. When placed in the box to tell where he got his liquor, he made the excuse that he got it on a C.P.R. train coming from Havelock. Inspector Stewart said he was in with a gang of men who supplied him with liquor. His wife had left him, and he did nothing to support her or his family of five children. "I have gone to the house and when I got there he would be filled up with onions so that you could not tell whether he had been drinking or not. He never pays any rent, and is in debt."

WINNERS OF GOLD IN DIARY CONTEST

RESULTS OF ANNUAL COMPETITION FOR DIARIES KEPT IN DR. CHASE'S ALMANAC.

Every year many hundreds of people from all parts of Canada send in carefully kept diaries, in an effort to capture the hundred dollars in gold offered for the best dairy.

So many particularly well written diaries were sent in this year that it was with the greatest difficulty that the judges selected those which were to win prizes. For this reason they have considered it advisable to divide the first three prizes among the ten competitors who stood highest.

The committee of judges, Mr. J. F. MacKay of The Globe, Mr. Geo. E. Scroggie of The Mail and Empire, and Mr. Somerville of The World, have made the following awards:

SAW BLACK BEAR AT STURGEON POINT

The report comes from Sturgeon Point that Friday afternoon Mrs. Graham, Sr., saw a large black bear roaming peacefully through the bush. Bruin was not in the least concerned about being near civilization, and sauntered along quite content in his freedom. Mrs. Graham notified Messrs. John Dixon and "Sandy" Flack, but after an afternoon's "hunt" no further trace could be seen of His Majesty.

CONVICTION IS QUASHED

In Case of Chas. Fitzgerald Charged With Supplying Liquor to a Minor

A conviction made by Acting Police Magistrate J. L. Squire, fining Charles Fitzgerald $20.00 and $10.84 costs, on the fourth day of May, 1914, has been quashed. Gordon and Widdefield were acting for Mr. Fitzgerald and made an application to the Supreme Court to quash the conviction on the ground that there was no evidence that Fitzgerald gave liquor to Harvey Borland, who was alleged to be under twenty-one years.

The Attorney-General has consented to the quashing of the conviction, provided that no action for damages is brought against the convicting Magistrate or License Inspector who laid the charge.

BLACKBOARD WAS USED AT MARKET

LINDSAY, May 18.—The blackboard, which the Town Council ordered to be placed in the market hall, on the suggestion of Alderman Chambers, was in position Saturday morning and contained the Kent street store prices (retail) for produce.

When asked how the idea worked out Market Clerk Callaghan replied: "First class. Everybody is satisfied."

Mr. Callaghan visited the different stores and secured the prices for butter, eggs, etc., but found that the prices varied somewhat. This it was explained was due to the different quality. The lowest and highest quotations were chalked down.

In conversation with some of the sellers, the Post found a general feeling of satisfaction that the blackboard had been installed, and this satisfaction was shared in to a greater degree by those of our citizens who patronized the market.

FISHERY INSPECTOR SEIZED GILL NET

The return of Mr. Phillip Griffis from Emily Creek brought with it certain information in regard to the fish poachers of that district. Mr. Griffis secured a Gill net, which had been set out in one of the streams for the securing of lunge. This he turned over to Mr. Jos. Brown, reeve of Stargard Point. The owner was not located. This was the only attempt the inspector noticed of a violation of the law. He reports the lunge numerous and a good year's fishing is ahead of all lovers of the piscatorial sport.—Lindsay Warder.

COOKING WITH GAS THE SPIRIT OF THE TIMES

Free Lectures to The Ladies on "Kitchen Engineering" and "How to Cook With Gas

With the advent of warm weather, it will be worth while to direct the attention of housekeepers to the subject of Cooking With Gas. Recently there has been quite a movement spreading over the city with the object of Cooking with Gas. Recently come attached to the gas mains. The Peterborough Light and Power Co. have undertaken extensive enlargements of their gas plant and gas service, because of the increasing demand for gas for cooking and heating purposes. Their enterprise in providing efficient service has already had a good effect,—but it has cost them many thousands of dollars, and it will take some time before they get anything like adequate returns therefrom.

The uses of gas and gas ranges have recently been forcibly presented to our citizens in various ways, and the intelligent and practical manner in which recent demonstrations have been made, is to be still further enforced by a series of lectures to the ladies of Peterborough on the subject of "Kitchen Engineering," under the auspices of The Peterborough Light and Power Co., Limited.

These lectures are to be held on the fourth floor of the new Turnbull building, and will commence on Wednesday, June 3rd, in the afternoon, between 3 and 4 o'clock p.m., and will continue at the same hours and place for the remainder of that week. During each afternoon lecture, tea will be served, and a series of talks given on "How to Cook," rather than What to Cook,—that is to say, the proper order in which to cook a meal in order to be a complete success. Experts have been at work finding out how best this can be done on a gas range, and the information to be given out will be of the most interesting nature.

Not only is the use of the commodious Turnbull fourth floor to be available for these lectures, but the Gas Company has also provided the necessary tables, chairs and cooking utensils, gas ranges, water heaters, etc., for these interesting talks on Cooking With Gas. Everything will be free.

The convenience, cleanliness, comfort, and economy to be derived from cooking with gas removes, to a considerable extent, the drudgery of housework. The expense attached to gas starts only when you are ready and stops when you are through cooking. The gas range supplies just sufficient heat for cooking, etc., but no waste warmth to inflame the atmosphere during the hot weather. We all know what women have had to suffer in the heated season in a kitchen overheated by a sweltering coal stove. A gas range will give the wife something different to show her "hubby" when he comes home to dinner, instead of finding her sweltering over a coal stove; and—

"The man who loves his wife the most is not the one to let her roast."

SHOULD MAKE KNOWN THE TERMS

Editor of The Examiner:

It appears that the Town Trust, who are the agents or servants of the City for handling the City property, have arranged with the Bradburn estate in camera to grant that estate another lease of the old Opera House block for the further period of twenty-one years without consulting the wishes of the people or making known the terms of the new agreement. There can be no reason for dealing with the public domain in privacy. It at once arouses suspicion. We own the land and had the power to take over the building by allowing the Bradburn estate a reasonable price for the building. The land now is worth many times more than when first leased to the late Thomas Bradburn back many years ago in the last century, when rents were very low. The enormous rise in rents at the present time would in a few short years wipe off all the price of the building, after which the rents and profits which are ever increasing, would belong solely to the City instead of the Bradburn estate.

Publicity would have served the further purpose of showing what value the estate puts upon the property, and thus afford a means of knowing whether it it has been assessed too low, about which complaints have been heard.

Yours truly,
Property Owner.

POPULATION OF PORT HOPE HAS DECREASED BY 600

According to the assessors returns the population of Port Hope has decreased 605 in the past year. The assessment has been increased 10 per cent. with 60 people less to pay it. There is no doubt whatever that the assessors are in error as to the population.

AUSTRIAN CANNOT BE DEPORTED

William Auastayjgeweski, the Austrian who was arrested last week while on a rampage in the Township of Hamilton, came up before P. M. Boggs on Friday last. He was pronounced insane, after an examination and remanded to jail for safe keeping. He cannot be deported, as he has taken out naturalization papers. The authorities at Preston where he came from have been communicated with, and they will be asked to take care of him. He has quieted down considerably at the jail and appears quite rational now. He said—"Me take two drinks of whiskey, go crazy."—Port Hope Guide.

CHEMONG PARK CLUB PREPARING FOR THE SEASON

The Chemong Regatta Club is already making plans for the season. It has been decided to inaugurate the 1914 season with a big dance, on July 1st. The club has also decided to secure a war canoe for the use of its members and a racing fours canoe may also be added later on. The usual excursion to the Stoney Lake Regatta will be run this year, the club having already secured a steamer.

ST. GEORGE'S BOYS' BRIGADE

The St. George's Church Boys' Brigade, which numbers twenty-eight, is giving a concert next Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Church Hall. This concert is arranged and will be carried out by the boys, themselves, without any help from the adult members of the Church. This will be their first attempt to do any kind of Church work on their own account, and it is hoped their efforts will be crowned with success.

Corner Stone Is Laid By A Veteran

Executive Head of Sun Life Starts Old Company on a New Road

(Montreal Times.)

The corner stone of the magnificent new building of the Sun Life Assurance Co., on Dominion Square was laid on Wednesday by the veteran chairman, Mr. Robertson Macaulay, executive head of the company since 1874.

Before inviting the head of the company to lay the corner stone the managing director, Mr. T. B. Macaulay, made remarks as to the progress of the company since his venerable father took charge of the Sun Life in 1874. It was proper and fitting, said the speaker, that the man who had brought the company from such a small beginning to its present commanding place amongst the great financial institutions of the country should lay the corner stone of their new home. This indeed, he said, was a red letter day in the history of a company, which from a baby institution had become what it is to-day, for Mr. Macaulay declared that no institution in Canada save the Canadian Pacific Railway, had done so much to make this Dominion known and respected as the Sun Life Assurance Co.

A Beautiful Building.

Speaking of the new building, Mr. Macaulay said it would be impressive, dignified and beautiful and not only worthy of the association but of the commercial metropolis of the Dominion. After the ceremony of laying the stone had been concluded Mr. Robertson Macaulay delivered a vigorous address, emphasizing the words just uttered by the managing director, and expressing the belief that in the years to come the Sun Life would show the same splendid increase as in the past.

The P. Lyall & Sons firm are the contractors for the new building, which is being erected under the architectural supervision of Messrs. Darling and Pearson, of Toronto.

THE EXAMINER OFFICE TELEPHONES.

The telephone numbers of the Examiner Office have been changed. SOME HOUSECLEANING HINTS

When whitewashing the cellar try a whisk broom instead of the ordinary brush. It is much lighter and covers the surface almost as well.

It pays to get a good varnishing brush. It is very annoying when varnishing to have the hairs coming out continually and sticking in the varnish. A soft camel's hair brush is best for this purpose.

When applying shellac or varnish paints on the furniture, care should be exercised in using these preparations sparingly. If they are applied thickly they will not dry properly.

When enamel beds become chipped they may be renovated by applying a good gold paint that dries with an enamel surface.

When varnished surfaces really require washing a little kerosene in warm water is better than soap and does not injure the finish.

Dustless mops are now becoming quite popular, but those who cannot afford to buy one can make one by cutting old stockings into fine strips and stitching a lot of them together through the middle. Put in mop handle, sprinkle with kerosene and hang in open air until oil is well evaporated.

OBITUARY

OLIVE SCOTT.

Mrs. E. H. Mann, 309 Maitland avenue, received word this morning of the death of her niece, Olive Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Scott, Bewdley, Rice Lake. The deceased was thirteen years of age, and after suffering for some time with stomach trouble, was taken to the Port Hope Hospital for treatment, where she died Sunday evening.

Mrs. Scott is a sister of Mrs. Mann.

THE LATE MRS. PAKENHAM.

A very widely known and highly esteemed resident of Peterborough, passed away yesterday afternoon in the person of Jane Weaver, widow of the late Edward Pakenham. The late Mrs. Pakenham had not been in good health for a long time, but death came suddenly. On Friday night she suffered a paralytic stroke, which resulted in her death yesterday.

The deceased lady was 74 years of age and was born in Trenton, Ont. For thirty-five years she has resided in Peterborough, and during that time has won many friends, who will deeply regret to learn of her demise. She was a faithful member of St. Luke's Church, and her death will be sincerely regretted not only in Peterborough, but in her native town of Trenton.

She is survived by several brothers and sisters, and six sons and four daughters. Her husband predeceased her a few years ago.

The funeral, which will be private, will be held from the family residence, 36 Manning avenue, to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. The Rev. F. J. Sawers will conduct the funeral services.

JOHN CASEY.

The death occurred at his home in Douro, yesterday, of John Casey, a popular young man of that Township. He had been ill some time and his death will be regretted by a large number of friends. He is the son of Mr. Jas. Casey of Douro. He is survived by two sisters, Margaret and Katherine, as well as his father. The funeral will be held to-morrow morning at 8.30 o'clock to St. Joseph's Church and Cemetery.

HOW WE CURE STRAWBERRIES

Spring is here again, and the strawberry season is fast approaching. We who love this most delicious of fruit, may have dreamed through the winter of that strawberry patch under the snow, but now our dream is certainly nearer the realization wherein lies such pleasure for the inner man. And while we partake of one of the greatest of table dainties, we are also enjoying one with medicinal properties. This particular fruit contains so much iron that it is very essential to our health. I have heard the strawberry garden referred to as the "Fountain of Youth," and yet, though within easy reach of all, few farmers, comparatively speaking, cultivate them.

We would no leave think of having no potatoes as no strawberries. I can remember only one year when our crop was almost a total failure, and we were compelled to buy for our own use.

We do not consider the strawberry patch much trouble. All fruit in season is good, and who should endeavor to have much more than the farmer with his many acres! In the following, I undertake to briefly describe our methods of caring for strawberries.

We have had success with both spring and fall planting, but we prefer spring, generally in May. Then a year from the following June you have the bumper crop.

We prepare ground by havir ' it a rich summer fallow and then we plant rows four feet apart, and though some prefer them two feet in the row, we do not like them so far apart, as closer, they form in a body sooner.

The patch should be kept well hoed and cultivated free of weeds, both before and after the crop is harvested, but should never be disturbed after the buds are formed.

After ground has frozen in the fall, we cover the berries with straw (we tried wild hay, but it was a failure, as it did not last) to protect from the frost. If the patch has been kept free of weeds in the fall less hoeing is required in early spring, and the straw may be kept on the plants to retain their growth until there is less danger of frosts to kill the blossoms. Still as a rule it is wise to cultivate soon after the ground has dried. We first remove the straw between the rows, leave two or three days until the ground has dried, then hoe, return the straw, and cultivate between the rows for a mulch.

There is the objection to cultivating, first that winter winds have already blown part of the straw between the rows, necessitating its removal. Then, too, the cultivator makes a ridge along the rows, which causes great inconvenience when hoeing afterwards.

If after the berries are in blossom there comes a frosty night, they can be covered with this same straw until weather is warm.

We like to set out a new patch each spring, plowing it up after the second crop. Then every year there is a good yield. We like also to have both an early and a late variety, so as to lengthen the season.

For our pains the rich reward is gained in June and July when we can indulge in that "King of Fruit," the strawberry.

A LITTLE OF EVERYTHING

A few drops of Little Squid sulphur in a bucket of water is fine for chickens in dry weather, once or twice a week.

K is for kicker, always found at the shows,
Knowing no more than he thinks that he knows;
Kicking because his birds didn't win,
"Kondemmit," he cries, "I won't show again."

An Irishman who had started photography went into a shop to purchase a small bottle in which to mix some of his solutions. Seeing one he wanted, he asked how much it would be.

"Well," said the chemist, "it will be twopence as it is, but if you want anything in it I won't charge you for the bottle."

"Faith, sor," said Pat, "then put a cork in it!"

DIED.

PAKENHAM—At Peterborough, on Sunday, May 17, 1914, at the family residence (36 Manning avenue, Jane Weaver, widow of the late Edward Pakenham.

Funeral will be private, and will leave the family residence at 2:30 o'clock on Tuesday. Service at 2 o'clock.

CONNAL.—In Peterborough, on May 17, 1914, Peter Connal, aged 86 years.

The funeral will take place from the late residence, 270 Brook Street, at 3 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, May 19, to Little Lake Cemetery. Service at the house at 2.30 o'clock.

Stock Markets

A. E. Ames & Co., Bankers, report the following:

Careful analysis of the entire situation confirms the wisdom of a Conservative bullish attitude on stocks of tested earning power. Greater speculative risk is involved in buying others, although this is reduced to a comparative minimum by the large short interest. The excellent crop outlook, cheap money, freight rate tendencies, strong copper position, active rehabilitation of weak railroads, discontinuance of foreign liquidation with prospects more favourable for successful Mexican peace negotiations next week and an early adjournment of Congress later are all factors.

Pool domination is bullish on Am. cotton, oil, Virginia chemical, Westinghouse, Bethlehem steel, Erie, Central leather and Tennessee copper. Good buying is reported in Union Pacific and Reading.

There is speculative absorption of St. Paul.

Tractions are more in favour.

There is a large shortage in Lehigh Valley, New York Central, U.S.S. and New Haven.

At present I am inclined to think the advance in stocks will commence this week. Be sure to follow carefully our reports this week, as it will be the most important periodof this move.

Six Months Hoist Is Rejected By Commons

Mr. E. N Macdonald's Motion is Defeated by a vote of 111 to 64 With Bennett and Nickle as Opposition

A MAJORITY OF 47

OTTAWA, May 20.—By a majority of 47 the Government last night was upheld in the first vote upon the Canadian Northern legislation. E. M. Macdonald's motion for the six months' hoist was defeated on division. Yeas, 64; nays, 111. It was a party vote, except that Messrs. Bennett and Nickle voted for the amendment, and Mr. Charlton (Lib., Norfolk) voted with the Government.

Mr. W. F. Maclean (Con., S. York) opposed the six months' hoist, declaring that all thinking men of the country united in saying that the question before the House was one of urgent importance. He thought the legislation brought down by the Government was a long step in the direction of public ownership, but favored the Government immediately obtaining an option on the balance of the common stock of the Canadian Northern Railway Co. so that the system might be nationalized at any time and linked up with the Intercolonial as a great transcontinental railway.

Mr. Verville (Labor, Maisonneuve) said the Borden Government was fond of juggling with millions. Last session it was $55,000,000 and this session $45,000,000. He argued in favor of nationalizing the railways and pointed to the success of nationalization in Europe and Australia.

Mr. Foster (Con., Kings, N.S.), while supporting the Government, urged that the resolution be so amended as to compel the C.N.R. to withdraw their steamers from the North Atlantic combine. With these two vessels to begin with, the Government might charter others and thus secure lower ocean rates.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux described the Government's proposal as "iniquitous legislation being forced through an uninformed Parliament in the dying days of the session." He said it was common knowledge that Mackenzie and Mann were millionaires. It was common gossip in Montreal that they had exploited vast holdings in real estate adjacent to the Mount Royal tunnel. The great banking houses, Morgan & Co., and Lazare & Co. of New York had combined with Mackenzie and Mann in this speculation whose profits aggregated not less than $20,000,000. Why did not the Government get as security some of these "golden acres in Montreal?"

Mr. Charlton (Norfolk) said he could not support the motion for a six months' hoist, but would vote to have the Prime Minister's resolution considered in committee of the whole House, clause by clause. He read from Hansard to show that Mr. Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier agreed that the Canadian Northern system must be finished, that the system must not be allowed to collapse, and that Canadian credit must be saved from the blow it would receive through a transcontinental railway going into liquidation. Much of the discussion which had taken place since had concerned itself with discussing Mackenzie and Mann. It was said that they must be eliminated because they were not railway men but mere contractors. Nearly all the great railway men on this continent had begun at the foot of the ladder.

There was quite a lively time in committee over the Mackenzie and Mann resolutions after the division earlier in the evening. Mr. Carvell moved that Sir William Mackenzie and Sir Donald Mann personally guarantee the payment of certain obligations under the contract as well as Mackenzie and Mann Co., Limited. This renewed the old dispute as to the private fortunes of Sir William and Sir Donald and their obligation to risk the same in support of the Canadian Northern.

Assertions and counter assertions were vigorously made by Government and Opposition members. The fight for the Carvell motion being led by Messrs. Carvell, Gorman, Graham, and Lemieux. Mr. Meighen took up the cudgels for the Government. The resolution will be further discussed to-day.

McMullen Acquitted.

TORONTO, May 20.—After about ten minutes' consideration a jury before Judge Coatsworth, in the Sessions Court yesterday, returned a verdict freeing former County Constable James McMullen from a charge of forgery and perjury, which had been preferred against him at the conclusion of the Davis-Wettlaufer case about three weeks ago in the non-jury assizes court. It was charged that McMullen, who had been employed as a private detective on the case, wrote three letters, signing the name of Mrs. Wettlaufer.

Judge Coatsworth, when addressing the jury, said that he could not see how they could return any other verdict except that of "not guilty."

JOB TOO DANGEROUS.

Albania No Place For Comfort Thinks William of Wied.

VIENNA, May 20.—A serious situation has arisen in Albania, whereby the life of the new ruler, Prince William, has been endangered. According to Durazzo despatches to The Neue Freie Presse, Essad Pasha had an audience with Prince William on Monday afternoon and tendered his resignation as governor. Essad Pasha had 800 adherents in his residence and 5,000 in Durazzo. They started a revolt on Tuesday, Essad himself firing the first shot against the prince's palace.

The prince thereupon appealed to the commander of the Italian and Austrian warships. They landed detachments, who set up machine guns in front of Essad Pasha's house. The Turkish commander then asked permission to be allowed to go aboard the Italian warship. This was refused, and he was arrested and placed aboard the Austrian warship Saigetvar as the prince's prisoner.

According to other reports, Prince William discovered a fortnight ago certain plans which had been drawn up by Essad Pasha, and ordered him to disarm his body guard. Essad Pasha refused, whereupon the Albanian gendarmie, commanded by Dutch officers, attacked his residence, arrested him and turned him over to the Austrian commander.

Five hundred men from the Austrian and Italian warships are guarding the prince's palace.

Villa Routs Federals.

EL PASO, Texas, May 20.—Gen. Villa has defeated a Federal force of 5,000 men at Paredon, according to a message received here last yesterday, from Isidore Fabela, acting Minister of Foreign Relations in Carranza's Cabinet. The date of the engagement was not given.

Favourite for the King's Plate "Sea Wave" (b. c. (3), Sassetlaw, "My Honey"—owned by Harry Giddings of Oakville. His unbeaten record of last year, when he won six consecutive races, established his right to the post of favouritism. He has also been working in good form at the Woodbine in preparation for the big race to be run on Saturday next.

VETO IS POWERLESS

The Welsh Disestablishment Bill Passes a Third Time

AUTOMATICALLY MADE LAW

LONDON, May 20.—The first bill to become law under the operation of the Parliament Act is the Welsh Disestablishment Bill, which passed its third reading in the House of Commons last night by a vote of 328 to 251.

Renewed interest has been taken in the question of Welsh disestablishment during recent months, because of its immense importance to the church and churchmen. Under the Parliament Act, the bill automatically becomes law after its third passage by the House of Commons, no matter what action the House of Lords may take.

Among other things the bill provides that so far as Wales and Monmouth are concerned, the Church of England will cease to be established by law; all cathedrals and ecclesiastical corporations will be dissolved, the bishops of the four Welsh dioceses will cease to be members of the House of Lords; the present ecclesiastical law will cease to exist as law, and no ecclesiastical court will have any coercive jurisdiction, and the bishops and clergy will not be members of or be represented in the house of convocation of the Province of Canterbury.

Farmer Injured By Train.

CHATHAM, Ont., May 20.—While driving home at nine o'clock yesterday morning William Saddlington, a well-known farmer of Mail, was injured as a result of a collision with an M.C.R. express on a level crossing just north of Blenheim. Mr. Saddlington was driving a team of horses attached to a wagon. Both horses were killed and the wagon completely demolished. Mr. Saddlington was hurled a great distance and both of his legs and both of his arms were broken. He was taken back to Blenheim where he now lies in a very critical condition. His surgeons state that he cannot recover.

Quebec Forests Burning.

MONTREAL, May 20.—The city was overhung by a pall yesterday, caused by the smoke from big forest fires in the Laurentian Mountains. While a great amount of timber, it is expected, will be destroyed, so far there had been no loss of life.

Vendor of Stallion Charged.

GALT, Ont., May 20.—Acting for Joseph Gale of the Beemian road, the farmer who was recently attacked by a ferocious stallion and severely injured, M. A. Secord, K.C., has laid information against Edward Smith of Port Rowan, who sold him the animal. The charge is a criminal one. The complainant's claim that the stallion was known to be unmanageable, and that before being sold to Gale it had vented its ferocity on those handling it.

American Delegates at Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., May 20.—Justice J. R. Lamar and Fred. W. Lehman, American delegates to the mediation conference, and their secretarial adviser, H. P. Dodge, arrived here shortly before midnight, from Washington. They were met by Robert F. Rose, State Department representative, and taken to the hotel on this, the American side of the border, where they will make their headquarters during the conference.

Son Saves Father's Life.

KINGSTON, May 20. — Samuel Stinson was saved from being gored to death by a bull by his 14-year-old son and his dog. He was down on the ground with the bull attacking him when the son grabbed the angry animal by a ring in its nose, led it away, and the dog made an attack by biting the hoof of the bull.

NOTHING THIS SESSION.

But Hon. Mr. Crothers Has Labor Bureau Act For Next Year.

OTTAWA, May 20.—Drastic legislation to deal with the employment question will be introduced by the Government next session of Parliament. Action will be taken by the Canadian Government along the lines by which the Imperial Government has solved the difficulty in Great Britain, according to a statement made yesterday by Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor.

Incidentally Mr. Crothers stated that there would be no labor legislation this year.

In Great Britain the Government has established a number of labor bureaus with a central office in London. All expenses are borne by the Government, and Mr. Crothers found that they were excellently managed and had proved a godsend. These bureaus supply workers for employers and work for those out of employment. There is a perfect system of information kept regarding the needs in the various parts of the country, and the unemployed are therefore not subjected to the more or less misrepresentation of employment agents.

Accurate information regarding labor conditions in the various parts of the country will be available at each office, and to these offices those who desire employment will go. Employers also will be able to secure information as to the ability and record of those whom the bureaus will recommend to them.

Mr. Crothers stated that the distance in Canada render it impossible for the Government to advance traveling expenses, as is done in England, but he believed that he has arrived at a solution of the difficulty by getting employers to advance the money.

WILL TRY TO SEE KING.

Suffragettes Threaten To Create Excitement To-morrow.

LONDON, May 20.—Lively scenes are promised when the suffragettes make an attempt to see the King on Thursday.

At Monday's meeting of the Women's Social and Political Union Mrs. Mansell said that it was going to be the biggest thing they had ever had. She thought the authorities must be trembling in their shoes. If there was going to be any militancy it would be on the part of the other side. If there was any attempt at militancy on the part of the minions of the Government it would be at their peril.

Mrs. Mansell added that Mrs. Pankhurst would be safe because, like Sir Edward Carson, she had got a bodyguard.

Oil Gusher at Calgary.

CALGARY, May 20.—At noon yesterday the oil spurted out from the Discovery oil well 20 feet in the air. This is the most forceful gusher since oil was struck and lasted a longer time. The boilers spent four hours bailing out 200 gallons of oil. They found the oil as high in the well after they had concluded bailing as when they started, namely, 2,000 feet. This is the best test that has been made of the supply.

BUSH FIRES RAGING

Heavy Damage is Threatened in Northern Muskoka

SUMMER HOUSES IN PERIL

HUNTSVILLE, May 20.—Not even during the midsummer drought of last year when forest fires raged so fiercely was there felt the same measure of anxiety as is being shown during the present time in this vicinity. No rain has fallen for two weeks, and fires appear to be raging in nearly every direction. Monday word was received that the Axe Lake Mill of the Muskoka Wood Manufacturing Co. was totally destroyed, and that a fire was raging in their limits. Yesterday large gangs of men were battling heroically to save the company's camps and to stay the progress of the flames. Word has just been received also that the forest in the vicinity of Sand Lake is ablaze, and summer residents have been rushing out in automobiles to make an effort to save their summer homes.

In the Townships of Stisted and Chaffey, the farmers are working an organized bands in seeking to stay the progress of the flames, but despite their efforts the high wind is driving the fire ahead, and it is feared that the loss will amount to thousands of dollars. Happily, up to the present there does not appear to be danger for the summer homes about Lake of Bays. The fires are burning in the vicinity, but have been controlled by organized efforts. Unless rain falls very soon North Muskoka will suffer a loss far in excess of any period for years back.

West Cobalt Threatened.

COBALT, May 20.—Bush fires are still raging in this neighborhood, particularly in West Cobalt, where the fire brigade have been busy ever since three o'clock yesterday afternoon. They are still out trying to prevent the fire from spreading. Helped by a fierce wind, the flames were rushed down the hill and destroyed everything within reach. The fire took a hold in several backyards, but was stopped in time, although several residences were threatened.

THEY WOULD STARVE.

Waiters Couldn't Make $75 a Month Without Tips, They Say.

OTTAWA, May 20.—The waiters of Canada, or some of them, object to being deprived of gratuities by act of Parliament.

In the Senate yesterday a petition of the Chateau Frontenac waiters against the anti-tipping bill of Senator Davis was read. It stated that should tipping be made illegal waiters would be fortunate if proprietors paid salaries of $75 per month, and upon that a man with a family could not live and dress as a waiter was obliged to dress, and that everyone of the 45 waiters in the Frontenac was opposed to the bill, and belief expressed that 90 per cent. of the waiters of Canada were against it.

The petition stated that tipping was now optional, and should so remain.

Senator Davis said he had some communications on the same subject which he would read at the proper time.

TO LIFT WAR CLOUD.

Japanese Premier Says International Suspicion Is Unwarranted.

TOKIO, May 20.—A plea to the press of the world to work for the removal of misunderstandings and suspicions between the nations was made yesterday by Premier Count Shigenobu Okuma in addressing a gathering of Japanese and foreign journalists. He declared these misunderstandings and suspicions to be terrible obstructions to the world's peace, but added that the time had not yet arrived in international relations to apply the Christian text, "Whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek turn to him the other also." Nations, he said, must be strong and exact respect of their rights.

The Japanese Premier declared that unjustified suspicions had led to the fortification of peaceful countries such as New Zealand and Australia, and concluded:

"America has no enemy, so what is the use of the fortification of the Panama Canal?"

Woman Stricken After Funeral.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., May 20.—Edward E. Healy was buried in Victoria Lawn cemetery Monday afternoon, and members of the family who had been attending the funeral had left the cemetery for their homes when the stepmother, Mrs. Mary McCallum, from whose home the funeral took place, toppled over in her chair and fell dead. She had been apparently in robust health. She was the widow of the late Peter McCallum and had been twice married. She was also a sister of Ald. O. M. P. Gibson and leaves three daughters and three sons.

Saved Six Infants.

MONTREAL, May 20.—The timely arrival of Special Constable Maurice Gallinain and District Chief Marid before six burning cottages on St. Lawrence street enabled them by catching the children flung from the upstairs windows by frantic parents to save six infants. The fire broke out while the inmates were asleep, and spread so rapidly that they were cut off.

ARE WE NEIGHBOURLY?

Are we Canadian farmers really neighborly?

Dr. Robertson thinks not. While in Denmark, a feature of the rural life of the Danes that was vividly impressed upon him, was the strong neighborly spirit of the farmers. He thinks this is one of the underlying causes that makes cooperation so successful in that country.

When a man of Dr. Robertson's insight arrives at this conclusion, it behooves us farmers to "sit up and take notice." What we need is a better community spirit, a greater feeling of true neighborliness. We respect our neighbor, help him out at threshing and silo filling time, lean over the line fence and talk politics with him, but when it comes to a question of his interests or ours, are we willing to make that personal sacrifice that will submerge our interests in his?

One of the principal reasons why our Institutes, Cooperative Societies and Farmers' Clubs are not always an outstanding success is because of the lack of unity on the part of the members. Several individuals hold widely divergent views and each one thinks that his opinion is the proper one to follow. A little self-sacrifice on the part of all concerned would result in united action.

Never in the history of agriculture has there been a greater need for cooperation and a true neighborly spirit among us farmers. With combines and mergers being formed in every line of business, with the lobbying and legislative wire pulling that is being done in class interests, the prosperity and future well being of the farming community depends on our fulfillment of the commandment, "Love thy neighbor as thyself."

HE UNBURDENS HIMSELF.

"Can you bear it if I tell you something serious?" ventured the young husband.

"Yes; don't keep anything from me," gasped the bride.

"Remember, this does not mean that my love for you is growing less."

"Don't break my heart. What is it?"

"Well, my dear, I'm getting tired of angel food every day for dinner. Would it be too much to ask you to have liver and onions?"

CHILDREN'S EYESIGHT

An astonishing number of school children suffer from the effects of imperfect vision, and many of them are unjustly blamed for being unambitious or mentally stupid. It has been shown by authentic investigation under municipal direction that from 20 to 30 per cent. of the children in public schools have defective vision and should wear Glasses.

We make a specialty of examining children's sight by the most improved scientific methods, and if your child does not need glasses we will tell you so frankly, and make no charge for the examination. We carry a special line of heavy weight Children's Spectacle Frames in Gold Filled and Aluminum.

Should your child require glasses we guarantee that the glasses we fit are the proper correction and will give best results.

Dazed the Crank.

David P. Barrows, while acting president of the University of California, one day received a queer visitor. Lean and terribly earnest, the man broke into Barrows' study.

"I am the prophet Micah," he announced, "and I have a need for your service. The world is soon to come to an end. Could you not spread the tidings through the university?"

Dr. Barrows shook his visitor by the hand, collected his thoughts and replied: "I believe that at no time was there such a crying need for prophets. But, unfortunately, prophesying is an art with which I am unfamiliar. I am not even in close sympathy with it and, as I am unable to comprehend what you have accomplished, I confess inability to participate as a prognosticator."

Whether it was the unexpected reply or the quick fire of so many words that dazed the visitor will never be known. Certain it is the man backed to the door and uttered the inadequate reply, "Yes."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Gentlemen of Leisure.

One of the upper ten thousand, once visiting America, accepted the hospitality of a gentleman in New York. When taking farewell of his host the latter asked him what he thought of the American people.

"Well," answered the nobleman, "I like them immensely, but I miss something."

"What is that?" asked the Yankee.

"I miss the aristocracy," replied the Englishman.

"What are they?" naively asked his host.

"The aristocracy!" said the nobleman in a somewhat surprised tone of voice. "Why, they are people who do nothing, you know; whose fathers did nothing, you know; whose grandfathers did nothing, you know—in fact, the aristocracy!"

Here he was interrupted by the American, who chimed in with, "Oh, we've plenty of them over here, but we don't call them aristocracy—we call them tramps."—Exchange.

"THE TERMS OF SURRENDER"

By LOUIS TRACY

"Put it before MacGonigal—" was his regular formula. "I can't do a thing without his say-so. But I warn you he is a terror. If there's a kink in your proposition, he'll find it, as sure as Jack can run his fingers onto a splint."

For all that, the stout manager of mine and mill realised his limitations.

Once, and only once, did MacGonigal act in the belief that Power had referred a point to him for final settlement. A glib agent for mining machinery persuaded him to purchase a new type of drill, which proved absolutely useless when asked to disintegrate the hard granite of Colorado. Power laughed when he heard of its failure.

"You must have thought it was meant for cutting cheese, Mac," he said lightly. But the barbed shaft struck home and "the terror" bought no more drills without first consulting the man who understood them.

Thus, slowly, but effectually, Power contrived to isolate himself from Bison. With an almost uncanny prescience he gave occasional directions in the mine, or suggested some modification in the milling process which invariably resulted in a higher percentage of extraction. For the rest, he devoted his days to the improvement of the stud farm, and his evenings to books. His mother tried vainly to dissipate this recluse trend of thought and habit. On one memorable occasion she invited a friend and her two cheerful and good looking daughters to visit the ranch for a week. Timidly enough, she had sprung a surprise on her son, warning him of the forthcoming invasion only when it was too late to stop travellers already en route from San Francisco. Then she, like MacGonigal, had to learn her lesson. Derry agreed she had acted quite rightly. He merely expressed a suave doubt that the ladies would enjoy the enforced seclusion of a place like Dolores, but they might appreciate the air. Then he strolled out, and a telegram from Denver apologised for a sudden departure to Chicago. He explained in a letter that he was in need of a number of books, and thought it best to look through the bookstores in person rather than trust to catalogues. He returned two days after the guests had left, and there were no more experiments in that direction. Be sure that an anxious mother had long ago formed a remarkably accurate opinion as to the circumstances attending Nancy Willard's wedding; but, being a wise woman, she said no word to her son concerning it, and was content to pray that the cloud might lift from off his soul, and that he might yet meet a girl who would make him a good and loving wife. For that is the way of women who are mothers—they find real joy only in the well-being of their offspring. Though this gentle-hearted creature knew that she was risking some of her own belated happiness in bringing about her son's marriage, she was ready to dare that, and more, for his sake. She longed to renew her own youth in fondling his children. She was almost feverishly desirous of seeing him thoroughly established in a bright and cheerful home before the gathering mists shut him out forever from her sight. So she waited, and watched, and wondered what the future had in store for her loved one, and often, in her musings, she tried to imagine what manner of girl Nancy Willard was that she should have inspired such an enduring and hopeless passion.

The upheaval, when it came, was due to the simplest of causes. Power had foreseen the tremendous industrial development which lay before Colorado, and indulged his horse-breeding hobby on lines calculated to produce a large income wholly apart from the ever-increasing profits of the mine. The state needed horses, which must be strong of bone, with plenty of lung capacity; yet not too heavy, for mountain tracks and dusty valleys are anathema to the soft Belgian. They must be presentable animals, too, symmetrical, of untarnished lineage, and of a type fitted either for saddle or harness, because Colorado was making money in a hurry. Thus, it chanced, that, abruptly before Willard's ill-omened visit to Bison, an Eastern agent wrote advising Power to attend a sale in New York. A noted breeder of hackneys, who had imported some of the best sires from England and Russia, and owned several fine Percherons, was breaking up his stud, and the chance thus presented of securing some magnificent stock might not be repeated during another decade.

Power asked his mother to accompany him; but she was afraid of the long journey in the torrid temperature then obtaining. Yielding to his wishes, she telegraphed a second time to her San Francisco friends, and they accepted an invitation joyously and promptly. Moreover, seeing that she was regarding with some misgivings his prospective absence from the ranch for a period which could not well be less than three weeks, he made a great concession.

"If Mrs. Moore and her girls can arrange to stay so long, keep them until I return," he said, and the pleasure in the worn, lined face fully repaid the effort those words and him. So they kissed, and parted, and the weary years which have passed since that sunlit morning in Colorado have contained no diviner solace for the man than the knowledge that he left his mother well satisfied with her lot, and smiling a farewell without the slightest premonition of evil or sorrow. It is well to part thus from those we love; for no man knows what the future may have in store—and horror would have been added to the burden of Power's suffering if recollections of the last hours of companionship with his mother were clouded by an abiding sense of unkindness or unfilial treatment.

So Power hied him to New York, which meant that he passed three hot nights and two hotter days in a fast-speeding train. The Rock Island Railroad took him across the rolling prairie to Omaha and Chicago, and, in the city which no steer nor sheep nor hog can visit and live, he entered the palatial Pennsylvania Limited, which, in those unregenerate days, dumped himout early in the morning on the New Jersey shore. Then, for the first time, he saw New York, and saw it from the river, which is the one way to see New York for the first time. Crossing by the ferry to 23rd Street, he did not, it is true, secure that wondrous initial glimpse of a city, unequaled in many respects, by any other, which is vouchsafed to the traveller arriving by sea. But, even twenty-two years ago, the busy Hudson was no mean stream, and when Power's unaccustomed eye turned bewildered from the maze of shipping which thronged that magnificent waterway it found fresh wonders in the far-flung panorama stretching from Grant's Tomb to the Battery. At that time Trinity Church was still a landmark, for New York had hardly begun to climb into the empyrean; so the prospect was pleasing rather than stupefying, as it is to-day.

A hot wind already hissed with furnace-breath over the fourteen miles of sarried streets that lined the opposite shore; for, in the long years which have sped since Power first crossed the Hudson, New York has neither lengthened nor broadened. Even mighty Gotham cannot achieve the impossible; so, in the interim, several new cities have been superimposed on the older one which spread its beauties before the bewildered vision. The Paris—who of the middle generation does not remember the Paris, with her invariable list to starboard, after an ocean crossing?—was creeping slowly upstream, and Power was amused by the discovery that the big ship, like himself, moved with a limp. The City of Rome, whose yacht-like lines suggested the poetry of motion, but, as is the mode on Parnassus, adhered strictly to suggestion, lay at anchor near the Jersey shore, and when the ferry churned around her graceful stem, the grim walls of the Palisades completed a picture which admits of few peers. Disillusionment came later; but the spell of that thrilling first impression was never wholly lost. Driving through 23rd Street, on his way to the Waldorf Hotel, Power could not help comparing this important thoroughfare with Market Street, San Francisco, and State Street, Chicago, and the architectural stock of the metropolis experienced a sudden slump. Nor did it wholly recover lost points when his carriage entered Madison Square, with its newly erected campanile, almost a replica of the stately Giralda tower in Seville, its glimpses of Broadway, south and north, its stolid Fifth Avenue Hotel, and its chastely elegant, though still tower-less, white Metropolitan building. Even the Waldorf-Astoria, though notable already among the public places of the world, failed to strike his imagination with the appeal of the Palace Hotel, San Francisco; the truth being that New York, first in the field by a couple of centuries, had not yet begun, like Milton's eagle, to renew her mighty youth.

It would assuredly be interesting to those who knew and loved the queen city of the Atlantic nearly a quarter of a century ago if Power's revised and corrected opinions might be quoted now. But the chronicle of a man's life ought to be accurate before it is picturesque, and the truth is that the heat-wave which was then withering the whole Eastern seaboard kept this visitor from breezy Colorado pent within the marble halls of the Waldorf Hotel, save when urgent need drove him forth. That particular scourge of high temperature was destined to become historical. The thermometer soared up beyond 100 degrees Fahrenheit; hundreds of people were stricken daily by heat apoplexy; the hospitals were crammed to their utmost capacity; the asphalt pavement, where it existed, showed ruts like a muddy road in the country; and it is easy to understand why a man who had cheerfully endured 110 degrees and 115 degrees in the dry heat of the nearer Rockies should gasp for air here like a fish out of water.

Worst of all, the horse sale was postponed. The owner of the stud and his prospective patrons alike had flown to sea and mountain for relief. As inquiry showed that the horse-breeder himself had gone to Newport, Power made haste to secure a stateroom on one of the Fall River line of steamboats, and it was on this quest that the Puritan Maiden, a vessel on which folk would travel merely for the sake of describing her to their friends, brought him to the chief summer resort of fashionable life in America.

He had not the slightest notion that Mrs. Hugh Marten was disporting herself daily on that particular stretch of Rhode Island beach. For all he knew, she might as well have been at Trouville or Brighton. Indeed, had anyone dared the lightning of his glance by mentioning her, and if he were compelled to hazard a guess as to her possible whereabouts, he would certainly have said that, to the best of his belief, she was in Europe. Such was the fact; but there are facts in every life which assume the guise of sheer incredibility when analysed, say, in the doubtful atmosphere of a law-court. In the dark days to come, during those silent watches of the night when a man looks back along the tortous ways of the past, John Darien Power could only lift impotent hands to Heaven and plead in anguish that he might at least have been spared an ordeal which he not only did not seek, but would have fled to the uttermost parts of the earth to have avoided. Such moments of introspection were few and far between, it is true. His was too self-controlled a nature that he should rail against the Omnipotent for having tested him beyond endand he failed, and he paid an indemnity which is not to be measured by any other scale than that alone which records the noblest effort.

To his own thinking, the tragedy of his life began that day in Bison when the sympathetic storekeeper told him of Nancy Willard's marriage. But he was wong in this belief. A man may lose the woman he loves, and recover from the blow, but he peers into abyssmal depths when he meets her as another man's wife, and finds that love, though sorely wounded, is not dead. It is then that certain major fiends, unknown, to the generality, come forth from their lairs — and there must have been a rare awakening of crafty ghouls on the day Power reached Newport.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE
"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from itching piles and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Fred Hinz, Brodhagen, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

SUFFERED AGONY WITH NEURALGIA
Nothing Helped Her Until She Tried "Fruit-a-tives"
CAMPBELLVILLE, ONT., May 5th, 1913.
"I cannot speak too highly of "Fruit-a-tives". For over thirty years, I have suffered from Chronic Neuralgia and Constipation, experiencing untold agony. The Neuralgia settled in my lungs and I took bottle after bottle of medicine without relief. The doctor told me I would not get better but "Fruit-a-tives" proved that the doctor was wrong, by giving me quick relief and finally and completely curing me.
I would not have my present health if it was not for "Fruit-a-tives" and I am glad of the opportunity of giving you this letter about such a splendid remedy as "Fruit-a-tives", for the guidance of other women who may be similarly affected"
MRS. NATHAN DUNN.
"Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine made from fruit juices and is particularly suited to women because of its mild action and pleasant taste.
"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c, or may be obtained from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Some folks seem to think that boys are like postage stamps when it comes to doing little jobs around home — they need to be licked to make them stick. It isn't so always. A stamp that is licked too much may never be worth anything again. A good deal so with boys. Licking is not what they need half so much as a kind, encouraging word.

A small embroidery hoop and a piece of cheese cloth make an excellent strainer for a little milk or something of that sort. It is much easier to manage than the cloth alone. Hang the hoop over the kitchen table and have several cloths in a drawer near by.

To prevent hairs or bristles from coming out of a paint or whitewash brush, allow it to soak in luke warm water before using.

MOLECULAR ATTRACTION.

That Is What Permits a Needle to Float Upon Water.

A steel needle laid carefully on a still water surface will float, although the weight of steel or iron is greater than that of an equal volume of water.

Molecules of liquids cohere, but with a force far less than in solids or viscid substances. But the thin needle of metal gently placed horizontally on water has not quite weight enough to break the surface tension—that is, molecular attraction—of the water below it.

Attraction of molecules is a force that exerts great influence in nature. Thus this force draws particles of water in fogs into drops of water which are heavy enough to fall as rain. Dew is a formation of minute particles of water into drops at rest on surfaces.

The molecular attraction of the heavy liquid—mercury—is intense, else this heavy liquid could not be drawn by it into spheres or drops. Melted lead forms into minute globes when let fall in high shot towers.

There is a great difference in the intensity of molecular attraction, as may be observed in alcohol, gasoline, sulphuric ether and similar limpid liquids and oil, sirup, glycerin and other viscous liquids.

Soap bubbles could not be blown in alcohol or benzine, but they form readily in water. And the molecules in the thin films really attract with some force, else the bubbles would burst before they become so large. The most elaborate mathematics are required to handle molecular forces, fit only for technical journals.—New York American.

Working the Morse Code.

Easiness of the telegraph code has sometimes facilitated evil practices. Charles Galbraith, formerly chief superintendent of telegraphs at Bombay, described one notable case. Messages used to be brought by mail steamer from Suez to Point de Galle and telegraphed thence overland to Bombay. Native operators found it profitable, especially during the cotton famine, to communicate the tenor of dispatches to outside confederates. At first the method employed was to write a copy of the telegram, roll it up tightly and drop it out of the window. But this was soon detected and stopped. Then the operator would lean his head on his hand as if musing and drum with his fingers. Knowledge of the Morse code by the man outside did the rest.

Terribly Afflicted With Lame Back.

Could Not Sweep The Floor.

When the back aches and pains it is almost impossible for women to do their housework, for every move and every turn means an ache or a pain.

Women are beginning to understand that weak, lame, and aching backs from which they suffer so much are due to wrong action of the kidneys, and should be attended to at once so as to avoid years of suffering from kidney trouble.

On the first sign of anything wrong with the back Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken.

They go right to the seat of the trouble.

Mrs. Wilfrid Jolicoeur, Nouvelle, Que., writes:—"I take pleasure in writing you stating the benefit I have received by using Doan's Kidney Pills. About three years ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back, and was so bad I could not sweep my own floor. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I only used three boxes, and I am as well as ever. I highly recommend these pills to any sufferer from lame back or kidney trouble."

Price, 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Toronto, Ont.

DIET AND COLOR.

What Man Eats Seems to Determine the Shade of His Skin.

What you eat determines your color, according to Bergfeld, a German investigator—not necessarily that you yourself could effect any change of color, but your ancestors for thousands of years have unconsciously been influenced by the food they have eaten and the drinks they have drunk.

For instance, the original men were black, says Bergfeld. Their chief diet was of vegetables and fruits, he explains, and these same foods contain manganates that are not unlike iron. Dark browns and blacks result from this combination. It is a scientific fact that negroes who drink milk and eat meat are never as dark as those who eat vegetables.

He goes on to add that the Indian is red because for hundreds and perhaps thousands of years he has taken into his system the haemoglobin or red material in the blood of animals which he has killed for their food.

Again, Mongols are yellow because they have descended from races that were fruit eating and who, making their way into the deepest nooks and widest plains of Asia, developed into shepherds and lived largely on milk. Of course it is known that milk contains a certain per cent of chlorine and has a decidedly bleaching effect. In the case of Caucasians they are said to have become white by adding salt to their foods, which common salt is a strong chloride and powerful in bleaching the skin.—Chicago Tribune.

ARTIFICIAL RESPIRATION.

How the Pulmotor Is Used to Restore Normal Breathing.

The pulmotor is an automatic resuscitation appliance which produces a flow of inhaled and exhaled air by a single nozzle, the rhythm of respiration adjusting itself automatically to the dimensions of the lung, and thus the astonishing result is produced of a seemingly lifeless body beginning to breathe regularly as soon as the pulmotor is placed in connection with it. The pulmotor works directly on the respiratory organs and if the spark of life still exists will fan it into a flame and give the heart and lungs a chance to fight.

The pulmotor is used on persons overcome by gas, electric shock, apparently drowned or in other cases where the breathing of the patient has been seriously impaired or stopped entirely and where there still remains a slight heart action. Its motive power is an oxygen cylinder containing this gas, which will supply a 60 per cent mixture of air and oxygen to the patient for forty minutes. It has a great advantage over artificial respiration by hand in that it forces larger amounts of oxygenated air into the lungs than it is possible by ordinary methods of artificial respiration, and the work can be kept up longer.—Philadelphia Press.

Land Tilled.

The department of agriculture estimates that there are 1,140,000,000 acres of tillable land in the United States and that only 27 per cent of this immense area is under cultivation. It might add that of the 27 per cent actually cultivated comparatively few acres are handled in such a way as to show anything like their maximum production.

Here is food for the pessimist. The man who fears that the country is nearing actual exhaustion may find cheer in the thought that little more than a quarter of the available agricultural land is being made productive. Supply inevitably meets demand, and as the demand for agricultural products increases the supply will be enlarged by the development of regions which have not been touched by the plow.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Literal.

William Chase, the painter, is a teacher whose criticisms are awaited with some trepidation by his pupils. One "criticism day" Mr. Chase came to the canvas of a pretentious and vain young man, who was considering with obvious complacency a portrait which he had smeared thereon.

"It's coming out nicely," he told Mr. Chase.

Chase said not a word, but took turpentine bottle, paint knife and rag and worked industriously at the canvas until there was a clean surface there.

"Ah, yes," he remarked, "it's coming out nicely."—New York Post.

A DIRECT AND MOST EFFECTIVE TREATMENT For Cold in the Head and Catarrh

Some internal remedies, such as Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne, undoubtedly help a great deal in checking a cold in the head. But you get the quickest action from Bossal Balm.

This is applied directly and conveniently through the new nozzle-shaped end of the collapsible tube in which it is put up. This little nozzle reaches well up into the nostril, and a gentle squeeze on the tube discharges enough of the Bossal Balm to spread over the membrane lining the nasal passages, kill the germs of the cold or catarrh, soothe the smarting inflammation, make breathing through the nostrils free and easy, and check the cold or relieve the catarrh at once.

The fact that this new means of applying the Bossal Balm is so handy, and gets it right up where it is needed, adds much to the value of this splendid remedy.

HINTS ON TREE PLANTING

Now is the time of year to plan for tree planting. Spring work may have started somewhat strenuously, but a few hours might be taken to get some nice young trees from the bush. I have a few ideas to offer gleaned from my experience in tree planting on several farms.

Don't select the largest trees for transplanting. Their root systems are larger and the shock of transplanting gives them a setback that it will take two or three years to recover from if they recover at all. Small trees stand transplanting best and grow rapidly.

Don't be afraid to prune the top of a tree heavily. In removing the tree from the bush much of the root system is removed, and the remaining roots cannot possibly feed as large a top as the tree will have developed. In the case of rock maple, I would cut off almost every branch, leaving little more than a straight pole.

Plant permanent trees. We live in a rushing age and like to get quick results. Hence the popularity of the Carolina poplar and trees of similar variety which grow quickly, but do not last long. Make your main planting of rock maple, elms or oaks, and if Carolina poplars are planted at all let it be in such positions that they can be removed when more permanent trees have reached a respectable size.

A few evergreens around the house give it a cozy appearance in winter, and they also make an attractive tree in summer. I would not overdo the planting of evergreens, however, as they are practically valueless for shade.

VALUE OF RHEUMA FROM THE COURT

Judge Barhorst Was Relieved of Rheumatism After Doctors Failed

If you have tried many other remedies and doctors' treatments for Rheumatism and found they failed, do not be skeptical about trying RHEUMA. Read the testimony of Judge John Barhorst of Fort Loraine, O.:

"After treatment by three doctors without result, I have been cured of a very bad case of Rheumatism by using two bottles of RHEUMA. It is now two years since I used the remedy, and I am still as well as ever. Previously, I was a cripple, walking with crutches."

Such testimony should be convincing, 50 cents of Warne Drug Co., guaranteed.

Strange Timekeepers.

To ascertain the time at night the Apache Indians employed a gourd on which the stars of the heavens were marked. As the constellation rose in the sky the Indian referred to his gourd and found out the hour. By turning the gourd around he could tell the order in which the constellations might be expected to appear.

The hill people of Assam reckon time and distance by the number of quids of betel nuts chewed. It will be remembered how, according to Washington Irving, the Dutch colonial assembly was invariably dismissed at the last puff of the third pipe of tobacco of Governor Wouter Van Twiller.

A Montagnais Indian of Canada will set up a tall stick in the snow when traveling ahead of friends who are to follow. He marks with his foot the line of shadow cast, and by the change in the angle of the shadow the oncoming party can tell, on arriving at the spot, about how far ahead the leader is.—Johannesburg Times.

PLANS FOR THIS YEAR'S GARDEN

When planning the improvement of your home surroundings, have in mind some special feature of ornamentation, either by trees, shrubs, or flowers, different from your neighbors within the bounds of good taste. See in your mind's eye your house as a picture and your grounds surrounding as the frame to set it off.

When an artist paints a picture he has first the story to tell. Then with the aid of his canvas, paints and brushes and technical skill he tells the story as best he can.

The gardener gives us the real picture. True he has the real sky above him and real nature and things to work with. Then on the canvas of his ground he spreads the green grass, either by sodding or seeding it. With real plants he produces real flowers. Real trees grace his lawn, and real roses climb up his cottage window.

To have a nice front lawn it should be properly laid out, and to do this let me point a few rules to observe. Never plant anything in front that will obstruct the view from the window to the road, or obstruct the view from the road to the house. In other words, plant your garden so that it will look nice from the house or the road.

Aim to make your lawn or grounds look as large as possible and also at simplicity of design, so as to have a grander effect of masses of growth in flowers and shrubs. This is done by having one or two borders full of plants, not breaking the lawn up by numerous meaningless small beds.

Another important feature of your home improvement is to make your place attractive in winter. This can be done by having a few evergreens grouped in threes or singly. The contrasting effect of evergreens with the winter snow is fine. Evergreens give an air of comfort to the place by their appearance. If you have a steep terrace or bold bank its stiffness and barrenness is removed by planting a few dwarf evergreens starting near the bottom and gradually working your way diagonally across till you come to the top, dotting an evergreen here and there, just as you may notice them growing up some farm hillside. For this purpose the junipers are just the thing or a few shrubs may be sparingly planted for the same purpose.

In the way of manuring, dividing and keeping the weeds down you may have by a judicious selection, plenty of flowers and foliage the season through.

The earliest flowering plants should always be planted in the most conspicuous place. Such plants as the Bleeding Heart follow any bed you may have of tulips or hyacinths. On the edge of the border or bed in front have a mass of pansies and forget-me-not, or a clump of daisies are pleasant to see. In the shady place caused by a fence or the side of the house, close to a walk, have a clump of lily-of-the-valley and some ferns. Two or more paeonies in variety are indispensable. Their bold character of foliage and flower make them fine lawn plants, either singly or in a group.

For tall herbaceous plants we select larkspur, rudbeckia, Bostonia, phlox, campanula, fox glove and hollyhock. For shorter growing kinds we have columbine, oriental poppy, dwarf phlox, iris in variety, achillea and chrysanthemums.

In our garden we must find room for annuals such as asters, petunias, nasturtiums, stocks, antirrhinums and Indian pinks. For a small circular bed nothing looks better than one of pink geraniums massed and margined with a circle of sweet alyssum. If our space allows and we have room for one of a more ambitious nature let the centre be a castor oil plant encircled by a row of canna, next a row of coleus Verschappildint of Perilla Nankiman, a row of scarlet geraniums margined by a circle of suitable edging. A little study and observation combined with experience gives anyone interested the necessary knowledge to make any number of combinations.

Climbing plants have an important part in our decorative work. For brick houses or stone the Boston ivy is unsurpassed, but for training up on a verandah or trellises roses are first, and then clematis.

For annuals, the most valuable would be cobea scandens, morning glory, dolichos and scarlet runner.

Make it a point to have some floral effect by one flower to dominate your garden. —Farm and Dairy.

Hay in the Middle Ages.

Hay seems to have been little known in the middle ages. Stock was wintered mostly on straw and leaves. Tusser, who wrote in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, gives much advice to the farmer as to the cutting and storing of green branches, which might serve as fodder when pasture failed. He is particular as to the desirability of saving the beech cuttings for the milk cows, whereas for sheep anything would do. A miserable dependence it would appear to us now, but then it seems to have been looked on, if not as a matter of course, at least as a thing practiced by the more forehanded and capable. There must have been some natural meadows in England even then, but perhaps all their produce was saved for the horses of kings. As far as I can recollect, there is no mention of hay in Shakespeare, if we except Bottom's remark, "Good hay, sweet hay, hath no fellow," and even that suggests its rarity. By Milton's time, 100 years later, "The mower whets his scythe" "And the tanned haycock in the mead" were familiar country objects.—From "A Farmer's Notebook."

A matter of time.

It took a lawyer in a New York court the other day 2,000 words to ask a question, and a doctor needed only the monosyllable "No" to answer it. All the question may have taken an hour to prepare and the answer ten years.—Springfield Republican.

GERMAN MILITARY PARTY AND INCREASED ARMAMENT

Agitation for Larger Army and Naval Forces Causes Uneasiness Over Whole Country—Drain on Taxpayer, but He Will Have to Contribute.

(Special Dispatch.)
BERLIN, May 16.

THE reassembly of the Reichstag has once more interested public opinion in Germany in the question of the national armaments. The threat of an early dissolution of the Assembly (which was elected early in 1912) at the behest of the powerful Junker-Conservative party, who still remember with bitterness the stand taken by the majority during the first day of the Zabern affair, hangs ominously over the horizon. The question is whether there is to be any attempt to utilise the uneasiness produced by this unpopular threat in attempting to obtain the acceptance of any further increases of the national forces.

The last four or five years have each brought their army or naval bills, but in this regard 1914 is still a blank sheet. It is true that a very cleverly worded sentence of Admiral Tirpitz's in the last debate on the Naval Estimates is considered by the majority as the promise of a "speeding up" of the naval building programme, but there is nothing yet to indicate when this acceleration is to be proposed.

The Vossische Zeitung states, however, with assurance, on the authority of a "highly placed personage," that there is to be a further increase in the navy, making it twice as powerful as the fleets of France.

With regard to the question of the land forces, there have been signs innumerable of late that a large part of the conservative group would willingly see a further increase of strength on this side. The very noisy and rather reckless campaign against Russia and all things Russian, which startled the diplomatists of Europe several weeks ago on account of the part which a section of the semi-official press played in it, soon subsided, but it has lately been replaced by a milder and cleverer and longer-winded campaign which stands a far better chance of bearing the desired fruit—bringing the Russian scarecrow level in size and fearsomeness with the rather tattered French hobgoblin. And, utilising the wave of feeling thus professed, the patrons militariste of the conservative party have lately been hard at work showing where the German army "needs" to be strengthened, and how easily it can be done. As usual, retired and highly distinguished officers of both services and higher civil servants are to the fore in this matter.

What the Chauvinistic group wants has recently been stated very plainly at the annual gathering of the Pan-German League. At least 65,000 more men to bear arms; that is the specific demand of the well known leader of the Wehrverein, General Keim. And it is significant that a few days after making this demand (at the same time surprising all modern statisticians by saying that France has an army of 100,000 soldiers more than Germany) General Keim was singularly honored by the attendance of the commander of the garrison of Strassburg, General Deimling, and the whole of his staff at a lecture given in the Alsatian capital, in which he repeated these remarks. From other quarters there are specific demands for new guns for the artillery, and also for new rifles. These, however, are more or less periodic pleas.

Meanwhile there has been a revival of the ominous "inquiries" into the state of taxation—how far the effect of existing taxation has gone, how much further the German taxpayer can go, and what new taxes should be imposed. A well known superior officer of the Customs, Herr Carthaus, estimates that the limit to which the German taxpayer can go will only be distantly approached when extra taxation to the extent of $40,000,000 yearly has been extracted from him. According to Herr Carthaus, an extra farthing per gallon of beer, an extra 1d. per bottle of spirits, and a penny or so imposed on each bottle of wine and each packet of cigarettes would bring in some $100,000,000 yearly without doing any considerable harm to trade and industry. The Reichstag might not like the idea, he admits. But as it is a question of life and death for the Empire, he says, this difficulty would have to be overcome. These remarks, published by an active high official in a semi-official newspaper in Berlin, have naturally stimulated curiosity.

Young Italy Among Ruins of Old Rome

This picture of His Royal Highness the Hereditary Prince Humbert of Italy was taken by his mother, Queen Helena, amid the ruins of Castel Porziano at Taranto during his recent prolonged cruise in the Mediterranean. Prince Humbert was born at Racconigi Castle on September 3, 1904. He has three sisters.

Hope to Sell 5,000,000 Roses on Alexandra Day in England

Sub-Committees in Three Hundred Centres of Country Will Invade Streets to Dispose of Queen Mother's Favorite Flowers—"Smart" Balls in Prospect.

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, May 16.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA DAY, which has been arranged for June 26, will be celebrated this year on an even greater scale than before. The aim is to sell 5,000,000 wild roses, which is Queen Alexandra's favorite flower.

There will be sub-committees in three hundred centres throughout the United Kingdom, compared with seventy-two last year. The women who will invade the streets as sellers of the roses will be dressed in white, with white or light colored hats trimmed with wreaths of the emblem of the day, their own contribution to the funds.

There were about fifteen thousand Alexandra Day women and girls in London last year. This year there will be more than twenty thousand. A feature will be an automobile floral procession, in which it is anticipated that hundreds of automobiles will take part. Both the automobiles and their drivers will be covered with roses, and should provide a pretty spectacle.

The Ritz Hotel still holds pride of place as the scene of "smart" balls for the coming season. Some people thought that the new Curzon in Piccadilly would become the vogue, but the builders' strike put an end to that idea for the present, at any rate, since the foundations of the prospective rival are in the same state as they were months ago. A hostess who entertains at the Ritz is certain of her guests putting in an appearance, if only for the supper, for which the hotel is famous—notably the quails served with muscatel grapes, which have served to draw many a young Guardsman and bland worldling from a rival hostess' dance before now, and will again.

After all, the dancing world, like any other, enjoys the consciousness of being at an expensively ordered function. For a ball, the Ritz charges $10 a head, band and flowers extra. A hostess who has invited four hundred guests to the most fashionable of London's rendezvous will receive no change out of a check for $5,000. That is why, when one is asked to a ball at the Ritz, the invitation is invariably accepted "with pleasure."

Arrangements for the Eighty Club ball at Claridge's Hotel on May 18 are now complete. The ballroom will be beautiful with white and pink flowers, and Casano's Band is to be in attendance. Already many well known hostesses have arranged dinner parties for the evening, and among those who intend to be present are Mrs. Asquith, Countess Beauchamp, the Countess of Granard, the Countess of Craven, Viscountess Allendale, the Countess of Chesterfield, Mrs. Winston Churchill, Lady Glenconner, Lady Ruxbury, Lady Clementine Waring, Mrs. Beerbohm, Lady Mond, Countess Brassey, Lady Barling, Lady Inchcape, Lady Saye and Sele and Mrs. Robert Harcourt. Mrs. Lewis Harcourt and Miss Asquith have promised to act as hostesses, and will undergo the handshaking of the guests as they arrive.

Find a Rubens in a Hotel Room

Mr. David Wigglesworth, of Burnage, Discovers Picture He Bought for $5.50 Is Masterpiece.

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, May 16.

A ROMANTIC picture "find" has been made by a Manchester hotel keeper. Mr. David Wigglesworth, of the Farmers' Arms, Burnage, has in his possession a large painting which is an almost exact replica of the canvas entitled "Winter," ascribed to Rubens, which hangs in Windsor Castle.

The painting, the value of which, it is believed, may easily run to about $50,000, was bought by Mr. Wigglesworth about two years ago at a sale at the residence of the late Mr. Norton, of Lee Gate House, Heaton Mersey, near Manchester. It was knocked down to him for $5.50, considerably less than the value of the massive gilt frame containing it. Until recently it hung in the hotel smoking room, an object of merely curious interest.

One day a caller expressed the opinion that the dirty, dilapidated canvas was a masterpiece. Mr. Wigglesworth made inquiries. Expert opinion confirmed the caller's view, and the result of their inspection left little doubt that the work, if not an actual Rubens, revealed the master hand. It was probably begun by Rubens and finished by one of his clever pupils, and is believed to be the replica painted for King Charles I., and presented to the Marquis of Newcastle, whose manor house at Worksop was partially destroyed by fire in 1761. The salvage, including statuary, pictures and furniture, was sold to a Sheffield dealer and dispersed by him, and this picture, blackened by smoke and considered valueless, must have lain dusty, hidden and neglected for many years. The canvas still shows the effect of having suffered from the heat and smoke.

The International Horse Show at Olympia Promises Well This Year

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, May 16.

ALTHOUGH the International Horse Show is not held until June, the preparations for it are already far advanced and it is confidently promised that the decorations will make the interior of Olympia more beautiful than ever.

The prizes reach the sum of $50,000, of which $32,500 will be devoted to the jumping classes, which from a popular point of view form the backbone of the show. The coaching Marathon from Hampton Court to Olympia, which was won last year by Mr. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, again figures in the programme.

The two gold international challenge cups, presented by King Edward and King George, are likely to be more keenly contested than ever before. King Edward's trophy was instituted in 1909 for the jumping over the course by teams of three officers of the same nationality in uniform. It has twice been won by Russia and twice by France, and if either of these contesting nations carries it off this year it will become its absolute property. As British army jumping is understood to have improved immensely since the International Horse Show was started English officers hope to make a more determined bid for the cup this year.

King George's Cup is bestowed upon the military officer of any nationality who does best over the jumps. Russia won it in 1911, Belgium the following year and France in 1913.

A new and interesting feature is the "international military trials," open to all British and foreign military officers on the active list. They are to extend over four days. On the first each officer will perform ten movements in the arena; on the second day the test will be a fifteen mile ride, with a jump around the course immediately on returning to Olympia; for the third day horses will be ridden from London to Aldershot—thirty-eight miles—with a ride over natural country on the way, and on arrival at Aldershot all competitors must go over the steeplechase course there. On the last day the tests will be for handiness and schooling, with jumping around the course in Olympia.

Competitors will be limited to one horse during the four days, because the object of these trials is to bring out the qualities of soundness and stamina, steadiness and unconditional obedience, which are essential in the charger.

SIR E. SHACKLETON'S PLANS FOR DASH TO THE POLE

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, May 16.

SIR ERNEST SHACKLETON, at a Pilgrims' Club gathering at the Savoy Hotel, outlined his plans for his polar expedition and kept his audience enthralled all the time he was speaking.

Sir Ernest's scheme is to cross the Antarctic Polar Region from the Weddell Sea to the Ross Sea, taking in the Pole en route. He begins his great adventure next October.

"We are going to try to cross the South Polar Continent," said Sir Ernest. "Why we go I cannot say. What the impelling force is that makes explorers, I cannot describe. It is one of the sort of things of which, if you could describe it in so many words, half the charm and half the interest would be lost. When you are in the Antarctic you have an uncomfortable time, frozen one minute and roasted the next, but when you come back to civilisation and sit down to dinners, before you have been home six months you want to get out on the long trail again."

Sir Ernest said that he could imagine nothing better in life than to be marching through unknown country like those regions and then, after sleep, to awake and find surrounding them hills or mountains which they knew no man had ever seen before. There must be some sort of interior pride that made one want to look on things no man had previously seen. He could not analyse the psychology of travel.

He had often been asked what was the good of it all. If any one were to offer to defray the cost of this expedition, it he could point to any single economic fact of value in such an expedition, he would resign. But the cost of the last expedition had been saved in three years by the magnetic work that was accomplished.

By studying meteorology in the Weddell Sea they hoped to benefit the stockbreeders of the Argentine and Chili, because it had already been found that dense ice in the Weddell Sea meant heavy rains in those countries. "Sentiment is the driving force. It always has been the driving force in any work which counts for the ages to come. It will be the first crossing of the last continent to be crossed and we want to do it under our flag."

Explaining how they hoped to cross the South Polar Continent in four and a half months, Sir Ernest declared that their food would contain the highest amount of nutritive value. The "tabloid business" was wrong. It was useless to live on tabloid food. They must have something that would fill as well as heat. The last food he took contained a large percentage of water, which was an absolute dead weight, as there was potential water at their feet.

"Each step taken into the unknown unfolds a page of mystery, and as long as there is any mystery on this globe it is not only man's right but also his duty to try to unravel it, so that in future ages we shall not be pointed at as the men who lived in the dark ages of the twentieth century. I am not going to do any flag-wagging. The flag we are carrying costs half a crown with bunting." If all went well they might expect to hear from them about the middle of 1916. "It lies on the knees of the gods what is going to happen, but if we fail it will not be my fault nor the fault of my companions. It will be the forces of nature. We will try to do our best."

Effect and promoted comfort — which meant efficiency—when the men were in their sleeping bags and smoked. In the open air, with the temperature 50 degrees below zero, it could not be used.

Sir Ernest said that tobacco was going to be taken because it had a good moral effect.

SIDELIGHTS ON HISTORY OF RAMPOLLA PAPERS

(Special Dispatch.)
ROME, May 16.

CARDINAL RAMPOLLA'S papers have produced some interesting disclosures, one of the most notable being the fact that after the famous Conclave of 1903, when he just missed being Pope, under the appearance of seclusion and disinterest in everything, the old combatant still existed and still attempted to influence the policy of the Papacy. Letters have been found addressed to him by Cardinal Lorenzelli, when he was Nuncio in Paris, from which it appears that the Papal representative to the French Republic was more inclined to follow the directions of Cardinal Rampolla than those of Cardinal Merry del Val, his proper head. Mgr. Lorenzelli has already received the red hat; otherwise it is doubtful if this disclosure would not be a permanent bar to his promotion.

Other letters from the Countess Parravicino di Revel, of Milan, demonstrate that this lady, who is the head of the Catholic Women's League of Lombardy, but has been removed from the Presidency, was an enthusiastic follower of Cardinal Rampolla and allowed herself to criticise strongly directions from the Vatican.

A correspondence between Cardinal Rampolla and Mgr. Bonomelli, the learned and liberal Bishop of Cremona, shows that the former was in indirect communication with Queen Margherita. Having heard that she admired his publication on St. Melania, he at once ordered his publishers to send her a copy, and he intimates that in a certain case (apparently with regard to the Vatican disapproval of the touching prayer written by Queen Margherita at the time of her husband's death) he had borne blame for which he should not have been responsible.

THE POPE'S AFFECTION FOR HIS SISTERS

(Special Dispatch.)
ROME, May 16.

IT is now more than a year since the death of the eldest sister of Pope Pius X., who, with her two younger sisters and their niece, Gilda Parolin, lived in a humble apartment in the Piazza Rusticucci, close to the vast mass of the Vatican Palace.

The sisters of the Pope are characteristic and interesting figures, who, notwithstanding the exalted position of their brother, remained in the Eternal City as simple and unpretending as in their native village and equipage with in Rome was given early days at Riese. Like most women by Mr. Fischel in a lecture at the Insti- of their class, they never took note tute the other day.
of doors and when they go to church drape a piece of black lace over their heads in Venetian fashion. Unable to read or write at all fluently, like many of their type in Italy, they are extremely shrewd and full of good common sense and are most notable housewives, whose only regret is that since their illustrious brother has been installed in the Vatican they can no longer see after his creature comforts as they did through all the earlier stages of his career.

Although Pius X. has done little for his family materially, he feels for them the tenderest affection, and every Sunday and Thursday, if not oftener, he receives the members who are in Rome, sometimes keeping them to [illegible] simple life felt the death of his eldest sister Rosa most deeply, and recently her body, which was temporarily interred in the great cemetery of San Lorenzo in Rome, was removed to Riese, the Sartos' native place, where he has had a family tomb-stone erected and where solemn funeral rites will again be rendered to her by the Bishop of the neighboring town of Treviso, the clergy of the cathedral there and the archpriest of Riese, who came to Rome at the Pope's request to accompany the body to its final resting place.

HOW A GIANT GROWS

(Special Dispatch.)
PARIS, May 16.

KING ALFONSO took a great interest at a recent circus performance in Madrid in a French giant named Eugene Arceau, who is aged nineteen, stands 7 feet 6½ inches and weighs nearly nineteen stone.

The King sent for the giant to come to the royal box. There he made the giant hold out his arm horizontally while he himself stood underneath it. "Why, by the side of you I might be a child," exclaimed King Alfonso. "If you were a Spaniard I should very willingly enroll you in my guard. I wish very much that I could do so." Queen Victoria Eugenie was much amused to see the King side by side with the giant.

Arceau sleeps sometimes for thirty-six hours at a time, it is stated, and when he awakes finds that he has gained as much as four inches in height. Doctors expect him to reach a height of nine feet by the time he is twenty-five years old.

NERO'S "HOUSE OF GOLD."

(Special Dispatch.)
PARIS, May 16.

AN interesting description of the wonderful "House of Gold" which Nero had built for him between the Palatine and Esquiline hills in Rome was given by Mr. Fischel in a lecture at the Insti- tute the other day.

This mighty palace, covered with plates of gold enriched with ivory and adorned with a multitude of beautiful statues, covered an area equivalent to the Champs Elysées and the Place de la Concorde. The Emperor conceived the idea after reading Ovid's description of the Palace of the Sun in the "Metamorphosis." And was in the guise of the sun god that he had a statue of himself made nearly [illegible] feet high. This colossus stood in a great four-horsed chariot and was erected in front of the "Temple of Gold."

Within the palace walls was a lake, which [illegible] rivers compare to a sea, and on its waters were given the sumptuous theatrical festivities of which one reads. Like a fairy palace the "House of Gold" was, and as such it vanished. The huge exactions which Nero made on the people in order to erect it did not induce to its popularity, and it survived its master by little. To-day nothing of it is left but some sub-basements discovered beneath the Coliseum.

BAN ON WEDDING BUREAUS.

(Special Dispatch.)
BERLIN, May 16.

THE Kaiser has put his foot down on officers of the active list securing wives through matrimonial agencies.

Recent trials in the courts have disclosed that officers when hard up are in the habit of applying to the agencies to find them wealthy brides, in return for which the agents are paid a handsome commission from the bride's dowry.

The Kaiser has in consequence issued a secret order announcing that any naval or military officer who is found to have employed a marriage broker will be at once dismissed from the service.

A list of agencies against which all officers are warned is issued with the order.

Maids Who Kneel by the Foam to a Sea Goddess.

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, May 16.

ALAND where strange native gods are still worshipped was described by Mr. P. Amaury Talbot at the Royal Geographical Society meeting in a paper on the Eket district of Southern Rhodesia, "the Land of the Ibibios."

In the Kwa Ibo estuary, where the perfect sand is strewn with gleaming shells, come at low tide Eket and Ibono maids, who, [illegible] their robes, kneel on the edge of the foam to pray to the sea goddess, Uman Ibono, to send them husbands. Men, too, come to plead with arms outstretched for help in unexpected difficulty or danger. To all who seek her aid the goddess ordains a sacrifice of white cocks and bulls, varying in number according to the riches of the petitioner.

"Don'ts" for Tourists in London Who Wish to Avoid Being Robbed

Don't Talk with Persons Dropping a Pocketbook, Don't Tell Your Affairs to Strangers and Don't Place Your Valuables or Money with Others.

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, May 16.

OF all criminal dodges to obtain money, perhaps the oldest of all is the "confidence trick." The incredible part of it is that it succeeds in London every day and astute Americans and colonials are the principal dupes. The tourist season has begun and some hints to Americans coming over may be useful.

As the name implies, the confidence trick man, who invariably employs a confederate, worms his way into the confidence of his victim and then despoils him. A smartly dressed man will walk about in the vicinity of the Strand on some spot to which tourists usually go and watch for a likely victim. Often a really intelligent man, unfamiliar with the trick, falls into the net. The trickster will then walk on ahead and drop a pocketbook, purse or small parcel in full sight of the prospective victim, who immediately picks it up and returns it. The trickster is profuse in his thanks and says the pocketbook contains a large number of notes, or even, as has occurred, many dozens of times, "jewels for the Pope."

The latter is a bait held out to a man whose first speech suggests that he is Irish or an Irish-American. The two get into conversation and the trickster shortly suggests refreshments in a hotel to which his confederate is making. The confederate joins the others as a stranger and the three exchange confidences, the confederate often taking the pocketbook of his chief into the street for a few minutes and returning as a proof of his honesty. Then the dupe is, asked to confide his valuables to the others, who may in turn display their honesty. In nine cases out of ten he does so—and loses them.

So here are a few points for tourists to London to remember:—

Don't encourage conversation with a man or woman who has dropped a pocketbook.

Don't believe a story about a stranger coming into a fortune, part of which has to be given to charity, however strong the evidence may appear.

Don't tell your affairs to strangers you may meet in the vicinity of the Strand, the British Museum or the Tower of London.

Don't be too anxious to let a perfect stranger show you all the sights of the city.

Don't place your valuables or money for so long as a minute into the care of a second person, even though the plausible stranger may declare he is an American and show apparent proof that he comes from the same State as yourself.

Boiling Wax Baths for Gout Are To Be Tested in London at Once

Assertion of French Physician That This Treatment Is Beneficial Is Attracting Attention in Hospitals—Must Be Unpleasant Because of Extreme Heat, Is One Opinion.

(Special Dispatch.)
LONDON, May 16.

The hot paraffin wax bath, said by a noted French physician to be the best treatment for rheumatism and gout, is just now exercising the attention of many medical men in London, particularly those who work extensively in the hospitals. Dr. Barthe de Sandfort for some time has used plasters of superheated wax on wounds and ulcers with success, and has now discovered that wax at 135 degrees Fahrenheit is equally efficacious when applied to the whole body.

The same physicians at St. Bartholomew's Hospital told an inquirer that the paraffin wax treatment had come to their notice, and had impressed them to the extent that they were going to experiment with it at once. It was very difficult to say before trying it, however, whether there was any foundation for the French physician's assertion, as paraffin was possessed few real medicinal properties.

"Our electrical treatment for rheumatism," it was said, "is very successful, and the major London hospitals have modelled their cure upon it. But we are going to give paraffin wax a thorough test."

The physicians at the London Hospital have discussed the French theory, but are uncertain yet whether to [illegible] in it. It will be decided very [illegible] experiments are to be made. All one of them said, paraffin wax is already used in a few cases, internally as a mild aperient, and externally as an ointment.

"This new treatment," he said, "reminds one of mediæval torture, and it must be most unpleasant to go into a bath of boiling wax. At this hospital we rely mainly upon hot air baths for cases of rheumatism and gout, and they are fairly successful, though by no means infallible."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A DISCOVERY

One day a man stood in London beside one of those holes left for the use of persons who descend to the sewers. The place was in an unfrequented portion of the city, and there was no one near him. He looked about him and listened for a footfall, then, producing a crowbar, inserted one end under the round metal cover of the hole and, lifting it, descended, permitting the cover to fall back into its place. Once in the sewer he drew from under his ragged coat a lantern.

John Murphy made his living by picking up articles that, having got into the sewer, were lost to their owners. Soon he found an umbrella. It was covered with sewer mud, but was of silk with an elaborately carved handle. John knew that when new it was worth a couple of sovereigns; when cleaned he might get half of that for it. This was unusual luck. He went on looking about him for other articles, but after an hour's walk had found nothing. He was about to leave the sewer when he stumbled on the biggest find in his life.

He came to a place where a small piece of the masonry had fallen in. Pointing the bull's-eye of his lantern upward, he threw the light into the aperture left vacant and disclosed a broken floor composed of marble squares. Piling the fallen debris so as to enable him to get his hands on what was above him, he drew himself up and found himself in a room. Throwing his light about him, he saw a number of boxes, some of which were loosely covered. Examining the contents of one of them, he threw his light on gold coins. Other boxes contained like contents. In the room was a treasure of inestimable value.

It was now night. Murphy wished to emerge by a manhole near the break and took the risk of doing so. Several persons saw him, but thought nothing of the matter. As soon as he got up on the street he saw straight before him the Bank of England. Then he knew that he had been in the strong room of the largest banking institution in the world.

One morning the governor of the bank received a note addressed to him, ungrammatical, misspelled, bearing every evidence of having been written by an illiterate person. The writer said that the bank was in danger of losing a great deal of money. A letter addressed to John Murphy at a certain post office substation, inviting the said Murphy to state his case to the governor, would receive attention. Many odd letters reach the Bank of England, and Murphy's letter was weeded out of the governor's mail before it reached him.

A few days later the bank received by express 10 sovereigns wrapped in a piece of paper, on which was written in pencil the number of the box in the strong room from which they had been taken. The money in the box was counted and found to be short by 10 sovereigns.

The incident excited a commotion among the officials of the bank. A meeting in the governor's private room was called to consider the loss and how it could have occurred. No one dreamed that there was a hole in the floor of the strong room, and no one could suggest a probable way by which the coins sent to the bank had been removed. While the officials were considering, John Murphy appeared before an official at a desk and said that he wished to see the governor. Having been questioned by the startled official, he said that he was the man who had sent the 10 sovereigns to the bank and was there to tell how he got them.

The official had not heard of the sending of the coins, for that had been kept a profound secret. He told John Murphy to move on, and John did so, but to another part of the building, where he told his story again and again. He was just about to be taken into custody by a bank policeman when a prominent official of the bank who knew the secret of the returned sovereigns happened to inquire his offence.

Within five minutes the ragged sewer searcher was standing in the governor's room confronting a number of sleek looking directors. He was permitted to speak and told the assembly how he had got into the strong room from the sewer and how he or any one else who knew the secret might go and come at will.

If the receipt of the sovereigns had caused a commotion this information raised a whirlwind of excitement. A committee was sent to examine the strong room and returned confirming Murphy's information. John was held for two reasons—the money must be counted to make sure that he had not appropriated any of it, and if he should tell the secret the matter would make a much greater sensation among the public than even it did among the officials of the bank.

The count required a long while, and during the time it was in progress the sewer was repaired and the room made strong. When it was all over the discoverer of the break was summoned to the governor's room.

"How many persons have you told of this matter?" asked the latter.

"No one except you in the bank."

"On that table are a thousand sovereigns. Take them and make yourself comfortable. You are also appointed one of the strong room watchers with a salary of £500 a year."

Thought She Would Go Mad WITH HEADACHE.
In all cases of headache the treatment should be directed to remove the cause, for with the cause removed the headache vanishes for all time. Headache powders just relieve for the time being, but what is necessary for a permanent cure is something that will go right to the seat of the trouble. For this purpose it is impossible to find a better remedy for headaches of all descriptions than Burdock Blood Bitters, acting as it does on every organ of the body to strengthen, purify and regulate the whole system.
Mrs. Althea Bowman, Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"I have suffered terribly with my head for weeks at a time till I thought I would go mad. A friend advised me to give Burdock Blood Bitters a trial, so I got a bottle and found relief. I have used four bottles in all and I am glad to say that I have had no more headaches since. I would advise all sufferers to give it a fair trial."

FOR CHAPPED HANDS.

Should the hands have become coarsened or reddened with exposure to inclement weather it is a good plan to wash them thoroughly first in warm water and soap and then to apply the following lotion: Get one ounce quince seeds, bruise them and boil in 32 ounces of water until reduced to 16 ounces. Now strain the seeds through a flannel bag, squeezing the kernels, then add eight ounces of bay rum and eight ounces glycerine, add a little starch or boric acid to thicken. Use this lotion night and morning. This lotion is better than many on the market and much cheaper.

Won In Losing.

She wanted to do some shopping and, as is the custom of wives, felt the need for more money. She went to her husband and asked for the loan of a sovereign.

"But you'll never pay me back," protested the husband. "I've lent you money before."

"I'll bet you 2 shillings I pay you in a month," said the wife.

"Right," said the husband, leaping at this sporting offer.

The month passed. One morning the wife came sorrowfully to her husband. "Dear, I've lost that bet. Here's your 2 shillings."—Manchester Guardian.

ST. LOUIS AS A VILLAGE.

In 1767 It Had Forty-five Houses and as Many Families.

Captain Philip Pitman, an officer in the engineering corps of the British army, was selected by General Gage in 1767 to make an expert report on the territory just acquired from France on the east side of the Mississippi river. Pitman came to the Mississippi valley, the Illinois country it then was called, and traveled about for several months. Here is what he wrote of St. Louis in the early part of 1767:

"This village is one league and a half above Kaoquias, on the west side of the Mississippi, being the present headquarters of the French in these parts. It was first established in the year 1764 by a company of merchants, to whom M. D'Abbadie had given an exclusive grant for the commerce with the Indian nations on the river Missoury, and for the security and encouragement of this settlement the staff of French officers and the commissary were ordered to remove here, upon the surrendering of Fort Chartres (forty miles south of St. Louis on the Illinois side) to the English, and great encouragement was given to the inhabitants to remove with them, most of whom did.

"The company has built a large house and store here, and there are about forty-five houses and as many families. No fort or barracks are yet built. The French garrison consists of a captain commandant, two lieutenants, a fort major, one sergeant, one corporal and twenty men."—St. Louis Times.

CURING SLICE IN GOLF.

An Expert Suggests Some Remedies For a Troublesome Habit.

The slice is unfortunately a common fault at golf, destroying all hope of accuracy as well as distance in the drive. The remedy becomes obvious as soon as the cause of slicing is thoroughly understood. That it is due to a horizontal rotation of the ball in its flight is unquestionable, from the analogy of the curved ball in baseball. The question is as to how this motion of rotation is imparted to the ball.

The remedy lies either in eliminating the twist of the wrists or in compensation for it by turning the club in the hands while addressing the ball. If you are a confirmed slicer turn the club in the hands so that the face slants sharply inward while the hands and arms are otherwise held in the usual position. Address the ball with the club in this position and then swing as usual. You will be agreeably surprised to see a straight ball or a pull. A few trials will serve to determine the position of the club in addressing the ball which will give the desired straight shot.

All the curves, the slice, the pull and the rise are sharply emphasized in long shots. The sharp, hard blow of a rapid stroke sets up a much more rapid rotation of the ball just as in the billiard shots.—E. K. Stuart in Outing Magazine.

Whole Family to Be Represented.

A Scottish woman who has just died left a will in which she instructed the executor to erect statues of herself, her parents, her brothers and her sisters—12 statues in all—and to spend annually the sum of $10,000 upon the same. It is evident that although she couldn't take it with her she was doing the best she could to extract value on earth.

The Secret of Health is Elimination of Waste
Every business man knows how difficult it is to keep the pigeon holes and drawers of his desk free from the accumulation of useless papers. Every housewife knows how difficult it is to keep her home free from the accumulation of all manner of useless things. So it is with the body. It is difficult to keep it free from the accumulation of waste matter. Unless the waste is promptly eliminated the machinery of the body soon becomes clogged. This is the beginning of most human ills.

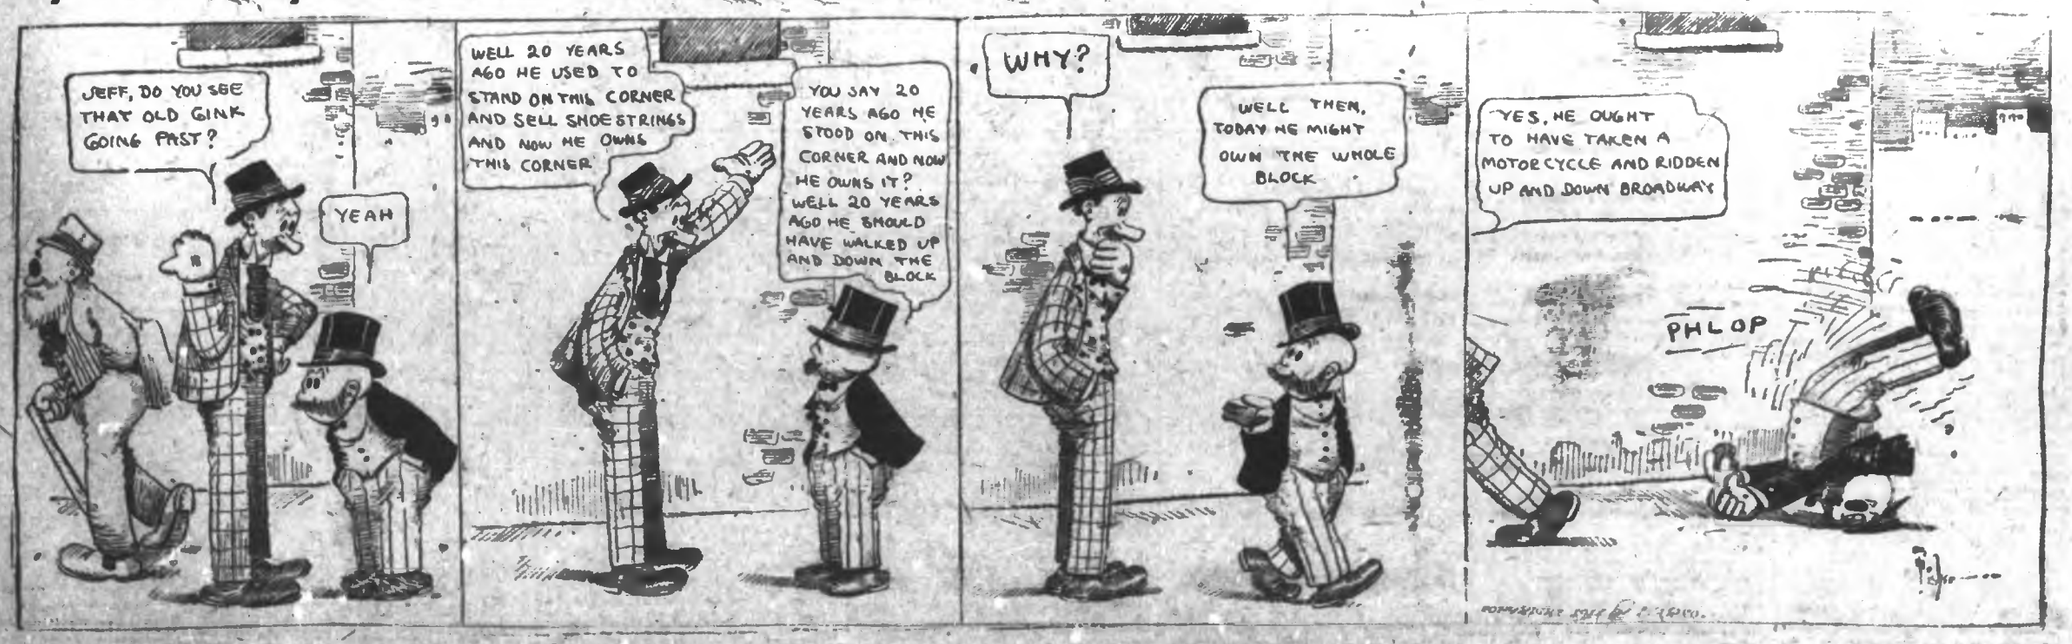
Say Mutt: "Why Not Cross the Continent on a Train" By "Bud" Fisher



Tampico, Scene of Rebel Victory Over the Mexico Federal Forces. — Scene of one of the bloodiest engagements in Mexican history. The map shows the disposition of the Federal and rebel forces at Tampico when the battle started. As the desperate battle raged it was watched by the sailors and marines from the British, U. S., and German war-ships anchored in the Panuco River. The Federals withstood a tremendous artillery fire for twenty-four hours, and then the evacuation commenced. A hand-to-hand conflict from house to house and street to street followed the rebels right on the heels of the Federal rear guard. It was one of the bloodiest fights in Mexico's history.

PREMIER IN DUEL.

Count Tisza of Hungary and His Opponent Are Wounded.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, May 20.—Count Stephan Tisza, the Hungarian Premier, and Stephan Rakovsky, a member of the Lower House, fought a duel with rapiers here yesterday afternoon. The adversaries fought five bouts and both were wounded.

Count Tisza was cut in the right arm and Deputy Rakovsky sustained a six-inch superficial slit in the abdomen. The duel thereupon was stopped, but the duelists left the field without effecting a reconciliation.

The duel grew out of an altercation which took place in the committee room of the Hungarian Parliament on May 14, when the Premier challenged Committeeman Rakovsky to settle their differences on the field of honor.

TO TRAVEL ALL SUMMER.

Vice-Regal Party Will Not End Tour Until Next September.

OTTAWA, May 20.—As at present arranged, Their Royal Highnesses will be in residence at Toronto from May 30 to 31, both inclusive.

At the conclusion of their stay in Toronto they will visit the following localities: Peterboro, Port Hope, Cobourg, June 1; Belleville, Kingston, June 2; Brockville, Cornwall, June 3.

From June 4 to July 4 Their Royal Highnesses will be in residence at Quebec, during which time His Royal Highness will probably visit Petawawa camp and the eastern townships.

On July 5 the Governor-General will pay a short visit to Newfoundland, proceeding there on H. M. S. Essex, which is coming to Quebec in July.

At the end of July Their Royal Highnesses will proceed west to Vancouver, making various short stops en route. They will be back in Ottawa early in September.

Appeals Are Dismissed.

OTTAWA, May 20.—At the conclusion of argument in the Supreme Court yesterday afternoon, in the Chateauguay election case, both appeals were dismissed. The result is that the petition and counter-petition will go to trial on their merits. The first case heard was the appeal by Hon. Mr. Fisher against James Morris, M.P., the sitting member, on preliminary objections.

Mill Dam Blown Up.

KINGSTON, April 20. — At Melburn, thirty miles from here, a big sensation was caused by the blowing up of the mill dam owned by John Jackson. This is the second time in a year that it has been destroyed. The wires and battery used to set off the dynamite were found. Mr. Jackson will ask the Government to have the case investigated.

NOTHING LIKE IT FOR COLDS

Mrs. Holland Ferguson, Sheffield, N.B. writes: Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has cured my children and myself of severe colds. We are never without it in the house. EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

DAILY FASHION HINT.

No. 6,607, Boy's Dress.

This dress is for a very little boy. The blouse has a deep, fancy yoke in front and a plain back, with wide collar at the neck. The small bishop sleeve has a mere suggestion of fullness at the shoulder and is gathered or pleated at the cuff. Little bloomers complete the suit. Linen, duck, gingham, cashmere, cotton, crepe and other novelty fabrics are used for these suits.

The suit pattern, No. 6,607, is cut in sizes 2 and 4 years. Medium size requires 3½ yards of 27 inch material.

This pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the office of this paper.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

GETTING A START

By NATHANIEL C. FOWLER JR.

(Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

THE DISAGREEABLE JOB.

No matter what your position may be, whether you are at the head of a department or occupying the most subordinate position, a part of your work will be disagreeable or irritating, and will not appeal to you. It must be attended to, however, and the more quickly it is accomplished, the better. To postpone it, think about it and worry about it, is as foolish as it would be to delay the taking of a dose of medicine, which you know you have to swallow, placing the bottle in front of you, thinking about it and dreading it, instead of taking it.

Years ago I adopted the principle of doing the disagreeable task first, that I might get it out of the way and off my mind, and be able to look forward to the doing of more congenial duties.

The anticipation of disagreeable work is harder to bear than the doing of it, and the longer you think about it, the worse it gets and the more irritating it appears to be. If you immediately attend to it, you will have the satisfaction of seeing it grow less as it approaches accomplishment, and you can anticipate being through with it; while, if you postpone action, it will weigh more heavily on your mind and its disagreeable qualities will be magnified.

Do not labour under the impression that, because you occupy a subordinate position, the bulk of your work is any more disagreeable than will be a proportion of your duties when you rise from the ranks. Every man of accomplishment, even though he is at the top of the ladder of fame, has disagreeable work to perform.

I recall the incident of a young fellow who shipped before the mast. He had to wash decks and to do much hard and menial labour. He envied the captain who had a cabin of his own and who apparently had nothing to do. In the course of time, our young friend became commander of a splendid vessel. The responsibility of a million dollars' worth of property, and the lives of a thousand people, was upon him. True, he had no real mechanical work to do, and there was nothing to soil his hands or his uniform. Every one on board touched his hat to him. He was supreme in comand. Many a night in a dense fog, or when the waves were lashing his ship, he wished himself back in the forecastle where he had to do only what he was told to do, and had no responsibility.

The higher you climb, the more liability there is of falling, and the fall is more likely to dash you to pieces.

Most disagreeable work is disagreeable because you make it so, because you think about it and dwell upon it. Every piece of necessary work should be considered your work, and the most important of your work while it lasts.

Dignify your labour, whether it be shovelling coal or commanding an army! Love it. Love takes the sting out of labour.

THE GREATEST SENSATION IN YEARS ON ENGLISH TURF

LONDON, May 14 — In the racing World the scratching of the Tetrarch on the eve of the Derby makes as great a sensation as would be made in the political world if Premier Asquith resigned on the eve of the passage of the Home Rule bill.

The following impressions are garnered from the best racing authorities: The Tetrarch was the fastest horse we have seen since St. Simon, the most promising two-year-old since Ormonde, his fame world-wide, the iron-grey with soapsuddy hide splotched all over with darker smudges of irregular size and design; hence affectionately called by the man on the street, "Rocking Horse"

The Spotted Wonder.

The spotted wonder time after time steamed away from all opponents like a thing possessed of more than ordinary flesh and blood. It seemed as if he would pick up the Derby with the greatest ease. He won seven races and $11,336 in stakes during 1913, and anything up to £50,000 would gladly have been paid for him by some plutocrat anxious to win the Derby. It seemed that about the only place where the Tetrarch was not discussed at breakfast, luncheon, dinner, and the intervals between, was Mexico, where inhabitants are too busy killing each other, and now this gigantic, world-famed wonder proves just ordinary flesh and blood, and frail at that. He hits himself when galloping Tuesday and it is all over.

Criticism of His Owner.

His owner, the young inheritor of the McCalmont millions, who is serving as British officer at Curragh headquarters in Ireland, is severely criticised for keping the health of his horse a secret so long. His honour is unimpugned, but his silence has set everybody guessing. One leading bookmaker offered £20,000 to £5,000 against him, while disclaiming any positive information to his detriment Last week a firm of commission agents offered 2 to 5 against, and even money against his running, yet when Perse, his trainer, left home Monday The Tetrach was apparently as sound as on the day he was foaled. None of those most closely concerned seemed to have the smallest doubt but that he would run in the Derby, though everyone knew after his breakdown last autumn, there must always remain an "if".

The underwriters at Lloyds lost £7,000 over risk policies, the premiums paid averaging 30 guineas per cent.

It is hoped that The Tetrach's leg will be sound enough for the Jockey Club Stakes on October first.

Although the interior of the earth is not a molten, vicious mass, but by reason of extreme pressure is as rigid as solid steel, Prof. A. A. Michelson, of the Yerkes Observatory in Chicago, has determined that the solid portions of the earth ebb and flow like the tides of the ocean. He has proved scientifically that "solid" tides of about a foot occur at the surface as a result of the attraction of the sun and moon. Microscopes were used to measure the changes in level at the ends of a column of water 300 feet long, half filling a pipe six inches wide and placed six feet underground to assure constancy of temperature. The measurements were useful in showing both the rigidity and the elasticity of the earth's interior.

The man who is always having his feelings hurt is about as pleasant as a pebble in a shoe.

The path of civilization is paved with tin cans.

HAIR CAME OUT BY HANDFULS

With Dandruff and Itching Scalp. Scalp Covered with Small Pimples. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Now No Trouble At All.

503 Jane St., Toronto, Ont.—"I was first troubled with my hair getting brittle and later dandruff and itching scalp. I was afraid to comb my hair as it came out by handfuls and the itching was so severe I was miserable. The trouble kept me from sleeping. My scalp was covered with small pimples which seemed to run into one another and form a scab. The dandruff was so bad I was afraid to comb my hair as it made it show so plainly. It looked very badly. I was thinking of having my head shaved.

"For a long time I tried ——, ——, —— and several other remedies but they did not cure it. After some months I picked up a paper with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertisement and sent right away for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. On using just the sample my trouble was better. I used six or eight cakes of the Cuticura Ointment also the Cuticura Soap and my scalp healed, the itching stopped and my hair came in quite thick and now I have no trouble at all." (Signed) Mrs. E. Bader, May 27, 1913.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world. For liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book, address post-card to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. D, Boston, U. S. A.

THAT TIRED FEELING

Suggests Grandmother's Remedy.

It's true, the season is here with its sudden changes, and the old idea that we need a blood meddicine is not without reason. Too much heavy food has caused a torpid liver, sluggish blood, and a weak, tired out feeling.

Sulphur, cream of tar ar and molasses was grandmother's remedy, but that has long ago been displaced by Vinol, a combination of the two most world famed tonics, namely, the medicinal curative elements of the cod's liver, without oil, and iron for the blood.

Vinol builds you up, makes you eat more and digest better, makes your blood rich and pure—puts healthy colour in your cheeks.

N. G. Clift of Opelika, Ala., says: "Last spring I was all run down, no strength, no appetite. I took Vinol and was greatly benefitted by its use, as I soon felt strong and well as ever."

We guarantee Vinol to satisfy you and refund your money if it does not. McDermid & Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte Streets; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe Streets.

BILLS ARE PASSED.

Federal House Spends Busy Day With Miscellaneous Legislation.

OTTAWA, May 20.—In the House of Commons the bill respecting judicial calaries was given its third reading, after being shorn of an amendment regarding travelling expenses, which Mr. Speaker declared out of order, the amendment sought to give the same traveling expenses to county judges who resided outside the county towns as those who resided in them where the business in the place of residence was as great as in the county town.

Hon. Dr. Reid's bill amending the railway act and extending the sum of $300,000 for another five years for the purpose of eliminating level crossings was put through. Figures submitted showed the expenditure during the past five years was $60,-891. He said the amount voted stood as a fund from which the Government's portion of abolishing crossings, as ordered by the Railway Board, was to be paid, the board fixing the amount.

The act amending the St. John and Quebec Railway Act providing for the erection of certain bridges by the Government, instead of by the railway, the bonds for which bridge construction have been guaranteed by the province, was given a third reading after a protest from F. B. Carvell.

Hon. Robert Rogers' bill increasing the subsidy in respect to first-class dry docks from 3 1-2 to 4 per cent. of the total cost of the work so fixed under the dry dock subsidies act during a period not exceeding 15 years, was read a first time. This bill will not be retroactive, nor apply to contracts for dry docks already let.

Death Was Accidental.

GUELPH, May 20.—The jury who enquired into the deaths of Wilfrid McRae and Alfred Brake, who were killed here in a cave-in of a trench dug by the waterworks employes, returned a verdict of accidental death. It was recommended that when excavations were being made, the sides of the trench be shored for protection.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

L. J. Cameron, of Manitoba and now of King's College, London, has secured a fellowship in the Royal College of Surgeons in London.

Fire in the Jacob Hahch agricultural implement plant at DeKalb, Ill., yesterday caused a loss of about $200,000. There was no insurance.

Sydney Drew, printer and publisher of The Suffragette, the newspaper representing the militants of London, was committed for trial for inciting to malicious injury.

Harris Deschamps, aged 17, the runaway son of a respectable merchant of Beloile, is charged at Montreal with snatching a purse and shooting his purser.

A group of 121 Peruvian Senators and Deputies who have declared themselves a national congress and proclaimed Roberto E. Leguia as President of the Republic.

The Canadian Government has had no advice of a Canadian being held as a prisoner on a British-owned plantation on the Paraguay-Brazil border, as reported yesterday.

A lobster fisherman found, near Blooming Point, P.E.I., the body of a man frozen fast in a floating ice cave. The fisherman went for help and the body was carried out to sea again.

Roy Brown of Vancouver was smoking in bed and went to sleep. The bedclothes caught fire and Mr. Brown had to jump from a third-storey window to save his life. He was badly hurt.

The Catholic Union of Missouri adopted a motion last night directing the resolutions committee to embody in its report a vigorous protest against the passage of nation-wide prohibition in the U. S.

Washington's Only Joke.

The only admirable quality in whic Washington was deficient was humor. One of the very few jests he ever made—perhaps the only one—has descended to posterity on the authority of his aid-de-camp, Colonel Humphreys.

General Washington rather prided himself on his riding, so the colonel one day when they were out hunting together dared him to follow over one particular hedge. The challenge was accepted, and Humphreys led the way. He took the leap boldly, but to his consternation found that he had mistaken the spot and was sunk up to his horse's girth in a quagmire. The general either knew the ground better or had suspected something, for, following at an easy pace, he reined up at the hedge and, looking over at his engulfed aid, exclaimed, "Ha, ha, colonel, you are too deep for me!"

Messaged With Nettles.

Nettles are said to be an almost certain proof that man has lived on the spot. One British species, the so called Roman nettle, is said to be found only where the Romans have been. Colon, the seventeenth century herbalist, explains, "It grows both at the town of Lidde, by Romney, and in the streets of the town of Romney, in Kent, where Julius Caesar landed, with his soulders, and shode there a certaine time, and for the growing of it in that place it is reported that the soulders brought some of the seede with them and sowed it there for their use to rub and chafe their limbs when through extream cold they should be stiff and benumbed, being told before they came from home that the climate of Britain was so extream cold it was not to be endured without some friction."

Tale of the Iron Duke.

The Duke of Wellington, if he did not confer commissions in the army upon little boys, went one better in the way of promise. It is Grant Duff who tells the tale in his diary. "Dined with the Spencer Walpoles. She told a story of playing as a child in the gardens of Apsley house. The old duke came out, and the children stood in a row while he passed. He stopped and said to one of them: 'You are a very nice little fellow. When you are old enough I will give you a commission in the guards.' 'But I am a girl, Mr. Duke,' said the child."

Not a Magnet.

"Let me sing the old songs in your parlor," implid the girl who thought she was a prima donna.

"Please don't," begged the landlady. "But your boarders will be carried away by my singing."

"That's just the trouble. The last time you sang they were carried over to the next boarding house."—National Monthly.

Pawned.

"I have pawned every day this week at some function or other," remarked the vivacious girl.

"Well, well!" murmured the old gentleman who overheard her. "Now I knew what is meant by the term 'a pawnbroker's holiday'."—St. Louis Republic.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, May 19.—Suggestions that the prospect of a bumper crop this season had to a large extent been ruined by the Hessian fly forced the wheat market today to a much higher level. The close was strong at nearly the topmost point reached, 1-3c to 1 1-4c above last night. Corn made a net gain of 5-8c to 3-4c and oats 1-3c to 1c. In provisions the outcome was unchanged to 5c down.

THE SLEEPING PORCH

I spent a few days in Windsor lately, and in that prosperous and growing town had a chance to observe some of the latest things in home building. One feature of the new houses going up that I noticed particularly was the large number of sleeping porches. I wonder if the sleeping porch has ever been tried out on the Ontario farm? There are none in my neighborhood, but in reading The Breeders' Gazette recently I ran across a paragraph or two in that well known paper advocating the sleeping porch for the farm. It expresses the idea much better than I can, and I would like to see it published in Farm and Dairy. Here it is:

"No farmhouse should be built without a commodious sleeping porch. It economizes room. All the boys of the family will from choice have their beds on it; they may share a common dressing room. It makes visits from the physicians unnecessary, for sleeping porch devotees rarely are ill. It affords the greatest luxury of all country living. Farm life is full of demands on muscle and mind; it will doubtless long be a strenuous life. The farmer and his boys come home at nightfall pretty well wearied. First then let them stand a little time under the shower bath, which naturally belongs with the modern farm home. Then comes supper, a book or paper, a slipping out to the sleeping porch and finally lying down in the coolness of a summer evening.

"Vow as he will, the farmer drops soon into a dreamless sleep. He awakens with the birds. The air of morning is better than wine. He arises so refreshed that the demands of the day have no terrors for him. Winter porch sleeping is fine, too; a real luxury to those who brave it and are accustomed to it. Build sleeping porches on all the farm houses, old and new. They will help make a better race of men and women."

Does not it make you want to give the sleeping porch a trial? If the constitution of town people can stand sleeping in the cold air in winter and it does them good, surely we farmers are equally hardy and equally susceptible to the good influence of fresh air.

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, MAY 20, 1914

COUNTY TEMPERANCE FORCES HAVE DECIDED ON A PLAN OF CAMPAIGN

Will Support the Candidate That Is Considered the Most Suitable From the Standpoint of the Temperance Cause

RESOLUTION PASSED

At a meeting of the Peterborough County Temperance Association, attended by some one hundred delegates from practically all the municipalities of the county, held Tuesday, forenoon and afternoon in the Public Library, Peterborough, the delegates concluded their discussion by pledging themselves unanimously through a standing vote to cut out party politics in the approaching elections and work for the election of the candidates of whichever party takes the most advanced stand on the temperance question. The delegates furthermore answered to a roll call of the different municipalities and pledged themselves by a standing vote to return to their municipalities and work through their primaries for the election of delegates to the party conventions who will work for the nomination of candidates at the party conventions favourable to advanced temperance legislation.

Interview Candidates.

The executive of the Association was instructed to interview the candidates immediately after their nomination and obtain from them signed statements showing exactly where they will stand on the temperance question. In the event of neither party bringing forth suitable candidates the executive was instructed to call temperance conventions in both ridings with the view of taking action to promote the interests of the temperance party. The convention discussed the platform of the Dominion Alliance relating to political action, clause by clause and adopted it in full.

A Representative Gathering.

The convention was most representative in character. Delegates were present from Havelock, Norwood, Lakefield, Peterborough, Keene, Warsaw, Bridgenorth, Selwyn, Indian River, Bethel, Westwood, Zion, Stewart's Hall, Young's Point and other points throughout the two ridings.

The convention throughout was harmonious and enthusiastic. The importance of the thorough organization of the temperance forces was emphasized again and again. Those present realized that public opinion all through the province is being shaped at this time on the temperance issue and those present were determined to crystalize this sentiment into definite action as far as the County of Peterborough is concerned. The meeting was thrown open to the fullest possible expression of opinion. To insure the question at issue being discussed by both party conventions in both ridings the executive was instructed to forward a communication to both parties to be read at the nominating conventions.

Resolution Passed.

This resolution expressed in full the attitude of the convention. It was as follows:

(1) "That this convention reaffirms as its platform the object for which the Dominion Alliance stands, namely, "The Total Suppression of the Traffic in Intoxicating Beverages," and declares it to be the duty of the Ontario Legislature to enact legislation prohibiting the liquor traffic as far as within the power of a Provincial Legislative Assembly.

(2) "That this convention calls upon all friends of the temperance cause to rise above party preference and affiliation in earnest effort, on every opportunity to secure the nomination and election to the Legislative Assembly, of men who will support the most progressive temperance legislation proposed, regardless of party consideration, and that this can only be attained by loyally standing by candidates who are known, avowed, and trustworthy supporters of the Alliance policy."

"As we represent both political parties we would prefer to support the candidate of the party to which we belong and therefore, we express the hope that both parties in both ridings in the County will place in the field, candidates who will undertake, if elected, to vote for the abolition of the bar, shop, and club licenses, who will also undertake to support all advanced temperance legislation by whichever party it is introduced.

"Should only one temperance candidate be nominated in each riding we shall feel in honour-bound to support him, provided his record is acceptable to the temperance interests, and if neither party places a temperance man in the field our executive is instructed to immediately call riding conventions and arrange for the taking of such action as may be in the best interests of the temperance cause."

A resolution was passed urging the members of the City of Peterborough Temperance Association to institute a campaign for the cutting out of the shop licenses in the City of Peterborough. It was pointed out that the sale of bottled liquor is now confined to the retail shops and that these are the main source of supply for the local option districts surrounding the City of Peterborough. In the event of a vote being taken it can be carried by a bare majority.

Dr. W. S. McTavish of the Dominion Alliance was present and reported on the progress of the temperance sentiment throughout the province. The meeting was presided over by the President of the County Association, Mr. H. B. Cowan. Mr. A. B. Cunningham acted as secretary.

PETERBOROUGH BOY WAS IN A TIGHT FIX

Mr. Herbert Johnston Found Himself Between Two Fires During a South American Revolution But Escaped Unhurt

WRITES TO PARENTS

The following item, taken from the "Christian Alliance Weekly" of late date, written by Mr. Crisman, who is Superintendent of the Alliance work in Ecuador, will be of local interest, as the Mr. Johnston mentioned, is Mr. Herbert Johnston, son of Mr. A. J. Johnston, City:

Ecuador, N. S.—Rev. G. H. Crisman writes the following interesting formed you of Ecuador's latest, not has swept over the section in which he and his co-workers are labouring:

"I wonder if the papers have informed you of Ecuador's latest, not revival, but revolution? They have them so often here we thought we knew almost all about them. But this one was different, being at a closer range than any we had ever gone through before. The real revolution is in the province north of us but it has many sympathisers here, and especially in our town. Hence the Government had sent troops here to hold the plaza from the revolutionists that are around through the mountains. These have come in twice (two and three weeks ago) hoping to scare the guard away, and get their rifles, and each time there was a battle right in our streets. The last and most serious lasted almost an hour and the bullets were whizzing pretty thickly all around our house, a few hitting the front corridor. The next morning we found a Mauser bullet on the floor of my room. Brother Johnston, who has rooms about a block from us, found ten holes through the walls and would have been in real danger had he been there at the time. I had gone to Portoviejo, on business, that day, returning at 7.30 p.m., two hours after it was all over, and knew nothing of it till I was near the house and saw our "Stars and Stripes" in the street. I found my wife and chidren almost too scared to tell the story. One young man, a friend, had been killed by a stray bullet through his window, and several others were thus seriously wounded. As most of our town favour the revolution, the soldiers have taken many prisoners with great cruelty and have been so abusive to all the poor people, threatening to cut off goth fingers and ears, to get the jewellery.

Every since this occurrence our house has been quite a "Consulate" for the refugees and every night we have from 25 to 45 sleeping in our rooms and hall. As we have meetings with them it has given us good opportunities to preach to some who otherwise would not come to our house.

"We are still in suspense, not knowing what the outcome may be."

Since the above was written, Mr. Herbert Johnston has sent word to his parents that the trouble appears settled. Mr. Johnston, in his letter, gave the reason of his absence from his room. Desiring a rest from language study he went outside the town for a walk and soon found himself between two fires. The rebels, on the hill top, and the Government forces in the town. His friends will be pleased to know he came through in safety.

Out After The Law Breakers

Fish and Game Overseer Bradshaw and his assistant, Mr. Nicholas Brady, have been patrolling the upper and lower Scugog waters as well as Sturgeon Lake during the past few days in order to ascertain if the law was being evaded. They kept their weather eye open during a thorough patrol of the stretches, and found everything satisfactory. Those who feel inclined to break the law will assuredly fare badly as the officials are determined to punish all evil doers.—Post.

FEWER CHEESE BUT BETTER PRICE AT 1ST MEETING

575 Cheese Sold This Morning, But all the Regular Factories Were Not Represented

PROSPECT FOR SEASON

FIRST CHEESE SALE 1914.
Nnumber cheese sold—575.
Top price—12 1-16c.

FIRST SALE 1913.
Number cheese sold—930.
Top price—11 3-16.

The first meeting of he Peterborough Cheese Board was held this morning when 555 cheese were sold, 200 at 12 1-16c, and the rest of the board at 12c.

The factories boarded as follows:

Warminster	85
Shearer	45
Selwyn	40
Villiers	35
Westwood	40
Myrtle	20
Ormonde	40
Trewern	40
Fleetwood	25
Oakdale	35
Daisy D.	25
Lang	30
Indian River	30
Norwood	50
Killarney	50
Young's Point	25
Total	575

The Buyers and the Bidding.

The buyers present were G. A. Gillespie, of Peterborough; Mr. Morton and Mr. Watkins, of Belleville; Mr. Thompson, representing A. A. Ayer; Mr. Johnston, representing Flavelles, of Lindsay.

Mr. Morton opened at 11¼c, Watkins raised to ¾, Thompson ¾, Gillespie 12-12, Thompson ¾, Johnston 12-12, Morton 12 cents, Johnston 12 1-16c.

Mr. Johnston called Warminster, Shearer, Selwyn, Villiers, Westwood, Myrtle, Ormonde, Trewern, Fleetwood.

Bidding was begun for the balance of the board. Mr. Gillespie offered 11¼c, and the price quickly returned to 12c at which figure Mr. Johnston took the rest of the cheese.

A Falling Off in Quantity.

At the first meeting of the Board last year there were 980 boxes, disposed of at 11 8-16c, showing a falling off in quantity, but almost a cent lower price in 1913. Buyers stated that this morning's figure was a good one for Peterborough, and might be called high. It is not quite as large as the price paid around Belleville, but the slight difference is equalized by freight rates.

Prospect for 1914.

Canada's cheese output last year was 200,000 cheese below the production during the former year, and students of the dairy industry are of the opinion that the decline is going to increase. Milk and cream is being more and more turned into butter and used for ice cream. One man told The Examiner that cream is brought even from Campbellford to Toronto for use in manufacturing ice cream. The whole district is being called upon every year for larger supplies for butter and ice cream, and the production of milk is really decreasing. Many calves are sold for veal, and the country was drained of a large number of cattle last fall. Again, the spring has not been as favourable for growth as was expected, and the general tone does not indicate a heavy output of cheese this year.

NO INCREASE IN CIGARETTES SOLD

Dealers State That the Restriction of the Suicides Not Brought Them Any Extra Business— The Increase Is Not Marked

WHAT SEVERAL SAY

The $40 cigarette license with its alleged confining of sales to a central area has apparently not resulted in larger sales by George Street tobacconists. One of the leading dealers stated that he had not noticed any increase to his cigarette business. His opinion was that the outlying stores did not sell any appreciable quantity to begin with, and the the fee was simply a form of robbery to the dealers who took out the licenses. Men and boys buy tobacco and papers and roll their own cigarettes, and they can get both these necessaries at the corner stores.

Another dealer said he had noticed a little livelier demand for cigarettes, but he did not regard it as keen enough to leave much profit after the $40 had been made up.

HALF YEARLY STATEMENT OF BANK OF MONTREAL IS A STRONG ONE

What is likely to prove the most important statement issued recently is the semi-annual report of the Bank of Montreal, issued to-day.

In banking circles it is generally admitted that British and International banking houses look to the Bank of Montreal statement as being an important index of Canada's position, and as the statement for the half year ending April 30th is one of the strongest ever issued, it is sure to be of the greatest benefit to Canada, more particularly in London and foreign investment fields.

Owing to the changes which have been made in the Bank Act, which called for certain changes in the form of presenting the statement, a comparison of all accounts is not possible, but the statement as submitted during the past half year has been centered principally on keeping the position of the bank so strong that it would be able to cope with any possible developments that might arise throughout the world.

The outstanding features of the statement are the unusually large per centages of liquidassets to liabilities to the public, and the substantial increases made in total assets and deposits.

The general statement sohws that assets have reached the high level of $262,956,419, as compared with $254,455,044.83 at the end of the corresponding periodast year, an increase of $8,521,375.

The gain in total deposits amounted to $4,430,146.86. Of this amount deposits not bearing interest represented a total of $50,457,523.33, as compared with $45,509,747.90 last year, an increase of $4,887,775.43. Deposits bearing interest at the end of April stood at $157,732,530.88, as compared with $152,598,207.75, a decrease of $3,143,443.13. The deposits made by and baalnces due to other banks amounted to $3,892,449.16, bringing the total deposits up to $220,082,483.39, as compared with $215,652,336.46 at the end of the corresponding period of last year, a gain as indicated above, of close to four and a half million dollars.

The part of the statement that will likely be most appreciated by the financial community generally is that which deals with the liquid position in which the bank has maintained its assets. At the end of April the liquid assets reached a total of $130,579,557.72, as compared with $120,513,031.44, and this was the equivalent of the unusual percentage of 60.67 per cent. of the total liabilities to the public. The actual cash on hand was equivalent to 10.45 per cent of liabilities. The current loans amounted to $117,114,495.76 as against $120,719,333.42 at the end of April last year.

The profit and loss account shows a balance to be carried forward of $1,096,908.40. The statement with comparisons with the previous year, is as follows:

	Oct. 31, 1913	Oct. 31, 1912
Balance profit and loss b/f forward from previous year	$933,864.94	$1,005,271.69
Profits for half year after deducting charges of management and making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts ..	1,299,646.46	1,232,709.66
	$2,233,511.35	$2,237,981.35
Deduct two quarterly dividends of 2½ p.c. on $400,000 each: a bonus of 1 p.c. of $400,000	800,000.00	800,000.00
	$1,433,511.35	$1,437,981.35
Provision for Bank Premises	336,603.00	350,000.00
Balance of profit and loss carried forward	$1,096,908.35	$1,087,981.35

LINDSAY MAN WAS KILLED

Met Death in Level Crossing Accident Less Than a Mile East of Lindsay This Morning

HORSE WAS KILLED

Josh Wellington, of Lindsay, was fatally injured about 8 o'clock this morning, about half a mile from his home on the outskirts of that town, when he was run down by the Grand Trunk train. One of the horses he was driving was also killed, and the outfit he was in charge of at the time was demolished.

The accident occurred less than a mile East of Lindsay this morning. It seems that Wellington was driving north from his home along the first cross road this side of Lindsay, and did not notice the approaching train. He drove onto the tracks at the crossing, and before the engineer could stop the train, the engine struck the outfit between the horses and the waggon. One horse was instantly killed, the other, only slightly hurt, bolted north along the road. Wellington was thrown some distance and received injuries that resulted in his death about half an hour later.

The train was stopped and the train crew got the injured man into one of the cars. He was taken to Lindsay where G.T.R. Surgeon White attended him, and it was found that he had sustained a compound fracture of the right leg, a fracture of the skull and a bad cut in his chin. He died a short time after his arrival at the Lindsay station.

Wellington was about fifty years of age and unmarried. The track at Brown's Crossing where the accident occurred, is open for a great distance on either side of the crossing, and it is a mystery to all who know the place, to know what circumstances prevented the dead man from seeing the approaching train, or how he could have driven on to the tracks when the train was so close. Conductor C. Adams and Engineer W. Chambers were in charge of the flyer which leaves Peterborough about 7:10 a.m.

Conservatives Will Support Temperance Man

Edmund Zeller Chosen as Candidate By South Huron Liberals

Special Wire to The Examiner:

HENSALL, Ont., May 20 — Edmund Zeller, proprietor of the Zurich Herald, was the unanimous choice of the South Huron Liberals at a rousing convention heldhere to-day. He declared himself absolutely and heartily in line in every way with the banish-the-bar policy of Leader Rowell. This assures him the support of scores of Conservatives who have pledged themselves to support the temperance candidate, C. H. Eilber of Crediton, the present member, is not likely to accept the nomination again as he is greatly alarmed over the hornets' nest that Hon. W. J. Hanna's recent breach of faith has stirred up in the Riding, and the organization which the temperance workers are prepared to direct against him. It is stated here that he will likely resign shortly to accept an important position in the Insurance Department at Ottawa.

PROBABILITIES.

Moderate southwest winds, fine and warm. Thursday, moderate winds, a fair warm day, showers at night.

WOMEN'S COUNCIL CENSURE THE POLICE COMMISSIONERS

COMMITTEE AWARDS CONTRACT FOR FIRE HOSE

500 Feet Will be Purchased From the Dunlop Rubber Company— Tenders For Uniforms

FIRE ALARM SYSTEM

The Fire, Water and Light Committee met last night, there being present Alds. Green (Chairman), Duffus, Dobbin, Stration, Anderson and Saunders. The most important items of business were the tenders awarded for the fire hose and firemen's uniforms.

A report was received from the Chairman and Chief Howard, who had been authorized to place two new fire alarm boxes. They reported that they had decided on the corners of Charlotte and Park Streets, and Lock and Princess streets. These locations were approved of by the Committee.

Chief Howard reported that in answering a fire alarm call on May 7th, Thomas Doody had his ankle badly sprained. There was no provision in the by-laws governing the fire hall for paying disabled firemen, so that the Chief asked for instructions in the matter.

Ald. Anderson—"I don't think we had better go very far in this matter."

Ald. Duffus—"Well, he won't be 'docked' anything with my consent."

Ad. Saunders—"Nor with mine."

It was moved by Ad. Stratton, and seconded by Ald. Saunders, that Thomas Doody be paid full salary during the time he was unable to attend to his duties, and that as soon as he is able to do inside duty he be asked to report.—Carried.

Mr. Anderson—"Oh, I thought it was another man who I had seen on the street when I said we hadn't better do anything."

A letter was to hand from Chief Howard, saying that the removal of the Bell Telephone poles from certain parts of George Street had resulted in the fire alarm wires, which were also on these poles, being put out of commission. He had informed Ald. Green and Mayor Buller of this and they made arrangements to use a vacant Machine Telephone duct. The fire alarm wires were put in this vacant duct, saving miles of wire. The expense in removing the wire and replacing it would be $600. The Chief asked that provision be made to meet this expense.

Ald. Green—"It was a case of having to act. The fire alarm service dare not be allowed to remain out of commission. I told Mayor Buller that we had not a farthing to pay this with, and that the Council would have to shoulder the burden."

Ald. Duffus—"I would suggest that the letter be placed on the Council's file."

Ald. Dobbin— "That's like leaving our children at somebody else's doorstep."

It was moved by Ald. Anderson, seconded by Ad. Dobbin, that the action of the Mayor and Chairman be approved.—Carried.

The tenders for the 500 feet of fire hose, which the Committee propose to buy this year, were opened at last night's meeting. Tenders were received from the Gutta Percha Rubber Co., the B. F. Gooderich Co., the Dunlop Tire and Rubber Co. and the Goodyear Rubber Co.

Messrs. Tait and Young, representing the Gutta Percha Rubber Company, and the Dunlop Rubber Company, respectively, waited upon the Committee to demonstrate the advantages of the hose of the companies they represented.

Chief Howard, when asked for an opinion, said that the Paragon hose, sold by the Gutta Percha Company, was the best. They had had some of it for 18 years in the local department and it was still in use.

Ald. Duffus—"Last year we gave it all to the Paragon Rubber Company, and we need the $50 badly."

Ald. Stratton had previously pointed out that the Imperial hose of the Dunlop Rubber Company was $50 cheaper per 500 feet than the Paragon brand of the Gutta Percha Company.

On the motion of Messrs. Stratton and Anderson, the tender of the Dunlop Rubber Company, at $1 per foot, was accepted.

The tenders for the firemen's uniforms, including 17 coats and vests, and 34 pairs of trousers, Chief's uniform and overcoat, and one overcoat for an extra fireman, were opened.

Tenders were received as follows:
Geo. Ball, $548.
T. L. Anderson, $575.
George Evans, $575.
Reid Brothers, $416.

The tender of Reid Bros. did not provide that the uniforms be made in the City, as specified in the requirements, and lacked two overcoats of what was needed. Therefore it was not considered and the next lowest tender, that of George Ball, of $548, was accepted, on the motion of Alds. Dobbin and Anderson.

By a Vote of 47 to 15 a Resolution is Passed in Regard to the Appointment of Police Matron

BOQUETS FOR CHAIRMAN

After considerable discussion, and by a vote of 47 to 15, the Local Council of Women yesterday passed a resolution of censure on the Police Commissioners for their action in regard to the appointment of a police matron. Mrs. J. C. Davidson presided. The resolution was as follows:

WHEREAS, the Police Commissioners at last have taken action on the petition of the Woman's Council asking for the appointment of a woman to the police force with full police powers, by appointing a police matron without salary, this local Woman's Council expresses its very deep regret at the inadequacy of the action taken to meet the situation, as it exists in our City, and expresses its sense of humiliation that the City should be put in the position of imposing heavy duties upon anybody for only the expenses entailed in the discharge of the duties imposed.

This Council also expresses its sense of indignation at the language used by the chairman of the Police Commission in his address published broadcast. Among other indignities we are charged with acting illegally in petitioning a body of commissioners (of whom one member is a County Judge) when the Commission itself fixed the date and place for receiving representatives of the Woman's Council in the full knowledge that a petition would be presented and when the Commissioners themselves had invited Adjutant McElhiney to be present and speak on the same subject during the same session. The illegality would seem to have consisted in the fact that the views presented by the Woman's Council were not those of the chairman of the Police Commission and not in the fact that views on the subject of police protection were presented.

The Women's Council regrets that not one of the cases cited in their address was investigated, though the names of the parties are still available. Every case cited in the address occurred after April 1913, though the chairman of the Police Commission publishes abroad the statement that the only case investigated by him occurred five years ago. Had the chairman of the Police Commission asked the petitioners for the simplest facts in the cases definitely presented in the address delivered by our deputation, or even given them credit for ordinary intelligence and sincerity, he would have saved himself and the Women's Council the injustice of his statement. Moreover, the said chairman charges some one—he apparently lacks courage or fairness to name the individual—with "brazen falsehood."

If such words were intended to apply to statements made by members of the deputation in presenting their side of the argument, we would assure the public that the chairman of the Police Commission is as wide of the truth as in the cases he supposedly investigated.

The Women's Council deeply deplores the fact that where it had looked for and expected sympathy, encouragement and co-operation, it as met with gross misrepresentation, scolding and antagonism.

The Women's Council, however, does not intend to cease from its efforts to improve conditions admitted on every side to be serious, and invites the earnest co-operation of all those interested in the moral welfare of the City to this end.

Reports were received from conveners of the different committees. The date of the Baby Contest and Public Welfare was decided on. The contest will be held the last week in September.

Mrs. Armstrong of Belleville, gave a very interesting address on supervised play grounds.

LABOUR MEN ARE INCENSED

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., May 20.— Labourites remain bitterly incensed with the government over Houlton's candidate in Northeast Derbyshire. Sixteen labour members abstained from voting for the Welsh bill yesterday. To-day's Ipswich election result is very uncertain. The Unionists express confidence of winning the seat. Labour candidates are reported as advising people to vote Tory if they do not wish to support a labour man. This contest again makes prominent the serious drain on progressive forces owing to inability of Liberal and Labour parties to agree on allocations of seats. The Labour party have apparently little hope of winning. It is reported that Col. Sealy may be appointed Chief Commissioner of the Metropolitan police.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

WEDNESDAY, MAY 20, 1914

TEMPERANCE AND PARTY.

"I'm a dyed-in-the-wool Conservative, but I've made up my mind to cut loose from the party on this temperance issue." These words and sentiments seemed to be the dominant note of the convention of the County of Peterborough Temperance Association at its meeting in the Public Library yesterday. It expresses the only spirit that will make possible any considerable advance, any definite and worth-while advance, towards provincial prohibition and the abolition of the bar. Its expression, however, will be useless unless the spirit is carried into action and finds expression in the ballot. Theoretically this was the spirit of the convention of yesterday, and it is a hopeful sign for the friends of temperance reform. But there is a but. St. Peter was vainglorously loyal to his Master, in words—he wouldn't be found wanting, but when adherence to his loyalty involved risk he denied his Master. If St. Peter should prove to be a prototype of many temperance people, who talk great swelling words of valour and loyalty to temperance principles, but when confronted with the risk of party odium, deny the cause, the outlook is not so promising. In this country fidelity to party is carried to extremes; and it seems that a man in Parliament who obeys his conscience to the extent of acting against—speaking and voting—his party considerations to give any consideration of his party. And on the temperance issue in Ontario there will have to be a good deal of independence of party consideration, to give any considerable impulse to advanced legislation in the interests of temperance. The line between the two great parties is pretty sharply defined. One is definitely committee by leadership to an advanced temperance platform; the other party, according to many members of that party, is definitely committed to paltering with duty in the interests of the liquor traffic, some even going so far as to declare that an alliance, defensive, if not offensive, exists between the party and the friends of the traffic. Under such circumstances loyalty to party, or rather subservience to party, by Conservatives will be the stumbling-block to be dreaded. And Liberals will have to be more loyal to their temperance principles and more loyal to their party; more anxious for the good of their country as involved in removing the evils that come from the free access to strong drink and the practice of intemperance in its use.

The party spirit can be made the most effective friend of the "ardent spirit." Under the most favourable conditions; with the strongest resolution, its suppression is a very difficult thing. A temperance man who is also a strong party man, can sympathize with the confirmed tippler; indulgence of the appetite for strong drink is no harder to overcome than the impulse to voting party. In this view the temperance man, who may be confronted with the probability—and even certainty, if he does his duty to his temperance principles—of voting against his party, should have the path to apostacy from his temperance principles made as difficult as possible.

A loop hole of escape should not be provided, as there appears to have been done in the strong resolution adopted at the meeting yesterday. But the resolution had a "joker" in it—"should only one temperance candidate be nominated in each riding, we shall feel in honour bound to support him, provided his record is acceptable to the temperance interests." Here is an opening for the extreme party man to crawl through. It was taken advantage of in a Middlesex bye-election where the temperance issue was given a black-eye and its candidate defeated because "his record was not acceptable to the temperance" elector, who was glad to have an excuse for not voting against his party. If we thus rigidly censor all our Parliamentary representatives we shall have no excuse for voting against any evil. Members of Parliament vote for, and help pass moral and other measures, whose principles they do not live up to in their private lives. We have Scriptural warrant for electing men whose lives are not quite in accord with the principles they are pledged to support—"if ye then, being evil know how to give good gifts to your children." Our blessed Lord recognized the fact that evil men were not debarred from doing specific good. To debar and vote against a candidate pledged to abolish the bar because he is not at all points a saint, puts an insurmountable obstacle in the way of abolition of the bar by legislation. To demand a fast and hard certificate of moral character, would be to depopulate Parliament. There are millions of good men fit for public trust, who are not total abstainers; indeed there are thousands of men who are not total abstainers, and even some drunkards who vote for local option; and local option gains much of its favour from the fact that an elector does not have to vote against his party in voting for his convictions. If anything is going to defeat the crusade for abolishing the bar it will be the party spirit over-bearing the demands of principle, and the easier we make it for men to evade their duty in this regard, the more difficult we make the triumph of advanced temperance legislation.

Calls Mackenzie And Mann Bucaneers But "Votes Right"

Mr Burnham Praises Bolters, Nickle & Bennett For Their Independence But Comes to Heel Under Party Whip And Votes for the 45 Million C.N.R. "Hold-Up"

The following report in the Globe of Mr. Burnham's bunkum speech on the C.N.R. 45 million deal is reproduced not for the intrinsic merit of the performance, but as a characteristic sample of the rudderless oratorical vapourings of "our member." Anybody that didn't know Mr. Burnham would expect that his vote would have some consistent relation to his vote, which was the opposite of his speech. The Globe report reads:

"I cannot say I like the idea of these two financial buccaneers, with handles to their names to distinguish them from ordinary people, backing the Government up as they wish," declared Mr. J. H. Burnham, who continued the Parliamentary debate on the Mackenzie, Mann & Lash deal this morning.

Mr. Burnham's speech was further evidence of the unwilling obedience of Government supporters to the party whip on this issue. Following upon declarations of Mr. H. B. Ames in the speech in which he said the promoters had been found guilty but were "being let out on suspended sentence," the tone of the Peterborough member's remarks this morning was especially significant. He complimented Messrs. Bennett and Nickle on their independence of thought, and on their admirable handling of their side of the case, "but," said Mr. Burnham, "under the system of party government individual views must often run counter to the views of the majority. It is necessary to fall in line at some time or another."

But He Condones the Deal.

Mr. Burnham condoned the deal because "it seems the only thing in sight." But he promised a "revolution" if Mackenzie & Mann came back again to Parliament for any further raids.

"They have been given a good deal of rope," he declared, "and if they get any more I hope it is for the express purpose of having them hang themselves. If they do there will be no general regret."

Mr. Burnham announced his conviction that Mackenzie & Mann should have been made to exhaust their own resources to save the railway. He hoped, if it came to foreclosure, the Government would "put the screws on tight."

He did not think that public ownership of the system would be wise at the present juncture, but undoubtedly the day would come when the country would have to take over "all the means of transportation." He wanted to know if Mackenzie & Mann would put on their title in further security for the bond guarantee.

The Globe in editorial comment says:

The picturesque Tory member for Peterborough, Mr. J. H. Burnham, says that in guaranteeing $45,000,000 of C. N.R. bonds Mr. Borden is giving Mackenzie & Mann "a little more rope." He added that should they come back again next year there would be a riot, perhaps a revolution, if there was not foreclosure. Mr. Burnham, it is greatly to be feared, was just talking—an amusement in which he often indulges. Mr. Borden has no intention of letting Mackenzie & Mann hang themselves. The $45,000,000 is not a little more rope. It is a great chain of gold binding the fortunes of the Conservative party and Mackenzie & Mann together. The tie will not be dissolved by next year's application, which Sir Wilfrid Laurier has shown to be well nigh inevitable.

Since Mr. Borden came into power the annual haul has steadily increased. In 9112 it was $6,000,000 in cash and $3,500,00 in guarantee bonds. In 1913 it was $16,500,000 in cash. In 1914 it is to be $45,000,00 in bond guarantees. When one gets the hang of milking a cow and the cow is entirely docile, the milking process is apt to be continued till the cow goes dry. Mr. Burnham's idea that Mr. Borden is just luring Mackenzie & Mann on is too absurd to be taken seriously by anyone. Long after Mr. Burnham has ceased to be a member for Peterborough the people of Canada will have to pay for his folly and that of the other thick-and-thin supporters of the Government who have swallowed their principles that they may stay with their party.

Forty-Five Million Dollars Grab For Mackenzie & Mann

Government Issued "Denials" While the Details of the "Loot" Were Being Worked out and Government Supporters Hoodwinked into Acquiescence

Several months ago when it was first stated in Canadian newspapers that further aid was to be given the Canadian Northern by the Borden Government, a carefully worded "denial" was issued by Hon. W. T. White, the Finance Minister. It was calculated to give the impression to the people that there was no truth whatever in the newspaper report while, as a matter of fact it left a loop-hole of which Mr. White could avail himself to escape the charge of having deliberately stated what was not true. Apparently it was intended to mislead the people, to lull them into quiescence, so that no public watchfulness or protests would interfere with the negotiations between the Government and Mackenzie and Mann.

A little later, Government newspapers published "inspired" despatches from Ottawa giving both Premier Borden and Mr. White as authority for the statement that no aid was to be given the two millionaire railway magnates. In an article sent out from the Government press bureau in March a reference was made to the report that a bond guarantee of approximately $20,000,000 was to be given by the Cabinet and concerning the rumour this comment was made: "The Prime Minister himself has taken notice of that statement in the Laurier press and has pronounced it 'entirely inaccurate and unfounded.'"

As if not content with such "denials" as these Premier Borden himself took occasion in the Commons to describe as a "tissue of falsehoods from beginning to end" a newspaper article which declared that arrangements for further assistance for the Canadian Northern had been made between the Ministry and Mackenzie and Mann.

And then a few days ago Premier Borden instructed legislation in the Commons to guarantee the bonds of the Canadian Northern by the huge amount of $45,000,000

The "denials" which had been given have been proved untrustworthy. The people who had accepted the Government statements that no loan or guarantee was to be given Mackenzie and Mann know now that Canada's credit is to be pledged for another $45,000,000 for the benefit of two railway owners.

Why the "denials" were issued by the Government is fair subject for conjecture. The only reason seems to have been that suggested above—that it was desired to keep the people quiescent until the deal between the Ministers and the railway magnates was worked out in all its details.

The Government was determined that its railway friends should have the assistance they desired at public expense. But the Ministers remembered the storm of protest aroused by their actions of a year ago in making a gift of nearly 16,000,000 to Mackenzie and Mann from the public treasury. Apparently, therefore, they determined to keep the people in the dark until the present deal was virtually completed and thus to avoid the possibility of the game being spoiled by pressure brought to bear upon Conservative members by their constituents.

From start to finish it has been a game for Mackenzie and Mann.

The scheme was laid months ago. "Denials" misled the people and quieted their protests while the details were put in shape.

The scheme has been carried almost to its completion. In a few days an obedient Government majority will carry through the deal by their votes in the Commons.

It has been a game for the benefit of Mackenzie and Mann, who helped Mr. Borden and his colleagues in the 1911 election and Mackenzie and Mann are winning.

Among the 20,000,000 men in the United States Dr. Talcott Williams finds that 240,000 are graduates of colleges—a little over 1 per cent. But "the nation's people," which is not a complete census of the best men, has the best we have, college graduates number one-half of them included.

Participating versus Non-Participating Life Policies Again

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO a Publisher of this City at age 43 took out a Ten Pay 15 year Endowment Policy of $2000, No 81226 in The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada paying therefore an annual premium of $187.20.

The Non-Participating Premium would have been $170.40.

The extra paid for profits per year (for 10 years only was $16.80.

On the 1st of May 1914 the above Policy matured and he received in cash $2620.25.

Had this man taken a Non-Participating Policy he would have saved $168.00 extra in premiums paid for profits during the ten years but he would have lost $620.25 at maturity of Policy as he would have received only $2000.00 instead of $2620.25 as he did.

Where is there a man that would not like to invest money at such a rate and that too in the Largest and Strongest Life Insurance Company in the British Empire?

You are invited to call and investigate.

Do You Know How To Engineer A Meal?

There will be A SERIES OF LECTURES given in the TURNBULL STORE on the subject of "Kitchen Engineering," to which the Ladies of Peterboro' are invited

The Gurney Foundry Co., Toronto, Canada's largest makers of Gas Stoves, have made a study of the subject of cooking a meal in such order that the courses are ready as wanted. That is to say, you will hear at these lectures how to engineer a meal so that the soup, for instance, will be ready first; then the roast; then the other courses, and dessert.

The modern way to cook, is by Gas. A Gas Range is lighted in a moment; the fire is ready for use instantly. There is no coal or ashes to carry. No waste fuel; as soon as you are through with the fire, turn it out. You don't light the WHOLE stove if you only require to heat an iron, or make a pot of tea. And in order to make

GAS COOKING

Even more efficient and satisfactory, the Gurney Foundry Co. have prepared a course in ENGINEERING a Meal. These Lectures will be brief, interesting talks on this subject.

Every housewife who appreciates how satisfactory it would be to know how to go about the preparation of a meal with the certainty of its being a sure success, should hear these talks. They will be held in the afternoons from four to six o'clock, and on two evenings at quarter past eight. In the afternoon, tea will be served with our compliments. This is an interesting, profitable way to spend a half hour.

We give below the dates and hours at which these Lectures will be held:

VICTORY FOR VILLA REPORTED

It is Reported That Huerta's Forces Have Been Signally Defeated

Special Wire to The Examiner:

JUAREZ, MEXICO, May 20. — It is believed here that General Villa has been successful and has driven Huerta's troops from Saltillo with loss that indicates the most terrific battle of present revolution. Only the faintest details have reached here as Villa has cut all the wires behind him, except one which he controls himself. Saltillo was one of Huerta's best fortified posts. If this has gone to the rebels Huerta's position is precarious.

INSPECTOR'S OPINION OF POLICE-WOMEN

A recent issue of the Canadian Police Bulletin contains the following:

A Scotland Yard police inspector, who frequently makes trips to this side of the Atlantic, was interviewed on the use made of women by the most renowned police and detective force in the world.

"The Criminal Investigation Department," said the inspector, "employs only two women, whose sole duty is to keep in touch with and report on women convicts who are on ticket of leave. Another woman has been retained by Scotland Yard in connection with the new white slave regulations, but she is called only when some girl's story of betrayal or abduction cannot be told to a man. She is, in fact, more of a mother confessor than a detective. After a long experience in dealing with the crime of the world we do not find women effective."

Resumption Of Political Activities Names Several Conservatives as Likely Candidates For The Next Election

While the general public is wondering whether the Province is on the brink of an election or whether the Government is merely bluffing, there are signs of activity among the local Conservatives that might be deemed significant. Monday, June 1, has been chosen for the convention of the Liberal-Conservative Association of West Peterborough, when a candidate will likely be selected for the approaching provincial elections. Men about town, in speaking of the prospective choice of the party at this convention, mention the names of a number of local men to one of whom the honour of bearing the Conservative standard will be given. The present member, Mr. A. E. Peck, is given chief prominence, but it is rumoured that he may not wish to go through another campaign. It has been generally stated that if Mr. Peck will accept the nomination he will be practically unopposed. Mayor Buller has been an active worker in the Peterborough Conservative Association, is well known in the City, and his name has reached the outer sections of the riding, but he is not so generally well known as the present member. The City's first citizen would undoubtedly put up a strenuous fight if he were chosen, and providing a strong Liberal candidate was brought out. Mayor Buller trotted out a hard-working group of supporters last December, when the mayoralty fight was on, and it was then remarked that the detailed work of approaching the electors and getting out votes showed a thorough organization. This experience would be decidedly useful to the Mayor, who would also be strengthened in the next struggle by the entire forces of the party.

Mr. R. J. Soden's name is also mentioned in connection with the convention, and it is understood that he would, if nominated, accept the responsibility. He is an able speaker, a student of municipal and legislative activities, is widey known in Peterborough and occupies a prominent position in the Liberal-Conservative Association. Mr. W. G. Howden, Reeve of Monaghan, is also seriously mentioned as a possible candidate. He is an active Conservative, would be particularly strong in the Townships and would certainly make a good showing in the City. These are the principal Conservatives mentioned in connection with the coming convention, but it is likely that much depends upon whether Mr. Peck wishes to again be a candidate. In any event there are political stirrings by day and by night, and apparently the busy part of the summer is to be enlivened with a political campaign.

It is really unsatisfactory to record mere political gossip, but it often happens that there is considerable substance in street talk. This will scarcely apply to the conjecture of a man who remarked that he would not be surprised to see Mayor Buller and ex-Ald. Gillespie the candidates in the next Provincial election. Should these be the actual eventuality it will surprise many who expect to see Mr. Peck out again.

CONSUME 8,000 TONS OF CAFFEINE

Recent investigation has shown that (with the exception of the English) Americans are the greatest consumers of caffeine in the word. Most of it we take in the form of tea and coffee.

Caffeine is an alkaloid of coffee. It is the stimulating agent in the beverage made from that berry. But it is also the stimulating ingredient of tea.

The per capita consumption of coffee in the United States is six and a quarter pounds annually. In England it is only about one pound But the English are much greater tea drinkers than ourselves, consuming over five and a quarter pounds of the herb per annum, whereas we use less than two and a quarter pounds.

Strange though it may seem, tea leaves contain much more caffeine than does coffee. Coffee beans rarely have more than one and a quarter per cent. of caffeine (usually less), whereas ordinary tea, as one buys it at the corner grocery, contains three and third per cent. of caffeine.

The younger the tea leaves the higher the percentage of caffeine in them. In the youngest leaves it runs up to nearly five per cent. Inasmuch as the small, new leaves make the best tea, it follows that the higher price you pay for the herb the more caffeine you get per pound.

Our per capita consumption of the drug caffeine, taken in the form of coffee, is 378 grains per annum. Taken in the form of tea, it is 468 grains. This makes a total of 1,940 grains of caffeine per annum for every man, woman and child in coffee and tea alone. There are 7,000 grains in a pound avoirdupois. Thus every American consumes one-seventh of a pound. Estimating the nation's population at slightly more than 100,000,000, this makes a total annual consumption of nearly 15,000,000 pounds chocolate quells the craving for alcohol to some extent, and the chocolate habit which is harmless enough, may itself be not easy to leave off.

The kola nut of South Africa is rich in caffeine. So, likewise, are two South American plants, the "yerba mate," which furnishes a widely-used kind of tea, and the "guarana" of tropical Brazil. The latter is a climbing vine, and its caffeine is contained not only in the leaves and young shoots, which are dried for use, but also in the seeds, which are crushed, roasted, rubbed to a paste with water and dried.

These, it is believed, are the only plants in the world that contain caffeine. All of them have been known and utilized for many generations—which affords an interesting illustration of man's cleverness in discovering things useful to him of caffeine, or almost 8,000 tons.

England's annual consumption of caffeine is 1,180 grains. Holland comes third with 1,002 grains. France is next, with 637 grains; then Germany, 508 grains; Switzerland, 505 grains, and Russia, 246 grains.

This reckoning, however, includes only coffee and tea. Most people will be surprised to learn that we consume a good deal of caffeine in the form of chocolate and cocoa. The chocoate bean is not nearly so rich in caffeine as the coffee bean, but it contains a considerable percentage of the drug. We eat and drink in this country immense quantities of chocolate and cocoa—the latter being simply chocolate that has been deprived of most of its fat.

The presence of caffeine helps explain why chocolate is so useful as a stimulant. It is, of course, one of the most highly concentrated of foodsand all foods are stimulating. But the caffeine it contains doubtless helps a lot. Persons who are trying to get rid of the liquor habit find that

CONFUSION IN RIECHSTAG

Special Wire to The Examiner:

BERLIN, Germany, May 20.—Amid scenes of great confusion the Reichstag to-day adjourned, just as the military marched up to the building to secure order. The trouble started because the Socialist members remained seated during the time-honoured "Hoch der Kaiser." The Government members rebuked them for discourtesy to the Emperor, and the Socialists replied in vigorously democratic speeches. The result was several fist fights in the middle of the chamber.

NOTES AND GLEANINGS

That oxygen was wrongly named, and is not a generator of acids, has been the contention of scientists since Lavoisier named the gas in 1777. J. Priestly had called it "dephlogisticated air," in 1775, and K. W. Scheele had rediscovered it in 1775 as "empyreal air." Now Henry E. Armstrong, F.R.S., vindicates Lavoisier's name for it in the Proceedings of the Royal Society of April 28:

No more significant term has ever been devised, as it is undeniable that oxygen is the acidifying principle, par excellence, whether or no all acids contain oxygen. Though many oxides are basic substances, the metals in them being sufficiently positive to overmaster the negative properties of the oxygen, it is true generally that the more highly oxygenated they are the less they are basic, and that, in not a few cases, the addition of oxygen to basic oxides involves ultimately their conversion into acidic oxides.

ORGAN RECITAL AT THE KNOX CHURCH

Many of the City's music lovers attended the organ recital at Knox Church, last night. In appearance this new pipe organ is the epitome of good taste, and the congregation of Knox Church owe the special committee a debt of gratitude upon their selection. The gold-tinted pipes are arranged with graceful symmetry and the pleasing effect is enhanced by the dark finished oak expanse of appropriately ornate woodwork. In itself the organ, delights both the senses of hearing and seeing, and in a manner that concentrates upon, rather than detracts from, its real purpose. There is a harmony between the organ's outward form and finish, and its musical richness and through this blending the appeal of the music is greatly heightened. The charm of the appearance of the instrument lies in the very simplicity of the two tones, the gold of the pipes above and the dull finished oak below. The vesture of the organ is most appropriate to its musical personality; the sense of sight and good taste are satisfied and quiescent in readiness for and in harmony with the music expected.

Dr. Norman Anderson of Toronto demonstrated the possibilities of the instrument, last night, and words avail but little to describe its musical beauties. It is sufficient to add to what has already been said that Knox Church presents a completeness that is primarily felt by the mere presence of the organ, but which will be principally experienced in the inspiration which the instrument will lend to the services.

Among Dr. Anderson's numbers were several representing a general theme, which the organ so beautifully expresses.

They were a "Reverie" by Chester Macdougall, the Schumann favourite, the "Cavatina Meditation" by Sturges and 'Evensong" by Johnston, the last being exceptionally exemplary of the mood awakened. His other numbers, while not particularly heavy, possessed considerable brilliancy, the second motif in the "Funeral March" and "Seraphic Song" being particularly fine. In Dethier's descriptive "Christmas" Dr. Anderson showed fine pedal proficiency. This number makes a pronounced demand upon the pedal organ, and Dr. Anderson's skill in this department was generally remarked.

Mr. W. S. Hamilton, of Toronto, possesses a sweet tenor which he displayed to advantage in "The Lost Chord," a selection from "The Messiah." "Every Valley Shall be Exalted," another part from "The Creation," and "The Soft, Southern Breeze," from Rebekah. This latter number was sung in Peterborough recently and is a beautiful aria. "The Land O' the Leal" was splendidly rendered.

The Choir, under the direction of Mr. G. Kenyon, displayed its power in the "Hallelujah Chorus". It was nicely balanced and sung with confidence.

It may be simply reiteration to remark upon the work of the Organ Committee of Knox Church, but they have given the congregation a beautiful instrument that not only lends a quiet distinction to the interior, but also by what might be termed an association of ideas, combines in a most effective manner its own appearance and musical utility.

The programme last night was as follows:

Overture in E Flat ..... Faulkes
Reverie ..... Chester Macdougall

DISTRICT MEETING IS IN PROGRESS

At George Street Methodist Church To-day—Morning and Afternoon Sessions

The district meeting of the Methodist Church of Peterborough district met this morning in the George Street Church, the following ministerial delegates being present: The Rev. R. G. Peever, B. A., John G. Lewis, C. E. Cragg, John N. Clarry, Geo. Brown, W. H. Buckler, John R. Butler, W. F. Wicket, Wm. Johnston, Milton L. Huston, P. H. Neville and M. E. Wilson. The morning session was for ministerial delegates only.

The examination of ministerial character was held, all the brethren being found blameless in character.

The young men who have been attending Victoria University, namely A. C. Hie, W. C. Parsons and Gladstone McGee, were recommended to be returned to the University for the coming year.

A general discussion tending to the improvement of the temporal and spiritual welfare of the district was also entered into.

This afternoon the general session in which the laymen are also represented is being held. Reports are being received from the various delegates as to the financial and other condition of the churches in the district. This afternoon the delegates to the conference in Napanee and representatives to the various committees will be elected.

PEACE MEDIATORS ARE IN SESSION AT THE FALLS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NIAGARA FALLS, ONT., May 20. —At 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Clifton House commenced the peace conference which will write history for the whole North American continent, with special interest to the United States and Mexico. At that hour the three mediators from South American Republics met with representatives of the United States and Mexican governments to arrange the preliminaries for the opening. There were formal introductions between all parties, followed by a welcome to Canada, offered by Sir Joseph Pope, the Under Secretary of State, and Hon. Martin Burrell and Hon. Senator Lougheed, representing the Canadian Government.

INCREASE IN STATISTICS

TORONTO, May 20.—Statistics published to-day by Superintendent Rogers of the Provincial Police, shows an increase to 279 cases handled and 186 more convictions during the last six months throughout the province, than for the same period last year.

New Safety Device Makes A Big Advance In Railway Operations

By order of the President, Mr. E J. Chamberlin, the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific railways are building into each of their passenger cars a new safety device. This is declared by experts to represent the most notable advantage that has been made in car construction in modern times. It will make the telescoping of cars in accidents practically impossible as it holds the body of the coach to the truck in such a manner that the two cannot become detached by sudden shock.

The detachment of the super-structure from the heavy steel truck and the consequent telescoping has been responsible in the past for most of the injuries to passengers in railway accidents. The Grand Trunk has enjoyed an enviable reputation for its safe carriage of passengers, and the officers of the Company believe that with the introduction of this latest improvement, combined with the reinforcing of the vestibules of the passenger coaches which has been going on for some time past, along with the provision of a high tension buffing device in the platforms to assist in absorbing sudden shock, there will be a still further dimunition in the small percentage of travellers hurt. In adopting this new device it has been the object of the railway to provide for the travelling public the very greatest assurance of safety that could be obtained by mechanical ingenuity.

Hithorto the only means provided to prevent the body of the car from moving off the trucks has been the ordinary two-inch king pin. But with fast moving trains and the constant increase in the dead weight of passenger coaches some stronger medium of adjustment between truck and body was found to be necessary. After considerable investigation the Car Department presented to Mr. Chamberlin, for his approval, a device that appears to have solved the problem of preventing separation of body and truck. This device is not at all intricate, indeed, simplicity and strength are the outstanding features of its construction. Two large forged steel keys pass through the centre plate of the car locking together the bolsters of truck and body by heavy flanges at top and bottom. These two keys are separated and spread apart by the insertion of the ordinary king pin. Although simple in design this interlocking apparatus holds the body of the car down to the heavy steel underframe in a tenacious fashion resisting the heaviest of shocks.

With this device in use the meeting of two trains would in all probability be attended by little injury to passengers. The heavy shock or impact in collision is met by the heavy steel underframe of modern cars, assisted by the buffing devices in operation. The trucks, even in the most severe collisions, generally remain, on near the tracks in their ordinary position. They are anchored down by their great weight .When an undue impact takes place, however, the tendency of the body has been to leave the tracks, carried forward by its great momentum. The application of the air brake acts, necessarily, only on the trucks. Some sort of brake was desired for the body of the car. This has now been obtained. The interlocking device acts as a brake on the superstructure.

Assuming a passenger train is on the main line with the bodies of the cars locked to the trucks to prevent them from beign knocked off, and high tension buffing device in the platform with improved reinforcement of the vestibules similar to the Pullman Company's and the Grand Trunk's new improvement, a passenger train running at 40 miles an hour striking the rear end of the train will force the train along the track instead of telescoping.

The Pullman Company, as well as the Grand Trunk, is building this interlocking apparatus into many of its newest cars. The device and other plans were submitted to an independent firm of engineering experts of wide reputation on the continent and their report says:

"We are particularly interested in the reinforced vestibules and the truck locking device, the latter being a very important safety feature to which but little attention has been paid in the past. It is self evident that if the trucks are locked to the bodies, then in a derailment the retarding effect of the dragging trucks will tend to keep the cars in alignment, and the whole train as a unit will be brought to a more orderly stop in a shorter distance. A local derailment of a double-header train last summer illustrated this point. The trucks of four cars were found bunched together and in their alignment, but the bodies were scattered all over the right-of-way. The truck locking device will also tend to keep the car ends together preventing reinforced ends from striking the sides of the cars. Further as you stated, the weight of the trucks anchored to the body will prevent the cars from rolling over. We have never favoured the all-steel car and believe that a reinforced wooden car is better in many ways. We shall not fail to inform all intending travellers of our acquaintance that the Grand Trunk Railway System is leading all railroads in the safety features of its passenger rolling stock.

"ELIJAH" WAS A FALSE PROPHET IN THIS MONTH

Peterborough, Ont., May 19, 1914.

To the Editor, Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I read the letter from Dr. Torrington, Toronto, published in last night's Examiner. He expresses his pleasure on hearing (in Toronto) that the Choral Society is giving "Elijah" next year in Peterborough. To prevent any misunderstanding I might state that this information was not given to Dr. Torrington by any officers of the Choral Society. The new Executive committee will hold their first meeting on Monday, June 1st, and among other business, the work for the coming season will be discussed, and decided on.

Trusting you will publish this and so correct any misunderstanding that may have occurred.

—Yours sincerely,

B. Read,

Sec. Peterborough Choral Society.

ORANGEMEN TO CELEBRATE IN LINDSAY

Mr. Wm. Warren, Secretary of the 12th July Committee, has received word from Markham Orangemen, that they will be in Lindsay for the great celebration of the 224th anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne on Monday, July 12th, 1914. It is also understood that a large number of Orangemen from the Northern District, Toronto, will celebrate with their Lindsay brethren, and negotiations are now in progress to have a special train from Toronto on that day. It is expected that one of the largest demonstrations ever held in Eastern Ontario will be seen in Lindsay this year, as a large number of lodges from a distance have already signified their intention of being present.—Warder.

Twenty-nine cities of the United States, according to the latest census estimates, contain each more than than half a million inhabitants.

ATTENDED THE CONVENTION

Large Number of Delegates From Hastings Went Over to Norwood For Meeting There

HASTINGS, May 19—The remains of the ate Mrs. L. Fuller of Toronto, were brought to Hastings via G. T. R., on Saturday last, and taken to the Methodist Church, where service is held after which interment was made. The ate Mrs. Fuller, who had reached the advanced age of 97 years, was, for upwards of thirty years, a resident of Hastigs, but for the past twenty years, has resided in Toronto, with her son, where she died. The remains were accompanied by her grandson, Mr. Potter, of that City.

Friday was a busy day around the G. T. Station, here, it being shipping day. Mr. R. Walsh sent a large shipment of cattle to Montreal, for which he paid a good sum.

Mr. H. Thistlewiate occupied the pulpit in the eMthodist Church on Sunday morning, in the absence of the Pastor.

A large delegation of missionary workers drove to Norwood on Thursday last, to attend the district convention which was hed in the Methodist Church, there, and report a arge attendance and an excellent programme.

Dr. Holdcroft of Havelock, was in Town during the past week, in consultation with the local physicians in the serious illness of Miss C. Lynch. We regret to state that she is still in a very critical condition. Her many friends are hoping for her speedy recovery.

Mrs. (Dr.) Harrison of Keene passed through here on Thursday ast, en route for Norwood.

Mr. Nelson eBavis, Miss L. Laing, and Miss Mae eBavis spent Saturday in Warkworth.

Miss Evelyn Beavis spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. J. Stevenson.

Mrs. Wm. Wright of Boston visited during the past week at the home of her aunt, Mrs. J. Breckenridge.

The Epworth League on Monday night was under the direction of the Missionary Comimttee, when an instructive programme was given.

Mrs. N. Boyle has been visiting friends in Keene.

Mrs. Harry Peters spent Saturday at her former home, near Peterborough.

Mr. Hollingbeck spent Sunday with friends out of town.

Mrs. Ashburn has returned to her home in Keene, after a short visit in Hastings.

Mr. D. Fife took a trip to Peterborough on Saturday.

Mrs. Bantan of Toronto, is holidaying with her daughter, Mrs. (Dr.) Edmison.

Mr. Wm. Carey spent Sunday at his home in Keene.

Seeding in this immediate vicinity is almost completed and rain is needed.

Mr. Alex. Fleming is receiving the congratulations of his numerous friends on the occasion of his marriage to Miss E. Scott of Toronto.

Mr. E. J. Laing and Miss Elsie of Norwood, and Mr. Henry eBavis of Lakefield, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Beavis.

Mr. A. Scriven is erecting a fine boathouse, near the wharf.

Mrs. Reeve of Chicago is holidaying at the home of her sister, Mrs. Wm. Lynch.

Mr. Wm. McKee has purchased a fine automobie and is thoroughly enjoying it.

Two or three loads passed through here on Thursday last to attend the missionary convention at Norwood. They came from Warkworth and Dartford.

The local lacrosse team has been reorganised and is making preparation for the season's sport.

Miss C. Shorter has returned to Peterborough to finish her course at Business College.

New Rotary Filler For Knox Factory

The "Last Word" in Rapid Bottle Filling of Summer Beverages

The first-class plant of the D. Knox's Mineral Water Factory, 384 Queen Street, has had added another piece of costly machinery, called an eight-head Rotary Filler. This machine is the latest new feature in bottle filling, having a capacity for very rapid work. The extra demand for the D. Knox line of summer drinks necessitates the introduction of the most complete machinery on the market. These healthful, palatable and refreshing drinks are becoming more and more in use every season.

STONY LAKE RIPPLES

STONY LAKE, May 19—The weather continues delightfully cool, and the mosquitoes have been very obliging in remaining away so long.

The steamer Islinda made a trip last Tuesday. Mr. George Henderson of Peterborough came up to his cottage accompanied by his uncle and remained the balance of the week.

Professor M. A. Mackenzie of Toronto spent the week at his cottage, "Lochend"; his guests were Dr. Boyer of Toronto, and Masters Fenwick and McCullough of the Grove School, Lakefield.

The Empress brought up a load of freight, on Saturday, and made another trip Monday, when she delivered a lot of lumber for Mr. Ivor Brock, who brought up a force of carpenters to construct his bungalow, near Kawartha Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Brock have taken "Restmore Apartments" until their summer home is completed.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McWilliams, accompanied by Mrs. Miller, have opened "Tecumseh Lodge" for the season.

Mr. E. H. D. Hall and the Misses Reinhardt will spend a few days at the lakes.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Graham came up on Monday to the site of their new cottage, near Mt. Rascal. Contractor Moore of Lakefield will commence building it at once.

If the weatherman is any way kind for May 24th, there should be a large number of visitors to Stony Lake, over the holiday.

—Monty La Rock.

Another Tender For Trent Canal

Two sections of the Trent canal system between Lake Simcoe and Georgian Bay are already under contract, and during the present summer work will be pushed forward upon these rapidly. It is anticipated that about 900 men will be engaged upon this work during the present summer, and during the following year this number will be greatly increased in order, if possible to have the work completed some time in 1916.

The information is now available that the third section, that at Washago, will be commenced this summer also, and within the next few days tenders will be called for this section, the contract for which will probably exceed $800,000. Preliminary work upon this section will also be gone on with this season.—Post.

FORWARD.

Have faith that dares to smile,
Have hope that dares to sing;
Toward a golden afterwhile
And a better time we swing.
Have dreams and let them be Like banners leading on
The hosts that cry: "Be free!"
The hearts that drink the dawn.

Allan Fountain Cut His Throat With a Razor

Man Mixed up With Another Mysterious Affair, Succeeds in Taking His Own Life

LINDSAY, May 20.—The Wetherby tragedy, which brought the Village of Coboconk into publicity some time ago, was recalled to memory again yesterday morning with the bringing of Allan Fountain to Lindsay on a stretcher, he having made a determined effort on Monday evening to end his life by slashing his throat with a razor.

It will be remembered that several weeks ago when the Wetherby home at Coboconk was destroyed by fire, six of the children were burned to death while the mother and Allan Fountain, who was a lodger, escaped.

Allan Fountain has since been living with his mother in the village. Visiting the pigpen at the rear of the garden he is said to have deliberately slashed his throat with a razor, and but for the timely arrival of physisians the man would have surely bled to death.

That Fountain's effort was not successful is due to the fact that he cut his throat too high up.

It is understood that previous to the arrival of the doctors that Fountain wrote out some sort of a confession in regard to the Wetherby tragedy, but that this note has, as yet, not come into the hands of the peace authorities.

It is also stated that Fountain commenced to scribble off a note of confession for Dr. Johnston, but that after writing for a short period it was found necessary, owing to his weakened condition, to have him defer further writing, or exertion of any kind.

Fountain died in the Ross Hospital at 1:30 yesterday.

It is also reported that the dead man left a statement with one of his neighbours that will throw some light on theorigin of the fire which resulted in the death of the six children. This statement, it is said, incriminates a party concerned in the tragedy.

JULIE OPP HAS TUBERCULOSIS

NEW YORK, May 20.— With the news of William Faversham's departure for Europe comes the information that Mrs. Faversham (Julie Opp) is so ill she will be unable to resume her stage work next year. According to a statement made by Mr. Faversham, his wife is suffering from tuberculosis, and is now in Arose, Switzerland, being treated by eminent specialists. Her condition is so serious that Mr. Faversham was compelled to end his vaudeville tour and he will be unable to be at the Stratford Festival.

Mr. Faversham will go direct to Paris, where he will consult Sir Felix Genon, a famous specialist, and then join his family. Mrs. Faversham, it is expected, will return to America with him shortly afterward and continue her treatment at Lake Placid.

THE EXAMINER OFFICE TELEPHONES.

The telephone numbers of the Examiner Office have been changed. The Business Office, formerly 57, is now 1600; the Editorial Office, which was 294, is now 1601; Mr. Dawe and Mr. Menzies are changed from 1217, and can be had by calling either of the above new numbers. Private branch exchange to all departments.

Omemee News

Special to The Examiner:

OMEMEE, May 19.—Mr. Cecil Best of Beaverton, was in town last week renewing old acquaintances.

Mrs. H. Stewart is the guest of her son, Mr. Thomas Stewart of Franklin.

Dr. J. N. Thompson was a visitor to Lindsay on Saturday.

Miss Addie Dewan of Downeyville, was in town on business during the past week.

Mr. John Murray of Peterborough, was the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Murray.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Sluggitt of Mount Horeb were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ingram on Sunday last.

Mr. R. Allin of Reaboro, was in Omemee on business the beginning of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nugent were visitors to Lindsay on Saturday.

Mr. W. D. Stinson motored to Peterborough on business during the past week.

Mrs. W. Martin of Bethan yvisited friends in town recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Byers of Franklin have taken up residence on King Street west, Omemee.

Mrs. Wilbert Fee was a visitor to Lindsay last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Bradley of Dunsford were the guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. G. McConnell.

Mrs. Staples of Lindsay is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Wm. Earle.

Miss L. Lowery and brother of Mount Horeb were the guests of Miss Jessie McQuade over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Magee spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. James Courtney of Millersmith.

Mr. John Sherin was in Lindsay on business last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Lowes were the guests of Janetville friends on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Jones visited Dunsford friends recently.

Dr. and Mrs. Irvine of Lindsay motored to Omemee on Sunday and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Earle.

Dr. J. N. Sutton of Peterborough, was a visitor to Omemee last week.

Mr. S. Grandy was in Lindsay on business during the past week.

Mr. M. Sandy spent the week end with Rev. W. J. Smyth of Dunsford.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Moore of Bobcaygeon were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Wilson, Jr., over Sunday.

Mr. Thomas Ingram was in Lindsay on business Saturday.

Mr. Ross MacPherson has returned to the banks of the Pigeon to spend the summer.

GOOD SERVICE FROM 'CAYGEON TO PETERBORO

Mr. N. C. Cameron, Secretary of the Retail Merchants Association, has received the following letter from Mr. N. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent of the C. P. R.:

"I have a copy of your letter of the 15th inst. I am pleased to advise you that the service which has been arranged, effective May 31st, will provide far a train to leave Bobcaygeon 7.00 a.m., arriving at Peterborough at 9.10 a.m., returning leave Peterborough at 10.50, arriving at Lindsay, 12, noon; Bobcaygeon, 1 p.m. returning, leave Bobcaygeon 7.30 p. m., Lindsay, 4.25 p.m., Peterborough 5.35 p.m., north bound, returning leave Peterborough 6.25, arrive Lindsay, 7.35 p.m., Bobcaygeon, 8.30 p.m. In addition, too, we will have a local express train to leave Toronto 9.20 a. m., making all local stops between Toronto and Peterborough, en route to Montreal, which I trust will be satisfactory to your Asociation.

LOCAL THUNDERSTORMS WILL OPEN THE MONTH OF JUNE

Weather Predictions by Rev. Irl Hicks For Next Month---Storm Periods Are Numerous

A regular storm period, which was central on May 30th, will be at its culminating stages, in the central to eastern parts of the country during the 1st, 2nd and 3rd. The Moon will pass southward across the celestial equator on the 2nd, which fact will cause many local thunder storms on and touching that date. Immediately west of these storm areas will follow a rising barometer, winds shifting to the west, and change to fresh, cool weather.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 5th, 6th and 7th. The Moon is in perigee on the 5th, and at its full on the 7th. The Venus disturbance will be in full force, blending with the June solstice period from this time to the end of the month. On and next to the 5th, 6th and 7th, the barometer wil fall decidedly, the temperature will rise, and storms of wind, rain and thunder will make their transit eastwardly across the country. The change to rising barometer and cooler weather, which will follow immediately behind these storms, will spread progressively to the Atlantic coast regions, from about the 7th to the 9th.

A regular storm period will develop and run its course from the 10th to the 15th. It is central on the 11th, this date being the central day of an annual period of maximum electric and magnetic disturbance. At this time the Earth's north magnetic pole is most inclined to the Sun's equator, causing a maximum charge of magnetism in the Earth, and atmosphere surrounding it. During a period of 8 to 10 days, taking June the 11th as the central day, every year, the records will show that there are phenomenal manifestations in the way of magnetic unrest, atmospheric electricity, trouble on the wires and in telegraphic instruments, auroral lights, volcanic unrest and seismic activity. At this period the whole terrestrial globe takes on such excessive charges of electricity and magnetism, that much of the remainder of the month, as a rule is characterized by intense electrical storms, with almost continuous displays of sheet lightning, during the evenings and nights, for many successive days at a time. The Mercury period will blend with Vulcan, Venus, Earth and Jupiter at this time, so that a low, menacing barometer any time from the 10th to the 15th, should be heeded as a danger signal. A cycle of daily storms for several successive days, similar to those mentioned in our May forecasts, will most probably appear at this time. Heavy rains will visit most parts of the country, causing floods in small streams, valleys and rivers, and a little after, high water and destructive overflows along the great central rivers. Any reasonable precaution that may be taken against destructive hail storms will abundantly compensate such outlays, all through the central to the latter parts of June. We must not be deterred from our annual warning of danger to life and property from lightning strokes during these vicious electrical storms in June. Do not take shelter under trees during June thunder storms. Avoid barns, stables and all similar buildings, and do not remain exposed on the moist ground, during the immediate and nearby passage of a thundercloud. In one's home, with door and windows closed—away from stoves and open chimney places, on perfectly dry floors, constitute the best safeguards against lightning strokes. See that droves and herds of live stock are not exposed to wire fences, or huddled together, if preventable, under green trees.

A reactionary storm period will follow the preceding regular period almost without intermission, causing a prolonged spell of stormy, threatening weather. This reactionary period is central on the 16th, 17th and 18th. The storm diagram shows that the Venus and Mercury periods are both central on the 16th, the Mercury period covering the 11th to the 23rd, and the Venus period extending over the whole month. The Earth's solstice period is central on the 21st, covering almost the entire month, so that a tremendously strong combination of astronomic causes is bearing on all these June periods. As a rule very heavy and continuous rains may fall in June without great depressions of the barometer. We have often noted that barometric readings were little below normal in the midst of persistent and heavy June rains. But it must be kept in mind that destructive wind storms and tornadoes are always indicated by a marked fall of the barometer. Do not fail to keep in touch with your barometer during these solstice storms, as dangerous storms are entirely probable. The barometer will never deceive, or fail to warn you. It is the only thing in existence that can and will discriminate between the danger and harmlessness of on-coming storms.

A regular storm period covers the 20th to the 25th, being central on the 22nd. This period is at the centre of the June solstice disturbance. At this exact time, the backward or westward motion of the Earth in its orbit begins, the north pole of the Earth is at its greatest inclination toward the Sun, and storms and other disturbances peculiar to this season reach a maximum. About the 20th, it will grow very warm and muggy, the hygrometer will indicate great humidity, the barometer will begin falling in the west followed by cloudiness and active storms. During the 21st to 25th these storms will grow in extent and intensity as they pass eastwardly across the country. Vivid and startling electrical manifestations will attend these storms. Heavy rain, wind and hail may reasonably be looked for, with tornadoes distinctly probable. These storms will reach their highest culmination on and touching the 23rd and 24th. If possible, watch the indications of a good barometer. It will tell you just when the crisis is coming.

A reactionary storm period is central on the last three days of June. The Moon being on the celestial equator on the 29th, look for great warmth, low barometer and startling thunder storms on and about that date. By consulting the storm digram it will be seen that the close of the great Jupiter period is indicated for the end of this month. We desire to say, in all candour, that we cannot say positively just when the Jupiter influence ceases. We figure that it is practically at its close at end of the present solstice period. In the nature of the case, we believe that its diminishing influence will be small at the most, and that its perturbing influence cannot last beyond the autumnal equinox in the coming autumn. We figure, upon the whole that much rain will fall during this June, and that local freshets and overflowing rivers and floods will result from the same, jeopardizing property and life in many places. The month will go out with areas of low barometer and rain storms passing eastward over the country.

The first seismic period for June is central on the 7th, extending from about the 5th to the 10th. This is a month when earthquakes are liable to occur outside of the regular periods, but such will be very rare. The second seismic period in June is central on 23rd, covering the 20th to the 26th. In every probability very active volcanic eruptions will attend the seismic, and other peculiar prenomena during these June periods. Keep tab on reports—see if big volcanoes do not turn over and growl.

Many late reports give accounts of additional earthquakes at the last seismic period in March. Following is a sample. See the forecast on page 41, 1914 Almanac:

Tucson, Ariz., March 19, 1914.—The violent earthquake shocks recorded Sunday night by the observatory near here produced records as sharp as that made by the tremour that shook a portion of California in 1906.

On page 44 of our 1914 Almanac, see our seismic forecasts for April, 1914, written and put into type in our office on May 13, 1913. The first seismic or earthquake period was put down, central on April 10th, extending from April 7th, to 13th, 1914. Many reports, by wire and private letters, show that seismic unrest was abroad in the earth, in exact conformity with the forecasts. The following are samples of many dispatches and reports that have reached us:

Ogden, Utah, April 10, 1914. — A slight earthquake, the duration of which was about two seconds, was felt here.

Washington, April 11, 1914. — Two earthquakes were recorded to-day by instruments at Georgetown University observatory. One lasted two and the other forty-five minutes.

As may be seen by the forecast, printed one year in advance, these earthquake disturbances came at the exact centre of the first April period. Reports for the second seismic periods may come later. See editorial department. St. Louis, April 17, 1914.

ADDRESS BY DR. DOOLITTLE

Progress accentuated by co-operation, and enthusiasm, and the great advantage in standing together and getting their rights, was the message that Dr. Doolittle, President of the Ontario Motor League gave to the members of the Peterborough Automobile Association, in an instructive, and valuable address in the Chambers of the Bank of Montreal, last evening. "Strike when the iron is hot, and get together and do it." was the slogan he advanced last night.

Good roads was the topic of his address, and the need to push forward the movement, was strikingly illustrated by the speaker. Witticism was a feature of the address which was listened to with keen interest by those present. The gathering, while rather small, was composed of enthusiastic motorists. Dr. Doolittle paid a compliment to the local association, when he spoke of the most enjoyable trip he had had with them last summer to South Beach, accompanied by the County Council and Pathmasters. He said that entertainment was half the motorists' battle. Not only did they themselves procure enjoyment, but it also influenced the citizens to some extent. If the local club makes such splendid progress this year, as it did last, the banner club of the Province, would undoubtedly be located here.

With reference to good roads, the speaker viewed the history of these from the origin of the primary construction periods. In the neighbourhood of fifty years ago, the pathmaster system was utilized. Each year a new official would have to be appointed and instead of any general benefit accruing from his appointment, the only portion of the roads that would receive any consideration whatever, was that portion in front of his own farm. The only result that could be obtained from this system, was a series of patched roads. A concentrated attack, and unanimous efforts, is the only way in which you will get good roads, he said. He then depicted how they had obtained sufficient money to start a good roads campaign, and outlined several methods that had been, and could be adopted. The first campaign was started by a bicycle club in Toronto, about 25 years ago, and by this means, the sum of $500 was collected in a very short time. The type of wheel that was in common use then, demanded that some action be taken to ensure good roads, for cycle travel was then a painful duty, on the old "bone-shakers."

The County of Wentworth has expended practically $900,000 on the good roads cause. In one year, the farms, on this road, and other property had increased in value, by 100 per cent., and that was the result of a little labour, and a few dollars wisely spent.

The speaker strongly advocated the interchange of licenses between this Province and the United States. Ontario is the only province where this is not in vogue.

Dr. Sutton, chairman of the membership committee, outlined in brief, a programme to be carried out in their coming campaign. Sign posts will play a prominent part.

Mr. Keyes, chairman of the entertainment committee, spoke about the trip to South Beach this year. The County Council and Pathmasters' trip would be held to Hastings in June. Several other trips of various natures are contemplated, and this summer will be a busy, yet enjoyable one, for the autoists of Peterborough.

Mr. E. A. Peck, M.L.A., said he was most willing to assist in whatever way he could, for the furtherance of the good roads campaign. He would be able to render valuable assistance. He made reference to the legislation that passed some time ago, in favour of autoists. At the conclusion of the meeting a vote of thanks was given to Dr. Doolittle and Mr. E. A. Peck.

TOOK YOUNG GIRL TO THE QUEEN CITY

Supt. Henry of the local Children's Shelter, met with a curious and embarrassing experience a few days ago, in connection with certain duties that had to be performed in Toronto. It seems that a short time ago a girl was turned over to the local Shelter by foster parents, on Parnell Street, who were dissatisfied with her conduct of late. She being previously a ward of the Provincial Society it was Mr. Henry's duty to turn her over to the authorities of that organization. Soafter keeping her three days he journeyed with th young girl to Toronto.

Here he got in touch with Mr. Kelso and learned to his chagrin that the Provincial Shelter, in which he had intended to leave the child, had ben closed up. He then took the child to the Toronto Children's Shelter, but they refused her admission on the grounds that she was not from the Queen City, and therefore should not be taken care of by a local institution.

He then visited the Alexandra Home for Girls, in Toronto, but found that the President of the institution was not in the City, and the Secretary refused to admit the child, saying that the Home was already over-crowded.

"Wel," said Mr. Henry, throwing certain documents on the desk "there are the papers and there is the girl; I am going to leave her here and you can do as you please about keeping her."

This happened on Saturday and the Secretary answered with determination: "Well, if you do we will return the girl to Peterborough on Monday."

"And if you do I will ship her back to Toronto on Tuesday," replied Mr. Henry, and made his exit.

The girl is still in Toronto and the local authorities are hoping that she will be kept there.

Do not keep your kindness in watertight compartments; if it runs over a bit, 'twill do no harm.

Stray Shots From the Firing Line

The usual weekly drill of the 57th Regiment was held last evening on the outside parade grounds of the Armouries. The march out was not taken in. Instead company drill was carried out on the parade ground, under the various company commanders, until 9.15 p.m., when the guard of honour was assembled, and put through a lively course by Sergt. Instructor Dunkerley.

The Chaplain, Canon Davidson, addressed the regiment at the close of the parade, and said he hoped that there would be a large and representative gathering of members of the 57th on Sunday for the Church parade that will be held to St. John's Church, jointly with the members of the 15th Belleville Regiment, "Argyle Light Infantry."

After parade, the N. C. O's and men were busily engaged for some time in receiving their diving service order of dress, and helmets. Both bands will be in attendance on Sunday, and a monster parade is expected.

The following orders were issued:

Orders by Officer Commanding 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers—

1. The Regiment will parade in divine service order, with both bands, stretcher section and signallers, at 9 a.m. on Sunday, May 24th, 1914, for the purpose of attending divine service at St. John's Church, with the 15th "Argyle Light Infantry" of Belleville. The Regiment will walk out of the drill hall at 9.30 sharp.

2. The following subalterns are detailed for the guard of honour to His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught on June 1st, 1914: Lt. K. G. Loch and Lieut. A. F. Hagerman.

3. The following N.C.O.'s are also detailed for the guard of honour: Col. Sergts. C. Sucee, H. Dodds, F. Howarth and Sergt. L. Dawes. The corporals will be detailed by the Sergeant Major.

4. The Commanding Officer has been pleased to make the following promotions:

C. Co.—To be sergeant, Pte. W. G. B. Ellis. To be sergeant provisionally, Corp. A. L. Lightheart. To be corporal provisionally, Pte. Morgan.

D. WALKER, Major,
Adjutant.

There were 305 of all ranks on parade last night composed of the following: 1 Lieutenant-Colonel, 5 Majors, 17 Subalterns, 30 Sergeants, 27 Corporals and 217 Privates. This has been the average attendance for the past month, and it is expected that nearly all these men will go to camp.

The names of the men who could go to camp, were submitted to the Colonel last evening after parade.

King's colours and Regimental colours will be carried by the guard of honour.

A new order has been issued by the Divisional Commander, that all messes must be closed by 7 o'clock on Saturday evenings.

TEMPERANCE ISSUE AND PARTY POLITICS

The Editor, The Examiner:

Sir,—In reference to a report of the Temperance convention, as reported in a morning paper, an interview with a prominent gentleman in Peterborough on Tuesday evening by some of his friends to ascertain if he would allow his name to be submitted as a candidate at a Liberal convention, has some important bearing. His answer was, emphatically, "No."

"Why?" he was asked.

"Because I think that a majority "of temperance electors in the Province of Ontario," he answered, "will "not vote against their party in favour of Mr. Rowell's policy of abolish the bar."

"How do you know that?" he was asked.

"Well," he answered, "there is a "well known quotation that aptly expresses my idea, "by their fruits ye "shall know them." "If the temperance people of this Province were "really and sincerely in favour of the "abolition of the bar then you would "find:

"That there would not be a Minister of the Gospel who would not openly and fearlessly advocate the abolition of the bar."

"There would not be a church in the Province without its own separate active organization to work with a firm determination to elect the Rowell candidate regardless of party or self interest."

"There would not be a single church in this Province without an enthusiastic organization of its lady members who would diligently and heartily canvass every adherent of their church and others to vote for the candidate pledged to support the abolition of the bar."

"There would be a central organization in each riding of all its moral and religious forces to work and vote for the candidate pledged to abolish the bar."

"And lastly, there would be a representative central organization of all the religious and moral forces in the province who would see that in every riding of the Province local organizations were formed by every church to make one grand determined effort to elect the candidate pledged to abolish the bar."

"But Mr. Rowell must have "thought by that all these forces be"hind him must be made 'Abolish "the bar' the leading plank in his "platform," was suggested.

"No doubt he did," was the reply, "but he is not the first man who has "been misled by plain, well meaning "zealots; nor is he the first man "who had been humbugged by tem"perance cranks who advocate in "public abolish the bar, and who "vote to maintain the bar when an "election is on; nor is he the first "man who has been deceived by de"signing hypocrites who stand up in "the churches and preach sermons "on saving our boys from the bar "room and who vote for the party "that is in league with the brewers "and distillers."

"It may be that I am taking a pessimistic view, and it may be that "when the time comes the clergy and "our temperance forces will organize "and work and vote for the candi"date pledged to abolish the bar, "but in the meantime they are sin"ning away their days of grace and "poor Rowell, misled, humbugged "and deceived, is ploughing his fur"row alone."

Yours, etc.,
Abolish the Bar.

NEW SCHEME CREATING INTEREST

That scheme of the Canadian Pacific to discover the good and bad points of its employees, with the idea of rendering more adequate justice to the individual, is creating interest on the big American systems. It was the origination of Mr. Grant Hall, general manager of the western lines, with about 40,000 employees under his direction. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, at family banquets has, before now, expressed regret that good men might be overlooked, notwithstanding the fact that the company was on the keen look-out for the men who were to come after the present officers.

It has been felt that while the men close at hand could be measured as to capacity, the thousands at a distance, working on all parts of the line, extending for thousands of miles might be overlooked in spite of the most undeniable qualifications.

Mr. Hall then, appoints trustworthy persons who shall go over the western system regularly, watch the men, themselves unsuspected, and report, not their bad, but their good qualities; how they do their work; how they conserve the interests of the company; how they show their zeal. If bad, things must be reported. Those against whom the black mark is made will have a chance to be heard before judgment is rendered. In this way, it is believed the merits of the men will be more certainly discovered, and, being discovered, promotion will follow upon the discovery—when that is possible.

This idea, which is even now being put into effect, is regarded by the big American systems as at once novel and excellent. The wonder is that it was not tried before. The men who are at the elbow of the president or at the heads of departments are, of course, noticed and promoted, which may be just enough; but those who are not seen, have not the same chance and yet they might be just as capable as the more favoured ones. This has been felt to be a grievance from the beginning, but a grievance which could not aparently, be remedied. Mr. Hall has found a way. He brings each employee close by the report he will receive respecting him. Of course, the investigation which the secret inspector can make must necessarily be superficial; nevertheless, it will have value. They can see where there is courtesy; a willingness to help; zeal for the service; and these enter into character.

SUCCESSFUL BASE RUNNER MUST KEEP WATCH ON BALL

Even if you are not naturally speedy you may develop into a dependable base runner in baseball, provided you are quick-witted. At all timeskeep your eye on the ball, so that you may not be caught napping. You cannot afford to doze for even the fraction of a second, says a Youths' Companion writer.

Always take as long a lead on the pitcher as possible, but beware lest he catch youoff the base.

A clever runner who takes the longest possible lead is a great source of worry to the opposing team. When the pitcher is compelled to work hard to keep a runner close to the base, it becomes exceedingly difficult for him to retain his control. Under such conditions, it is much easier for the batter to pave the way for the "hit-and-run" play, or perhaps force him to give a base on balls.

The moment the pitcher starts his regular motion, you should dash for second; or, if you are waiting for an advantage, you should increase your first lead as far as possible, but take care that the catcher does not get you by a snap throw to first. The important thing for you to keep in view is that there are two parts to a good lead; first, your lead on the pitcher, and, second, your lead on the catcher, which is longer, because the catcher has a longer distance off throw.

One you start, do not hesitate, do not look behind yo uto watch the ball, do not slow up as you near the base. Centre your whole attention on getting to the base in the shortest possible time. Notice how the baseman is standing to receive the throw, and slide accordingly. Instead of slowing up, throw yourself feet foremost at the bag in such a way that your body will be as far as possible from the baseman when your foot hits the bag.

If you have good judgment you can make third almost as easily as second, because it is possible to take a longer lead on the catcher, but you must keep your wits about you, for a clever catcher may trap you between bases. By taking a long lead, you may provoke a throw from the catcher to second; in that case, dash for third. Good base running is an art, the possibilities of which are almost unlimited, as is shown by the fact that, even in the big leagues, a fast, clever runner can sometimes steal home. It takes practice to slide well, but it is an important part of successful base running.

Last, but by no means least, do not take rash chances on the bases, unless there are two out, and the batters who follow are poor hitters.—Boston Monitor.

SCHETTLER HOLDS OTTAWA TO 2 HITS AND PETES WIN GRAND GAME 2 TO 0

Another Snappy Battle With the Senators Yesterday Saw the Blountmen Reverse Monday's Decision---Timely Hitting Gives Homesters Their Counters---Ladies Day Crowd Delighted With Clean Cut Win of the Petes

Pitcher Louie Schettler took no chances on his team-mates not scoring runs for him yesterday, and prepared a whitewash bath for the Senators which he proceeded to administer very skilfully. As a result the Petes won handily by 2 runs to 0, after as snappy a game as the most ardent fan would want to see. It was ladies' day and five hundred of the fair sex shrieked their delight as Schettler turned the Ottawa hitters back.

The ex-Big Leaguer pitched a remarkable game of ball, holding the slogging Champs to two clean hits. One of these came in the first innings and from then on until one was gone in the ninth, the Senators went hitless. Dolan spoiled a chance for a one-hit game at that stage by hammering a single. Schettler showed fine speed and had a hop on his fast one that was a baffling mystery to the Senators, keeping them popping up in the air or tapping grounders to the infield. With men on the bases the Youngstown boy was absolutely unruffled and by his own good work in the first innings he saved scores when the first two Ottawa men got on, running down Bullock on a heavy piece of work and fanning Powers with the bases loaded.

Big Tom Kane got his first start of the season for the Senators, and although he was not hit hard, the Petes managed to bunch their safeties in two frames and pounded a run over in each case, which taken in conjunction with Schettler's great work was amply sufficient to earn a win for the tribe of Blount. The value of a stolen base was exemplified in the first registration. With two gone in the first innings, Wilcox singled and stole second a moment after. When King shot a single over second, Wilcox easily scored.

The only run came over in the sixth. Schettler led off with a single, only to be forced at second on Blount's bunt to Kane. Fox came through with the right goods at the right time, cracking a beautiful double over Rogers' head on which Blount counted.

It was a grand ball game, made all the more enjoyable by the way that the homesters won. There is nothing Peterborough fans enjoy more than to see the Senators humbled and they had a hilarious afternoon yesterday at the expense of the Ottawa leader and his talkative crew.

The fielding was brilliant on both sides with the Senators showing a clean sheet for the afternoon. Fox had the feature play, gathering in Lage's steaming liner on the run with his bare hand. There did not seem a chance to get the drive, but Fox went over and speared the ball as it sped on a line towards right field. Nill, the Ottawa second-sacker, also had a sensational play, going over toward second and stealing a hit from King by a fine stop and throw. Schettler made a grand stop of a bullet drive from Shaughnessy, and Blount tore off several fine captures on flies to the outfield. Altogether the ladies' day engagement was a classy affair.

Umpire Bedford was missing when the roll was called, having been sentenced to a term at Brantford. In his place was Umpire Evans, a character not unknown in these parts. Mr. Evans is noted among other things for calling strikes "strucks"—when he does not call them balls.

First Innings.

Ottawa— Bullock was safe on Byrne's fumble of his sharp bounder. Nill doubled over third. Shaughnessy grounded to King, Schettler partly stopping the drive. The base runners were held. Rogers hit to Schettler, who ran Bullock down between home and third. Dolan walked, filling the bases. Schettler got out of the hole by whiffing Powers. No runs, one hit, one error.

Peterborough — Blount popped to Dolan. Fox fanned. Wilcox singled over second and stole second. King drove one in the same place, scoring Wilcox from second. King died stealing, Lage to Fried. One run, two hits, no errors.

Second Innings.

Ottawa— Fox made a sensational bare handed running catch of Lage's torrid drive. Fried flied to Wilcox. Kane fanned. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough — Byrne flied to Shaughnessy. Gorman grounded to Dolan, Kane covering the bag. Swartz died on a grounder to Nill. No runs, hits or errors.

Third Innings.

Ottawa.—Bullock was safe on Fox's fumble of his swinging bunt, but was out stealing, Miller to Fox. Nill flied to Swartz. Wilcox made a nice catch of Shag's smash to right. No runs, one hit, one error.

Peterborough.—Miller flied to Powers. Schettler grounded to Nill. Blount died the same way. No runs, hits or errors.

Fourth Innings.

Ottawa.—Rogers died on a high one to Fox. Blount went back and made a pretty catch of Dolan's smash to deep centre. Powers died on a roller to Schettler. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough—Fox flied to Rogers. Wilcox singled over second and stole second. King flied to Rogers. Byrne grounded to Fried. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Fifth Innings.

Ottawa—Lage flied to Wilcox. Fried walked and stole second. Kane was safe on King's fumble. Bullock lifted one to Byrne. Nill forced Kane at second, King to Fox. No runs or hits, one error.

Peterborough— Gorman popped to Fried. Swartz grounded to Nill. Miller cracked one which Rogers went back and grabbed. No runs, hits or errors.

Sixth Innings.

Ottawa—Schettler made a grand stop o fShag's bullet drive to the box. Roger died on a high one to Gorman. Dolan grounded to Fox. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough—Schettler singled on a line to centre. He was out at second on Blount's attempted sacrifice, Kane to Fried. Fox doubled over Rogers' head, scoring Blount. Fox was out at third on a hit and run play that failed when Wilcox did not hit. Wilcox was out on a grounder to Fried. One run, two hits, no errors.

Seventh Innings.

Ottawa—Powers fanned. Lage was easy on a foul fly to Gorman. Fried struck out. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough—Nill robbed King of a hit by a beautiful stop. Byrne died on a hard smash to Fried, the shortstop making a beautiful throw. Shag grabbed Gorman's line drive to centre. No runs, hits or errors.

Eighth Innings.

Ottawa—Kubat batted for Kane and was hit. Bullock grounded to Fox, Kubat going to second. Nill flied to Blount. Blount made a nice catch of Shaughnessy's drive to centre.

Peterborough—With Kubat pitching for Ottawa, Swartz died on a hot one to Fried. Miller flied to Powers. Schettler singled through short. Blount walked. Fox grounded to Nill. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Ninth Innings.

Ottawa— Rogers fanned. Dolan singled to right. Wager batted for Powers and flied to Blount. Lage fanned. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Notes of the Game.

The Ottawas are not fattening their batting average very much during their sojourn with us.

Schettler was going as strong on end as in the first innings, striking out Rogers and Lage in the ninth.

Rogers drove out a long one that hit outside the foul line and then missed two.

Nil is surely a smooth second sacker. He has robbed three or four of the Petes of hits.

Fox's catch of Lage's liner was a circus grab.

Wilcox had a great day yesterday. He made two hits in three times up; stole second twice, scored a run and did some fine fielding.

Curley Blount broke the ice yesterday, scoring his first runof the season.

Hall or Kubat will likely be the Ottawa pitching choice to-day, while it is expected that Manager Blount will send Tracey out in an effort to cop the rubber game and get an even break on the week's stand at home.

The little leader is some outfielder. He went back and gathered in a drive from Dolan's bat in fine fashion.

In spite of his injured hand which affects his throwing and makes it hard to hold a bat properly, Mully Miller is doing the receiving in good style. He hits the ball on the nose, too, but his drives, yesterday, were at somebody.

Both Fox and King seem to have found their batting eye. They drove in the two runs yesterday.

Wilcox and Fox got their signals crossed yesterday. Fox trotted down to third on an apparent hit-and-run play and was out a block when Wilcox did not swing.

Rabbit Fried, the Senators' shortstop, has some "gun." He fumbled nearly every ball yesterday but whipped the Spalding over in time to nip the runner.

LIKES THE LOCAL BALL PARK

London Advertiser: Manager Reising and his London team returned from Peterborough on Sunday. They say the Petes have a good club, but the team is not hitting at present and Blount's pitchers are not in shape. Just as soon as these things are remedied the Peterborough Club will be as good as any in the League. The weather in Peterborough was cold for the most part, although the second day was not too bad. The London players were not seriously effected by the weather, however.

Mullin's Good Day.

Mike Mullin had one of his good days Saturday, and he showed some big league stuff in holding down the third base. Mike says the infield at Peterborough is one of the best he ever worked on, the grass being as smooth as a board. "You can go after a ball on that field," said Mike this morning, "and you know just where it is going to hop."

NO CHANCE TO GET HILLIARD

Manager Sheckard Says he is Using the Big Fellow Regularly

All hope the Peterborough ball club had of securing Dave Hilliard, the hard hitting outfielder of last year's team, from the Cleveand Club of the American Association, was extinguished yesterday, when Manager Curly Blount received a telegram from Manager Jim Sheckard of the Cleveland Club to the effect that he was using Hilliard regularly, and there was no chance of his being allowed to get away from Cleveland. The big fellow is hitting well now and is expected to be a fixture.

CANADIAN LEAGUE NOTES

The opening day crowd here last week was the biggest that ever saw a Canadian League game outside of Ottawa and London, beating the highest Hamilton figure by several hundred as the following from the Hamilton Spectator will show: 5,221 paid admissions was the record established at the local park for two days last week—Thursday and Saturday. This is the best showing made by the local club in three years, the opening day crowd and the Saturday crowd being records for their respective days. There is no doubt but that all holiday records will be shattered on May 25, while with Toronto as the attraction on Saturday next the attendance will just about pass the 8,200 mark. The best attendance at any one Canadian League game in this city was close to 3,200, on July 1, 1912.

The efforts of the Peterborough Ball Club to secure Dave Hilliard from the Cleveland American Association team have failed. The big fellow is too sweet a prospect for the Shecks to turn back. It may be interesting news to local fans to know that London made an effort to land Hilliard a short time ago. Scout Hickman, of the Naps, however, told them there was no chance. "He's a better ball player than Sheckard himself," is what Hickman is reported to have said.

BASEBALL

CHICAGO, May 16. — Ty Cobb's steady advance to the front among the American league batters was the feature of the race for hitting honours this week. The latest records show him in eighth place with an average of .315, an increase of eight points and an advance of five since last week. Two weeks ago he ranked 38th with an average of .240. Jackson, of Cleveland, leads the batters with .407. Then come Crawford, Detroit, .375; Lelivelt, Cleveland, .346; E. Foster, Washington, .337; Milan, Washington, .326; Barry, Philadelphia, .325; Williams, St. Louis, .320; Cobb, Detroit, .315; Oldring, Philadelphia, .308; Hartzell, New York, .306.

Club honours for the week go to Philadelphia with .284, with Detroit next with .280.

Black, Chicago, leads the base stealers with ten.

Byrne of Philadelphia, leads the National league with .423. In the first ten then comes Daubert, Brooklyn, .417; Cathers, St. Louis, .400; Meyers, New York, .367; S. Magee, Philadelphia, .365; Paskert, Philadelphia, .344; Lobert, Philadelphia, .344; Gowdy, Boston, .341; Cravath, Philadelpnia, .338; Dalton Brooklyn, .338.

Philadelphia leads the clubs with .294, and Brooklyn is next with .289.

Moran of Cincinnati, heads the base stealers with eight.

Evans, of Brooklyn, leads the Federal batters with .442. Bradley, of Pittsburg, is next with .427, and then come Laporte, Indianapolis, .400; Campbel, Indianapolis, .397; Wyckland, Chicago, .386; Kauff, Indianapolis, .375; Wilson, Chicago, .373; Easterly, Kansas City, .369; Lennox, Pittsburg, .360; Potts, Kansas City, .357.

Lennox's advance to the ranks of the select was a feature of the week, and his average includes home runs, so that now he is tied with Wilson for round trip blows with six.

St. Louis and Indianapolis rank first and second with .277 and .276, and McKechnie leads the base stealers with seven.

Pick, of Toronto, leads the International league with .377. Next is Onslow, Providence, .364, and then follow Gaz, Newark, .353; Tooley, Newark, .352; Barry, Jersey City, .341; Wells, Jersey City, .333; Schiltz, Rochester, .333; McIntyre, Providence, .333; Daniels, Baltimore, .329; Blues, Jersey City, .328; O'Hara, Toronto, .328.

Newark leads with .278, and Providence is second with .275.

Kehler, Jersey City, leads in stolen bases with seven.

ANNUAL DINNER.

The fourth annual dinner of No. 6 Company, of the 57th Regiment, will be held this evening in the Recreation Room of the Armouries at 6:30 o'clock. Captain McLean has been untiring in his efforts to make this affair the usual success. A large turnout of members is expected and a most enjoyable time is assured.

EAST CITY SCHOOL WON.

The intermediate girls' baseball team of the King George school played the Queen Alexandra nine at Nicholls Oval. The game resulted in a win for the East City girls, the score being 36-28. The batteries for King George school were Ida Lynn and Elva McIntyre and for the Queen Alexandra, Irene Knapman and Hazel Davidson.

NO LETTER WRITTEN.

Contrary to a report in last evening's Examiner, no letter was written to the Reception committee of the City Council regarding the visit of the Duke of Connaught to St. John's Church. In a conversation with one of the members, Canon Davidson merely suggested the advisability of a passing visit.

Owing to an error in reporting the result of the baseball game in the Public School League, last Thursday, the King Edward school was reported to have been defeated by the Queen Aexandra. It was the South Central and not the King Edward that was defeated. The King Edward team has not lost a game this year and are the League Champions for 1914."

The "Maple Leaf" Band Discourses Sweet Music.

There are many things—like the modest violet, "born to blush unseen"—or unheard. How few people appreciate the fact that twice, weekly an Alfresco Concert, of good quality, is given outside the Royal Theatre by the Maple Leaf Band, the members of which, under the able conductorship of Mr. A. Armitage, have been brought to a high pitch of musical attainment, and this is all free gratis and for nothing! It may not be generally known that this Band is open for engagements for picnics, moonlight excursions, garden parties, and entertainments of all kinds, by arranging with the Conductor at 189 King Street.

OBITUARY

MRS THOS. ATCHESON.

The death occurred on Monday, April the 27th, after a very short illness, of Sarah White, the beloved wife of Thomas Atcheson, of the Township of Cavan, aged 69 years.

The funeral, which was largely attended, was held on Thursday, the service being conducted by her pastor, Rev. W. T. Wickett.

The deceased was born in the Township of Emily and has lived in the vicinity of Fraserville for many years, and was highly respected.

Mrs. Atcheson is survived by her husband, two sons, William of South Monaghan, Albert of Fraserville, and four daughters, Mrs. Wesley Graham of Webb, Sask., Mrs. George Bonner, Cavan, Mrs. Chas. Lawrence, and Miss Clara at home, who mourn the loss of a devoted wife and loving mother.

Black Outlook For Becker

Special Wire to The Examiner

NEW YORK, May 20.—After this morning's proceedings things looked blacker than ever for Charles Becker, the accused Police Lieutenant. District Attorney Whitman first broke down the testimony of Mr. Hawley, a newspaper man, who sought to show a part alibi for the accused. Later, another staggering blow came when Justice Seabury excluded the evidence to show that Dago Frank, just before his execution, exonerated Becker of complicity.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKET

The stock market to-day was irregular and dull, some stocks making higher prices, while Chesepeake and Ohio and Missouri Pacific were weak for a time. M.O.P. reached to 16 7-8 and then rallied almost a point. I think this stock for the present should be left alone. New Haven has been backward, but as the investigation will only go back six or seven years do not see how it can effect the stock. It ought to break below 97 1-2, and I think it a fair buy at that price with risk limited to one point. Otherwise there is no particular change in the situation. If the market should be strong to-morrow, with the leaders, such as Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and C.P.R., etc., selling over a point above to-day's high prices and then closing on top, then release half your longs with the intention of buying them back a couple of points lower on Saturday or Monday.

Union Pacific profit taking is reported near 138. Great Northern, Erie and Southern Ry. are reported well absorbed.

THE TORONTO MARKETS

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, May 19. — Union Stock Yards—Receipts were fair for Tuesday. 55 cars, 773 cattle, 1,224 hogs, 106 sheep and lambs and 295 calves.

Cattle—Trade was again active for light butcher cattle which sold at firm prices, but the heavy steers were slow sale at lower quotations. Choice butcher's steers, $8.00 to $8.35, and one lot of 4 at $8.75; good butchers' steers, $7.75 to $8.00; medium butchers' steers, $6.75 to $7.75; common butchers' steers, $7.00 to $7.40; choice butchers' heifers, $7.75 to $8.00; common butchers' heifers, $7.25 to $7.60; choice cows, $7.25 to $7.50; good cows, $6.25 to $7.00; canners, $5.75 to $6.75; bulls, $6.00 to $7.00.

Feeders and stockers—Market as firm as ever and not enough to supply demand. Choice steers, $7.25 to $7.50; medium steers, $7.00 to $7.25; stockers, $6.75 to $7.75; short-keep feeders, $7.00 to $7.75.

Milkers and Springers — Not enough to supply demand at $60 to $90 each, bulk sold at $70.00 to $80 each.

Calves—The calf market was again fully 25c per cwt. higher, quality considered. Choice veals, $9.50 to $10.50; good, $8.00 to $9.00; Common, $6.25 to $7.50.

Sheep and lambs. Still light runs are the order, with prices as high as people will pay, there being a limit to their purchasing powers, and that limit has been reached.

Sheep, $6.75 to $7.75.

Culls and rams, $5 to $6.75.

Lambs, choice ewes and wethers, $8.50 to $9.25.

American yearling wethers sold at $9.50 shorn.

Hogs: Market steady at Monday's quotations.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Miss Helen Nesbitt of Lindsay is visiting with her sister, Mrs. G. Langton.

Mrs. Gordon Langton of Toronto has returned after visiting with friends in Lindsay and Fenelon Falls.

Mr. Harry Crossman, accompanied by Mr. Schleuter, returned to-day from a buying trip in Montreal.

Mrs. Valentine, Park Street, left town this morning by C.P.R. for Quebec, sailing from that port to-morrow, per the S. S. Calparian, for a visit to relatives and friends in England.

The engagement is announced of Ethel Mary Winslow, Toronto, youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Winslow, to Mr. Louis Merritt Wedlock, Toronto, eldest son of the late Mr. James Wedlock and Mrs. Wedlock. The marriage will take place quiety in June.

CARUSO HEARD NINETY MILES OFF— A WIRELESS MARVEL

NEW YORK, May 19.—Wireless operators at Sandy Hook, Sea Gate and Atlantic Highlands and on ships leaving the harbour, together with scores of amateur wireless enthusiasts in Greater New York and along the Jersey coast, were mystified recently over hearing through their receivers the voice of Caruso singing. This was possible because the head piece receiver used in wireless telephony is similar in principle to that used in telegraphy.

Most of the delighted one did not known to whom they were indebted for the canned solos of the great tenor, but it wasn't long before some of them found out that the concert was a part of a wireless telephone test made by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company at its station on the roof of the Wanamaker store in this city. Not only were the tenor's phonographic tones clearly heard by the operator at the wireless station at the Wanamaker store in Philadelphia, but a commercial message, dealing with ordinary business of the day, was communicated by voice through the air for the first time from New York to Philadelphia.

Heard Caruso's Voice.

The tests were made by Frank A. Hart and H. Ernest Campbell of the engineering department of the Marconi Company, Roland Crane, one of the company's most expert wireless operators, was in charge of the station.

It wasn't long before wireless men waiting for ordinary radiograms began to hear through the receivers the voice of Caruso and the sound of a man talking and counting slowly and deliberately. They knew, of course that they were picking up wireless telephone tests and then they started to wireless around to find out at what station the experiments were being made. Several amateurs called by telephone for enlightenment.

When the word got around that the Wanamaker store in New York was communicating by wireless telephone to the Philadelphia store, Messrs. Hart and Campbell began to receive inquiries by old-fashioned telephone as to what was going on. It wasn't intended that the news should get out prematurely and consequently the young engineers wouldn't go into details. Will Cash, John Wanamaker's contract manager, was also loth to talk about the events of the day, but later issued a statement confirming the success of the tests.

Wireless Telephone Success.

There was sending only and no receiving in the experimenting here. After a message had been sent out the operator in the Philadelphia store would reply by radio-telegraphy that it had been received and then he would repeat what had been said. He didn't attempt to imitate Caruso, however.

The operatic music was sent on its way to delight the ears of operators aboard ships by pacing the trumpet of a phonograph close against the sender of the telephone apparatus.

The Atlantic Communication Company's station at Sayville didn't hear the concert because it wasn't listening, but its operator did pick up a telephonic message sent by Mr. Hart to Mr. Sarnoff aboard the Antilles.

Chief Engineer F. M. Sammis of the Marconi Company said last night that these tests between New York and Philadelphia were a success.

Heard 600 Miles Away.

The Marconi Company received a cable despatch yesterday from William Marconi in England that he had completed his wireless telephone tests and that the apparatus was an entire success. The British company will now begin construction of sets for the Italian navy. They are guaranteed to maintain communication between ships over a distance of about thirty-two miles, although in practice they have been tried successfully over a much greater distance.

Cable despatches received yesterday from Berlin told of the wireless telephone experiments in which music sent by wireless from Nauen was plainly heard in Vienna, 600 miles away.

A story is going the round of the Lobbies at Westminster concerning a well-known Conservative M. P., who, says the "Daily Citizen," in one of the few rows in the House who are shown of the usual heat. He was saving a tramway fare by taking a penny bus to Palace Yard, when a strong desire for sweet possessed him. Producing a gold box, he extracted a pinch, and was enjoying it when a workman, another small citizen, who sat opposite, tapped the M. P.'s knee. "Lend us a pinch, guv'nor. We never get a chance in a 'bus," he said, and before the member could say anything, a grimy thumb and finger had plunged into the box. There were titters from passengers, and the legislator left the vehicle hurriedly.

Failure is not the worst thing in the world. The worst thing is not to try.

Terrible Tragedy In Ontario Bush Lands

Father Kills Daughter and Husband, Wounded a second Woman and Apparently Intended to Wipe Out Double Household

AT LARGE WITH GUN

GRAVENHURST, May 21.—One of the worst murders in the history of Ontario was perpetrated yesterday morning in the wild bush country in the Township of Ryde, 12 miles from Bracebridge, when William Ruttan shot and killed Mrs. Alfred Coutermanche, his daughter, and Geo. Coutermanche, and wounded Mrs. Geo. Coutermanche. Ruttan is a fugitive from justice, having fled to the forest, taking his gun with him, after having failed in an attempt to kill Alfred Coutermanche, at whom he fired four shots.

George Coutermanche was shot as he stood in the yard of the home, and fell dead at the feet of his wife, who was assisting him to clean fish. The bullet went through his heart and he died instantly. Mrs. Alfred Coutermanche was struck in the neck by a bullet fired through the door of a bedroom, whither she had gone for refuge, and expired in the arms of her husband.

Ruttan followed his victims relentlessly, firing a shot at them when in sight, and putting the gun up to the door and firing into the rooms they occupied. His first attack was made without warning. The horrible tragedy occupied about half an hour, during which Ruttan fired about fifteen shots, and must have reloaded the gun at least once. Apparently mad with anger, he did not quit shooting until the two remaining persons had gone from his reach. He then took to the woods.

The double murder discloses a terrible state of family affairs, and incidentally the probable cause of Ruttan's terrible deed. Alfred Coutermanche, who married Ruttan's daughter Nina, one of the murdered, a month ago, went to Bracebridge a few days ago to lay a charge of incest against his wife's father. The charge was referred to the district officials, who are at Honey Harbor in connection with the preliminary in the Hargrave murder case. Had they been heard, it is probable that Ruttan would have been under arrest before the murder was committed. There seems no doubt but this action enraged Ruttan so much that he was determined to do away with the entire family. Ruttan's two sons have also been in trouble, and recently were convicted of a charge of cruelty to a cow. They were taken from Bracebridge yesterday morning by Constable McConnell.

Dr. McLeay, Gravenhurst, opened an inquiry yesterday afternoon at Housey Rapids, the scene of the murder, and heard the evidence of Alfred Coutermanche and Mrs. George Coutermanche. Dr. McLeay said last night that the shooting was done with a combination double-barrel shotgun and rifle. Ruttan used the rifle side.

Ruttan is a small man of 60 years, and on account of his dark complexion and hair is known as "Black Billy." He has a farm, but has spent the greater part of his time in the woods as a hunter. He is known as one of the best shots in the district. Because of his excellent shooting the residents of the district fear to search for him. A number of settlers have been sworn in as special constables, and will form a posse.

The district around Housey Rapids is rough and wild. Communication and means of transportation are bad, and the district but sparsely settled. The entire neighborhood is very excited, and more fear to venture into the woods because Ruttan is crazy at large. Those who know him say he will put up a fight before surrendering.

THEY WOULDN'T CHEER.

German Socialists Vigorously Expressed Opinion of Kaiser.

BERLIN, May 21.—Scenes of great confusion and uproar marked the closing session of the German Imperial Parliament yesterday. The members of the Socialist party, instead of retiring from the Chamber immediately before the usual cheers for the Emperor were called for, remained and kept their seats, from which they refused to rise.

Speaker Johannes Kaempf immediately called attention to this breach of respect to the Emperor, upon which the Socialists shouted: "That is our affair!" and tried to drown the cheers with boos and hisses. These were answered by tumultuous applause from the other parties.

The Government's petroleum monopoly bill was not brought up for debate and therefore falls through.

ANXIETY NEAR SOO.

Farmers Are Hoping For Rain to Check Forest Fires.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., May 21.—Bush fires are raging fiercely northwest of this city to-day, causing much alarm to farmers in the Townships of Korah and Tarentorus and up to Bellevue, along the line of the Algoma Central Railway. All the buildings on the farm of William Robertson were completely destroyed as the owners of the farm are at present at Prieeville, Ont. Residents in the fire zone say that if the wind should change from its present direction, turning inland, many farms will be in danger. On the fourth line of Korah there are between 30 and 40 men out fighting fires, and burning embers are said to be flying for miles owing to the high wind prevailing. The probabilities are that there will be rain soon, which is expected to result in putting the fires out.

Fires In Ottawa Valley.

OTTAWA, May 21.—Bush fires are raging with increasing strength throughout the Ottawa Valley and if rain does not come soon as a high wind should arise, some of the villages along the Pontiac line, above Hull, will be in danger of being wiped out.

Serious fires are raging in the bush six miles east, four miles north and eight miles west from the Grand Trunk's Highland Inn, Algonquin Park.

A thick pall of smoke from the fires in the district is hanging over Ottawa.

Rain Quenches Forest Fires.

DULUTH, Minn., May 21.—Reports reaching Duluth yesterday from various sections menaced Tuesday by brush and forest fires, indicate that the fires have been controlled by men or the rainstorm. Smoke that rested on Lake Superior was driven away by the wind, and navigation is under normal conditions.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Earl Grey and party arrived in Winnipeg yesterday morning from the coast, and left last night for the east.

Mary, the eight-year-old daughter of Robert Butler of Campbellford, is dead from burns. Her clothing caught fire from a chip fire in the yard.

Chicago sympathizers with Ulster's fight against Irish Home Rule yesterday sent a draft for $1,250 to Unionists' headquarters in Belfast, Ireland.

Five persons were killed near Ashville, 25 miles south of Columbus, O., yesterday when a Scioto Valley traction car struck an automobile at a crossing.

Cy Warman, the "Poet of the Rockies," was worth but $486.05 when he died, according to his will which was filed for probate in London, Ont., yesterday.

Pierre Paul Guieynse, who was Minister of the Colonies in the French Cabinet headed by Leon Bourgeois in 1895-96, died yesterday. He was born in 1841.

The name of Percy Hagel, serving a term in prison for assaulting his client, Krafchenko, to escape from custody, has been struck from the rolls of the Manitoba Law Society.

Henry Siegel, who is under indictment on allegations arising out of the failure of his private bank and department stores, sailed from England yesterday for New York on board the Olympic.

The captain and 26 other survivors of the crew of the British steamship Columbian, which was burned off Sable Island on May 3, arrived in Antwerp on board the Kroonland and the Manhattan.

When you've ordered Silk do you accept Sateen?

Almost a foolish question, but—not quite!

There are still some people who order Kellogg's Corn Flakes and are given a substitute "just as good"—and accept the imitation.

The difference between

Kellogg's CORN FLAKES

and the "just as good" kind is even greater than the difference between silk and sateen.

The great difference is in the flavor and the nutriment.

Be sure that you ask for and get Kellogg's. It is the original.

BEGIN PEACE CONFERENCE

Preliminary Session of A. B. C. Mediation Opens at Niagara

BRITAIN WATCHES CLOSELY

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 21.—If ever the phrase "history in the making" was applicable, it is applicable at Niagara Falls, Ont., to-day. Mediation between the United States and Mexico has begun, and Ambassador Da Gama of Brazil made the opening speech of the conference, which was suitably replied to by Justice Lamar of the United States and Senor Rabasa, chief of the Mexican delegates.

At three o'clock the mediators gathered in the solarium. A provincial policeman, of whom there are two in the hotel, was stationed outside the door.

It is understood that the main issues of the conference will be discussed to-day. The course of the mediation is being most keenly watched by Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British Ambassador at Washington, by reason of the fact that an immense amount of British capital is locked up in Mexico, which will be very much affected by the trend of mediation here. Britain is prepared when the moment arrives to ask for a large indemnity from the powers that be in Mexico for the ruthless murder of William Benton, and other things that have occurred.

It is understood that the British Foreign Office is keeping very closely in touch with the situation and all the latest developments.

The A. B. C. representatives have constituted themselves the hosts of the American delegates when the latter cross over to this side for the conferences, and every possible courtesy is extended to them. The Minister of the Argentine, Dr. Naon, has engaged a whole suite on the second floor, which he has placed in his name at the disposal of all the delegates.

Manitoba Gives "Wild-Cattings"

WINNIPEG, May 21.—There will be no Calgary oil stocks of the speculative kind sold in Manitoba, Judge Robson, public utilities commissioner, has informed stockholders who journeyed down from Calgary, permission to sell their stocks in this city or province. His sole aim is to protect the public.

No Calgary oil stock will be sold in Manitoba until the corporations who wish to place it on the market satisfy Judge Robson that the stock is for a bona fide well.

Unionist Wins In Derby.

LONDON, May 21.—The Unionists gained a seat in the House of Commons for Northeast Derby yesterday. The contest was a three-cornered one, the result being as follows: Maj. Bowden, Unionist, 9,469; J. F. Houghton, Liberal, 6,155; J. Martin, Laborite, 3,661. The electing was necessitated by the death of W. E. Harvey, the Liberal-Labor member, who had occupied that seat since the bye-election of January 30, 1907. The seat had been Liberal for some years.

Drowned From Canoe.

NORTH BAY, May 21.—Peter Langlois, an employe of the Spanish River Pulp & Paper Co. at Kenney's Siding, on the T. & N. O. Railway, was drowned in Martin river. Langlois went out for a canoe ride after supper and the canoe was upset. He comes from Chiswick, near Beaufield. The body is being searched for.

TERRIBLE SCALDING ACCIDENT

ZAM-BUK GAVE QUICK RELIEF.

For taking the pain out of a burn or scald there is nothing equal to Zam-Buk. Mrs. Eugene Demers, of Pembroke, Ont., who was the victim of a painful scalding accident, proved this. She says: "I was carrying a boiler of steaming water from the stove to the wash-tub, when suddenly my strength failed. As the boiler was falling in spite of my efforts, I heard my babies cry, and to avoid scalding them I gave the vessel a quick turn. The effect of this was that every drop of the boiling water poured over my feet and limbs, scalding me from my waist down.

"As soon as I saw the children had escaped, I told my oldest boy to bring the Zam-Buk (which we always keep in the house). I applied Zam-Buk freely, and the pain was soon eased. I continued using Zam-Buk, and in a wonderfully short time the sores were completely healed."

Zam-Buk is equally good for cuts, bruises, eczema, ulcers, piles, pimples, etc. Price 50c. per box, at all druggists and stores, or post free from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, on receipt of price. Refuse substitutes and imitations. There is nothing "just as good!"

TO CROSS ATLANTIC.

Aviator Gustave Hamel Will Make an Attempt In August.

LONDON, May 21.—August of this year has been chosen by Gustave Hamel, the British aviator, to make his attempt to fly across the Atlantic in the event of favorable winds prevailing, according to an announcement made yesterday.

The aeroplane in which the flight is to be made is now under construction. It is to be driven by an engine of 200 horsepower, which will develop a speed of eighty miles an hour. The aeroplane is to carry 320 gallons of petrol and 150 gallons of oil.

Hamel is to be accompanied by an assistant and will probably start from the American side.

SHOULD GET OPTION ON C.N.R

Provision For Taking Over C. N. R. Necessary Says Dr. Pugsley

SOLUTION IS SUGGESTED

OTTAWA, May 21.—The C.N.R. deal was under fire in committee in the Commons for several hours yesterday and Hon. Messrs. White and Meighen had an unhappy time of it endeavoring to meet the objections and questions of their critics.

Hon. Dr. Pugsley was in his seat and in a brief speech summed up the situation and suggested a solution, in which he reminded the Government that it was with Mackenzie and Mann they had to deal and not with the Canadian Northern, nor any of its many affiliated corporations. These two men Sir William Mackenzie and Sir Donald Mann were really the many concerns to whom it was proposed that aid be extended.

Hon. Dr. Pugsley argued that Parliament was stultifying itself by declaring that the Canadian Northern had $100,000,000 of paid up capital stock. The company was probably bankrupt, but in any event no sane man in Canada would buy the stock at ten cents on the dollar. The equity of the company in its undertaking, after all debts were paid, was very small. He believed that the Government should take an option on the common stock of the company, exercisable at any time within five years, but in no event should the Government undertake to pay more than five, or, at the most, ten million dollars for the interests of Mackenzie and Mann in the undertaking.

Mr. German (Welland) said it would require one hundred and fifty million dollars to pay the debts of the Canadian Northern and complete the system. The proposed guarantee of $45,000,000 would not be sufficient.

Mr. Borden pointed out that the company had assets amounting to $58,000,000, which would become available if the pending legislation was passed by Parliament.

Mr. German: "I do not admit that, but even if it were the case, there would be a deficit of nearly $50,000,000. Will the Prime Minister say that no more money will be required if these resolutions are adopted?"

Mr. Borden said that all estimates of that kind were, in the nature of things, more or less unreliable. The Laurier Government had undertaken to build a road for $16,000,000, which cost $160,000,000.

Mr. E. M. Macdonald took Hon. Mr. White sharply to task for telling Parliament at the last session that the authorized capital of the Canadian Northern was $70,000,000 and that the Government was getting 10 per cent. of this in consideration of the subsidy granted. The Minister had misled the House.

Mr. White vigorously disputed this statement. He said that he could not characterize Mr Macdonald's assertion as he would like to without violating the rules of the House, but intimated he would frankly tell Mr. Macdonald what he thought of him if the latter would give him the opportunity outside of the chamber.

Mr. Macdonald replied that the Finance Minister's statement at the last session was true in fact but he did not charge that the Minister had intentionally misled Parliament.

Mr. White replied that he had understood the member for Pictou (Mr. Macdonald) to charge him with intentional deception. He was glad that Mr. Pugsley had resumed his seat, because there would now be one man on the Opposition side who could understand a legal proposition. He then went on to explain the distinction between authorized stock and issued stock.

Hon. Frank Oliver complained that the contract between the Government and the company did not provide for additional branch lines in the west or for extensions into the Peace River country.

CONFESSION REJECTED.

Judge Will Not Admit Cirofici's Statement as Evidence.

NEW YORK, May 21. — Charles Becker will not be benefited by the confession alleged to have been made by "Dago Frank" Cirofici shortly before the gunman was executed in the electric chair at Sing Sing Prison for the part he played in carrying out the plot to murder Herman Rosenthal. "Dago Frank," in the so-called confession, was quoted as saying he had never heard the name of Becker mentioned in connection with the conspiracy that resulted in the killing of the gambler. Justice Seabury refused to admit testimony concerning the alleged confession into the record, and his ruling was a great disappointment to both Becker and his counsel.

There are but two more witnesses to testify for the defense. They will have told their stories and been excused from the stand before the conclusion of the proceedings to-day. The case undoubtedly will be completed before the end of the week.

It has not been decided whether or not Becker will go on the stand after the last witnesses to-day.

SUFFRAGETTES SUSPECTED.

They Are Blamed For Bad Brush Fire Near Aldershot.

ALDERSHOT, Eng., May 21. — A great brush fire, believed by the authorities to have been work of militant suffragettes, enclosed, shortly after midnight, the royal pavilion in Long Valley, where King George and Queen Mary are in residence, in the centre of a great army of British troops. The entire camp was alarmed and several battalions of infantry and regiments of cavalry turned out to fight the flames.

Water is plentiful in the vicinity, but the swords of the cavalrymen proved a better means of extinguishing the fire, as with them the men cut down and beat out the blazing undergrowth.

Suffragettes have shown great activity since the King and Queen arrived here, and as Their Majesties left the royal pavilion yesterday two women dashed in front of their carriage waving a banner with the words "Votes for Women."

PAPER MERGER COMPLETED.

Hon. G. P. Graham on Board of the Montreal Herald.

MONTREAL, May 21.—Announcement of the completion of reorganization plans in connection with the recently merged Herald and Telegraph and the publication of the names of well-known Liberals who will henceforth act as its directors, were made yesterday. Its directors will be Hon. G. P. Graham, M.P., at one time editor and proprietor of The Brockville Recorder; Hon. P. G. S. McKenzie, treasurer of the Province of Quebec, and a member of the Gouin Government, and R. C. Smith, K.C., Montreal.

"Under the guidance of the reorganized board, The Herald will be the exponent of Liberal principles, and an advocate of what it believes to be in the best interests of the people of Canada," says that paper.

CHILDREN'S EYESIGHT

An astonishing number of school children suffer from the effects of imperfect vision, and many of them are unjustly blamed for being unambitious or mentally stupid. It has been shown by authentic investigation under municipal direction that from 20 to 30 per cent. of the children in public schools have defective vision and should wear Glasses.

We make a specialty of examining children's sight by the most improved scientific methods, and if your child does not need glasses we will tell you so frankly, and make no charge for the examination. We carry a special line of heavy weight Children's Spectacle Frames in Gold Filled and Aluminum.

Should your child require glasses we guarantee that the glasses we fit are the proper correction and will give best results.

BAD OPERATION AVOIDED

By Timely Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Bowers' Own Statement.

Hodgdon, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—Mrs. HAYWARD SOWERS, Hodgdon, Maine.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

"THE TERMS OF SURRENDER"

By LOUIS TRACY

CHAPTER VI.

THe MEETING.

When Power arrived at New England's chief summer resort on a glorious July morning twenty-two years ago, man had succeeded in adding only a garish fringe to a quietly beautiful robe devised by Nature. Some of the few pretentious houses had been built; but local residences in the mass made up an architectural hotchpotch utterly at variance with sylvan solitudes and breezy cliffs. Rhode Island, which lends its name to the entire states, is slightly larger than Manhattan. A long southwesterly spur shields from the mighty waves of the Atlantic the little bay on which the old town of Newport stands; but the climate has the bracing freshness which is almost invariably associated with the norther half of that great ocean. If the bare rudiments of artistry existed among the idle rich who overran the island during the '80's, it should have protected a charming blend of seashore and grassy downs from the Italian palaces, Rhenish castles, Swiss chalets, and donjon keeps which the freakish conceits of plutocrats played cheek by jowl along the coast. Nowadays these excrescences are either swallowed in forests of well grown trees or have become so beautified by creepers that they have lost much of their bizarre effect; while magnificent avenues, carefully laid out and well shaded, run through a new city of delightful villas and resplendent gardens. But Power's first stroll from the portals of the Ocean House revealed a medley in which bad taste ran riot. The Casino, a miserable-looking structure, was saved from dismal mediocrity by its splendid lawns alone; the surf-bathers' friends were protected from the fierce sun by a long, low shanty built of rough planks; the roads were unkempt, and ankle-deep in mud or dust; broken-down shacks alternated with mansions; a white marble replica of some old Florentine house, stuck bleakly on one knob of a promontory, was scowled at by a heavy-jowled fortress cumbering its neighbour.

He found these things irritating. They were less in harmony with their environment than the corrugated iron roofs of Bison. His gorge rose at them. They satisfied no esthetic sense. In a ward, he resolved to get through his business with the horse-fancying judge as speedily as might be, and escape to the unspoiled wilderness of Maine.

Were it not for one of those minor accidents which at times can exert such irresistible influence on the course of future events, he would certainly have left Newport without ever being aware of Mrs. Marten's presence there. He ascertained that the judge had gone off early in the morning on a yachting excursion up Narragansett Bay, having arranged to lunch at a friend's house at Pawtucket; so, perforce, he had to wait in Newport another day.

At dinner he was allotted a seat at a large round table reserved for unattached males like himself. The company was a curiously mixed one, but pleasant withal. A Norwegian from San Francisco, who sold Japanese curios, a globe-trotting Briton, a Southerner from Alabama, a man from Plainville, New Jersey, and a Mexican who spoke no English, made up, with Power himself, a genuinely cosmopolitan board, and Power soon discovered that he was the only person present who could understand the Mexican. Mere politeness insisted that he should lend his aid as interpreter when a negro waiter asked the olive-skinned senor what he would like to eat; but the "Greaser," as he was dubbed instantly, proved to be a jovial soul, who laughed when any of the other men laughed, insisted on having the joke translated, and roared again when it was explained to him, so that each quip earned a double recognition, while he never failed to pay his own score by some joyous anecdote or amusing repartee. Thus, Power was forced into the role of "good fellow" in a way which he would not have believed possible a few hours earlier. In spite of himself, the merry mood of other years came uppermost, and, when the party broke up at midnight, after a long and lively sitting on a moonlit verandah, he retired to his room with a certain feeling of marvel and agreeable surprise at the change which one evening of enforced relaxation had effected in his outlook on life. He decided that these chance companions had done him a world of good, that his misanthropic attitude was a false one, and that a week or two at Newport might send him back to Colorado a better man. Applying to a state of mind a fetaphor drawn from material things, he felt as an Englishman feels who leaves his own dripping and fog-bound island on a January afternoon and wakes next morning amid the roses and sunshine of the Riviera. The glitter on land and sea may bear a close resemblance to spangles and gilt paper on the stage; but it is cheering to eyes which have not seen the sun for weeks, and when, in such conditions, John Bull sits down to luncheon under the awnings of a cafe facing the blue Mediterranean he is unquestionably quite a different being from the muffled-up person who hurried on board the steamer at Dover.

Power had contrived to withdraw himself so completely from the more genial side of existence at Bison that he rediscovered it with a fresh zest. Next day he was no longer alone. The man from Birmingham, Alabama, and the Englishman shared his love of horses, and the three visited the judge, who stabled some of his cattle on the island, and had photographs and pedigrees galore wherewith to describe the stock on his New York farm.

So Power stayed two days, and yet a third, and he was laughing with the rest at some quaint bit of Spanish humour which he had translated for the benefit of the company at dinner on the third evening, when he became aware that a lady, entering with a large party, for whose use a table had been specially decorated, was standing stock-still and looking at him. He lifted his eyes, and met the astonished gaze of Mrs. Marten.

"Derry!" she gasped.

"Nancy!" said he, wholly off his guard, and flushing violently in an absurd consciousness of having committed some fault. She had caught him, as it were, in a boisterous moment utterly at variance with the three years of self-imposed monasticism which followed her marriage. Yet, with the speed of thought, he saw the futility of such reasoning. The girl-wife knew nothing of his sufferings. She was greeting him with all the warmth of undiminished friendship, and could not possibly understand that he had endured tortures for her sake. So he regained his wits almost at once, and was on his feet, bowing.

"I beg your pardon, Mrs. Marten," he went on. "Your presence here took me completely unawares. You are the last person breathing I expected to see in Newport."

She laughed delightedly, with no hint of flurry or confusion beyond that first natural outburst.

"It would sound much nicer if you said what I am going to say to you," she cried, "that you are one of the few persons breathing whom I am really delighted to see in Newport. But I can't stop and talk now. I'll ask Mrs. Van Ralten to forgive me if I slip away from her party for ten minutes after dinner. Mind, you wait for me on the verandah. I'm simply dying to hear some news from dear old Bison! How is Mac? Oh, my! I really must go. But don't you dare escape afterward!"

Forgetful of all else, he allowed his startled eyes to follow her as she ran to her place at the neighbouring table. She was dressed in some confection of white tulle and silver; a circlet of diamonds sparkled in her thick brown hair; a big ruby formed a clasp in front of an aigrette of osprey plumes; her robes and bearing were those of a princess. Were it not for the warranty of his senses, he would never have pictured the girl of the Dolores ranch in this fine lady. Even now he stood as one in a trance, half incredulous of the evidence of eyes and ears, and seemingly afraid lest he might awake and come back to the commonplaces of an existence in which the Nancy Willard of his dreams had no part.

The Englishman, Dacre by name, knew something of the world and its denizens, and he had seen the blood rush to his friend's face and ebb away again until the brown skin was sallow.

"Sit down, old chap," he said quietly. "I was just thinking of ordering some wine for the public benefit. Do you drink fizz?"

The calm voice helped to restore Power's benumbed senses. Afraid lest his moonstruck attitude might have been observed by some of Mrs. Marten's companions, he tried to cover his confusion by a jest.

"Wine, did you say?" he cried. "Certainly—let's have a magnum. Bottled sunlight should help to dissipate visions."

"Anacreon has something to that effect in one of his odes; though he vowed that he worshipped Wine, Woman and the Muses in equal measure."

"Who is Anacreon?" asked the man from Plainville.

"He flourished at Athens about 600 B.C.," laughed Dacre.

"Did he? By gosh! The Greeks knew a bit, then, even at that time."

"This one in particular was an authority on those three topics. Love to him, was no mischievous boy armed with silver darts, but a giant who struck with a smith's hammer. He died like a gentleman, too, being choked by a grapestone at the age of eighty-five."

"Ah, that explains it."

"Explains what?"

"He had a small swallow, or rum and romance would have knocked him out in half the time."

Power was rapidly becoming himself again. "I behaved like a stupid boy just now," he said; "but I was never more taken aback in my life. I have not met Mrs. Marten since her marriage, three years ago, and I imagined she was in Europe."

"Oh, is that Mrs. Marten?" chimed in downright Plainville. "Last Sunday's papers whopped her up as the prize beauty of Newport this summer, and I guess they got nearer the truth than usual. "She's a sure winner."

"Did I hear her mention Mrs. Van Ralten?" inquired Dacre.

"Yes, her hostess to-night, I believe."

"Van Ralten and Marten hursied off together to the Caspian last week. They are interested in the oil wells at Baku."

Cymbals seemed to clash in Power's brain, and he heard his own voice saying in a subdued and colorless staccato, "I am sorry I did not know."

Dacre looked at him curiously; but the wine had arrived, a choice vintage of the middle '70's, and the Mexican was lifting his glass.

"El sabio muda consejo; el necio no," he quoted.

The phrase was so apt that Power glanced at the speaker with marked doubt; whereupon the blond Norwegian asked what the senor had said.

"He told us that the wise man changes his mind, but the fool does not," translated Power.

"It's a pity he can't give out the text in good American; for he talks horse sense most of the time. If I had a peach like Mrs. Marten callin' me 'Derry,' damn if I'd quit for a month!"

The general laugh at this dry comment evoked a demand by the Mexican for a Spanish version of the joke. Then he made it clear that he had resolved to abjure wine, and was only salving his conscience by a proverb.

This cheerful badinage, which might pass among any gathering of men when one of them happened to be greeted by a pretty woman, did not leave Power unscathed. He had dwelt too long apart from his fellows not to wince at illusions which would glance harmlessly off less sensitive skins. The iron which had entered into his soul was fused to a white heat by sight of the woman he had lost and loved. He resented what he imagined as being the knowledge these boon companions boasted of his parlous state. Unable to join in their banter, not daring to trust his voice in the most obvious of retorts, for the man from Plainville had not been designed by nature to pose as a squire of dames, he gulped down a glass of champagne at a draft, and pretended to make up for wasted time in an interrupted course.

Dacre seemed to think that he would be interested in the latest gossip in financial circles with reference to a supposed scheme organised by Marten and Van Ralten to fight the Oil Trust. Power listened in silence until he felt sure of himself; then he launched out vigorously.

"It strikes me that America has lost the art of producing great men," he said. "We whites are degenerating into mere money-grubbers; so, by the law of compensation, our next demigod should be a nigger."

"Huh!" snorted Alabama, eager for battle.

"That's my serious opinion," continued Power dogmatically. "And, what's more, I think I know the nigger. Have any of you dined in the Auditorium Hotel, Chicago?"

Yes, several; dining-room on top floor; lightning elevato , all right going up empty, but coming down full was rather a trial.

"Well, you will remember that as you go in, a young coloured gentleman takes your hat and overcoat, and cane or umbrella. He supplies no numbered voucher, and cannot possibly tell at which tables some six or seven hundred diners will be seated. At this time of year every man is wearing a straw hat of similar design; yet, as each guest comes forth, he is handed his own hat and other belongings. Now, I hold that that nigger has a brain of supreme mathematical excellence. There is not a financier in Wall Street who could begin to emulate that feat of memory. Given a chance, and such men make their own opportunities. The Auditorium cloakroom attendant will rise to a dizzy height."

"Tosh!" exclaimed Alabama, primed with facts to prove that hundreds of negroes could perform similar tricks, but were no good for anything else.

He was no match for Power in an argument where figures held a place, and Dacre was the only other man present who realised that the talk had been boldly and skilfully wrenched to an impersonal topic. He, at any rate, made no further allusion to Marten or his projects though he continued to watch Power narrowly but unobtrusively. Himself something of a derelict, though his aimless path lay in summer seas, he had conceived a warm regard for the quiet-mannered stranger from Colorado. Neither he nor any of the others knew aught of Power's history, who might really be the rancher he professed to be, though his student's features and reserved manner did not bear out the assumption. Later, when Dacre was better informed, he realised the cause of his first skepticism, for the engineer belonged to one of those rarer types of mankind who, like the lawyer, the soldier, the physician, and the clergyman, had the seal of his life's work stamped plainly upon him.

Hence, it followed that in a spirit of sheer comradeship and sympathy he kept an eye on Power during the next few days. He saw how matters were tending, and risked a rebuff in offering a friendly hint when disaster was imminent. Above all—whether for good or evil who can judge?—at any rate, the writer of this record of a man's life feels least qualified to decide the point — he brought a dominating influence to bear at a moment when Power was adrift in a maelstrom which threatened to engulf him.

Yet there was slight sign of impending tempest in that bright room with its group of diners seemingly well content with their surroundings. From the adjoining table, which Power could not see owing to the position he occupied, came gusts of animated conversation. Mrs. Van Ralten rejoiced in the loud, penetrating accents of the Middle West, and snatches of her talk were audible.

"I do think James Gordon might have provided a more stylish Casino while he was about it."

"Yes, I sail on the Teutonic first week in August. Nothing will keep Willie away from the moors on the Twelfth."

"Did I see them? My dear, who could miss them? Has anyone ever met such freaks outside a dime museum?"

"Why, Nancy, I don't wonder a little bit that you were such a success in Paris. The nice things I was told about you turned me green with envy."

"Mrs. Van Ralten is a duck," she said joyously, when Power hurried forward. "She has given me half an hour; but I mustn't be a minute later, as she has turned out of her own house to accommodate the Barnstormers from Boston, who are acting for her guests to-night. All Newport will be there. You are coming, Derry. I asked her, and will introduce you afterward. My carriage will wait. But, gracious me, why are you lame?"

He was leading her to a couple of reserved chairs in a plain-shaded nook, and she noticed that he walked with a limp.

WEAKNESS AND PALPITATION OF THE HEART.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitates and throbs, skips beats, and sometimes seems to almost stop, it causes great anxiety and alarm.

Many people become weak, worn and miserable, and are unable to attend to either social, business or household duties.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are a specific for all weakness and heart disorders, and are recommended by us with the greatest of confidence that they will do what we claim for them.

Mrs. George Burridge, Cobocconk, Ont., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I have been troubled with weakness and palpitation of the heart. I tried many remedies but got none to answer my case like your pills did. I can recommend them highly to all with heart or nerve trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A SLIDE ON A ROOF

Terrifying Experience on an Ice Coated Mansard.

FIGHTING DEATH IN MIDAIR

Perilous Plight of Two Workers, and an Exhibition of Coolness, Presence of Mind and Heroic Patience—How the Difficult Rescue Was Effected.

During the fall and winter of 1870 A. T. Stewart, who had bought the Grand Union hotel at Saratoga, largely rebuilt that great hostelry of 2,000 rooms. The building has a mansard roof, and at the peak it is ninety-eight feet from the sidewalk.

One cold winter morning, when the work was virtually completed, two men, Harvey, the head roofer, and a helper named Dennison went up on the roof to finish the flashing round the base of the tower. There had been a slight mist that morning, and it had frozen upon the roof, but the two men had on india rubber overshoes to prevent them from slipping on the slates.

Suddenly, however, Harvey's feet began to slip. He went very slowly at first, for the upper roof of a mansard is not steep. He tried to stop himself, but there was nothing to which he could cling. He turned his head in Dennison's direction to see if he could not give some assistance, but Dennison, too, was sliding slowly down the roof.

Harvey's presence of mind did not leave him. "Lie down flat!" he called. So both men carefully laid themselves at full length on the icy roof in order that the increased friction might retard, and perhaps stop, their descent. For an instant it checked the movement. Then the men began again slowly to slip nearer the angle of the roof and the steep pitch below.

It seemed like hours, although it was only a few moments, when Harvey felt his heels catch on a slight projection. A blind gutter had been built into the lower edge of the upper part of the roof to carry off the large amount of water that would fall upon such an expanse of roof. The upper gutter projected above the slate roof only about half an inch, but it was against this that Harvey's heels had caught.

There he hung on the very brink of the abyss—safe for an instant. He dared not move a muscle, however, or even turn his head to see if Dennison were still on the roof. He did not cry out for help, for he feared that the mere effort of filling his lungs and shouting might dislodge him. No one could see the men on the flat of the roof from the street below. The only hope lay in the carpenters who were at work inside the building. But how should they know what was happening up there on the roof?

Suddenly Harvey heard a voice, low, but distinct, come from the tower above him. "Hold on," it said, "and I'll help you!" Then after a long time Harvey heard the sound of several voices. Whoever had found him had got help.

The first voice spoke again: "Hold on! We will lower this rope to you!"

Presently something rubbed on the slate above Harvey's head. It was the rope, which they were slowly working down toward him.

"Can you get hold of it?" asked the voice.

"I don't dare move much," Harvey replied. "Can't you get it down near my hand?"

They had to give it a flip to get it by his shoulder. Then it traversed the length of his arm and finally touched his hand.

Harvey raised his arm very carefully and took hold of the rope. It was an inch cable that had been used in raising the slate from the ground to the roof.

"Can you turn over very carefully and climb up?" asked the voice.

Cautiously Harvey worked his hand along on the rope—it was his right hand—until he finally drew it taut. Then he carefully raised his left hand and, reaching across, grasped the rope with that hand too.

Then when the worst of the matter was over, he began to shake like a leaf. He lay there, flat on his back, clinging desperately to the rope and dreading inexpressibly the next step. How was he to turn over on that slippery roof when he needed both hands to cling to the rope?

At last he spoke hoarsely:

"Can you pull me up?"

They consulted together.

"I don't dare to turn over," he added.

There was a sharp tug on the rope Harvey let them draw his arms up to their extreme length, still afraid to trust his weight to his rescuers. Then he felt his heels lose their grip on the gutter, and he began slowly to move upward.

It was not till he had nearly reached the tower that he dared turn his head in Dennison's direction to see if he were still safe. There he was, spread out on the roof, just as Harvey had been. He did not move a muscle. Patiently, heroically, he waited his turn. Then the men seized Harvey's shoulders and drew him into the tower.

In a few minutes Dennison was also rescued, looking a little blue round the mouth, but unharmed. Neither man suffered any ill effects from his terrible ordeal.—Youth's Companion.

You can make your skin what you would love to have it

Your skin like the rest of your body is continually changing. Every day, in washing, you rub off dead skin. As this old skin dies, new forms.

This is your opportunity—make this new skin what you would love to have it by using the following treatment regularly.

Make this treatment a daily habit

Just before retiring, rub in gently a warm water lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap—until the skin is softened, the pores opened and the face feels fresh and clean. Rinse in cooler water, then apply cold water—the colder the better—for a full minute. Whenever possible, rub your face for a few minutes with a piece of ice. Always dry the skin thoroughly.

Use this treatment persistently for ten days and your skin will show a marked improvement. Use Woodbury's regularly thereafter, and before long your skin will take on that greater loveliness which the steady use of Woodbury's always brings.

Woodbury's Facial Soap costs 25c a cake. No one hesitates at the price after their first cake.

Do this today—now! Tear out the illustration of the cake below and put it in your purse as a reminder to get Woodbury's and try this treatment. Tear out the cake now. Take it to your druggist today. Smoking Was Banned.

In view of the general popularity of smoking, it is surprising to remember that until, comparatively speaking, a few years ago smoking in public was not considered the correct thing. Mr. Gladstone never could bear it; he smoked only once, and that was when he was the host of King Edward—then Prince of Wales—and when to make his illustrious guest at his ease he ventured on a cigarette. I don't think he liked the experience, writes T. P. O'Connor in "T. P.'s Weekly," and, he adds, I believe he never repeated it. It was not till Herbert Gladstone settled down in Hawarden Castle that there was a smoke-room in that spacious building. Lord Salisbury had, I have heard, the same aversion to tobacco—even to the smell of it. Frederick Harrison, one of the great survivals of the Victorians, retains the same hatred to this day, and will not go into a railway carriage if he knows anybody is going to smoke in it. I remember well the time when smoking carriages were introduced on the railway; it was then considered a daring innovation and a weak concession to a vulgar habit. In the United States, far back in the 'eighties, I remember being told by a political opponent of the late Gen. Grant that he had seen him smoking a cigar while he was driving with his wife, and the incident was noted as a proof of his lack of good breeding.

Smart Newsboy.

A story of the enterprise of a newspaper boy is told by Mr. J. D. Symon in his recently published book on the press. He had only a halfpenny, and it was hardly worth while going on, for luck was very bad; but the farsighted youngster saw a chance of putting himself on the side of a margin of profit. He rushed to the office door and sold his single paper. In an instant he was back at the counter, saying to the publisher: "By-the-by, it's three papers for a penny, isn't it? Here's my other halfpenny; give me the other two papers." On that basis, it is said, a fortune was built up.—London Daily Chronicle.

Three Readings In One Day.

Bills of indemnity are not the only bills that are allowed to pass through all their three readings in a single day. Any bill can be so treated if only it is sufficiently urgent. Probably the record for quick legislation is held by the Irish Habeas Corpus Suspension Act of 1866. This was introduced into Parliament on a Saturday, and a copy of the bill was also sent to the Queen at Osborne. When at the end of a long sitting the bill had passed both Houses a telegram was sent to Osborne, the royal assent signified, and by Saturday evening it was the law of the land.—London Chronicle.

Five Daily Calls to Prayer.

At sunrise the light sleepers are awakened by the long, mellow cry of the muezzin from his tower:

God is great!
I testify that there is no God but God:
I testify that Mohammed is the prophet of God!
Come to prayer!
Come to salvation!
Prayer is better than sleep!
God is most great!
There is no God but God!

As one hears five times each day from the minarets of the mosques of Cairo this summons to prayer, as one beholds the faithful reverently bowing their bodies in their shops or in the public highways, one readily perceives that in Cairo he is near the heart of the Moslem world. These prayers occur at sunrise, midday, 3:30 in the afternoon, at sunset and an hour and a half after sunset. The faithful must attend their prayers with bows and prostrations to show perfect devotion. —Clayton Cooper's "The Man of Egypt."

Molasses For Shoes.

Shipping Louisiana molasses into New England by the hogshead and sending the same hogshead back south again with shoes were incidents of the shoe trade of Avon years ago. It was back in 1840, when the present town of Avon was East Stoughton, that two brothers were in company manufacturing shoes and as a side line ran a grocery and general store in a spot where now stands the postoffice building. One of the brothers went south and located in New Orleans in the grocery business, leaving his brother here to manufacture shoes and boots, according to H. Dexter Littlefield. The brother who was in the South would ship a hogshead of molasses to his brother in Avon and as soon as the hogshead was empty it would be cleaned and would be filled with boots for the southern trade. This practice was kept up for years, and in this way a good trade was built up for Avon footwear.—Boston Globe.

The Thrifty Spirit.

It seems easier to be a deacon or elder nowadays than it was in our fathers' time. The portentous solemnity of countenance has gone out with the "blacks" that used to be essential for the duty of standing at "the plate." Only last Sunday, says a correspondent in the Glasgow News, I laid down my mite under the gaze of quite a sprightly deacon wearing a soft gray hat and a suit of light tweeds! When daddy stands at the plate a certain small boy finds it difficult to observe due decorum as he passes in to worship. In fact, he shows a desire to take his parent's hand and stand at the receipt of collection too. On Sunday, as I sat waiting for the service to begin, listening to the chink of the coin in the "plate" in the vestibule, I heard a young voice uplifted in argument with a fond mamma: "But, mummy, it's daddy! He'll let us in for nothing. Can't I keep my penny for another time?"

PERFECT CURE FOR THE KIDNEYS

Suffered For 10 Months With Terrible Kidney Trouble Until He Learned Of GIN PILLS

"I suffered misery even when under treatment from the best doctors for ten months, and nothing seemed to do me any good or relieve my painful condition. My trouble was Inflammation of the Kidneys and Bladder. I finally determined to go to the Victoria Hospital, Halifax, for treatment. Two days, however, before my intending departure, a neighbor called and happening to have a GIN PILL in his pocket insist on my taking it. I did so, and six hours after taking it, the results and benefits I derived were simply nothing short of miraculous. Instead of going to the hospital, I sent for a box of GIN PILLS, with the result that I am a cured man. I recommend GIN PILLS to everyone suffering from Kidney and Bladder Troubles". LEWIS MACPHERSON.

It makes no difference what you have been using—if you have any trouble with the Kidneys or Bladder—if the Urine is hot and scalding—or if your Back aches or you have Rheumatism—take GIN PILLS and cure yourself. Remember, every box of Gin Pills is sold with a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. 50c. a box. 6 for $2.50 at all druggists. Rain Records.

Records of winters in the past bring to light some accounts of excessive rains, for in 1909 a gauge kept at Monumental, in California, registered 153.54 inches. Only at Glenora, Ore., with a record of 167.29 for a single year, has this rainfall record been exceeded in records for the United States. The heaviest rainfall for a single month ever recorded in the United States was at Helen Mine, Cal., in January, 1900, when 71.54 inches fell. Campo has the record for the heaviest downpour ever recorded in California for a single day. This was eleven and a half inches on Aug. 12, 1891, and all of this fell within eighty minutes. This is far below the American record, however, which is held by Alexandria, La., with a record of 21.4 inches in a single day.—Argonaut.

Getting Into a Water Hole in Three Seconds—Took Seven Hours to Get Out.

One of the Automobiles Abandoned.

In Deep.

Mr. Sylvester and the Party of Refugees.

T RUTH seems always to be robbing fiction of its glamour. One who doubts it and believes that the most stirring tales of daring and danger originate in the fertile brains of unreasonable scribes should have attended a recent dinner where a score of "exiles" gathered for a reunion. The "exiles" were full-pledged American citizens banished from faraway Mexico. There they had known one another before the serenade of the giant guitar gave way to that of bombarding cannon. They had heard both, and even as they listened to the melodious strains of "La Paloma," the popular Mexican anthem which the restaurant orchestra played for them, they seemed to hear with a sense keener than that conveyed by the ear the thundering hoofs of the rebel cavalry under General Francisco Villa, which even then was closing in on the once fair city of Torreon whence these "exiles" came.

Among the most interesting of the stories told of siege times and escapes to the border was that related by Edwin Ruff Sylvester, now living in New York city. With his wife and two children, Anita, four years old, and George, six, he narrowly missed death when General Villa besieged Torreon last July, and their flight across the Mexican desert two hundred miles in an automobile was beset by adventures which might well furnish the plot for a novel of daring and danger.

"I lived with my family near the rubber company's plant where I was employed," Mr. Sylvester said. "Our home was midway between one of the last battles of Villa's first campaign against Torreon. The first warning I had of danger occurred about four o'clock one July morning when we were awakened by some one pounding on the door with the butt of a musket.

"'If you don't open we will shoot,' a voice cried in Spanish.

A Voice in the Night.

"My wife and I were silent, as were the children, for we had trained them to be quiet when we were disturbed at night, knowing that prowlers were after food and would depart if they thought the house empty. After banging the door again our early morning visitor departed. An hour later I was surprised on leaving the house to see our plant occupied by constitutionalist troops. Walking about two rods in the direction of the city, I saw a squadron of federal cavalry approaching at a gallop. I ran as fast as I could to my home, told my wife and we placed the children in the only safe place in the house, that being in the brick walled fireplace. Hastily we barred the doors and closed the shutters of the house, and none too soon. Scarcely had we finished the task when there was a jangle of sabres from the approaching cavalry and the rattle of musketry from the constitutionalists. Scores of the latter poured from the plant and just had gained the vicinity of our little home when they met the federals.

The House a Refuge.

"The report of rifles, screams of the wounded, moans of the dying, my little children huddled in the fireplace and my wife in terror fearing for their safety, made a picture which I shall never forget." Mr. Sylvester continued after a slight pause:—"Many of the dismounted soldiery sought shelter from a rain of bullets on our front stoop. Some of them tried to enter our home, but the doors and shutters fortunately held fast. Finally the constitutionalists were driven back and out of our plant and only the dead and dying were left."

Mr. Sylvester said that the Mexicans are brave fighters and that during the engagement he saw several of them attempt to take a Maxim gun from the federals. When within a few feet of the gun it was touched off and one soldier received seven bullets in his breast, despite which he staggered toward it until he fell.

With his wife, children and six other Americans Mr. Sylvester escaped from Torreon in two automobiles. Receiving President Wilson's warning that Americans should leave Mexico a month after it had been made, many Americans in Torreon believed that it meant sure intervention on the part of this government. Believing that interference in Mexican affairs might lead to a massacre of American citizens, many of the latter made haste to flee.

There was no train service and after some difficulty Mr. Sylvester and his friends purchased two automobiles—a Stoddard-Dayton and an Overland car. The manner in which they purposed to flee made light travelling equipment necessary, consequently each of the party left with only a suit case. A limited amount of provisions and water could be carried because it was necessary to take along a quantity of gasoline. Three weeks prior to their departure it had rained incessantly and the roads, none too good in dry weather, practically were impassable near Torreon. To escape them the automobiles and their occupants travelled on a box-car to a point twenty miles northeast, of the terminus of the railroad, and then the flight of nine days, filled with perils from bandits, thirst, hunger, heat and mechanical mishaps, began.

"We had smooth running for only an hour and then our troubles started," Mr. Sylvester asserted. "There was an innocent looking puddle of water across the road and it took us just three seconds to run into the middle of it. It took us seven hours to get out, for mud and slime clogged the machinery and came to the body of the car. With the assistance of the other machine and by wading waist deep in the mud we managed to be on our way again. But only for an hour. Dusk was falling as we entered a deep canyon. Scarcely were we between the towering walls of rock when a man stepped into the road and with a rifle ready for use commanded us to stop. As we slowed up another peon on horseback appeared at a turn in the road. My wife grasped the American flag and showed it just as we stopped.

"'What's that rag?' the man afoot asked with a sneer.

"'American flag, and we are American citizens bound for Saltillo,' one of the party answered hotly.

"'You cannot pass here,' the horseman said. 'Our chieftain has forbidden any one to pass. You must come with us to the mountains and wait. He will be here to-morrow afternoon.'

"I think every one had his hand on a gun," Mr. Sylvester continued. "We hesitated to shoot because of my wife and children.

"Leaning toward my wife I whispered in English:—'There seems to be no other way out of it. Shall we kill them?'

"'Yes,' she replied quite calmly, adding, 'if there is no other way. But please lure them a short distance away so that their shots cannot strike the children.'

"At this juncture in the conversation the chauffeur started his engines, whereupon both bandits covered my wife and children with their guns. The engine was stopped and with a friend I asked the two men to follow us a few feet up the canyon. We proposed to have it out there. However, as we walked my friend remarked that two peons would not be sufficiently foolhardy to try to hold up two automobiles and we came to the conclusion that their band must be near at hand. We offered each of the men a $50 United States gold certificate, which they took and allowed us to pass.

A Dangerous Belt.

"It is lucky we did not attempt to shoot them," Mr. Sylvester said. "Because we met a score of bandits a few hundred feet away hiding behind rocks."

The party then drove until two o'clock the following morning. Late in the afternoon a pin was broken off the transmission on one of the machines. After two hours of work with a file and a monkey wrench a new one was made. Soon after dusk two forty saw a ranch house and something it were refused admission. The lone peon in charge of the hacienda told the Americans that revolutionists were in the habit of stopping there for a carouse and that they might make trouble for him if he harbored them. After much persuasion he agreed to let them remain. Mrs. Sylvester and the children occupied the rear room, while the men took turns at sleeping and staying on guard the remainder of the night.

Prior to the start the next morning little Anita and George were found playing with several pieces of pipe in the flower garden. Mr. Sylvester found that each pipe contained a stick of dynamite and that the bombs evidently had been left there by the last party of foragers to stop there.

"We made splendid progress until that afternoon, when one of the machines was put out of commission by colliding with a pile of rock," Mr. Sylvester continued. "It was hopelessly wrecked and we abandoned it. Leaving three of our party and a Mexican chauffeur, we pushed on with my wife and children. At dusk we made camp, ate from our scanty supply of food and waited until the moon rose.

Caught in a Water Hole.

"The morning of the following or third day of our flight we were caught in another water hole. Without the aid of the other automobile we were powerless. For three hours we tried to dislodge the machine. Then we sat down, our hopes of escape settling as deep in a slough of despondency as our machine was in mud.

"To amuse him I let little George shoot my revolver and I fancy he made one of the luckiest shots he ever will make, for the noise attracted the attention of the driver of an overland wagon. He drove up to us with his six mules and proved to be an American. We hooked with him and then his team pulled our machine almost out of the mud. A peon passed with several more mules and these, with the American's, got us out."

Mr. Sylvester asserted that the remainder of the day was passed in cross-country riding. It was necessary often to remove jagged rocks from the ground so that the automobile could proceed. That afternoon saw the finish of the tires on the machine and the remainder of the journey was made on the rims. Gobernador plants, which grow in profusion there, were wound about the rims and tied and afforded some protection to them.

Toward evening they were stopped again by two armed men and directed to proceed to a hacienda several miles distant. There they saw 600 constitutionalist troops. After explaining to the commanding officer their predicament, they were given rooms in the ranch house, fed and treated with every courtesy. The next morning their three friends came in with the automobile that had been abandoned. They were riding in the machine, which was drawn by oxen. Their appearance caused much merriment among the troopers. Prior to their departure the constitutionalist leader offered them an escort of fifty men. They declined, fearing they might meet federal troops and that a battle would ensue.

"Leaving our three friends who had come in by 'automobile' to try for the border with a peddler, we rode away from the ranch house," the speaker continued. "We began to climb mountain ranges and our path was beset with rocks, streams and other difficulties. That night it was cold. We dug holes in the ground and slept in them with our blankets around us. All about us we could see beacon lights and camp fires of the constitutionalist forces. The fifth day we were hot. I remember we attempted to climb a razorback looking hill and it was necessary for us to get out and push the machine. We could find no sign of a road or trail and wandered about quite a bit. That night our food had given out and we had only about a gallon of water."

Almost Exhausted from Hunger.

"The next day the Camino real, or Royal road, the following day and were making fair speed when thirty men rode out from behind a hill and stopped them. They told who they were and asked where they could obtain food and water. The soldiers gave them cigarettes and directed them to a ranch house seven miles away, where they bought a few eggs and tortillas.

Then the Americans drove on the roadbed of what had once been the National Railroad of Mexico. Late in the day they came to an arroyo, or ditch, which was twelve feet wide and filled with water. It was necessary for them to walk several miles down the track to a pile of old cross ties and carry them back in order to build a bridge. After making a crossing they were stopped again by troops, who allowed them to proceed.

"We lived on one egg and one tortilla each on the following day," Mr. Sylvester asserted. "We passed several ranch houses, but for the most part they were deserted and those inhabited had no food to give away, for the foragers of the army had successfully cleaned almost every larder in that section.

"We were all very much exhausted by this time. The sun was hot during the day, the country was dusty, with every now and then a dust storm. Water also was very scarce and the canned milk we brought for the children had given out. They were feeling the effects of the terrible journey, and so was my wife.

"About noon on the eighth day we felt like shooting each other and giving up. We accidentally ran our faithful Stoddard-Dayton into the ditch and irreparably destroyed the engine. Everybody felt like crying except my wife, who suggested that a friend and I walk ahead and attempt to locate a ranch house or ranchman with horses in this most desolate country. Six miles away we found a ranch house and there rented two mules. With them we pulled the machine to the house, where we abandoned it. The mules were hitched to a light wagon and, with the peon driving, we set out for a ride of forty miles to Saltillo. At dusk we camped and waited for the moon.

"With her bright rays to light us we began our journey up a steep mountain pass. My wife sat on blankets, while the children slept with their heads in her lap. In the course of about four hours we had ascended three thousand feet and it was terribly cold. But Saltillo lay in front of us. We could see tiny lights about the town and we knew these were camp fires of the soldiers.

Other Americans Escape from City.

"At dawn we drove in. Straight to the hotel we went and, by paying an almost fabulous price, we were given the best suite of rooms there. I shall never forget the joy and luxury of a bath. Everybody turned in and slept almost eighteen hours. The following morning, ten days after leaving Torreon, we boarded a train for the border. The train was loaded with the sick and suffering of the constitutionalist forces, but we had become accustomed to suffering. All we thought of was to get back to the good old U. S. A., and I never thought Laredo, Texas, could look as good as it did to us when our train pulled in and we knew our trials and tribulations were over."

AUCTION BRIDGE

By Prospero

MY second article, treating of the factors that to-day control the bids, furnishes a coincidence an equal to which will be found with difficulty. The same day a leading newspaper—there was occasion previously to refer to it—published an expert's synopsis of a game in Nassau, Bahamas. The bidding had run to 3 clubs. The expert then said 3 no trumps, "realizing the moment the words were out of my mouth that two would have been sufficient. Result, 3 no trumps set by one. The mistake lost the play. That same date my arguments appeared proposing bids by rank only, to avoid frequent mistakes and confusion, when a compound, tricks with trick value, rules the final decision.

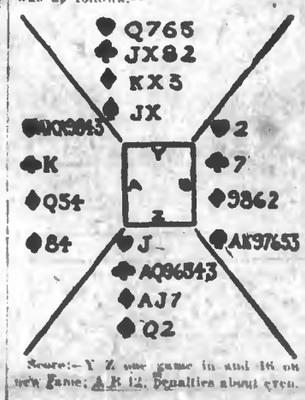
"Among the many questions come to hand, most frequently occurs the one, Why do you say negative suit-bids are not practicable? Mind, I do not say they cannot be played—only that they are not likely to establish themselves against positive suit-trumpers.

I shall endeavor to clear up this point. Making a positive suit-declaration, like club, diamond, &c., you advertise your hand as holding a commanding position with that suit, some 5 or 6 sure tricks. Your partner should take 2 tricks: he should have a trick and a raiser, at least, to go better in your selection: or try his own, if more promising, or as a warning. With a negative declaration in a suit, the fact is announced of your being blank in that suit. As a negative no-trumper, your hand possesses four times the chances of making good to the one chance as a negative suit-trumper.

Being yourself without that suit, the thirteen cards lie between the two opponents and your partner. "If between the former, they will not fail to overcall you—the positive bid outweighing the negative, besides having given away your weak point for no purpose. If your partner holds the suit you bid minus 4n; he must bid it as a suit-trumper, positively.

A negative declaration in no-trumps simply states general weakness, perhaps a long suit with top cards, but mostly cards below the seven spot; also singleton or blank. Not sufficiently strong for a suit-bid, the proper management of discards of high or "free lance" cards will relieve you and help putting the tricks unto adversaries. Minus a suit means no sin on your side, all for the other side. It would best be omitted.

Test hand No. 3, shown on March 8, was as follows:—



Score:—Y Z one game in and 16 on new game; A B 12, penalties about even.

While Y Z must try their best for game, wanting but 14 to go and win the rubber, A B may bid the extra 2 royals save their game, or go higher with the purpose of being set, sacrifice perhaps 50, but gaining another chance to be games even.

As far as I have examined the replies this consideration was overlooked. In actual play the bids were:—

Z a club, A a heart, Y 2 clubs, B 2 royals (warning to A of heart weakness).

Z 3 clubs, A 3 hearts (warning to B of feebleness in his spades).

Y 4 clubs is beyond their strength, with one suit on each side against them; if A B play cautiously, 3 clubs odd is all Y Z can take.

B, on singletons in heart and club, sees chance for his long spades, also that 3 royals, value 27, are so much easier than 4 clubs of opposition, stands to his colors with 3 royals. Closed.

A B take 3 odd, their contract, 27, and one game.

Y Z mark their simple honors 18, above line—or almost as much as the trick count; luck vs. skill.

If the bidding had proceeded by rank, A B had to go to 4 royals, and are set. Both the declarants, Y Z at 4 clubs, A B at 4 royals, had been punished for some pretty hard fibs flying.

Will my readers subject this hand to an attempt at negative play? Would it answer? If so, which hand would? How would it be bid? Where would it close? What result?

By the trials and studies of such examples auto-plays will establish themselves in popular favor.

REPORT IS DRASTIC.

Presbyterian Investigators Urge War On Social Evil.

CHICAGO, May 21.—"No toleration; no regulation; no recognition." This is the suggested slogan of the Presbyterian Church to be presented to the 126th General Assembly which convenes here to-day, in the report of the special committee on white slave traffic.

The report estimates that there are 100,000 prostitutes in the United States and a far greater number are unchaste. Contributing factors in this condition are the fashions, dances, the theatre, literature and ignorance. The principal remedy suggested is the enlightened training of the young.

The report concludes with a set of resolutions calling upon pastors to guard children against all factors of life which conduce to immorality; commending those pastors who have taken up the subject frankly with fathers and mothers, and calling upon others to do so; recognizing the work of juvenile courts; demanding the punishment of men as well as women offenders against morality, and approving all legislation looking to the eradication of prostitution.

Got Off Because Drunk.

BRANTFORD, May 21. — Michael Driscoll, late of Hamilton, appeared in the police court yesterday morning on two charges, one of disorderly conduct, and the other of attempting to stab Jessie Strickland, a servant, who refused to give him a sandwich after giving him some bread. On the first charge, he was allowed to go, he pleading that "it was whisky that did it." Magistrate Livingston held that as the man was drunk he was not responsible.

TO REMOVE HAIRS ALMOST LIKE MAGIC

(Helps to Beauty)

Much favourable comment is being made upon the new formula for removing disfiguring hairs. One serious objection arises and that is, any woman can employ this treatment in her own home and thus deprive the beauty specialist of her fee. For the benefit of others, the formula is here repeated: Mix some delatone with water; apply to hairy surface and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off and with it comes every hair. The skin should then be washed to free it from the remaining delatone.

NAVAL RESERVE PLANNED.

Government Will Vote Money For Coast Defence Training.

OTTAWA, May 21. — A volunteer naval reserve force for Canada will soon be an accomplished fact. An order in council has been passed by the Government and signed by the Duke of Connaught authorizing the establishment of such a force.

A sum will be placed in the supplementary estimates sufficient for this year's work and preparations for the organization of volunteers have already been made by the naval service department.

The first volunteer naval force to be established is at Victoria, B.C., where there has been an official organization for some time maintained by private individuals. This will receive official recognition. Admiral Kingsmill has left for Victoria to arrange details.

The Niobe and Rainbow will be utilized for the Atlantic and Pacific for training purposes, and in course of time other war vessels will be secured for training purposes on the great lakes.

Instructors from the British navy will be engaged.

The headquarters of the new force will be at Ottawa, but it will be divided into three divisions: the Atlantic, the great lakes and the Pacific. On the Atlantic coast the divisional headquarters will be Halifax, and the scope will be all along the St. Lawrence as far as Montreal.

Toronto will be the headquarters of the great lakes division, which will include the Ottawa river, the upper St. Lawrence, the great lakes and all waterways as far as the Rocky Mountains.

Esquimalt will be the headquarters of the Pacific division, which will have control of all the waters west of the Rockies. There will be three systems of training available for volunteers of all classes.

A Culinary Experiment.

The friends of a certain distinguished professor frequently dropped into his laboratory for a chat in the evening, says the Boston Herald. Generally, they found him busily engrossed in some experiment.

One evening, when two friends called, they found the professor bending anxiously over a spirit lamp, on which a small pot was bubbling.

"Well," said one of the callers, "what is it tonight?"

"Guess," murmured the professor.

"Micrococci?" asked one.

"No."

"Pneumococci?" asked the other.

"No."

"Spirochaetae?"

"No."

The callers ran the scale of micro-organisms as far as they knew it. Then one of them said:

"Well, we give it up! What is it?"

The professor smiled blandly. "Sausages!"

Many Skins Seized.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., May 21.—When the provincial police searched the Hudson Bay Co.'s post at Long Lake, about 100 miles north of Jackfish, on the C.P.R., last Sunday, 424 beaver, 80 otter and 1,324 muskrat skins were found. William Thompson, the manager, when brought before the magistrate at Nepigon pleaded guilty and asked to have his case remanded. His request was granted, and the case will come up for trial in a few days. The entire number of pelts are valued at $10,000, and figuring the penalty for each skin, the maximum fine would amount to $117,000.

Score Healed By Prayer.

KINGSTON, May 21.—That a score or more Kingston people have been healed by prayer is the claim of Earl W. Clark, who is conducting a special service for members of the apostolic faith. The most conspicuous case is that of the five-year-old son of Mrs. E. E. Vallier. The lad's arm was paralysed until Sunday night. Mrs. J. Pound, suffering from varicose veins, was cured, and many others cured of rheumatism, it is claimed.

To Sue Government.

WINNIPEG, May 21.—It is stated that relatives of R. J. Reid, at Auburn, Ont., former Winnipeg policeman, killed at Stony Mountain penitentiary, intend taking action against the Dominion Government, based on the jury's finding that the scaffold on which Reid and another prisoner were working fell and carried them to death because of its faulty construction.

HOW THIN PEOPLE CAN PUT ON FLESH

A New Discovery

Thin men and women—that big, hearty filling dinner you ate last night. What became of all the fat-producing nourishment it contained? You haven't gained in weight one ounce. That food passed from your body like unburned coal through an open grate. The material was there, but your food doesn't work and stick, and the plain truth is you hardly get enough nourishment from your meals to pay for the cost of cooking. This is true of thin folks the world over. Your nutritive organs, your functions of assimilation, are sadly out of gear and need reconstruction.

Cut out the foolish foods and fussy sawdust diets. Omit the fatal cream rub-ons. Cut out everything but the meals you are eating now and eat with every one of these a single Sargol tablet. In two weeks note the difference. Five to eight good solid pounds of healthy, "stay there" fat should be the net result. Sargol charges your weak, stagnant blood with millions of fresh nerve blood corpuscles—gives the blood the carrying power to deliver every ounce of fat-making material in your food to every part of your body. Sargol, too, mixes with your food and prepares it for the blood in easily assimilated form. Thin people grab all the way from 10 to 20 pounds a month while taking Sargol, and the new flesh stays put. Sargol tablets are a scientific combination of the of the best flesh producing elements known to chemistry. They come 40 tablets to a package, are pleasant, harmless and inexpensive, and all druggists sell them subject to an absolute guarantee of weight increase or money back.

ABSORBS SKIN, CHASES WRINKLES—YOUNG AGAIN

"The shock at beholding myself in the glass after nine long weeks abed, nearly caused a relapse," writes Emily Colson in Home Queen. "The faded face, with its lines of illness and worry, seemed twenty years older. Now, I thought, I could not attend my chum's wedding, eleven days off, to which I had looked hopefully forward.

"She herself came to my rescue. She procured an ounce of ordinary mercolized wax at the druggists, which she made me spread on like cold cream, washing it off next morning. Applied slightly, this apparently absorbed the withered skin, so gently, I experienced no discomfort. Upon the wedding morn the pallid complexion had entirely given way to one of youthful colour and loveliness.

"And there wasn't a wrinkle. This due to a wash lotion, made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. The daily face bath had dispersed every line."

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Mrs. Emma Lasco, Chicago, has celebrated her one hundredth birthday.

The Countess of Warwick taboos furs and also will not wear feathers except those of an ostrich.

Mrs. John Ward, daughter of the late Whitelaw Reid, will erect an institute in London as a memorial to her father.

Mlle. Helene Miropolsky, a member of the Paris bar, urges women to educate themselves for diplomatic positions.

Miss Millie M. Mariner is probably the only female submarine diver in the world. She is an Englishwoman and is a fully qualified diver.

Miss Isabelle Caruthers, bailiff of the Chicago court of domestic relations, is the only woman bailiff in the United States. Miss Caruthers prefers reforming people to arresting them.

Maggie Mitchell, once a famous actress, is now eighty-two. She became famous overnight, for her Fanchon dance. Miss Mitchell left the stage years ago after making a comfortable fortune and now lives on Long Island.

Forest Notes.

The tenth successive year without a forest fire has just been passed by the Powell national forest in south central Utah.

Yellow poplar, or tulip tree, the largest hard wood tree in America, has been known to reach nearly 200 feet in height and ten feet in diameter.

Pennsylvania has about 7,500,000 acres of timber land, one-eighth of which is owned by the state. The total value of the state's timber is $130,000,000.

Mistletoe thrives on our western maples to an extent not approached in the east. In many places this parasitic growth is responsible, directly or indirectly, for a considerable loss of timber.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, May 20.—Despite heavy selling to realize profits, the wheat market today advanced to the highest point thus far recorded on the crop. Alarming reports of damage from Hessian fly kept speculators in a turmoil, and made the close strong at a rise of 7-8c to 1 5-8c net. Corn gained 1-4c to 3-8c and oats 5-8c to 1 1-4c. Provisions finished a shade off to an upturn of 15c.

CHEESE MARKETS.

MADOC, May 20.—Four hundred and ten boxes cheese boarded; all sold at 13 13-16c.

PETERBORO, May 20.—Five hundred and seventy-five boxes cheese boarded; part sold at 1 1-16c; part at 13c.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, May 20.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 52 cars, comprising 489 cattle, 1688 hogs, 346 sheep and lambs and 530 calves.

Butchers.

Choice steers, "loads," at $8 to $8.25; and one extra quality load $8.40; good to choice at $7.75 to $8; fair to good at $7.50 to $7.75; common at $7 to $7.40; choice cows at $7 to $7.50; good at $6.50 to $6.75; common cows at $5 to $5.75; canners and cutters at $3.50 to $4.50; choice bulls at $7 to $7.50; good at $6.50 to $6.75; common bulls at $5 to $6.25.

Stockers and Feeders.

The market for stockers and feeders held about steady. Choice steers, 800 to 900 lbs., sold at $7.25 to $7.50; steers, 700 to 800 lbs., sold at $7 to $7.25; steady heifers, $6.75 to $7.10; short-keep feeders, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, sold at $7.40 to $7.60.

Milkers and Springers.

Receipts of milkers and springers yesterday were light, not enough to supply the demand. Prices were very firm at $60 to $100, and one extra quality Shorthorn springer brought $125.

Veal Calves.

Receipts of veal calves were larger but prices were just as firm as at the commencement of the week. Choice calves sold at $9.50 to $10; good calves, $8 to $9; medium, $7 to $8, and common, $6.75 to $7.

Sheep and Lambs.

There were 346 sheep and lambs reported on sale. Prices were firm. Sheep, ewes, sold at $6.50 to $7.75; rams, $5 to $6.50; clipped sheep and lambs, $6 to $6.50; yearling natives, unclipped, $8.25 to $8.50; spring lambs, $7 to $10 each.

Hogs.

The hog market was firmer. Selects, fed and watered sold at $9.35 to $9.40, and $9 to $9.09 f.o.b., and $9.50 to $9.65 weighed off cars.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, May 20.—At the C.P.R. live stock market offerings were 200 cattle, 200 sheep and lambs, 1500 hogs and 900 calves. The trade in cattle was rather quiet, owing to the fact that some of the largest packers are operating direct with Toronto for their supplies, and therefore the demand was somewhat limited. The tone of the market was firm and prices were well maintained, with sales of good to choice steers at $8 to $8.75; fair at $7 to $7.50, and the lower grades at from $6.25 to $6.50, while choice butchers' cows sold at $7.50 to $7.75, and the lower grades from that down to $5.75, and bulls from $6 to $6.25 per 100 pounds.

A weaker feeling developed in the market for hogs again today and prices showed another decline of 10c to 15c per 100 pounds, owing to the fact the offerings were much larger than expected, especially from the Canadian Northwest.

EAST BUFFALO LIVE STOCK.

EAST BUFFALO, N.Y., May 20.—Cattle—Receipts, 1,0; steady; prices unchanged.

Veals—Receipts, 150; active and 25c to 50c higher; $5 to $12.

Hogs—Receipts, 2300; active and steady to 5c higher; heavy, $9.30 to $9.40; mixed, $9.15 to $9.25; yorkers, $9.00 to $9.10; pigs, $8.85 to $9; roughs, $7.50 to $7.65; stags, $6.00 to $6; dairies, $8.00 to $8.90.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 1800; fairly steady; weights active; lambs, $6 to $8.50; yearlings, $6 to $7.75; wethers, $7.25 to $7.50; ewes, $6.50 to $6; sheep, mixed, $6.50 to $6.15.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, May 20.—Cattle—Receipts, 20,000; market, strong; beeves, $6.60 to $9.30; Texas steers, $7.10 to $8.20; Western steers, $6.40 to $8.65; stockers and feeders, $5.65 to $8.75; cattle, $7.50 to $10.60.

Hogs—Receipts, 23,000; market, lower; light, $9.30 to $9.57½; mixed, $9.25 to $9.57½; heavy, $9.10 to $9.55; rough, $9.10 to $9.25; pigs, $7.50 to $9.40; bulk of sales, $9.45 to $9.55.

Sheep—Receipts, 22,000; market, slow; natives, $6.10 to $8.20; yearlings, $8.15 to $7.75; lambs, native, $6.30 to $8.45; spring lambs, $8.75 to $9.50.

OVER AN ARCH.

A Narrow Escape From a Broken Snow Bridge in the Arctic.

The perils of travel over the ice cap of Greenland are often mentioned in "Lost In the Arctic" by Captain Bjnar Mikkelsen. Whenever he and his companions made a sledge journey they met again and again with uncomfortably narrow escapes. Often the treacherous snow collapsed beneath their feet and left them grasping on the edge of a deep ice fissure. Some of the snow bridges over wide crevasses are safe; others suddenly and unexpectedly break. Naturally it was not pleasant to crawl out on these bridges to test their strength before sending the dog team over. But it had to be done. Captain Mikkelsen tells the story of one such crossing:

I pull myself together, tie a rope round my waist and give Iversen the other end. He sits down on the edge of the crevasse with his feet braced hard against the solid snow and hangs on to the rope, while I creep out slowly and cautiously distributing my weight over as large an area as possible. Every time I drive the ice spear in I can hear the hollow sound beneath me. It means a fall of perhaps a thousand feet if the snow gives way. If the bridge holds up to the middle we reckon that it is safe, and if it bears me as I walk back we reckon that we can take the sledges over. Slowly and cautiously I get up, stand a moment balancing on my feet, and then back I go, while Iverson hauls in on the rope. I tread as heavily as I dare and try not to think about what will happen if it does not bear.

We get the sledges over somewhat to our surprise. We drive over other fissures and, growing bolder, cease to think of danger. There is a very broad one ahead, which I get over all right with my sledge, but just as I am turning round to see how the other sledge is getting on I hear a shout from Iverson.

As I look round he is hanging down halfway through the snow of the bridge, a good ten feet of it has fallen away behind him. He clutches the sledge, which is still hanging over the abyss, but the dogs do not seem to notice anything, they simply keep on pulling, and soon Iverson and the sledge are once more on firm ground.

"See that?" said Iverson, glancing back at the hole and looking quite pleased with himself. "Near go, wasn't it?"

A Book By 2,000 Scholars.

Wilfred Merton has lent to the London library a volume containing two sections of the famous Chinese encyclopedia, which he picked up for a small sum in a London book shop.

The volume comprises sections 19,843 and 19,844, and chiefly deals with the subject of bamboos. The "Yung-Lo-Ta-Tien," or "Great Dictionary of Yung Lo," comprises, as pointed out by Prof. Giles in the Nineteenth Century of April, 1901, 22,877 separate sections bound up into 11,100 volumes, "each half an inch in thickness, so that were all the volumes laid flat one upon another the column thus formed would reach a height of 460 feet, or nearly forty-six feet higher than the top of St. Paul's.

The Great Encyclopedia of China easily ranks as the biggest literary undertaking in the world, having had over 2,000 scholars engaged in its compilation and containing a total of 917,480 pages and 366,982,000 characters.

Moonlight.

Many readers may not be aware of the fact that the full moon gives several times more than twice the light of the half moon. They may be still more surprised to learn that the ratio is approximately as nine to one. The reason for the remarkable difference is to be found in the varying angles of reflection presented by the roughened surface of our satellite to the sun. The moon is brighter between first quarter and full than between full and last quarter. The cause of this is evident in the more highly reflective character of that part of the moon which lies west of its meridian.

Would Keep Invention Secret.

LONDON, May 21. — It is stated that the Government wishes to maintain the secret of the new safety aeroplane which is the property of the War Department. While this would give a great advantage to the British army aerial service, it is pointed out by some that it would be against the interest of humanity in the conquest of the air. The King is enthusiastic over the new machine. After witnessing a flight at Aldershot he exclaimed, "Why haven't you a hundred of these in the army."

Easy Way To Stop Hair From Coming Out

A harmless home remedy, compounded principally from the powerful juice of the Pernambuco shrub of Peru, has been found highly effective in promptly checking the falling of hair from the scalp. Men and women chronically hair is growing alarmingly thin, and falling out badly every day should try it without fail, as the ingredients are perfectly harmless and very inexpensive and the whole thing can be prepared at home or by any druggist. Merely mix together in an 8 oz. bottle 2 oz. Bay Rum, 1 oz. Orexine, 6 oz. Soft Rain and ½ drachm of Menthol Crystals. Shake well and allow to stand for an hour, when it is ready for use. The Layoud in the above is the pharmaceutical name of the Pernambuco juice as diluted and scientifically prepared for medical purposes. To stop the hair from coming out and to quickly start a fine growth of new hair all over the scalp, rub this lotion briskly into the scalp with the finger tips or a medium hard brush for about five minutes each night and morning. After three or four days use in this way you cannot find a single loose or straggling hair. Dandruff will disappear and itching cease and in about ten days you will find your scalp covered with a thick growth of fine downy new hairs, which will grow with amazing rapidity.

NOTES AND CLEANINGS

The life history of the eel is mysterious and as slippery as its skin. Its breeding grounds are in mid-Atlantic, at what depth nobody knows; and while the larval eel remains a year at sea it never eats, and grows constantly smaller in swimming a thousand miles to the mouth of some of some fresh-water stream. It then changes fro mthe thinness of a visiting card, and a transparency that permits only its glistening black eyes to be seen, to the pigmented snakelike fish that is trapped and speared on the coast and in rivers. They all die after the first spawning of 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 eggs—nobody knows how. No adults ever come in from the sea, no adults remain in the streams. Fish Commissioner Smith says of the eel in The National Geographic Magazine:

Here is a vertebrate animal, emerging from an egg less than one-twenty-fifth of an inch in diameter, growing to a length of three inches in perhaps a year, buffeted about on the high seas, and drifting over a distance of 1,00 miles or more, and yet during the entire period taking no food whatever and deaf less incapable of doing so owing to a unprepared condition of its digestive organs.

Removing Old Wall Paper.

A good way to remove old wall-paper is to use the following solution: A thick, pasty solution should be made by adding flour and a few spoons of salt to boiling water. After this is made, add a few ounces of acetic acid, which may be purchased at any drug store. This pasty solution should be applied with a brush to the old wallpaper in quantities. After a few minutes the old paper can be removed in great strips very easily, and with very little dust or dirt. Hot sal soda water or hot vinegar is also employed in removing old paper.

Farm and Dairy Market Report

Toronto, Monday, May 18. — "There is still a strange lack of optimism on the part of our wholesale houses regarding the immediate future of trade," says the Montreal Trade Bulletin. It would seem that the unsatisfactory condition which the wholesale men are meeting in the clearings with which remittances are coming in. Retail merchants are finding it hard to dispose of their stock of goods, and consequently cannot meet their obligations. All eyes are now on the new crop and its progress will decide the trend of trade.

Seeding conditions have varied very widely. In a large section of Eastern Ontario and throughout a good part of the West, conditions have been ideal for getting the seed in the ground, although unfavorably to growth. In some sections, however, continual wet weather has kept the farmers off the land, and in one section of South-Western Ontario all the low-lying land is under water.

The markets of the past week reveal firmness in grains and straw. The only markedly easier feeling is in butter.

WHEAT

A green bug scare has been the latest factor in the wheat market. On the whole, however, prospects are still good for a record crop. The United States winter wheat crop is in good condition and as harvesting will start in four or five weeks, nothing can damage the crop markedly. The spring wheat crop is also doing well. In the Canadian West seeding has been delayed by wet weather. Quotations here are: No. 1 Northern, 97½c; No. 2, 97½c; Ontario, $1.02 to $1.04.

COARSE GRAINS

Oats, both Ontario and Western, are particularly firm, although no great amount of trading is done. Quotations are as follows: Oats, C.W. No. 2, 43c; No. 3, 42½c; Ontario, 37½c to 40½c; corn, 73½c; rye, 65c to 66c; peas, 80c to $1.05; barley, 46c to 60c; feed, 40c; buckwheat, 65c to 65c. Montreal wholesale dealers quotes: Oats, C.W. No. 2, 43c; No. 3, 42½c; corn, 71c to 75c; barley, malting, 55c to 65c; feed, 54½c to 55c; buckwheat, 65c to 65c; rye, 72c to 73c; peas, $1.60 to $1.70.

MILL FEEDS

As predicted last week, mill feeds have taken a slight drop. Bran, $20 to $24 shorts, $25 to $25; middlings, $29 to $30; feed flour, $30 to $32. Montreal dealers quote bran at $23; shorts, $25 middlings, $28; feed flour, $29 to $32.

HAY AND STRAW

Receipts of hay are limited and merchants are buying on the track at $14 to $14.50 for No. 1; No. 2, $13 to $13; No. 3, $9 to $9; baled straw, $8 to $8.50. At Montreal the market is higher and No. 1 quality is hard to get at $16 to $16.50. No. 2, $14 to $15.75; No. 3, $12 to $13.

EGGS AND POULTRY

Country buyers are not so anxious for supplies and quotations have decreased slightly. Toronto dealers are paying 22c to 23c and Montreal wholesalers, 22½c to 23c, Toronto usually being a little in advance of Montreal. Poultry quotations rule firm. Spring broilers are now in the market. Quotations: Dressed fowl, 17c to 18c; alive, 16c to 16c; yearling chickens, 18c to 20c; alive, 16c to 16c; spring broilers, alive, 1½ lbs. or over 35c to 40c; spring ducks, dressed, 20c.

POTATOES AND BEANS

Potatoes have advanced again and dealers are now glad to get them at $1.15 in car lots. New Brunswick potatoes are quoted $1.25. At Montreal too the market is higher, prices having advanced 5c in two weeks. Green Mountains are quoted $1.30 to $1.35, as compared with 90c to 95c a year ago. Quebec white potatoes, $1.10 to $1.15.

Beans too are up, primes being quoted $2.10; hand picked, $2.20. At Montreal three-pound pickers are quoted $1.85 one-pound pickers, $1.95.

HIDES AND WOOL

Quotations are: Hides, cured, 16½c to 15c; part cured, 13½c to 14c; green, 12c to 13½c; horse hides, $4.50 to $5; horse hair, 30c to 35c; calf skins, cured, 17½c to 18c; deacons, 75c to $1.10; lamb skins 40c to 50c; shearling skins, $1.10 to $1.20.

The new clip is arriving and wool prices have advanced. Unwashed, coarse 18c; fine, 19c; washed rejects, 20c to 22½c; coarse, 26½c to 28½c; fine, 25½c to 27½c.

DAIRY PRODUCE

The easy feeling in the butter market continues. Receipts into the Toronto and Montreal markets are increasing steadily and factories seem disposed to sell at a slightly lower price. During the past week a couple of carloads of butter were shipped from Montreal to Winnipeg. How far this movement will be extended to meet demand remains to be seen. Unless farmers have advanced unusually and it is possible that Canadian butter may soon be disposed of in New York and Boston. Whole milk quotations now are: Creamery prints, 25c to 26c; farmers' separator prints, 24c to 25c; dairy prints, 23c to 24c; tubs, 22c to 23c. Cheese are quoted 15½c to 16c for large and 16½c to 17c for twins.

LIVE STOCK

There have been no price changes on the cattle market this week, and it is anticipated that quotations will remain steady until grass-fed steers arrive on the market. The week has been one of small receipts, with the shipping demand in the feeder and stocker sections. Stockers have been in particularly good demand even at the high prices asked, $6.50 to $7.75, and there is not enough to supply the demand.

Quotations are as follows: Choice beef steers, $8.15 to $8.50; handy choice steers, $8 to $8.25; butchers' steers, cows, to good, $7 to $8; heifers, $6.75 to $8.25; choice cows, $7 to $7.25; cows, to good, $6.50 to $7; butchers' bulls, $6 to $7.75; feeders, $7.25 to $7.75; stockers, $6.50 to $7.25; canners and cutters, $3.50 to $4.25.

Choice milch cows, $70 to $85; fair to good, $50 to $60; springers, $60 to $100. Calves range from $5 to $10, according to size and quality.

The supply of sheep has been heavier, but quotations have tended to slightly lower levels for inferior drafters. Spring lambs, each, $4.50 to $7; weather, $5.50 to $6; buck lambs, $5.25 to $5.50; light ewes, $7 to $7.50; bucks and culls, $4.50 to $5.50.

Hog quotations have broken several times during the week, but now show a tendency to firmness. Packers quote $9 to $9.10. Hogs still come from the West.

At Montreal, too, cattle ruled firm, although trade was slow. A few choice steers brought $8.40 to $8.50; bulls, $6 to $7.50 and butchers' cows, $7.25 to $8; milch cows ran from $60 to $70 each. Medium prices are unchanged. Yearling lambs, 9c to 9½c; sheep, $5.50 to $7. Calves ran from $6 to $10 each.

MONTREAL HOG MARKET

Montreal, Saturday, May 16.—The weak feeling which has characterized the market for live hogs of late still continues to be the main feature of the trade owing to the increased supplies coming forward and prices for Ontario dropped another decline of 25c, which makes a net reduction of 50c, but there is no further change in prices for Manitoba hogs. The demand from packers at the lower level was good and an active trade was done, with sales of Ontario selected stock at $9.25 and Manitoba at $8.90 a cwt., weighed off cars. On account of the above there was also a weaker feeling in the market for dressed hogs and prices declined 25c. The demand for small lots from butchers to fill actual wants was good and a fair trade was done at about $12.75 to $13.

MONTREAL BUTTER AND CHEESE

Montreal, Saturday, May 16.—The market for cheese opened this week with a decidedly easier feeling, owing to the lack of demand from the other side. Cables were very shaky and all this made this way were at prices that showed a sharp loss on the cost of the cheese purchased in the country last week and on Tuesday at the markets in the Belleville section 24,12-16c was the best price offered, and on Thursday the ruling prices paid in the country were 11½c to 11⅝c for white and 11⅞c to 12c for colored. At these prices there was a little more demand for export, and Friday's markets showed a slight advance, as high as 12.5 16c being paid for colored cheese at Picton and Napanee. Receipts into Montreal are very light and considerably behind last year to this date. Reports from all over the country indicate a rapidly increasing output, and by the first of June we should have a production about equal to last year.

Market for butter is fairly steady, with fancy Townships quoted at 25c, other sections being obtainable at 24½c to 25½c. Receipts are increasing steadily and next week's receipts should be more than equal to the demand, unless more orders come from the West than have been coming during the last week or two. Receipts this week are mixed cream and factory, and on account of the cool weather that has prevailed so far, next week should be the same condition, but the week after next should see full cream butter coming for sale, and, if prices are low, we will probably have a good speculative demand.

CHEESE MARKETS

Stirling, May 12.—280 boxes offered; 200 sold at 11 13-16c. Balance at 11½c.

PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, MAY 21, 1914.

MAYOR HAS A NEW ONE

Suggests a Walk From McDonald Street to Gates of Jackson Park Along Creek—Very Little Need to Give Citizens a Beauty Avenue

WOULD BE APPRECIATED

Without creating the impression that Mayor Buller is biting at more than he can easily masticate, it may be of interest to the citizens that His Worship is revolving in his mind the idea of securing for the city a walk on both sides of the creek from McDonnel street to Smith street. This is another evidence of the fact that while Mayor Buller may not be working hard on everyone of the planks in his pre-election campaign, he has added several that will certainly meet with the approval of the citizens. It also demonstrates that the seed of the city beautiful has found fertile soil in His Worship.

Tentatively he has taken up the new West Ward proposal with Alderman Green, and it is expected that something will be forthcoming in the near future.

The creek from the vicinity of Park and McDonnel streets winds through several green meadows to Smith street, practically to the gates of Jackson Park. The stream is bordered in long stretches with cedars, and the surroundings are very pleasing. The value of the idea broached by Mayor Buller lies in the possibility of providing a winding avenue leading to the Park. The course of the water is a natural beauty stretch and very little alterations or fixtures would be needed to provide for the citizens a charming walk that would increase the interest in and use of Jackson Park.

The matter at present is simply in the contemplative stage, but those to whom it has been mentioned have expressed spontaneous assent. With the Mayor and Alderman Green behind it there is a strong probability that something material will be forthcoming.

WILL BE TEN IN THE ROYAL PARTY

List of Those Who Will Come to Peterborough on June First—Duchess and Princess Patricia Coming

City Clerk Armstrong is in receipt of a letter from Mr. Arthur F. Sladen, Private Secretary to H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught, which embodies a list of those who will constitute the Royal party when the Governor-General visits Peterborough on the first of June. The party will consist of their Royal Highnesses the Duke of Connaught, Duchess of Connaught, and Princess Patricia, Miss Yorke, lady-in-waiting to H. R. H. the Duchess of Connaught, the Hon. Katherine Villiers, Lady-in-Waiting to Princess Patricia, Lt.-Col. F. D. Farquhar, D. S. O., the Governor General's secretary, Capt., the Hon. G. E. Boscawen, and Capt. A. Graham, Aides-de-Camp, Major Sir Edward Worthington, M.V. O., Medical Officer, and Arthur Sladen, C.N.G., Private Secretary to the Duke of Connaught.

The Royal party will arrive in the City about ten o'clock on the first of June. Col., the Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, will be present at the ceremonies in connection with the visit of the Governor-General.

FRUITS OF BOARD OF WORKS INSPECTION TRIP ARE QUESTIONED

The members of the Board of Works are not convinced that their annual inspection tour of the City is as fruitful as it should be. Last night it was decided in a half-hearted manner to spend a half-day bumping the bumps, but it remains with Ald. Duncan to announce the date and some of the members will not object if he overlooks it.

Ald. Johnston remarked that many necessities noticed in previous years were not provided for, and other things were carried out which had not been observed.

Ald. Stratton said that as a new member he wanted to go over the City on this trip to become acquainted with the requirements of roads and other details.

Ald. Anderson favoured the inspection and so did Ald. McIntyre, but Ald. Johnston and Ald. Saunders were opposed and Ald. Green was not keen on voting. Engineer Parsons said he was too busy to devote a whole day to the trip. It was agreed, however, that something would be done, but it was left with Ald. Duncan to name the day.

TROUBLE IS ANTICIPATED

Not Much Hope Capturing Ruttan the Bracebridge Murderer Alive as he is Expected to Shoot at Sight

COUNTRY TERRORIZED

Special Wire to The Examiner:

HUNTSVILLE, Ont., May 21. — The whole country surrounding the Ruttan tragedy is so terrorized that hopes of capturing the murderer alive are not bright. During last night a store and dwelling in the vicinity of the murder were burnd and Ruttan is suspected. Chief Constable Sloan, of Gravenhurst, went out again this morning and is directing efforts to capture the man. Ruttan is an old hunter and traveller, who knows every foot of the country in the neighbourhood, and it is believed he will shoot anybody who molests him.

FELIX DIAZ

Aspirant to the Presidency of Mexico and a nephew of the former President, who is understood to be staying in Toronto with a party of Mexicans, whose names are not obtainable. The theory is that he desires to be within easy reach of Niagara Falls, where peace negotiations are in progress between the United States and Mexico.

POLICEMAN BURNHAM HAS RESIGNED

Policeman F. Burnham, one of the latest additions to the local police department, has handed in his resignation and as he has not been on the force three months, his resignation will take effect at once. To the Examiner the ex-Policeman stated this morning that his reason for resigning was that he was dissatisfied with the actions of two of the acting sergeants, and he also stated that a petition signed by five of the police force had been forwarded to His Honour Judge Huycke, chairman of the Police Commissioners, asking for an investigation into the matter.

ARE SEEKING PROTECTION

(May 21st, 1914.

Mrs. Minnie Spilsbury, wife of George Spilsbury, is seeking protection for her children and herself for slander by her husband's people. Mrs Spilsbury is a daughter of the late Richard Martyn, Esq., who at one time carried on a flourishing milling business on Water Street north. Further developments will be looked forward to with interest.

HOUSE BURNED TO THE GROUND

Home of Mrs. Armstrong North of Auburn is Totally Destroyed—Barn Was Also Burned

LITTLE WAS SAVED

Yesterday afternoon, at 5 o'clock, a fire started in the residence of Mrs. John Armstrong, River Road, that completely demolished the frame house, barn, and outbuildings. The loss, it is estimated, will exceed $1,500, and every building on the premises was burned to the ground. A few neighbours who saw the fire tried to get the furniture out of the house and succeeded in saving that of two front rooms, but the remainder and the contents of the barn were consumed by the fire.

Only a few minutes before the outbreak of the blaze Mrs. Armstrong left her residence (which is a mile north of the City), for this City, leaving the house in charge of her two sons. The elder of these was working in the field at some distance from the house, where the little nine-year-old boy was playing.

When the fire was first noticed by a passerby it had gained a hold on the back of the house that it was impossible to dispute, so that by calling several other men who were passing along the road, they exerted themselves to get out as much furniture as possible. The fire started at five o'clock and when the whistles blew at six o'clock there was not a square foot of timber left standing to mark the spot where the buildings had been but an hour before. The frame house and wooden outbuildings, dry as tinder, made a quick, spectacular fire.

The house that was burned was on the East side of the road, and its loss is a more than unusually severe one to Mrs. Armstrong, whose husband, the late John Armstrong, died very suddenly about a year ago.

SIXTEEN YEAR OLD BOY IS SENTENCED

Get Local Prison For Term of Six Months

A local young lady, charged with assaulting a local man, was fined $1 at the Police Court, this morning, by Police Magistrate Dumble.

The case of a local man, who was charged with having failed to pay his poll tax, was adjourned for one week in order to allow the defendant to get an order from the Commanding Officer of the Militia, stating that he was a Volunteer.

Two young men, John Harris and Frank Richardson, were discharged as being not guilty of having blocked the alley-way of the Market Arcade.

Stanley Hartley was charged with being a vagrant. Chief Thompson said the lad had a record at the court since he was ten years of age. The case was enlarged for two weeks, in order to allow the lad to get work. If he did not do so more drastic measures would be taken.

A lad, just over 16 years of age, Fred Cassan, was brought before His Worship on an old charge. The lad positively refuses to work, or be of any assistance to his widowed mother whatever. He has the habit of taking a lot of lads about his own age into the house when his mother is out, and eating all the eatables that are in sight.

"What am I to do with you?" said the Magistrate.

"You seem to have the running of it, so go ahead," came the sullen reply.

"Very well," said His Worship, "I will send you to the Central Prison for six months."

The young lads who were charged with entering Manieee's store in East City, a week ago Sunday, appeared before the Court for sentence this morning, having formerly pleaded guilty to the charge, and electing summary trial. The older lad was sent to the industrial institution for a period not exceeding five years, and the younger was let off on suspended sentence.

WON'T WED MAN WHO WORKS OVER 8 HOURS

FORT SMITH, Ark., May 20—"No matter how much I loved a man, I would not marry him if he had to work more than eight hours a day," declared Miss K. Barnard, Commissioner of Prisons and Corrections of Oklahoma, before the Arkansas Conference on Charities and Corrections here.

She declared for shorter hours for workers and voiced opposition to convict prison labour.

Miss Barnard attacked the present system of management of prisons and asylums, and declared a convict left a prison in a worse condition than when he entered.

BUY PROPERTY FOR PRINCE ST.

Board of Works Recommend Purchase of Strip 16 ft. by 250 ft. in Length to Widen St.

FROM OVEREND STREET

Special Wire to The Examiner:

By a recommendation of the Board of Works at last night's meeting the City will purchase a strip of land on Prince Street form the Overend Estate, 16 feet wide by 250 ft. in length between Aylmer and George Streets for $150.

The offer was made through Dumble and Johnston, and Mayor Buller regarded it as a bargain for the City. The strip of land was required to widen Prince Street to the regulation 64 feet. The executors ask in addition to $150 for the land, a fixed assessment of $2,000 for four years.

Mayor Buller—In their previous offer to the Council they wanted $700 for this piece of land.

Ald. McIntyre—What is the present assessment on the property?

Mayor Buller — $3,250. It runs through to Princess Street.

Ald. McIntyre—I'd let them keep it.

Mayor Buller — Well you want to look into it a little more than that.

Ald. Duncan—I think it is a good deal.

Ald. Anderson—I am in favour of accepting the offer. They say they want to sell the property and clean up the estate and as soon as a lot is sold the fixed assessment is withdrawn upon it. All that property is very desirable and I think you will find that it will soon be sold and the fixed assessment will not mean any loss to the City. I believe we will gain by it.

Mayor Buller to Ald. McIntyre—If you can do any better throw the whole thing up and let us see what you would suggest. I have done my best for the City on this deal and have spent many hours negotiating with the executors.

Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by Ald. Anderson, that the offer of the estate be accepted and that the City Treasurer issue a cheque for the required amount.

NO INFORMATION FOR THE PRESS

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 21.—The hopes of two hundred newspaper men were dashed to the ground early this afternoon when it was officially and finally stated that all session and proceedings would be closed to the public and press. Nothing will be given out till the final decision and then it will be telegraphed, first to the governments interested.

A PRIZE FOR DECORATIONS

The Examiner Will Give $5.00 to the Citizen Whose Premises Are Best Decorated For Duke's Visit

THE CONDITIONS

In order to encourage the citizens of Peterborough to do their best to make the city bright and attractive during the visit of His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, on June 1st. The Examiner has decided to offer a prize of $5.00 for the best decorated premises along the route of the drive to be taken by His Highness. In awarding this prize the judges will take everything into consideration, so that the man with the small house and grounds will have as much chance as his more well-to-do neighbour. The decorations on this occasion are expected to be unusually beautiful, and there will be few houses along the route that will not be gay with flags and bunting. Of course, a large house with beautiful grounds, is more easily decorated, and this fact will be considered by the judges in making their award.

INSPECTION OF THE CADETS

Major G. H. Gillespie of Kingston is Here This Afternoon

The Cadet Corps of the Collegiate will be inspected this afternoon by Major G. H. Gillespie, of Kingston, Instructor and Organizer of Cadet Corps. This annual event is looked forward to most eagerly by the boys. The parade state shows that about 125 lads will be inspected. The local Instructor, Hon. Capt. C. E. Jamieson, has evinced an unusual interest in the lads, to which their company work on the field bears good evidence. It is a training thus started that teaches a lad to be of use to his country. Many of our most famous officers originated from such a corps as this. Though practical military instructions is given, it is not the idea to entice the lads to the life military, but rather instill a tendency to promote good citizenship, and the elevation of morals.

The lads are instructed in the use of the rifle. A prize is offered for the best shot in the corps, and this year the distinction has fallen to Battalion Commander L. Cann.

Among those who will be present are: Lt.-Col. E. B. Clegg, of the 57th Regiment; Col. T. W. H. Young, officer commanding the 10th Brigade Canadian Field Artillery; Major S. T. Medd, 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons; Major J. Mills, 57th Regiment, and Honorary Major Rev. Canon Davidson, Chaplain of the 57th Regiment. There will also be present, a representative body of the Daughters of the Empire.

The following is a list of the officers attached to the corps:

Battalion Commander—L. Cann.
Sr. Major—R. Stratton.
Adjutant—S. Mills.
Quartermaster—R. Rogers.
Signalling Officer—C. Richardson.
Bandmaster—C. Devey.
Q. M. S.—W. Ryan.
Sgt. Bugler—A. Lord.

A Company.

Company Leader—M. Peever.
Half Company Leader—L. Stuart
Half Company Leader—W. Carruthers.

B Company.

Company Leader—A. Horsfield.
Half Company Leader—H. Knapman.
Half Company Leader—M. Powell

C Company.

Company Leader—F. Hooper.
Half Company Leader—C. McKee.
Half Company Leader—H. Adams.

D Company.

Half Company Leader—W. Adams
Instructor — Hon. Capt. C. E. Jamieson.

The boys will doubtless make a very creditable showing. In other years, their work has been commented upon most favourably, by the inspecting officers.

The P.C.I. Cadets are busy now, preparing for the inspection by His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught. They will be inspected by the Governor-General on his visit here, and will receive encouragement in their work.

The inspection was timed to have taken place at 3:30 p.m.

HOME RULE BILL WILL PASS ON MONDAY

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., May 21.—It was announced to-day that the Irish Home Rule Bill would come up for debate and third reading in the Commons next Tuesday night, when it will undoubtedly be passed and automatically become law regardless of what action the Lords may take.

In making the announcement Premier Asquith said he was prepared to consider all suggestions that might render the Government's proposals acceptable to Ulster, but the Commons must first pass the bill unimpaired. Leader Bonar Law, replying for the Unionists, said the whole proceeding was farcial.

PALACE WAS BESIEGED

2000 Policemen Needed to Keep Suffragette Army From Personally Appealing to King George

MANY ARE ARRESTED

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., May 21.—Two thousand policemen with fifty plain clothes detectives surrounded Buckingham Palace from dawn till sunset tonight, while the suffragette army, under the command of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst herself, besieged the palace on their long promised mission of appealing personally to King George for the right to vote. Several times the women rushed the police line, but were repulsed with much loss of millinery and dignity. They didn't get near the gates with their petition, which was torn to pieces in a struggle with the police. Thirty-eight were arrested, including, it is rumoured, Mrs. Pankhurst. His Majesty sent out word that their petition should be presented to his properly constituted advisers in the British Cabinet, but the leaders demanded to see him personally. Twenty ambulances were on hand and were kept busy carrying away fainting and swooning women. It is estimated that the besieging army numbered eighteen thousand, including about three thousand sympathising males who bore the brunt of the policemen's batons when they came within range.

DRAW LINE AT HUERTA

United States Demand His Elimination as the First Step in the Peace Negotiations

ARE READY FOR WAR

Special Wire to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, D.C., May 21.—All eyes are turned towards Niagara Falls, Ont., where the peace of the continent hangs in the balance, while the mediators deliberate. In the meantime a fleet of transports with supplies and equipment ready for a complete army division is waiting orders at Galveston. It is thought by diplomats here that the question of peace or war should be settled withing ten days. The first point will be the elimination of Huerta which the United States demands as a preliminary to everything else. If that is not agreed to then the United States representatives will immediately return to Washington and it will be up to President Wilson to determine what will be the next aggressive step.

EX-PEDDLER NOW WORTH $300,000

CLEVELAND, Okla., May 21—"Jimmie" Booher for years sold lead pencils and shoe strings aboard trains because railroad patrons liked him.

Booher was an optimist morning, noon and night. But he had endured misfortunes that would have broken most men. He was unable to walk. On his hands and knees he crawled to the district school.

When Pawnee County was opened Booher settled on a 160-acre claim four miles southeast of Cleveland.

With his earnings from the sale of lead pencils ,etc., he was able to hire neighbours to put his land into cultivation, a little at a time. When he got a patent on his land he borrowed enough money to plant alfalfa, which he gradually increased to seventy acres. In one season his net profits from alfalfa amounted to $3,500.

Oil was found, and "Jimmie" Booher's farm was in the heart of the pool. His royalties were $1,800 a day at the start, and for a long period he got $700 a day.

Nobody knows how much "Jimmie" Booher is worth, but his fortune is close to $300,000.

TANGO ON HUSBAND? LET JUDGE DECIDE

NORTHUMBERLAND, Pa., May 21.—By a decision that "it is unbecoming of a married woman to dance the tango, Squire M. P. Tierney reunited Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stetler, who had taken their disagreement to the divorce court.

Mrs. Stetler had her husband arrested for threatening her, and when they met in the Squire's office he tried to get the "A B C" of their marital troubles and proposed mediation. The woman began to cry and say all the trouble was because she had danced the tango. The husband insisted tangoing should not be indulged in by a married woman, and his wife said she would "go by what the Squire said."

Tierney quickly declared against the dance.

"All right, Judge; I will never tango again," she said. The couple left the office arm in arm.

Fear Kidnapped Boy Who May Have Met Death

Boy of Eight Who Vanished From His Home Believed to be Victim of Black Hand

DEMAND $5000

NEW YORK, May 19.—Grave fears for the safety of eight-year-old Frank Longo, Jr., son of a wealthy baker of No. 190 Bleecker street, who was kidnapped Wednesday and is held for $5,00 ransom somewhere in the city, are felt as the result of the action of the police in allowing the facts to reach the newspapers.

In a letter received recently, the kidnappers promised to "kill him and send him home in a box if you tell the police." Despite this injunction, the elder Longo communicated with the detective bureau.

Since the boy ate his lunch and went out to play in the yard of a public school at Grove and Hudson streets, a score of detectives working under Deputy Commissioner Ruhin have been unable to find any trace of him.

A free translation of the letter, which is written in Italian reads:

"We have your boy and want money for him. If you give us $5,000, you will get him returned. Do not tell the police. If you do, your family will suffer, and we will send your boy home dead in a box."

A description of the boy furnished by Detectives Cavone and Trabucci, says he is four feet tall, seventy pounds in weight, has dark hair and eyes, and a round, full face. He wore a white shirt, black trousers, brown coat, grey cap and overcoat, black stockings and brown shoes.

In November, 1910, a boy named Michael Rizzo, and a son of Giuseppe Longo, of No. 720 Fifth avenue, Brooklyn, were kidnapped. Young Rizzo was returned, and gave the police a clue that resulted in the arrest of a woman named Maria Rappo, and five men in a flat in Manhattan. The woman was sentenced to twenty-five years in prison, but is now in Matteawan. One of the men, Stanislaus Patenza, was sentenced to forty-nine years, but escaped conviction at a second trial.

In October, 1911, a son of Giovanni di Fiore, was kidnapped. Fiore is a brother-in-law of Longo. The Fiore boy was found on Williamsburg Bridge, and, although his parents denied it, the police say they paid a large ransom for him. Antonio de Fiore, another brother-in-law, lost a horse and waggon, and is said by the police to have paid a sum of money for their return.

$160 FOR PIECE OF PROPERTY

The Mayor and Ald. Johnston moved, without prejudice to the City's interests, that Mrs. Scott be offered $160 for a 10 foot strip of her property on Maria Street. This is to offset Mrs. Scott's claim for damages to this property by reason of the construction of the C.P.R.'s siding into the Vermont Marblet Company's premises. The city will use the strip of land in question for widening the street at this point, erect a fence, and will construct a ditch to drain Mrs. Scott's property. The motion carried.

THURSDAY, MAY 21, 1914

THE GIFT GOVERNMENT.

The Borden government has the policy of contribution the chief element of its policy. Contribution to Mackenzie & Mann demands all its energy, and the dragoons are called out to enforce the vote of its followers. Contribution is the essence of its naval policy. The thought of development of Canadian resources and manhood seems to have no place in its mental processes. While it is lavishing 45 millions of Canadian money on the knightly railway magnates it can't or won't help naval defence except by spending money in the way of contribution. This is because spending money is the one thing the Borden government excels in. Last year a corps of naval volunteers was organized in British Columbia, and the Borden government refuses to give it any help. Help would be a fatal course to take because it would indicate some encouragement to the aspiration of Canada to have a naval force of its own. Canada has a land defence force and upon this millions are lavished at the behest of our war mad war lord; far more than is necessary to insure an efficient militia force. We should have a fairly efficient militia for defence purposes, but we should not be satisfied with that. We should have a corresponding naval defence force. Our militia is useless except for its specific object, defence, for it has no auxiliary effect such as a Canadian navy would have. A Canadian navy, built in Canada, would develop and stimulate a native ship-building industry and, while utilizing, would help develop our native resources, and the constructive skill of our workmen. If a Canadian land force is necessary, as all admit, a Canadian naval force is much more necessary.

INDEPENDENCE OF PARLIAMENT.

The Conservatives, in office, are not nearly so solicitous for the independence of parliament, as they were in opposition. Mr. G. Howard Ferguson, M.P.P., broke the law in this regard by accepting an office of emolument under the Dominion Government and, instead of punishing his offence, the Ontario Government, through its subservient following in the House, rewarded him by furnishing him with a full pardon, so that his services could be used to stifle investigation into matters involving the honour of a minister of the crown and his fitness for his office. Mr. Nickle, M. P. for Frontenac, on his responsibility as a member, charged, on the floor of the House, that the head of a great railway corporation—which has received fabulous sums of public money through the votes of members of parliament and others, had deliberately attempted to coerce by intimidation, the member for Frontenac into supporting, by his vote, a loan or gift of 45 million dollars, proposed to be made by the Government of which Mr. Nickle was a supporter. This is a serious charge, and deserves more attention than it is apparently receiving. It is probably true, for Mr. Nickle had nothing to gain and, in a party sense, everything to lose, by making such a charge. It is bad enough when people who wish to bleed the public treasury do it by quasi legitimate appeals, but when they attempt to bludgeon members of parliament into voting against their convictions, as to the interests of the people they represent, a salutary example of the danger of doing such high-handed acts of brigandage should be made. There should be a limit to the methods members of parliament should be subjected to by railway loan exploiters.

THE RADICAL WAY.

A great many zealous advocates of temperance are inclined to be intemperate in their advocacy; and possibly by trying to do too much, contribute to doing less of what would be useful. A great deal of condemnation is heaped upon the newspapers for the publication of advertisements of liquor merchants, brewers and distillers. Forgetting, for a moment, the moral aspect of the matter, it is to be admitted that the liquor traffic is legalized and, strictly speaking, its advertisements are legitimate patronage of a newspaper. Therefore the first step seems to be to unlegalize the traffic, to remove it from the protection and shelter of the law. This can be done by the enactment in this province of a law to abolish all hotel, shop and club licenses. Then the evil of newspaper advertising of strong drinks would automatically cease. Logically those who insist on the discontinuance of such advertisements, should not hesitate to work for the adoption of prohibition as the effective way, not only of putting an end to what they consider one evil of the traffic—newspaper advertising of its wares—but to the extent that prohibition would be effective, all the other evils of the traffic. If the benefits of provincial prohibition are regarded as so important, why is not all the strength of temperance advocacy directed to its adoption? It would, it is held, snuff out all, or nearly all, the evils attending the intemperate use of strong drink, and the waste of effort in dealing with the matter piecemeal and, necessarily, ineffectively, would be avoided. The adoption of legislation, abolishing bar, shop and club licenses would pretty effectually suppress the traffic. Its effectiveness would be of the radical character of the humourous suggestion of the best way to cure the bad habits of a troublesome dog—cut off his tail, close behind the ears.

If "abolish the bar" would be an effective remedy, then one would think that all moral forces would be a unit in concentrating these forces upon the attainment of a radical remedy. The opportunity is presented now for giving effect to the professions of professed temperance men. Abolition of the bar will be a definite issue at the next provincial general elections. If the temperance sentiment of the country as expressed through the local option vote, really wishes to have the bar abolished, the boy saved, to have provincial prohibition, it has only to say so at the polls. But if the holders of this sentiment are more anxious to save their party, or rather and really, save its face—and keep it in office than they are to "save the boy" and remove the evil of newspaper advertising of intoxicating drinks, then the traffic will continue to flourish, for they will vote party. Honesty on the temperance question would be better than a good policy, it would be good practice. If the temperance people do not get provincial prohibition they cannot blame the politicians or the government, they have only themselves to blame.

MORE ARMOURIES THAN MEN

Since Confederation Canada has spent $4,900,000 on drill halls. Of this amount $2,367,000 was spent since 1911 for fifty drill halls constructed by the Conservative Government. Col. Sam is making a reputation for himself as the War Minister of the Dominion. At the rate he is going there will be more drill halls than soldiers.—Windsor Record.

Changed The Word 'Kissed'

Principal Parts Are Now Changed in Chicago

CHICAGO, May 20.—"I kim, I have kissed"—principal parts of the verb "kiss" yesterday.

"I kiss, I kist, I have kist"—principal parts of the verb "kiss" to-day.

That's what the Chicago Principals' Club did to a poor lonesome little verb while the attention of the nation was centred upon developments in Mexico City. The verb was found to-day in a pitiful condition. It now lies at the hospital for mutilated language in a serious condition.

"I lost my 'ed," the creature kept repeating over and over again. "I lost my 'ed. I don't remember anything after that."

Investigation brought the information that the Chicago Principals' Club had met and adopted circular No. 23 of the simplified spelling board. This does away with the final "e" in words like "carve" and "engine." It substituted "t" and "d" for the final "ed" in words like "aimd" and "kist."

IN ENGLAND'S DRINKING AGE.

Primate Asks Why Old-Time Drunkenness Was Winked At.

LONDON, May 20. — When did drunkenness become a general vice? was the question asked by the Archbishop Canterbury in an address at the anniversary meeting of the Church of England Temperance Society, held at Lambeth Palace recently.

Drunkenness remarked the Archbishop, "came in" only in a very incidental way in the books of the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. In the literature of those times one found Sabbath-breaking profanity, blasphemy and other offences freely named, but drunkenness was alluded to in a very incidental way.

Mention was made in one book, said the Archbishop, of special action being taken to censure and punish parish clerks for being drunk during Divine service. One had in that a very curious picture of the way in which the vice was regarded.

Was it, asked the Archbishop, that drink did not produce so much drunkenness as it did to-day? Was it that the more active life, the more frequent riding on horseback, counteracted it? Was it that the mischief arising from the actual drunkenness was not realized? Or was drunkenness so common among the leading people that it was difficult for any one living in glass houses to throw stones? He suggested that someone should undertake the solution of the problem.

SCHEME MUST BE FOR THE WHOLE CITY

Says Resident Discussing the Beautification Plan

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—I agree with you that the banquet at the "Oriental," in reference to the beautification of the City, was featured by two agreeably practical addresses by Park Commissioner C. E. Chambers of Toronto and B. E. Morton, B. S. F., of the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa.

It must have been a matter of gratification for you to know that their remarks were along the same lines which you have been so ably advocating for the last twenty-five years, in the columns of the "Examiner".

The outstanding feature of Mr. Chamber's address was as follows:

"I have noticed," he said, "that railways have been pirating your water front. You should not lose the water front, for you will not be able to get it back easily. I have been told that certain parts of the water front have been disposed of to private and corporate interests. I think this is a distinct mistake. In Toronto we have suffered from this condition, so much so that we find it necessary to spend millions of dollars upon a great undertaking for the beautifying of our water front. Don't make the same mistake any more if you can possiby avoid it."

He also expressed strong dissatisfaction with what had been done by our City Council in placing the sidewalks outside of the tree line, and next to the roadway, thus rendering beautification more difficult without saying anything about bringing pedestrians into closer contact with the poisonous dust. His allusion to spacing in tree panting and the subsequent pruning, should be heeded. The variegated and harmful spacing and pruning can only be averted by one master mind having control of the business.

A local speaker said that the Council was making an honest effort to make the City worth living in, and boosted the Mayor, but he did not attempt to reconcile their good works in giving away our beautiful river front with the remarks of Mr. Chambers, as quoted above, nor with their fostering stench places in the heart of the City. Nor did the Mayor and Council present try to justify their conduct in the matter, while professing to be strongly in favour of beautification. Waterfronts are always regarded as the most desirabe paces for driveways.

It can scarcely be said that the few who were present at the banquet were a fair representation of all classes of twenty or twenty-five thousand inhabitants, but no doubt all are interested in the beautification of the City, but they will want to know where they are at. If the speedway spoken of is intended for automobiles and fast horses then the owners should bear the expense and the residents along the route bear the dust. If, however, it is intended to enhance the value of the property along the route, then the owners thereof should bear the expense. Facts and figures must be known beforehand, before the people, as a whole, can be called upon to endorse any scheme. Success can only be assured by the individual effort of everybody and the beautification must be for the whole City and not one of patchwork.

Yours truly,
Resident.

Peterborough, May 21, 1914.

COLONEL CLEGG

Who was presented with a Black thorn right from "Ould Ireland" at the 4th annual dinner, of No. 6 Company last evening.

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Mr. Wm. Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lumsden Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble wasted nerve cells.

Board Of Works Items Of Minor Interest

Will Move Siding.

Mr. H. F. Coyle of the G. T. R. has notified the City that the siding on Bethune Street between Simcoe and Hunter will be moved as desired. Engineer Parsons suggested that the company be asked to acquaint the Council when they are ready to begin work.

Repairs Ordered.

A culvert on Victoria Avenue will be put into god shape.

Loose planking below the rails at corner of Park and McDonnel Streets, will be attended to.

A bad culvert at Edinburgh and Reid Streets will receive the street commissioners attention.

A quantity of loose stones on Rubidge Street, north of London, will be removed.

The foregoing needs were introduced by Ald. Johnston.

NIGHT GANGS WILL RUSH LAYING OF STREET CAR LINES

To facilitate and hasten the work at the corner of George and Charlotte Streets, the Peterborough Rack & Railway Company will work a special gang of men until eleven o'clock to-night, so it is hoped, taking the laying of their ties and rails. To-morrow night the work will be carried through until morning, extra men being employed to complete the work. Mayor Buller stated that the Company have arranged to provide extra light and there will be no cost entailed to the City in this particular.

You Are Invited To Be There

The Gurney Oxford Gas Range is the Last Word In Cooking Convenience.

At the TURNBULL STORE, during the week of June 1st, there will be a series of short talks, on the subject of Kitchen Engineering.

Admission will be by Tickets, which will be sent to our customers and any other Ladies interested, upon request.

The Lecturer will tell how to prepare a meal, a simple meal or an elaborate one, on a Gurney Oxford Gas Range, so that everything will come out right: i.e. each course, from soup to dessert, ready in the proper order and done "to a turn."

The Gurney-Foundry have gone into the matter of Kitchen Engineering very thoroughly and the information you will get at these talks will take all the uncertainty and much of the labour out of cooking.

Cooking by Gas is a wonderful help to modern house-keeping. It eliminates waste, time, the carrying of coal and ashes.

So every housewife should attend these talks.

They will not be long but they will be interesting.

At Afternoon Lectures, Tea will be served to visitors.

All the Ladies of Peterboro' and Vicinity are invited. The information that you will get will be valuable three times a day.

GROCERS ARE IN FAVOUR OF THE BY-LAW

Think That Regulation Requiring Farmers to Put Names on Baskets is a Good One

MEETING LAST NIGHT

Considerable discussion took place at the Grocers' meeting, last night, on the new market regulations.

The meeting favoured that part of the by-law which requires the farmers to put a tag on their baskets, with their names on it, which made it much easier to know with whom they were doing business with, and it would also be a convenience when the farmers left their baskets in the grocery stores, as often mistakes are made by putting goods in the wrong baskets and it was thought that was not imposing a hardship on any one.

The question regarding the weighing of fowl was not so easily decided. The meeting was decidedly in favour of the principle of weighing, but if it was going to be the means of keeping the farmers away from the City it would be better to rescind that part of the by-law. A recommendation was made accordingly.

WHO'S YOUR GROCER?

Gordon-Davies Co. Are Bidding For Your Trade—Have You Tried Marketing There?

A delight to the eye and a gentle touch to the purse—with the produce of experts, gathered from the four quarters of the earth, to choose from—is what customers of Gordon-Davies Limited, enjoy. Their completely equipped Grocery Department, as well as their unsurpassed display of fresh and cooked meats, poultry, vegetables, etc., is proving a handy marketting place for numbers of our citizens.

Gordon-Davies will satisfy the eager bargain longings of to-day with choice offerings in groceries and table supplies not usually found on the bargain list. House-keepers will find it much to their advantage to do their shopping at this delicatessen. So much in their new grocery department is offered for less than the regular price that it is impossible to enumerate all the items in one advertisement. Their special Bargain List in to-day's Examiner covers a number of lines that will be interesting to consumers. Just walk in for anything you need in groceries and meats—the quality will be good—that's sure, and the prices will help you realize in a practical manner that "money saved is money earned." Your little child, five years old, can do the shopping for you if you will entrust her with your commission.

WANTS SIDEWALKS ON HIS NEW STREETS

Mr. Harry Baker applied to the Board of Works last night for concrete sidewalks on both sides of Adelaide, Clare and Baker streets which he is building up on the Patterson Street property. He stated that the sidewalks would enable him to sell his houses. The Board decided to advertise these streets when the next group of streets are being published.

Ascension Day

Its Significance and Also Its Observance

"Hail the Day! that sees Him rise—Alleluia."

To-day is Ascension Day—a holy day, an ecclesiastical festival common alike to the Anglican, Greek and Roman branches of the Catholic faith, and why should it not be equally so to other denominations? For surely it is the day in which we commemorate the Ascension of our Blessed Lord into the Heaven whence He in a mysterious manner came on earth only some short 33 years before. Without the Ascension, the Sacrifice of Calvary on Good Friday and the marvellous Resurrection on Easter morn would have been incomplete.

And yet this is, probably, the least—one might almost say the worst—observed of the festivals of the Christian Church. Why this should be so is hard to conjecture, yet so it is, the fact remains. Nevertheless, this is one of the greatest festivals of the Church, the Church which has descended to us from the time of our ascended Lord.

Our general neglect of Ascension Day tells a bad tale; it shows that our religion is tinged with selfishness. And the reason why the commemoration of this day appeals to us in no small degree is, because we are apt to think it has, in comparison with the other great events of our Lords life, but little to do with our own personal benefit. Half unconsciously we are apt to think that inasmuch as our Saviour has died and risen from the dead, our share in His activities is therefore over! Our personal interests in His movements seem to have ceased.

But after all, Ascensiontide is the topmost jewel in the Crown of our Redemption; it is our Lord's triumph; after all His suffering and pain for us, He goes back to His Father to recover His glory and receive His reward. Has this no claim on us? Have we no hommage to lay before those wounded feet as they ascend, glowing with the scars of Love from the mountain in Bethany. If we have not already approached His altar—lacking, possibly, the opportunity—can we not at least go and praise Him and show our gratitude and love for all that He has done for us? For if He had not ascended into Heaven, He could never have triumphed as the founder and King of His Church.

F. R.

There will be the service of Evensong held in St. John's Anglican Church to-night at eight o'clock.

LITTLE CHANCE FOR BECKER

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, May 21.—At noon today the evidence in the second trial of Charles Becker, ex-police lieutenant, was concluded and this afternoon the lawyers for both sides summed up the case. The final announcement that neither Becker nor his wife would testify was made this morning. Scarcely anybody in the court room who has heard the trial expects anything else than a conviction, but possibly reduced to the second degree which would save Becker from the electric chair.

Lethbridge's Beautiful Day

Happy Results of an Effective Spirit of Co-operation

Mr. Fred W. Downer, chairman of the Committee on Civic Affairs for the Lethbridge Board of Trade conceived the happy idea of a Civic Holiday on May 8th for the purpose of beautifying Henderson Park. The City of Lethbridge is possessed of a splendid park system. Henderson Park, a tract of 300 acres including 100 acres of lake was laid out two years ago, but owing to the financial stringency and consequent economy the city has been unable to proceed with all of the intended improvements. On the suggestion of Mr. Fred W. Downer May 8th was declared a holiday and all the able-bodied citizens of the community were invited to give their services to the cleaning up and improvement of this park. The Commissioner of Public Works, A. M. Grace, with his staff carefully laid out the plan of campaign whereby flower gardens, shrubs, trees, lawns, walks, drives and the usual other park improvements were undertaken by the volunteers and put through with systematic and up-to-date methods in one day.

Among the benefits was the improvement of a bathing beach. More than 50 teamsters were recruited to provide the sand, gravel, etc., for this work. The Municipal Brass Band, the Salvation Army Brass Band, and the Lethbridge Pipers' Band in kilties volunteered their services for the day. The women of the community acting through clubs and church organizations were also on the job providing the necessary commissary for the workers. His Worship W. D. L. Hardie, Mayor of Lethbridge, threw the first shovel of dirt promptly at 9:30 o'clock in the morning. Some 1,000 of the able-bodied citizens actively engaged in the enterprise, including city officials, professional men, and men in all walks of life.

Some Extra Streets Are Getting a Little Water

The residents of Hunter Street east, between Concession and Rogers Street, claim they are getting a trifle too much dust. They are on a main automobile artery, the approach to the litt look. Ald. Anderson put in a word for them at the Board of Works meeting last night, but there is some question as to whether water-waggoning up and down the hill would be the simpest form of operation. At any rate the members of the Board of Works were stealing little pieces of extra roadway to be watered and Ald. McIntyre moved, seconded by Ald. Saunders, that the following sections of streets be provided for: Hunter, from Roger to Concession; Antrim, from George to the G.T.R.; London, from Aylmer to the G.T.R.; Harvey Street to Smith Street, and Wolfe Street to the G.T.R.

DUMP WAGGON AND STREET CLEANING CARTS FOR CITY

Ald. Duncan and Engineer Parsons were authorized by the Board of Works last night to purchase four street cleaning carts and four extra cans at a cost of $84, and also to buy two dump waggons at a price not exceeding $160.

The street cleaning carts are to be manned by the white wings and will part of the equipment for keeping the main streets in good condition. Mr. Parsons stated that one of the dump waggons could be obtained at from $123 to $160, but that $145 would buy a very serviceable waggon. They have a capacity eash of two cubic yards and weigh 2,000 lbs.

"VATERLAND" AT NEW YORK

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, May 21.—The Hamburg American liner Vaterland, the latest greatest Leviathan reached here safely to-day on her first trip having averaged 23½ knots an hour. It took twenty tugs to warp her into her docks. She was given a boisterous salute by other vessels in the harbour.

WILL ATTEMPT TO KEEP THE PAVEMENT CLEAN

Ald. Stratton called the attention of the Board of Works last night to the dusty condition of the pavement on George Street resulting from infrequent flushing. Merchants have been complaining of this condition and Ald. Stratton suggested that the pavement be flushed thoroughly and kept free from the present top surface of oily dirt. It was decided, on motion of Ald. Anderson and Ald. Stratton that the Fire, Water and Light Department be asked to have the Fire Department flush Hunter and George Streets at intervals, the work to be done at six o'clock in the morning.

Council Could Not Deal With Error In Mr. W. A. Hunter's Assessment But City Solicitor Is Mediator

Mr. W. A. Hunter attended the Board of Works meeting last night and made a strong claim for consideration in connection with the error which had been made in his assessment. Mr. Hunter upon reading the assessment as published several months ago found that he was assessed for ten feet more property than he owned.

Mr. Hunter said he was assessed during the past five years for this 10 feet of land. It is at the corner of Sherbrooke and Reid Streets. Mr. McCannon had purchased the property from the Toronto Savings and Loan Company. Mr. Hunter said he did not want to pay a frontage tax for sewer, water, etc. He had paid it long enough without owning the ten foot strip. He asked that the 1913 assessment be corrected.

"The assessor said I had transferred the property in 1911—which I never did," Ald. Duncan read Mr. Parson's report to the effect that the Engineering Department had nothing to do with the allotment of frontages which should be corrected in the assessor's rolls.

Mr. Hunter said he owned 26 feet of the land and had been assessed for 36 feet.

"There are dozens of cases like this in the City," Ald. Duncan stated.

Mr. Sid Mitchell is assessed for 30 feet and should be assessed for 35 feet.

Ald. Green suggested that Mr. Hunter, Mr. Mitchell and the Toronto Savings and Loan Co. get together in an effort to straighten it out.

Mr. Hunter contended that the City had made the error and should rectify it. The City got his money, which they were not entitled to, from him.

Ald. Green argued that anything the Council would do would simply be illegal.

Ald. Duncan—We're wasting time. We can't deal with it.

Mr. Hunter said he would have a small chance of getting his money from the Savings Co. if they were the real owners of the land.

Mr. Gordon did not know of any civic machinery except the Court of Revision that could deal with the matter.

City Solicitor Gordon suggested that he could arrange for a meeting of the assessor (Mr. Mitchell), Mr. Hunter and Mr. W. G. Morrow of the Toronto Savings and Loan Co.

MR. J. J. HOWDEN BROKE A RIB

Mr. J. J. Howden had the misfortune to break a rib on Tuesday last. The injury was the result of a fall against a chair. A coat hanging on the back of it unbalanced it and when Mr. Howden went to sit down the chair slipped and he fell to the floor, striking against the chair.

Beauties Of Victoria Park

In every pamphlet that goes abroad advertising Peterborough or in every essay or article that is written concerning the advantages of this City, special mention is made of its parks. But just now, from all the parks of the City, beautiful and useful as they be at other times of the year, there is one that must be singled out and remarked upon for its admirable appearance. That is Victoria Park.

At any time during the summer, Victoria Park is a beautiful spot, but during the last few days it has sported a wealth of colour and a greenness of grass and foliage that justifies the remark that never before has the park presented to those who have the privilege of viewing it, quite as lovely a scene as it does just now. The beauty is only skin deep was never spoken of Victoria Park, the only regrettable feature of its present condition being that the tulips, with their bright colours, cannot remain in full blossom throughout the summer.

Instead of the usual allowance of spring flowers that add to the beauty of the park every spring, a very much larger number of tulips of the red and yellow variety, have blossomed and are blooming in the numerous flower beds of the park. On each side of the centre walk up to the fountain are long beds of tulips. A large centre bed and a number of other smaller ones are also radiant with the same species of flowers, and the brilliant tulips combined with the foliage of the trees and the splendid condition of the grass, make the park a place that none of the nature lovers of the City should neglect to see during the next couple of days.

The park has been conditioned and watched over by Caretaker Glee, who is to be complimented on the way that he has taken advantage of and assisted the handiwork of nature in the decoration of the park.

Twenty dollars a pound was the price paid a few years ago for aluminum. To-day the "SALADA" Tea Co. are commencing to use it to wrap their well-known tea. So light is this wonderful metal that a single sheet weighs no more than a similar sized sheet of letter paper.

Train Scrubbed By Angry Crowd

CLOSTER, N. J., May 20—The poor old Erie came in for the worst shock of its existence yesterday afternoon, when the members of the Closter Civic Federation, headed by President F. D. Mallory, with a dozen men, captured one of its trains and gave it a bath.

When the 3.30 train from Jersey City wandered into Closter the engineer spied a squad of determined-looking men, armed with hose, mops, brushes and pails of water, waiting beside the track. When he stopped his train he was horrified to see them attacking with their implements places on the cars where windows formerly showed.

Meanwhile the Conductor had to hold the train, for a most amazing crowd of women and children had to be let off. They were the wives and children of the cleaning brigade and their friends who had boarded the train one station down the line, with the deliberate purpose of holding it to allow the men to complete their fiendish work.

SOUTH BEACH OPEN

Visitors and Holiday-seekers May Enjoy the Day at This Favourite Resort

TO CANVAS IN AID OF Y. M. C. A.

At a meeting of the directors of the Y.M.C.A. held this week, it was decided to hold a financial canvas on behalf of the Association, the first week in June. The canvas will be undertaken by twenty business men and twenty young men. The amount to be raised is $4,850, and a conference of business men will be held next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock to make further plans for the campaign.

FOURTH ANNUAL DINNER OF F. CO. WAS PRONOUNCED SUCCESS

Large Gathering of Officers and Men, Present at Most Enjoyable Function—Col. Clegg Was Presented With an Address and a Blackthorn Cane—A Lengthy Toast List

OFFICERS PRESENT

The fourth annual dinner of F Company of the 57th Regiment was held last evening in the recreation room of the Armouries. As has been mentioned before in these columns, the general citizens do not know of the friendly feelings that exist between the officers of the 57th Regiment and also between the officers and men. This fact was evidenced by the cordial relations that were exchanged last evening.

These annual dinners and also it might be incidentally mentioned, balls, have been held with a marked regularity by this company for a number of years, and each successive year scores and popularity has been more pronounced. Last night's dinner bore distinctive evidence to this, in a most striking manner.

The company has as its chief officer, Capt. A. P. McLean, whose interest in the welfare of the company which he command with unceasing interest. It has been known for many years to be the smartest company in the regiment and, has carried off the prize for efficiency many times. The one idea whihc was impressed upon the men last evening was the importance of being able to shoot. This of course is a world-wide recognized factor in military life. It may be that militia units disregard this to a certain extent, but it is hoped that in the future much more interest will be taken of this all important factor, which tends to train a soldier to be of use on the battle field.

Among those present last evening were Lt.-Col. Clegg, 57th, Lt.-Col. Miller, Major Mills, Major Davidson, Capt. McLean, Capt. Ackerman, Lt. K. G. Lech, Lieut. N. H. Campbell of the 57th Regiment and Col. Young, commanding the 10th Brigade, C.F.A., Major Medd of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons and Capt. Fee of the 24th Battery, C.F.A. A splendid repast had been served by Messrs. Hoopers, to which full justice was done by all present. No reference need be made as to the satisfactory manner in which the meal was served.

A very pleasant surprise was sprung on Col. Clegg in the middle of the toast list, when he was presented with an address read by Col.-Sergt. Dodds, and a blackthorn cane, right from "Ould Ireland," presented by Pte. V. Eastwood.

The Reply.

Col. Clegg said he was entirely taken by surprise at being the recipient of an address and the beautiful blackthorn cane. I can only thank you from the bottom of my heart. I have done all I could for the regiment in the limited time I have at my disposal, and if I have merited any appreciation it is fully repaid by the knowledge of it.

The recreation room had been suitably decorated with streamers for the occasion, and Mr. Asa Huycke's orchestra discoursed sweet music during the dinner, introducing several novelties, which received the hearty applause of all present. The usual list of toasts was then commenced, during which several instrumental and vocal selections were given by the orchestra and its members.

The following is the programme.

Orchestra, "Selection," Minuet (Paderewski.

Violin solo, "Cavatina," (Raff) .... Wm. Wilson.

Vocal solo, "Sands of the Desert" ..... Ball
Asa Huycke.

Clarionet solo, "Long, Long Ago" ..... Ritter
Otto Gliddon

Recitation .....
Col. Miller.

Ocarina and Harp duet .....
Asa Huycke and Chas. Seymour

Male Quartette 'Killarney, My Home' Orchestral Quartette.

Cornet solo "La Paloma" (Yardier)
Jos. Minnicola.

Trombone and Violin duet .....
Asa Huycke and Wm. Wilson.

Orchestra selection 'Spanish Dance' .....Moszkowski

The Toasts—The King.

Cpat. McLean, acting as chairman, proposed the toast of the King, which in true military style was musically honoured.

"Our Regimental Officers."

The chairman called upon Lt.- K. G. Lech to make this toast. "To my lot," said Lt. Lech, "has fallen the honour of proposing the toast of our regimental officers. The speaker said he was pleased as an officer of the company to be present, and would hold the interest he had gained in their welfare.

The Replies.

Col. Clegg, replying to the toast, said he thanked them on his own behalf (the other officers could do so for themselves), for the hearty manner in which they had drank to the toast of the regimental officers. He was glad to be at the 4th annual dinner of F. Company. Each effort seems to surpass any previous one. It is hard to say where credit belongs, for the efficiency of F. oL. Ho captain is one of our best and most active officers. The non-commissioned officers have given their best support, and were backed by the men of the company.

Congratulations.

It has been my pleasure for several years to congratulate Capt. McLean on having special mention made of his company by the inspecting officers, and there could be none higher. This year there is a little more competition. I know several companies are striving to obtain the honours that belong to F Co., and have belonged to them for some years. There is rivalry and I am glad to see it. It means that other officers are getting to work. We have several companies in excellent shape. I don't know what the outcome will be. The best company will win the best prize. It is not for me to say which one I would like to see win it, but I have no objection to No. 6 winning it. I hope to see other companies attain the splendid standard of efficiency not only on the parade ground, but in other branches of the service, drill and other parts of the training which we take up. We have a great opportunity to learn how to shoot.

Shooting.

I cannot help mentioning the shooting at this favourable opportunity. Now we have a range, a good range, and everything in our favour, and it is only necessary that we go there and get the training. I want to impress on the members of F. Co. the valuable opportunity of going to the rifle range. It is there we will have to go if we want to make the 57th a shooting regiment. There will be lots of opportunity to take this up, and prizes will be offered for the best shots. In this work you have the support of trained officers, who are interested in the work.

Major Mills.

Major Mills is an old time member of F. Co. and stated how pleased he was at being able to be present at the dinner. He related the following story with the intention of incriminating Col. Miller, who sat at his left. In those days, he wouldn't say how many years ago, they were situated next to a company of ill repute. The clothes, serges, etc., were at that time, particularly so with No. 6 Co. Finally No. 6 dawned to the fact that they were being robbed of the clothes that remained to ythe men of No. 5. Determained by the men of No. 5. Determined they purchased some lockers with money which had been given them for a dinner. Things went well for a time until finally No. 5 had the lockers too. They were then christened the 40 thieves.

Men of Fine Physique.

He had been looking over the shooting. No. 6 company were men of fine physique. Capt. MacLean's company is a credit to the regiment. There will be a prize of fifty dollars offered for the smartest company in the regiment, this year. As Col. Clegg said, there is going to be a great deal of competition. As a matter of fact there should be three fifty dollars. No. 6 say that they are going to win it. Capt. McPherson, acting as Lieut., said the Colonel might just as well write out the cheque right now, as they would be sure to get it, while Col.-Sergt. Howarth says it is a sure thing for C. Co.

Not Enough Shooting.

He had been looing over the shooting cards for the past two weeks, and the only thing he found wrong with them was that No. 6 was not fully enough represented. Every Saturday the men are taken to the ranges, where there are four sergeants who have passed their musketry exams, and the Sergt.-Major, waiting to give instructions to all who seek it. The Daughters of the Empire are offering a special prize for recruits who have not won a prize for shooting before. The Government also will likely send one man from each company to compete in the matches of the Dominion Rifle Association, at Ottawa. He congratulated them all on their general efficiency, but hoped that in future they would pay more attention to the shooting.

Violin Solo.

A violin solo was here given by Mr. Wilson, whose mastery over the difficult instrument was more than apparent. Precision and technique and excellent bowing gained for him loud and continued applause.

The Quartermaster.

Major Eastwood, the popular Quartermaster of the regiment, said he had to congratulate the officers of No. for having such a general standard of efficiency. The men of the company should recognize that they have a lot of very generous and very enthusiastic officers. He could say nothing further then emphasize what Col. Clegg and Major. Mills had said.

The Chaplain.

Major Davidson, chaplain to the regiment, said that he supposed that on an occasion like this the words spoken are discounted. But we are speaking, he said, from the very bottom of our hearts, in expressing the feelings of admiration for the splendid way this company has gone forward, through the efforts of its men. This banquet he the ejorts of its men. This banquet he said, had been splendidly done in the past, has been splendidly done tonight, and will be splendidly done in the future. I am a friend to every man in the regiment, and I would like the men to recognize that, and if they have any matter in which they think I could be of any help, I would be most pleased to do it. They had a splendid officer in Capt. McLean, who though he was not a very fatherly-looking man, kept a fatherly eye on them all. They should be glad that they had the good fortune to be in No. 6 company. He thanked them for the courtesy that had been extended to him.

Appeal For Sport.

Capt. McPherson remarked on the splendid turnoutof men, of such an admirable type. It is a pleasure for more reasons than one, he said, No. 6 was the only other company I was ever in. It is a pleasure for the men of No. 8 to which I belong, to see No. 6 flourishing. Capt. McPherson made an appeal for the sports. There was a committee for sports, he said, who were ready to do all they could, and provide any kind of sport for the boys of the regiment, but to do that, we must have the support of the men. We want them to tell us what the men want to do. If they want to play hookey, we will build them a rink. If they want tennis we will provide them a court, and anything they want, it will be our pleasure to provide, if the men will only back us up. We want to push forward indoor baseball, and we are going to do it. We want to see it flourishing right away. We are going to make a beginning by fitting up this recreation room. We will install a pool table, a gramaphone and daily papers and magazines, and the room will be open every night of the week (except Sunday, said Canon Davidson) and we want the men to feel that they have somewhere to go. We want good sport, organised sport. Whenever we have held a meeting in the past, there have only been a few straggling fellows. We want the support of the men of No. 6 Co. to help carry out the sports for the coming year.

"Glencoe."

Lt. Col. Miller was then asked to give a recitation. Before doing this, however, he applied a few suitable remarks to the men. There was, he said, a marked difference between the men of this regiment and others he had seen. They were very orderly, and had the best captain in the regiment. A soldier should remember that duty to his work and obedience to his officer meant a great deal. They should attend to the commands of their officers with alertness and precision. Think of the noble three hundred who rode into the valley of death. "There not to wonder why, there's but to do, or die." They didn't hesitate one moment. Their officer bade them charge, and they did so, and gave to the world a piece of history that will never be forgotten. They must have confidence in their officers, and remember that they were fighting under a flag that was only unfurled in honour's cause. That is why England is now mistress of the seas, and why all the honour falls to that country. Col. Miller then delighted the men by reciting "Glencoe," which was called for by Capt. McLean.

Our Sister Corps.

Lieut. N. H. Campbell then proposed the toast of "Our Sister Corps," remarking that without the cavalary and artillery, he did not know where the infantry would be.

Col. Young, 10th C F.A.

To this toast, Col. Young, commanding officer of the 10th Brigade, Canadian Field Artillery, responded. He stated that he started his military career in the infantry some years ago, and their commanding officer had commenced by wearing an artillery uniform. Without each other the forces could not very well get along. The artillery had to help the cavalary, the cavalry had to help the infantry, and the infantry had to help them both. He wished to draw attention to the Church parade that was to be held on Sunday, and hoped to see a large and representative body of men turn out.

The Cavalry.

For this branch of the service, Major Medd of the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, made a suitable reply. We of the cavalry, he said, have 12 days in camp. We look pretty dusty when we go, and we also look prety dusty when we come back, and I suppose that some people get a bad impression of us. However, I have got one of the smartest squadrons in the militia mounted forces of Canada, and I am proud of it. I started soldiering a number of years ago. I was a trooper, corporal, sergeant and sergeant-major, and I think that the only day's peace I had was when I had one of those positions. on men cannot realise the responsibility that rests upon your officers. I think you are a lot of smart men. I don't know whether or not any of you can ride a horse, but anyway, it would be a pleasure to see you mounted and riding behind me. We have great chances in this grand Canada.

Capt. Fee, 24th Batt., C.F.A.

Captain Fee of the 24th Brigade, C.F.A., said he had never seen a lot of men with a better combination of qualities, and with training they would make fine soldiers and compare favourably with the best in the Dominion of Canada. He knew that by his own experience. He well remembered the coronation of King Edward in August 1902, and that he considered, one of the finest sights he had ever seen. He could only say what Baden Powell says to his scouts, "Fear God, honour the King, and do a good turn every day.

The Non-Coms.

The toast to the non-commissioned officers was proposed by Capt. McPherson. The regiment, he remarked, was very fortunate in having a good superior class of non-commissioned officers. To this toast, Col.-Sergt. Howarth and Cl.-Sergt. Dodds replie.

The Press.

The toast to the press was proposed by Col.-Sergt. Dodds, and replied to by the representative of the Examiner.

The rendition of the National Anthem concluded the evening's entertainment.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

SENATORS WIN RUBBER GAME OF THE SERIES IN HOLLOW FASHION

Petes Gave a Sorry Exhibition Behind Tracey and Shag's Crew Won 11 to 2---Homesters Fielded Miserably and Failed to Hit While the Champs Ran Wild on the Bases

Giving a similar exhibition to their opening day performance, the Petes were out-classed by Ottawa yesterday, the Senators winning hands down by 11 to 2. The Champs put the game on ice in the first three innings, scoring three runs in the second and four in the third off Pitcher Ken Tracey. To give the pitcher his due, the massacre was not all his fault. His support was wretched. Wilcox and Swartz dropped easy flies, Blount and Swartz misjudged drives that went for doubles instead of outs. Fox pulled a bone-head play that handed the visitors a run, and slow work in the infield cost several more. To make it worse the Senators ran wild on the bases. Rogers and Lage both stealing second and third. Miller's injured hand did not give him a chance and the Shagmen took full advantage of the handicap and galloped around at will.

The Petes showed their usual weakness at the bat and altogether it was a sorry get-away day performance.

There is little use in going into details. The box score tells the story eloquently enough. Belting relieved Tracey after the fourth, and the Swede steamed along in good style until the eighth when the Senators bunched four singles and scored three more runs.

Shaughnessy uncovered another new pitcher in the person of Peterson, of the same nationality as Belting. He looked like an accomplished box artist too, although the weakness of the Peterborough attack makes every pitcher that faces them appear a world beater.

Fine fielding by Geo. Nill, the veteran second-baseman of the Senators was the feature. Umpire Evans' work on balls and strikes was very bad. Some of his decisions causing the players and crowd to howl in anguish. His Umps should try shutting his eyes and guessing them for a while—or perhaps that is his system.

First Innings.

Ottawa — Bullock fanned. Nill grounded to Tracey. Wilcox dropped Shag's fly to right. Shaughnessy stole second. Rogers grounded to Fox. No runs or hits, one error.

Peterborough—Blount grounded to Nill. Fox was safe on Dolan's fumble. He was out stealing, Lage to Nill. Wilcox singled to centre. King grounded to Peterson. No runs, one hit, one error.

Second Innings.

Ottawa—Dolan walked. Powers sacrificed, Gorman to Fox. Lage singled over second, scoring Dolan. Lage stole second, Miller's throw being wide and then stole third. Fried struck out, Shag kicking strenuously. Peterson singled to right scoring Lage. Bullock hit to Fox, who threw high to second. Nill singled to right, scoring Peterson and sending Bullock to third. Shag was hit filling the bases. Rogers flied to Wilcox. Three runs, three hits, one error.

Peterborough—Byrne reached second on Bullock's high throw to first. Gorman grounded to Nill, Byrne going to third. Swartz died on a grounder to Nill, scoring Byrne. Milner died on a smash to Peterson, a blind stop by the pitcher. One run, no hits, one error.

Third Innings.

Ottawa—Dolan doubled to deep centre, Blount misjudging the drive. Powers stratched a hit to short. Swartz misjudged Lage's drive and it went for two bases, Dolan scoring. Swartz dropped Fried's fly to left, Powers scoring. Peterson singled inside first, scoring Lage and Fried. Bullock sacrified. Nill hit a fly to Blount and Peterson was doubled, Blount to King. Four hits, four runs, one error.

Peterborough — Tracey fanned. Blount walked. Fox grounded to Nill. Dolan made a grand play on Wilcox's fast drive and threw him out, Peterson covering. No runs, hits or errors.

Fourth Innings.

Ottawa—Shag grounded to Tracey. Rogers walked and stole second, and then stole third. Dolan scored Rogers on a bunt to Gorman. Powers tripled to deep centre. Lage ground to Fox. One run, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough—King flied to Powers. Byrne was hit. Gorman forced Byrne, Bullock to Nill. Swartz fanned. No runs, hits or errors.

Fifth Innings.

Ottawa—With Belting pitching Fried flied to Blount. Peterson fanned. Bullock scratched a hit to short and stole second. Nill died on a roller in front of the plate. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough — Miller flied to Rogers. Belting grounded to Nill. Blount died on a foul fly to Lage. No runs, hits, or errors.

Sixth Innings.

Ottawa—Shag flied to King. Rogers singled to centre. Rogers stole. Miller dropping the ball. Dolan grounded to Fox. Rogers was out trying to steal home. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough — Fox fanned. Wilcox singled over second. King walked. Byrne hit to Peterson and Wilcox was out at third on the pitcher's throw. Gorman grounded to Peterson. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Seventh Innings.

Ottawa — Powers grounded to Byrne. Lage fanned. Fried also struck out. No runs, hits or errors.

Peterborough—Swartz walked. Miller hit into a double play, Fried to Nill to Dolan. Belting fanned. No runs, hits or errors.

Eighth Innings.

Ottawa—Peterson singled over second, breaking his bat. Bullock fanned. Nill singled to left. Shag singled to right. Rogers hit to King forcing Shag, but Peterson scored. Rogers stole second. Dolan singled over second, scoring Nill and Rogers. Powers flied to Swartz. Three runs, four hits, no errors.

Peterborough—Blount flied to Powers. Fox singled to right. Wilcox fanned. King doubled to left, scoring Fox. Byrne cracked one to Rogers. One run, two hits, no errors.

Ninth Innings.

Ottawa—Lage flied to Blount. Fried hit through short but was out stealing, Miller to King. Peterson fanned. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Peterborough—Gorman was hit. Swartz grounded to Nill. Nill captured Miller's fly back of second. Belting singled over second. Blount forced Belting, Bullock to Nill. No runs, hits or errors.

HITTERS ARE BADLY NEEDED

Petes Are Sadly Lacking in Batting Strength and Must be Reinforced at Once

IN LONDON TO-DAY

The Petes left this morning for London for a three-game series after a week's stay at home that cannot be called a very successful stand. Out of six games on the home lot, the Blounmen grabbed but two, winning one out of three games from London and Ottawa. The two victories were due to air-tight pitching by Tracey and Schettler that neutralized the weak hitting of their team mates. Cresswell gave them another chance for a win by holding the Senators to two runs, but on that occasion the Petes' batting efforts were even worse than usual and the local boy's good pitching was wasted.

The Petes have shown a lamentable weakness in attack in their week at home. Every pitcher in the six games seemed to be a mystery to the homesters, and hitters are sadly needed. Blount, himself, is in a batting slump that is a mystery to himself as well as to those who have seen him play. Shaughnessy, Rogers, and Kubat, Ottawa players who were with Fort Wayne in 1912, cannot understand the little Manager's failure to hit.

First Baseman Gorman is not doing anything with the bat. Swartz did not get a hit in the home series, and some of the others were nearly as bad. Fox, Wilcox and King seem to be gettin gtheir eye on the ball, the trio doing practicaly all the hitting during the Ottawa series, but the Club, as a whole, has been very feeble. Two or three good batters would make the team a far better looking ball club. The battery department looks all right. Schettler, Cresswell and Tracey have shown good form. There is no doubt of Sterling's ability once he secures control, and Belting's performance yesterday would seem to show that his sore arm has come around. When Miller's hand is healed he will prove a first-class catcher and Kelly looks able to fill the bill nicely.

The wires are hot after several players who can sting the ball and before the holiday games some new faces may be seen under the blue caps of the Petes.

CHURCH BALL LEAGUE OPENS ON SATURDAY

Everything looks bright for the grand opening of the Church Baseball League on Saturday afternoon, May 23. Good weather is the only thing which is needed now. Last night St. Paul's had a work-out at Central School Grounds, while the Y.M.C.A. were doing their best at the Oval. The probable line-up for St. Paul's in their contest with St. Andrew's on Saturday is as follows: Catcher, M. Turner; pitcher, Mulhern; 1st base, D. Loucks; 2nd base, Olson or Steer; 3rd base, Low; short stop, J. Munroe; left field, H. Bradbury; centre field, Perks; right field, Fee; spares, Gibson and Rosenburgh.

AMERICAN GOLFERS ARE ALL DEFEATED

Special Wire to The Examiner:

SANDWICH, Eng., May 21.—The British amateur golf cup cannot now go to the United States. This afternoon, with two more days of play to come, there was not an American in the running, the defeat to-day of Harold Weber, of Toledo, eliminating the last of the ten American entrants from the championship.

LACROSSE PRACTICE TO-NIGHT AT 6.30

There will be lacrosse practice at Riverside Park to-night at 6.30, and all the members are asked to turn out. An invitation is also extended to new comers to the City who have played the game in other cities and who are not known to the local players. They will be cordially welcomed, for it is hoped that Peterborough will have a strong team this year. Hastings and the other towns in this district may be depended upon to play good lacrosse and the games are going to be worth watching.

BOY'S LACROSSE MATCH MAY BE ARRANGED

It is likely that a juveile lacrosse game will be arranged in the near future between the boys of the West Ward and the youngsters in the South Ward who have been helped along by George Robertson. The boys will get every encouragement to learn the game and also to play it, and it is felt that the matches will not only increase their proficiency but will also give them an increased interest and liking for it.

BASEBALL

In the Public School League yesterday the King Edward school team easily defeated the Queen Mary school team by 18 runs to 0. The batteries were Frost and Braund for the winners and Patterson, Williamson and Flowers for the Queen Mary team.

A meeting of the Mercantile League will be held to-morrow night, at 7.30, when entrance fees are expected to be in. Other important business will be transacted.

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The long continued spell of fine weather seems to have had a very lethargic effect upon the Mercantile Executive.

Since their election, some six weeks ago, they have had one meeting at which little was done, and we are now half way through the season, and there's not even a schedule drawn up.

If President Paton and his confreres don't soon get a hustle on they will be having the final games of the League interfering with the hockey practices.

All the teams seem to be practicing steadily and we're anxious to see a start made as there should be some good "ball" shown. The C.G.E. Red Caps will practice to-night on the Exhibition Grounds after 6 o'clock p.m. Hope to see everyone up to practice.

Stock Markets

A. H. Stratton & Co., Brokers, report the following:

NEW YORK, May 20.— The stock market was again extremely dull, with particular weakness in M.O.P., and if anybody is still short of it, he had better cover now. If the notes are taken acre of, the stock could rally 6 or 8 points, but it would only be a temporary one. I od not see how this property can escape receivership and a reassessment.

N.H. declined to 67, and it does not act as well as it ought to. I think it is always best, when a stock does not induce investment by its action, to get out of it and get into something else.

Otherwise the market is acting bright Had there been a sharp rally to-day with new high prices in the leaders, some profits should have been taken, but as this rally did not materialize nothing should have been done to-day. Stand pat till we advise you to get out.

I look for much higher prices in the general list before the middle of June, and I advise you to stay as you are meanwhile.

BRIDGENORTH

Examiner Special:

BRIDGENORTH, May 20—No rain yet, and rain is badly needed.

The weather has been very cold with frosts at night. The temperature has risen since Sunday.

Plum trees are in blooms also the apple trees, and if the weather keeps fine and the frosts keep away, and the caterpillars destroyed, there is likely to be a good crop of fruit.

The whistle blew on Monday morning, that means that the Kelly Lumber Co. has commenced operations with the saw mill, and they have quite a few logs on hand to cut into lumber and shingles which will give employment for all the men in the Village.

Jim Jopling has secured a contract on the Welland Canal, at St. Catharines, and intends commencing operations next week. Jim has ten teams of horses and all the equipment for to go on with the job. He will employ many teamsters from this locality.

Chemong Park is beginning to look at its best with the green grass and the trees coming in leaf and the Lake, these fine days, is a charming sight. The water in the lake is over two feet lower than has been the case for years past, which means that the boat houses have not been injured.

Mr. Hugh Charles and Mrs. Hugh Charles have returned to the Park; also Mr. and Mrs. Wolf of Hamilton.

Dr. Robertson and family are occupying Mrs. E. D. G. Pearce's cottage and intend to spend the summer in the Park.

Mr. Hartshorn intends coming here in a few days.

WEDDING BELLS

NORTHEY—BLACK.
A very quiet wedding was solemnized at 1 p.m. Tuesday, May 19th, at the house of Mr. and Mrs. S. Northey, Bobcaygeon, when their only daughter, Annie, was united in marriage to Harry E. Black of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. J. Harris, pastor of the Baptist Church, in the presence of only the intimate friends and relatives of the contracting parties.

The bride was given away by her father, and was charmingly attired in a white silk dress overlaid with shadow lace, and trimmed with white satin de Chine, wearing the usual veil and carried a shower bouquet of carnations and maidenhair fern. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold sunburst. The bride's travelling suit was of blue serge with hat to match. The young couple left amid showers of confetti for Peterborough, where the bride will be at home after June 1st, at 399 Stewart street. The presents were costly and numerous.

OBITUARY

MISS E. IRWIN.
The death occurred yesterday afternoon at four o'clock, at her late residence, 508 College street, of Miss E. Irwin, after an illness of some months. The deceased was sixty-one years of age, and was born in Mariposa Township. She had resided in this city for the past twenty-one years, where she was highly esteemed by a host of friends, who will learn with deep regret of her death.

Two brothers, Messrs. Richard, of Regina, Sask., and Nelson of Warminster, and one sister, Mrs. McKinnon, of Toronto, are left to mourn her loss.

The funeral will take place Saturday afternoon at two o'clock from the above residence to the Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. MARY OCORAN.
The death occurred early yesterday morning at her home, 143 Caledonian Avenue, Rochester, N.Y., of Mrs. Mary Corcoran, sister of Mr. Patrick Hogan of the Albion Hotel, East City, after a brief illness.

The deceased lady resided in Rochester for many years, but before taking up residence in that city she lived in Peterborough. Some of the older residents will remember her and will be very sorry to learn of her death. She was sixty-four years of age.

She is survived by one son and two daughters. Three sisters and two brothers survive her, the brothers being Patrick Hogan of this City, and James of Burleigh Township. The funeral will be held in Rochester.

THE EXAMINER OFFICE TELEPHONES.
The telephone numbers of the Examiner Office have been changed. THE LIQUOR HAUL DURING 6 MONTHS

Whiskey	5,100 bottles
High Wines	66 gallons
Beer	26 barrels
Gin	60 bottles
Whiskey	16 gallons
Stout	24 bottles
Beer	546 bottles
Brandy	12 bottles

The above is the tabulation of the seizures of liquor made during the half year ending April 30, by the Provincial Police in the unorganized districts. The statistics are embodied in Superintendent Rogers' half-yearly report to the Attorney-General.

Keep Out Undesirables.
An outstanding feature of the report relates to the winter's work of the police in preventing undesirables from gaining entrance to the province. The police handed over 168 persons to the Dominion Immigration Department for deportation during the half year ending April 30, 1914. The figures for the corresponding period this year show an increase of 274. The total undesirables excluded numbering 417.

An interesting calculation was made which showed that if the amount of damage that would have been done by each of these individuals was estimated at $50, a conservative figure, the province was saved in the neighbourhood of $25,000 by their exclusion.

Not Abnormal Increase.
The number of cases handled by the police totalled 789. In connection with which there were 527 convictions, and 126 were discharged. At the end of the half year, 106 were awaiting trial. Six of these cases were dealt with at the request of other police departments. The comparison with the same period last year shows an increase of 270 cases and 166 convictions. The superintendent points out that the increase in the number of cases does not really indicate any abnormal condition, for during a considerable period in the preceding year a number of officers were withdrawn from their districts owing to the labour difficulty which arose in the Porcupine district.

Under the License Act 162 prosecutions were made showing an increase of 66 and 114 convictions, an increase of 31.

Under the Game Act there were 94 prosecutions, more than doubling the figures of last year, though the convictions only showed an increase of 16.

The number of undesirables who tried to gain entrance to the province last year was extraordinary, and the work of the police in this department is increasing at an alarming rate. Last week alone 44 deportations were made from Niagara Falls, Ont.

MOTHER-IN-LAW MUST PAY $10,500

FLINT, Mich., May 21.—Mrs. Grace Smith was awarded a judgment of $10,500 by a jury against her mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary G. Smith, for injuries sustained when the latter came to her home and beat her.

Love for her three-year-old grandson and anger because of beating the child was alleged to have received at the hands of his mother, was the defence Mrs. Smith, society woman of Flint, offered for the assault on her daughter-in-law. The son seemed unwilling to testify against either his mother or wife, but admitted that the child was unruly at times.

Mrs. Smith asked $20,00 damages.

PASSING OF MULCAHEY.
Mrs. Laura Dainty Pelham, although a Socialist, isn't averse to making an occasional campaign speech in behalf of Miss Marion Drake, Alderman Coughlin's opponent in the First Ward. The other night at a suffragette rally she compared the Hon. "Bathhouse" to the famous Mulcahey.

It was a dull night aboard ship, said Mrs. Pelham, and the crew, in lieu of any other amusement, proposed that they put Mulcahey in a bucket and fire him out of the ship's cannon. Mulcahey obliged. A thunderous report rent the air, and the human projectile went whizzing shoreward.

The noise aroused the captain, who came sleepily on deck.

"Muldoon iv th' larboard watch!" he roared.

"Aye, aye, sir," piped Muldoon.

"Mulcahey iv th' starboard watch?"

No answer.

"Muldoon, where is Mulcahey?"

"Sure, I don't know, sir, but I think he's gone ashore. He took a bucket with him."

"Aye, aye, sir; I think he wint after potaties."

"Well, when will he be back?"

"Sure, sir, I don't know, but if he comes back as quick as he wint, sir, he ought to be here in a very short time."

"Alderman Coughlin," said Mrs. Pelham, "is now in the bucket, and we were about to touch off the cannon."

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT REGARDING CANADIAN PACIFIC CHANGE OF TIME, MAY 31st.
In connection with the coming change of time on the Canadian Pacific Railway, effective May 31st, many improvements in train service have been made, notable among these being the inauguration of solid de luxe trains, carrying compartment-library-observation car, electric-lighted standard sleepers, together with standard dining car service between Montreal-Toronto, Detroit, Chicago, via Canadian Pacific and Michigan Central Railroad, commencing westbound May 31st and eastbound June 1st.

These palatial trains will be known as No. 19 and No. 20, the former leaving Montreal 8.45 a.m., arriving Toronto 5.40 p.m., leaving Toronto 6.10 p.m. arriving London 9.15 p.m., leaving London 9.30 p.m., arriving Windsor 12.10 a.m., leaving Windsor 12.25 a.m., arriving Detroit 11.25 p.m. (central time), leaving Detroit 11.55 p.m., arriving Chicago 7.45 a.m.

Train No. 2 will leave Chicago 9.30 a.m. (central time, arrive Detroit 3.55 p.m., leave Detroit 5.05 p.m. (eastern time), arrive Windsor 5.15 p.m., leave Windsor 5.25 p.m., arrive London 8.10 p.m., leave London 8.18 p.m., arrive Toronto 11.20 p.m., leave Toronto 11.40 p.m., arrive Montreal 9.00 a.m. These two trains will be operated through the Michigan Central tunnel between Windsor and Detroit.

The new Toronto-Winnipeg-Vancouver service should be greatly appreciated by the travelling public. No. 3, now leaving Toronto 10.20 p.m., will leave at 5.40 p.m., running through solid to Winnipeg and Vancouver, carrying only the highest class equipment.

New Train known as No. 7 will leave Toronto 10.50 p.m. running through solid to Winnipeg, carrying standard sleeping cars, dining car, tourist sleeping cars, colonist cars, first-class coaches, etc. Equally good service returning from the West. Particulars from Canadian Pacific Ticket Agents, or M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto. 3d-119.

MURDERER SAVES BULLET FOR HIMSELF TO PREVENT CAPTURE

Ruttan Sets Fire to Buildings of Neighbours as a Parting Threat.

IN DESPERATE MOOD

GRAVENHURST, May 22.—Wm. Ruttan, who killed Mrs. Alfred Coutermanche, his daughter, and George Coutermanche, her brother-in-law, at Mowsey Rapids Wednesday, is still at large, terrorizing the neighborhood in which the tragedy was enacted. In his fight for liberty Ruttan is well supplied with ammunition and a modern combination shotgun and rifle, with which he can use either shells or cartridges. He has in addition to the murders set fire to three barns of Messrs. Henry Cook and Thomas Fletcher, and the store of J. P. Bruce, all of whom live in the vicinity of Ruttan's farm.

All the fires occurred between one and three o'clock yesterday morning. The first conflagration was started in the large barn belonging to Henry Cook, who lives about 400 yards west of the Ruttan farm. Three horses and a cow were destroyed, and the building was reduced to ashes, entailing a damage of $2,000. The insurance is only $400. Mr. Cook stated to the police that he had been watching the building until about one o'clock, and from subsequent happenings he felt satisfied that Ruttan had apparently been watching him. No sooner had he retired than his barn was enveloped in flames. He rushed out in his night attire, but owing to the lack of water facilities he was helpless to check the flames. About an hour later barns on the farms of P. J. Bruce and Tom Fletcher were in flames, in addition to a storage warehouse belonging to Mr. Bruce, in which he had a large amount of general supplies stored. The losses in these cases will be approximately $5,000.

People in the neighborhood are up in arms over the continued warfare waged by Ruttan. They have appealed to Inspector Greer of the Provincial Police, who reached the scene of the tragedy yesterday, to report to every means possible for the apprehension of the crazed murderer.

Inspector Greer and Chief of Police Dixon of this town drove out to Mowsey Rapids yesterday and will make a thorough investigation. Upon reaching Ruttan's farm Mr. Greer found Constable Cook of Cooper's Falls in charge of the house, of which Mrs. Ruttan was the only occupant. The inspector stationed a special constable at the front door and Constable Cook at the back door while he searched the premises from cellar to garret, hoping to find Ruttan in hiding, but without success.

Inspector Greer did not return to Gravenhurst last night, deciding at the last moment to spend the night in the Ruttan house. During the day the inspector had six special constables sworn in, after which he distributed them at various parts of the Ruttan farm, issuing instructions to each man not to molest Ruttan if the outlaw attempted to enter the house during the night. The inspector stated that he would be in readiness on the inside to take charge of Ruttan if he ventured in, otherwise the special officers were to close in on him and effect his arrest.

Subsequently Inspector Greer had a long conference with Mrs. Ruttan, who was at first reluctant to answer questions. Finally she said that her husband had paid her a brief visit at midnight.

"What did he say?" asked the inspector.

"When he was leaving he kissed me good-bye, and said, 'You may never see me alive again.'

"He told me," continued Mrs. Ruttan, "that should I hear a single shot from a gun before many hours passed I would know that he would not be taken by the police alive."

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

Morcom Brothers Must Face Charge of Murder.

HONEY HARBOR, May 22.—Peter and Andrew Morcom were yesterday committed for trial on the charge of murdering Robert Hayde, a Honey Harbor grocer, in March.

Evidence was produced to show that Peter Morcom was seen and recognized in the neighborhood where the crime was committed and also that he was known to have been spending money freely about that time, most of his money being in one-dollar bills.

Annie Noonan, a little girl who worked for the family at the time of the murder and before the body was found, said that some days after the disappearance of Hayde, Peter Morcom came home and said: 'Well, I have stepped on the head of the old man."

Thomas Johnston acted as crown attorney, while the prisoners were defended by Edwin F. McDonald of Toronto.

Rocked Air Passage.

LONDON, May 22.—Some days ago Prince Ludwig of Lowenstein-Wertheim, who takes the greatest interest in flying, approached Mr. Handley Page, the aeronautical engineer, and asked if she could book a passage by air to France for yesterday as she had to be in Paris for several social engagements. At 7.30 yesterday morning the princess took her seat in a 160 h.p. biplane at Hendon, and started the flight to France. At 8.45 the biplane descended at Eastbourne to await the lifting of the thick Channel fog. In the afternoon they resumed their trip, crossing the Channel in fifteen minutes.

Guelph Farmer Killed.

GUELPH, May 22.—John Thring, a farmer living on the old David O'Connor farm, on the York road, half way between Guelph and Rockwood, met instant death yesterday afternoon in a tragic manner. Mr. Thring was engaged with his team of horses in drawing gravel to point on the Grand Trunk Railway for the erection of a new overhead bridge, and was about to dump his load when a freight train came along. The team took fright and ran away. Mr. Thring was thrown off and one of the hind wheels of the wagon passed over his neck, killing him instantly.

Sacrifice Was In Vain.

KINGSTON, May 22.—Wm. Manhard, B.Sc., of Fort William, formerly of Kingston, was married a year ago at Cobourg. A few weeks ago Mrs. Manhard was attacked with illness which rendered necessary a serious operation. Last week the doctors proposed transfusion of blood, and Mr. Manhard submitted. Twice his arms were tapped, and blood transfused to his wife, but on Friday she died. Her husband was then unconscious from loss of blood, and was not able to be at the obsequies of his wife.

Vesuvius Causes Alarm.

NAPLES, Italy, May 22.—The activity of Mount Vesuvius augments daily and is causing considerable anxiety among the population. Dense clouds of smoke are emitted from the crater and form heavy clouds. Stromboli also is much more active than usual.

Old Ball Player Dead.

HAMILTON, May 22.—Chas. Collins, county councillor of Wentworth, died at his home in Dundas yesterday morning. He was one of the best-known ball players in America, starring with the Buffalo and Indianapolis teams in the early '80's, later managing the Hamilton International team.

Health and Beauty Hints

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN

VERA R.: Your skin will grow soft, clear and smooth after a few applications of a plain almocain jelly-cream, made at home as follows: Put 4 tablespoonfuls glycerine into ½ pint water and in this dissolve 1 ounce almocain (which you can buy at your druggists). Apply a thick coat of this to the skin before retiring, then wash off in the morning and use more of the jelly-cream for massaging. This gradually dispels the wrinkles and lines and banishes pimples, blackheads and the "muddy," oily look. The almocain jelly-cream is greaseless and will not drop hair.

MRS. A. T.: You may not require pigeons. Get from your druggist 1 ounce cyptos and dissolve in 1 pint water. Then put in a few drops in the offending eye several times a day until inflammation and soreness have vanished. This cyptos eye-tonic is especially good for granulated eyelids and using it strengthens the eyes and gives them a youthful sparkle.

ADELINE: The reason for that dryness of hair after your shampoo is because that kind of soap irritates the scalp's tissues and makes them oversensitive. Catchem with comment this, for it is a tonic as well as cleanser and is so stimulating to the blood-vessels and scalp-tissues that the danger is entirely eliminated. To prepare your shampoo, dissolve a teaspoonful of cantrex in a cup of hot water, then pour it slowly over the head as you rub briskly. This dissolves every trace of dust, dandruff and grease oil, and after rinsing, the hair will dry quickly and evenly.

LUCY G.: Loss of weight is a serious matter, and calls for prompt action. Get three 5-cent packages 3 cases tasteless and put it, together with ½ cupful of sugar, into ½ pint alcohol, then add hot water to make a full quart. Take a tablespoonful before each meal. This simple home remedy increases your appetite and gently eliminates the system of impurities, restores a healthy condition to the vital organs. When this is done your weight will be normal and the glow of health will be upon your cheeks.

MRS. A. E. J.: I make a good lotion that is very helpful to my skin by dissolving 4 ounces spermaceti in ½ pint witch hazel or hot water, to which is added 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine, which will soon correct that oily, sallow, "pompeii" appearance of your complexion. This simple lotion is soothing and healing and imparts an velvety smoothness and natural loveliness to the complexion not possible with powder and rouge. You will like the spermaceti lotion because it is easily applied and cannot be detected when on.

LUCILLE: I always use a plain quinine hair tonic, made at home by pouring 1 ounce bayrosoth into ½ pint alcohol, then adding ½ pint water. Rub a little well into the scalp twice a week and you will soon rid the scalp of dandruff and restore the hair roots to health. The regular use of the quinonin tonic will restore the former gloss and even colour to the hair and make it soft, long and fluffy.

MRS. M. N. T.: Your excess weight can be wholly and quickly reduced by taking this parasota treatment, made at home, as follows: Put 4 ounces parasota (pleasant to take, you can get at your drug store), in one quart hot water and strain when cool. Take a tablespoonful before meals until reduced to where you want it. The moment results from the use of the parasota treatment, and the flesh is left solid and the skin soft and smooth.

SALTILLO DESERTED

Federals Make Hurried Departure From Threatened City

BANQUET AT THE FALLS

EL PASO, Texas, May 22.—Saltillo is the provisional capital of Mexico last night if the official reports which were received by the Constitutionalist Junta, later verified by messages to the commandants in Juarez, and flashed to France by Gen. Felip Angeles to his family, are true. After five days of battles and skirmishes between Reata and Ramos Arizpe nine miles from Saltillo, the Federal garrison, in command of Generals Cepa, De Maure, Mass, Santocoy and Romero, departed for the south to face 200 miles of the worst desert in Central Mexico. The supposed destination of the garrison of 6,500 surviving Federals is San Luis Potosi, although that town is surrounded by the forces of Gen. Carrera Torres and Santo Bulalio Guiterres, who have been besieging the town of San Luis from the north and east for the past two weeks.

The capitulation of Saltillo came as a surprise to the rebel commanders as much so as did Ojinaga and Torreon. Villa was preparing to renew the attack on the town proper after disposing of the Federal flankers and reinforcements from Monclova, who had harassed him around Paredon. He returned to Ramos Arizpe, and was making his plans for a general assault of the town, having sent his skirmish line ahead to begin the attack. At the first sound of firing the Federals left the town and started south.

The Constitutionalist Junta was not surprised at this unexpected move on the part of the Federals, as they have had confidential information from their agents in Mexico City that Huerta intends to concentrate all of his available forces in Mexico City and to offer no prolonged and hard-fought resistance to the rebels in their advance on the capital.

Borrell Welcomes Mediators.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 22.—On behalf of the Dominion Government Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, gave a dinner to the mediators at the Clifton House last night. In rising to propose the toast of the King, the Minister said: "Your Excellencies and gentlemen: On behalf of the Dominion of Canada I have the honor to extend to you a heartfelt welcome to the country you have selected as the scene of your deliberations. His Royal Highness the Governor-General has asked me to convey his most cordial greeting to the members of the conference."

In conclusion, the Minister said it was not the duty of Canada to touch on the grave complications which led to the assembling of the mediators, but of privilege to hope that there would be a solution which would make for honorable settlement.

Ambassador Da Gama, in reply, said that when he left Washington he told the President of the United States that the only support he had was that of the President himself and Mr. Bryan, but that he now felt a growing public opinion was behind him. He wound up by proposing a toast to "Peace and a spirit of confraternity among all American nations." For fear of causing embarrassment to the American mediators the health of Presidents were omitted.

It is deemed probable that there will be no full conference to-day or until next Monday, as in accordance with the usual diplomatic rule the conference would adjourn from Friday to Saturday, the extra day being given, it is believed, so that the mediators may communicate with their Governments.

Decrease Reported.

OTTAWA, May 18. — The Inland Revenue returns for April show a decrease compared with April a year ago. The figures are: April, 1914, $1,196,134; April, 1913, $1,333,697.

RESORTS ENDANGERED.

Only Hard Work Saves Cottages From Forest Fires.

HUNTSVILLE, May 22.—A high wind has prevailed all day, and this has increased the anxiety in the fire zones. Reports, however, indicate that much private property has been saved by hard fighting. The Springside cottages have been saved, and all efforts yesterday was directed toward saving five new cottages in the vicinity owned by Mr. W. G. Blackburn. Men have been rushed up from Huntsville. Gangs have also gone out to Sand Lake, where a very bad fire is raging. Bonavista, on Lake of Bays, a colony of cottages owned by Rev. Mr. Brown, was in danger, but the whole neighborhood turned out, and it is said to-day that the buildings have been saved. This is the only danger point reported from Lake of Bays.

The Muskoka Wood Co. has lost a large number of logs at dumps on the east river, and the Ontario Bark Co. has sent a gang of men to protect their limits in Parry Township. There is still no sign of rain, and deep anxiety prevails everywhere in this section. The loss already is heavy.

Steamers Delayed by Smoke.

MONTREAL, May 22. — Dense smoke from forest fires in the Laurentian mountains and along the banks of the St. Lawrence between this port and Quebec held up several steamers yesterday. The Lake Michigan and Corinthian, bound from Great Britain, were forced to anchor near Batiscan.

STOMACH TROUBLES DUE TO ACIDITY

SO SAYS EMINENT SPECIALIST.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, wind, stomach-ache and inability to retain food, are in probably nine cases out of ten simply evidence that fermentation is taking place in the food contents of the stomach causing the formation of gas and acids. Wind distends the stomach, and causes that full, oppressive feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the fermenting food. Such fermentation is unnatural, and acid formation is not only unnatural, but may involve most serious consequences if not corrected. To stop or prevent fermentation of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and render it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of diamated magnesia, probably the best and most effective corrector of acid stomach known, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water immediately after eating, or whenever wind or acidity is felt. This stops the fermentation, and neutralizes the acidity in a few minutes. Fermentation, wind and acidity are dangerous and unnecessary. Stop or prevent them by the use of a proper antacid, such as diamated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist and thus enable the stomach to do its work properly without being hindered by poisonous gas and dangerous acids.—E. T. F.

UNIONISTS ENRAGED

They Create Stormy Scenes Over Home Rule Bill

SPEAKER ADJOURNS HOUSE

LONDON, May 21.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—There was a wild scene in the House of Commons when, following the remarks of the Prime Minister, Mr. Asquith, and Mr. Bonar Law, the leader of the Opposition, that immediate third reading of the Home Rule Bill was moved. Instantly there was a great uproar, half a dozen members attempting to talk at once. Speaker Lowther tried vainly to restore order, and finally adjourned the Commons until to-day.

When Mr. Asquith announced that the Home Rule bill would be called up for a third reading on Tuesday night, he said that he was prepared to consider all suggestions that might render the Government proposals acceptable to Ulster, but he insisted that the Commons must first pass the bill unimpaired.

Mr. Asquith said the Government's proposals for compromise had not met an encouraging reception. So anxious was the Government that a new system of government should start with general acquiescence that they had put forward proposals designed to meet susceptibilities which they readily admitted did exist. The effect of the Government's proposals would be to give people a chance of saying at the poll whether they would go under the provisions of the bill or not.

While the Government were anxious that full consideration should be given to such susceptibilities, they fully admitted they must have the firm judgment on the main proposals of the bill.

Mr. Bonar Law and other Unionists followed in bitter speeches, in which they denounced Premier Asquith for his refusal to acquaint the House of Commons with the terms of his amending bill. They declared that the whole proceeding of asking the House of Commons to read the Home Rule bill a third time before members knew the Government's intentions was so farcical that it would serve no good purpose to participate further in the debate.

Immediately after the vote had been taken, the Unionists started the refrain, "Adjourn," "Adjourn."

The uproar was long and loud. The Speaker finally rose and asked Mr. Bonar Law, the leader of the Opposition, whether he assented in the demonstration.

Amid shouts from his supporters of "Don't answer," Mr. Law refused to reply, and the Speaker declared the sitting suspended, saying there was nothing else he could do, as Mr. Law declined to assist him in maintaining order.

Premier Asquith and his colleagues in the Cabinet, who remained in their seats, were fiercely assailed with abusive epithets by the Opposition, to which the Ministerialists replied with cheers and the waving of handkerchiefs.

As the members emerged from the chamber, Henry Page Croft, a Unionist, raised the shout, "Three cheers for King John!" the reference being to John Redmond, the Nationalist leader.

Mr. Law's curt reply when the Speaker appealed to him to help him in restraining the disorderliness, was obviously disapproved by Arthur J. Balfour, and some of the older front bench men on the Unionist side.

When the Speaker asked if the obstruction had his assent, Mr. Law, in quick, angry jerks retorted:

"I do not presume, Mr. Speaker, to criticize what you consider your duty, but I know mine. It is not to answer such a question."

Members on the back Unionist benches wildly applauded, but the other Parliamentarians hung their heads with every sign of chagrin.

PRESS VERSUS COMMONS.

Fourth Estate at Ottawa Wins Annual Ball Game.

OTTAWA, May 22. — Yesterday, Ascension Day, was a holiday in Parliament and in the Government service. The annual game between members of Parliament and of the press gallery took place yesterday morning, and was witnessed by several hundred enthusiastic fans, including Cabinet Ministers, members and Senators. The newspapermen won by 15 to 13. The teams lined up:

Members—Lamarche, Pardee, Sam Sharpe, Turcotte, Murphy, Martin, Boys, McCurdy and MacLeod.

Press men — Kelliher, Macormack, Paisley, Hannay, Anderson, Ford, O'Leary, Blackstock and Grange.

Escaped the Highwaymen.

CHATHAM, May 22.—At the point of a revolver, W. J. Buchanan, a representative of The Toronto Mail and Empire, was held up in Chatham on Wednesday night near the Grand Trunk tracks in Queen street. He was accosted by two negroes and a white man in a dark spot. One of the men drew a revolver and another threw dust in Buchanan's face, but he took to his heels and escaped.

Lost Life in Saving Husband.

HOOVERSVILLE, Pa., May 22.—While trying to stop her husband, who was walking in his sleep, from jumping out of a second story window, at their home here, early yesterday, Mrs. C. H. Wheeler, wife of a wealthy lumber dealer, stumbled through the opening and was instantly killed. Wheeler also fell, and is in a hospital suffering from injuries which, it is believed, will prove fatal.

RAID ON PALACE FAILS.

Police Frustrate Elaborate Suffragette Demonstration in London.

LONDON, May 22. — The police yesterday broke up a large column of militant suffragettes who were attempting to march on Buckingham Palace for the purpose of handing a petition to King George. When the women reached the top of Constitution Hill, leading to the palace, the police dispersed them and arrested Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst and several other leaders.

The skirmish between the police and the suffragettes outside the gates of Green Park was very lively while it lasted.

Mrs. Pankhurst surrounded by a bodyguard consisting of several hundred suffragettes suddenly appeared from the portal of a residence opposite the park, crossed the road to the gates, and attempted to march down the drive leading to the Palace.

Mounted police then carried their progress, and the women who were armed with sticks, attempted to cut their way through the lines of policemen. They fought with vigor, using their sticks with such force that the police charged. Several women were injured in the struggle, and the raiders were finally driven back, but left Mrs. Pankhurst and a number of her lieutenants in the clutches of the police, while on the ground was a considerable collection of remnants of garments which had been torn off the women in the hand-to-hand fighting.

The police also suffered some casualties during the fierce onslaught made on them by the women.

King George himself was an interested spectator of the earlier movements for his protection, which he watched from a window of Buckingham Palace.

The ambulance corps was kept very busy in attending to a number of injured women and removing on stretchers several who had fainted. There were over forty arrests.

Family Hurt Stealing Ride.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., May 22.—In jumping from the eastbound Grand Trunk express, on which he was stealing a ride, Fred McCormack, a Kingston man, about 25 years of age, fell under the wheels. One arm and one leg were severed and he died four hours later.

CHILDREN'S EYESIGHT

An astonishing number of school children suffer from the effects of imperfect vision, and many of them are unjustly blamed for being unambitious or mentally stupid. It has been shown by authentic investigation under municipal direction that from 20 to 30 per cent. of the children in public schools have defective vision and should wear Glasses.

We make a specialty of examining children's sight by the most improved scientific methods, and if your child does not need glasses we will tell you so frankly, and make no charge for the examination. We carry a special line of heavy weight Children's Spectacle Frames in Gold Filled and Aluminum.

Should your child require glasses we guarantee that the glasses we fit are the proper corrections and will give best results.

The Disconsolate Bard.

Within his attic, cold and bare,
A poet labored at his lay.
He ran his fingers through his hair
And often paused awhile to stare
At something that seemed far away.
His face was deeply lined with care.
He toiled for little pay.

No piece of gold or silver gleamed
Within his flabby little purse.
No sunlight through his window streamed
What time he smoked his pipe and dreamed
The dreams from which he wove his verse.
At last he heaved a sigh that seemed
To be almost a curse.

He smashed his crust resentfully.
A frown o'erspread his pallid face.
"Bedarn the bitter fates," said he,
"That in their anger sentenced me
To labor in this dismal place!
Oh, that I had the skill to be
A star at second base!"

Then He Went.

The young man who never knew when to go home was silent. So was the young woman.

"You should say 'A penny for your thoughts,'" suggested the delayer.

The young woman hid a yawn.

"I should say a mouseng," she corrected.

"A mouseng! What's a mouseng?"

"It's a Japanese coin," she replied. "It takes 224 of them to equal a penny."

Then he went.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Mr. Cutler, the promising young artist, was making a call on Mrs. Dillon, a new member of society. "I do not expect to go out in society much this season," said the young man in response to some question of the hostess. "I am going to hibernate."

"Indeed, are you, really?" exclaimed Mrs. Dillon, with evident pleasure. "Well, you will enjoy your trip. I was over to Ireland last summer."—Boston Herald.

BAD BLOOD IS THE DIRECT CAUSE OF Pimples.

Pimples break out on the face and body, and it is impossible to get rid of them, unless you cleanse the blood of all of its impurities.

Burdock Blood Bitters is without a doubt, the very best medicine for this purpose.

This old, and reliable medicine has been in use for nearly forty years, and has a reputation unequalled by any other preparation for removing all the impurities from the blood and banishing the pimples.

Mr. Edward Paquette, Navan Centre, Ont., writes:—"One month ago my face was covered with pimples and a rash. I had tried a number of these so called blood purifiers with no avail. Seeing an almanac of yours in which you strongly recommend Burdock Blood Bitters, I decided to try a bottle, and after I had taken it I could see a decided change, and after using three bottles more all the pimples had completely disappeared."

"THE TERMS OF SURRENDER"

By LOUIS TRACY

"Happened an accident near the mine quite a time since."

"I never heard. I wonder my father didn't mention it. Anyhow, Derry, why have you never written?"

"Listen to the pot calling the kettle, or, if that is only a trite simile, listen to the Fairy Queen berating a poor mortal for her own lapses!"

"Ah, I have not written since my marriage, it is true, but you treated my hapless missives s o cavalierly when I did send them that I hardly dared risk another rebuff."

"What do you mean?" he asked thickly. He was priding himself on the ease with which they were establishing new relations, when this unlooked-for development plunged him again into a swift-running current of doubt and foreboding. They were seated now, not side by side as he had planned, but in such wise that Nancy could see his face clearly, she having deliberately pulled her chair round for that purpose.

"Exactly what I have said," she answered composedly. "I sent three separate letters to Mr. John Darien Power, the Esperanza Placer Mine, Sacramento—I shan't forget the address in a hurry, because I've always longed to ask why you were so ready to desert a friend—and, seeing that not one of them was returned by the post office, I had good reason to suppose that they reached you all right. Derry, don't tell me you never got them!"

His heart seemed to miss a beat or two. In an instant he guessed the truth, that their correspondence had been burked by malicious contriving; but all he could find to say was:

"Did you really write to me?"

"Of course I did. Am I not telling you? And you, Derry, did you write to me?"

His tongue almost cleaved to the roof of his mouth; for he knew, in that instant, that they were not seated in the comfortable verandah of the Ocean House, but standing side by side on the edge of an abyss.

He must not, he dared not, answer truly. He had no right to make wreck and ruin of this bright young life, and none knew so well as he how proudly she would denounce the thievish wiles which had separated them if once she grasped their full import.

"It is so long ago," he muttered brokenly. "So many things have occurred since. I have forgotten. I—I can only be sure that I received no letters from you."

"You have forgotten!" she repeated slowly.

"Yes—that is, I suffered a good deal from a broken leg—it was badly set—that is why I have such a noticeable hobble. Events round about that period are all jumbled in my mind."

The explanation was lame as his leg. It would never have deceived even the Nancy Willard of bygone years, and was utterly thrown away on this wide-eyed woman. She was conscious of a fierce pain in the region of her heart, and wanted to cry aloud in her distress; but she crushed the impulse with a self-restraint that had become second nature, and bent nearer, smiling wanly.

"Why did you throw away your cigar, Derry?" she said. "Please smoke. Like every other man, you will talk more easily then. And do tell me what has been going on at Bison. I have often asked Hugh for news; but he says he never hears a word about the place since he sold his interests there."

Power hardly realized how swiftly and certainly she had made smooth the way. He was conscious only of a vast relief that the subject of the missing correspondence was dropped. Only in later hours of quiet reflection did he grasp the reason—that she was bitterly aware of the truth, and the whole truth. He began at once to describe developments on the ranch, and was too wishful to hide his own confusion behind the smoke of a cigar to notice how a white-gloved hand clenched the arm of a chair when he spoke of his mother and the place she filled in public esteem. Unconsciously he was telling Nancy just what she wanted to know. He was not married. There was no other woman! She uttered no sound; but her lower lip bore a series of white marks for a while.

"You see," he explained glibly, "I acquired the habit of letting other people work when I was laid up for repairs. Please excuse these frequent references to a broken limb, which seems to figure in my talk much as King Charle's head in Mr. Dick's disjointed manuscripts. Anyhow, I had plenty of time for reading, as the mine paid from the very beginning, and a rock spring, which nearly scared Mac stiff, came in handy to irrigate the upper part of the ranch—that long slope just below the Gulch, you remember."

"Yes, I remember," she said.

"Well, what between fruit-growing and horse-breeding, I hardly ever have time to go near Bison. My mother drives in every day over the new trail——"

"What new trail?"

"We had to cut a road across the divide. The Gulch is blocked by rails."

"Why?"

"That is where the mine is, you know."

"I don't know. Whereabouts exactly is the mine?"

"It starts in the west side of the canyon, about a hundred yards from the ranch end."

"Near a narrow cleft, topped by a sloping ledge?"

"Yes. How well you recollect every yard of the ground!"

"How did you come to locate the lost seam there?"

"By sheer chance. Some pieces of the granite wall fell away, and any miner who had been a week at his trade would have recognised the vein then."

"When did they fall away—the bits of rock, I mean?"

"It must have been about the time you—you were married, Mrs. Marten."

She tapped a satin-shod foot emphatically on the boarded floor. "Why are you calling me 'Mrs. Marten'?" she demanded.

"Well——"

"Don't do it again. I am 'Nancy' to you, Derry. I refuse to part with the privileges of friendship in that casual way. But I want to understand things more closely. What caused the stones to fall?"

"I don't mind telling," he said, though a good many people have asked me the history of 'El Preco,' and I have refused hitherto to gratify their curiosity."

"El Preco—doesn't that mean 'the price?'"

"Yes."

"What an extraordinary name! The price of what?"

"Of my broken leg. There, you see! King Charles's head once more."

She paused, ever so briefly, before resuming her questioning. "Now, why did the stones fall?"

"Because an excited cowboy fired his revolver in the air, and the bullets struck a section of rock which required some shock to dislodge it."

"But how did that affect you?"

"I happened to be lying on the very ledge you spoke of, and—oh, dash it all! I secured my limp then and there."

"Did the fall disturb a rattlesnake?"

"It may have disturbed a dozen rattlesnakes, for all that I can tell. But what an extraordinary thing to say! Did you know that a rattler lived in that cliff?"

"No. I was just thinking of the Gulch and its inhabitants. Perhaps my wits are wandering. Come, Derry. Our half-hour is not gone, but we can talk on the way. Send a boy for my carriage. Do you want your hat and coat?"

She rose suddenly, and drew a light wrap of silvery tissue around her shoulders. Power stood up and faced her. He had never seen her looking so ethereally beautiful, not even on the night, now so long ago, when he parted from her before taking that disastrous journey to Sacramento.

"Do you really think I ought to come with you to Mrs. Van Ralten's?" he said.

"Of course. Why not? You are invited?"

"But——"

"You are my big brother from Bison, Derr, and I'm not going to forego the pleasure of your company if all Newport lined the road and bawled, 'Send him away!' But do hurry. Mary Van Ralten will forgive everything except unpunctuality."

The nebulous protest on Power's lips faded into silence. "On such a night I can dispense with hat and overcoat," he said. "Your carriage is a closed landau, I suppose?"

"Yes. After the play you can escort me to the Breakers—that is the name of the house we have rented—and Sam, our coachman, will take you home. . . . Oh, there he is, waiting. Mrs. Van Ralten's Sam."

"Yes, Ma'am," said the negro, who had brought a carriage and pair to the doorway when he caught sight of his mistress. A negro footman opened the door, and Nancy entered, the brilliant moonlight gleaming for an instant and the sheen of a white silk stocking. Power seated himself by her side, and the horses dashed off. He felt the soft folds of her dress touching him. When she turned slightly to say something about the marvellous nights which tempted the heat-wave at Newport, her right shoulder and elbow pressed him closely. Some subtle fragrance came from her and that stirred him almost to a frenzy of longing; yet he dared not flinch away into a corner of the carriage. Perforce, he schooled his voice to utter the platitudes of the moment. Yes, he had been in Newport three whole days, and had not the remotest notion that she was there. He had come to buy horses, and might remain another week. Well, he would remain, now that they had met; for he was sure he would find a good deal to tell her of Bison and its folk once he had got over the novelty and unexpectedness of this meeting.

And all the time his heart was pounding madly, throbbing so furiously that he feared lest she should become aware of its lack of restraint, and he stooped forward in a make-believe glance at some building they were passing.

"That is the Casino," she said, misinterpreting his action, or pretending to — Heaven alone knows the extent of a woman's divination where a man is concerned! "We play tennis there, in the evenings, when it's so hot during the day. Are you a tennis player, Derry . . . Oh, I'm sorry! I quite forgot."

"I have been arousing your sympathy by false pretence?" he said, and the laughter in his voice demanded a real effort. "I can walk and ride and jump and dance as well as ever, and I have taught three of the ranchmen to play tennis quite creditably. So, if the Newport stores run to flannels and rubber shoes——"

"Derry," she cooed, "you are not such a fraudulent person as you imagine. If you knew how much you have told me to-night about yourself, you would be awfully surprised, as they say in London. But here we are at Mrs. Van Ralten's. Now, be nice to everybody; for I mean you to have a real good time in Newport. People here can be very pleasant acquaintances if you take them the right way."

CHAPTER VII.
THE FORTY STEPS.

During the next few days Power passed imperceptibly through many phases of thought and emotion. When his judgment regained its natural equipoise after the first bitter-sweet intoxication of finding his old sweetheart desirous as ever of his companionship, he appeared to subside into a state of placid acceptance of such restricted blessings as the gods could offer. Nancy made good her promise, and Newport society threw wide its doors to the good-looking and well-mannered visitor. No doubts were raised concerning his financial or social status. A word from the horse-fancying judge made it clear that the Westerner could not be a poor man, seeing that he had already bought at stiff prices a magnificent hunter and the best-matched pair of hackneys in the States, and was in treaty for another round dozen of valuable animals; while Mrs. Hugh Marten's manifest approval was sufficient to introduce any similarly favoured young man to the most exclusive circle in the island.

Seeing that certain things were essential, Power spent money freely, supplying himself with a dog-cart, a groom, a valet, and the rest of the equipment which any man needed who would mix in that fashionable crowd without attracting attention by lack of it. Each morning he and Nancy, sometimes unaccompanied, but more often mingling with a lively party, rode about the island, following rough tracks which are smooth roads nowadays, and visiting every favourite stretch of cliff and open country time and again. When the weather moderated its torrid rigour, and sports became possible in the grounds of the Casino or within the Polo Club's inclosure, he bore his full share. In all that pertained to horsemanship he was the equal of any man in Newport, and Nancy had not lost that perfect confidence in the saddle which life on a ranch demands. Some one gave prizes for a drag hunt, a hunting crop for the first man and a silver cup for the first woman in at the finish of a ten-miles' trail, and the two came in side by side, a furlong ahead of their closest follower. Luncheons, yachting parties, dinners, musicales, and dances crowded each day and often went far into the night. The heat-wave had put forward the almanac, and the Newport season was in full swing nearly a month in advance of its usual date.

Power retained his rooms at the Ocean House; but saw little of other inmates of the hotel unless they happened to mix in the same set. His friends of the dinner-table, except Dacre, had gone, and the Englishman, like Power, was made an honorary member of the Casino Club; so they kept up and developed an acquaintance which had begun so pleasantly.

GREY IS A FLY FISHER

DOES THAT EXPLAIN FOREIGN SECRETARY'S TEMPERAMENT?

Strong, Laconic and Enigmatic Figure In the Asquith Cabinet Is Also an Aristocrat of the Aristocrats and So High Is His Reputation In Britain That Scandal Concerning Him Would Be Impossible.

Sir Edward Grey, Baronet and Knight of the Garter, is His Majesty's present Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, and, according to his admirers, the next Liberal Prime Minister. His present great office gives him a place in the councils of the nation second hardly to any, while his future invests his every utterance with a special significance. By him we can measure not merely how England will act to-day, but how she will decide to-morrow.

To understand Sir Edward Grey's character two things are necessary always to be borne in mind. He is an aristocrat of aristocrats and the greatest living authority on fly-fishing. The first explains why he is in politics, noblesse oblige; the second reveals the temperament of the man himself.

There is no nobler blood in England than runs in his veins. It was from his grandfather, Sir George Grey, that he inherited his title. The Greys of Northumberland have made history in England as far back as English history can be traced, and this Grey has flung dry flies as far as a fishing rod can reach. That is the man and his hobby. He is fifty-two years of age this year, has been Foreign Secretary for more than eight years, and is the only commoner decorated with the noble Order of the Garter, a special honor for which King George singled him out in 1912.

The royal honor was well merited, for Sir Edward Grey has nobly fulfilled the tradition of his family expressed in their motto, "To serve the King with good will."

He is English of the English—cold, reserved, correct in pose and consistent in poise. His character is held so high that if anyone tried he could not spread a scandal about him; there is simply none who would give it credence. Nobody believes he could lie, either diplomatically or personally.

When he rose the other day to make his eagerly anticipated statement of British policy in Mexico the House of Commons filled with an audience who knew exactly the manner of speech he would make. It would be a plain, simple statement of the facts, and the decision arising out of the facts. Nothing histrionic—that would be impossible; and yet behind the laconic there was the dramatic, derived from the sense of reserve and restraint all feel as he speaks.

Gladstone said of him in his early days in the House of Commons: "I never knew in a man such aptitude for political life, and such disinclination for it."

He never sat for any but the one constituency, which elected him at the age of twenty-three and has gone on re-electing him steadily all the way, and will continue, until he offers himself no more. He has held no office but Foreign Office or Under Secretary from 1892-1895 in Mr. Gladstone's Cabinet, and Foreign Secretary since 1905.

And in this again he has made another tradition, for he is the first Foreign Secretary to hold that office and still remain in the House of Commons. The parliamentary arrangement is always to secure a representative of the great offices in each House of Parliament, and while it was natural and proper for him to be Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs to Lord Rosebery in the House of Lords, it was without precedent to remain a Commoner and hold that office. He should have carried the portfolio across the lobby and seated himself upon the scarlet benches of the noble lords. He did nothing of the kind. He was allowed to have his own way—because he is Sir Edward Grey.

The reason the office of Foreign Secretary has always been held by a peer is this, that so delicate and secret are his undertakings that a fire of questioning from M.P.'s would not merely be inconvenient, but perhaps positively dangerous.

Every Cabinet Minister may be asked any question, and upon being given notice, must answer it. That is fairly simple for the average dexterous statesman, whom Providence usually endows with a generous vocabulary of the non-committal. But there comes the deadly supplementary question, phrased on the moment and to be used on the moment.

But Sir Edward Grey was the man to sustain the precedent he had created. He visits the House only once a week to answer questions on Foreign Office day, Thursday. Occasionally he is pressed into the service of the Government to take part in what is called a full dress debate. But on the whole he has abided by that wisest maxim given to man to avoid his troubles; "Mind your own business."

Yet of all men he has known the tragedy of a great personal sorrow—a sorrow that has marked him with the furrows of pain suppressed and given to his eyes a depth and expression that only men who have watched the treasure of the heart take wings can know.

For the year that gave him his place in public life, a mere lad of 23, gave him his place in private life, when he married the daughter of a neighboring squire, Miss Dorothy Widdrington. She shared his political life and his sportsman's life.

Then came the great day when King Edward made him the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

A few weeks later, whilst in London on affairs, he received a telegram that Lady Grey had met with an accident, and to return at once. A special train rushed through the night, but he found her with her skull broken; there had been a carriage accident in his own park at Falloden.

An American Lady of Lyons

By RUTH GRAHAM

The celebrated play "The Lady of Lyons" is based on the theme that the heroine's discarded lovers palm off upon her a countryman as a prince. Something similar happened recently in Paris to Betsy Baker of South Dakota.

Betsy, who hadn't much idea of proprieties except such as she had learned in Dakota, went abroad all by herself and, rather liking Nice, spent a good deal of time there. She fell in with some very nice persons and some who were not very nice. They were all pretty much the same to Betsy—at least, they appeared to be—for she seemed to have no power of discrimination between classes.

Two young Parisians, Jacques Gautier and Edmond Villiers, comparing notes, discovered that they had both proposed to Miss Baker and had been turned down. Whether or not they had seen the "Lady of Lyons" played and taken their cue from it doesn't appear, but they concluded to foist a spurious nobleman on Betsy. They selected a croupier at a gambling house who had found his employment on account of a very distinguished appearance and a mellifluous voice, the latter being advantageous in calling upon players to make their bets and the winning numbers. They introduced him to Betsy as Count Charbouller, a member of one of the oldest families in France.

It is quite possible that had Betsy been fancy free the croupier might have deceived her as to his real position and won her; but, unfortunately for the plan, she was already pledged to Jack Howland, a young New Yorker, who had taken a fancy to ranching and had spent much of his time on his property in the neighborhood of Betsy's home in Dakota. He had fallen desperately in love with her, and, while aware of the fact that she was not of the conventional type of girl to whom he had been accustomed in the east, he was only too happy when she consented to marry him. She therefore refused the croupier, and since he had nothing to gain by persistence and must have a living he went over to Monte Carlo, where he had been employed before being introduced to Betsy, and resumed his calling.

Howland joined his fiancee at Nice, and the two made a trip to Monte Carlo, where they saw the bogus count presiding at the gaming table. Betsy recognized him at once and told her lover of the trick that had been played on her by the Messrs. Gautier and Villiers.

"That's the best joke I ever experienced," she said, laughing merrily.

"Joke! You don't call such a villainous schemer a joke!"

"Of course I do. But I must get it back on them. Let me see. How shall I manage it?"

"For heaven's sake, I'd let them alone."

"Not I till I have paid them in their own coin."

Leaning on her lover's arm, Betsy approached the croupier, giving his monotonous call: "Make your bets. Make your bets. Red or black?"

"How do, count?" she said.

The croupier looked up and, seeing her, turned red as a cock's comb.

"Come and see me, count."

The man looked as if he would break for the door, but made no reply.

"Come tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. Don't fail me. You have nothing to fear and something to earn quite easily."

The next morning Antoine Boyer, which was his real name, presented himself to Betsy and was offered 2,000 francs to aid her in turning the tables on the men who had introduced him to her. Returning to Nice, she sent word to Gautier and Villiers that if they would come and see her she would introduce them to her fiance. They, being ignorant of what had recently transpired, wondered if their game had succeeded. Repairing to Miss Baker's hotel, they found her with an American, whom she introduced to them, and the croupier.

"You know the count, of course, and there is no use for me to make you acquainted. Count, stand up there and exhibit your fine voice to the gentlemen."

Boyer arose and, posing himself, began to make the calls pertaining to a roulette table. The two conspirators looked at each other in consternation. There was no mistaking the sonorous singsong manner in which the professional makes these calls. When he had gone over the same routine several times Betsy turned to Gautier and Villiers and said:

"I promised to present you to my fiance. This is he—Mr. Howland, from America."

They bowed in a constrained manner to Mr. Howland and appeared at the same time to be looking for an exit.

"Gentlemen," said Howland impatiently, "we have had enough of this farce. I have yielded reluctantly to Miss Baker's desire to pay you for your dastardly trick in her own way. A good cowhiding would have been more appropriate. You needn't remain any longer, and I recommend that you both keep out of my way lest I give you a punishment more in keeping with your deserts."

The two men withdrew, cringing, and were not seen again in Nice. As for Betsy Baker and Ned Howland, they concluded to be married and go on a wedding trip to Africa. Betsy said she had shot a grizzly bear in America and she wanted to kill a lion in the African jungle.

Well painted, stained, varnished, or enameled woodwork in your house makes a great deal of difference in its appearance and cleanliness and makes housekeeping easier.

For instance, you can repaint the woodwork any color you desire with S-W Family Paint, a paint made especially for this purpose and put up in handy penny-lever cans. Just the thing for a painted finish on baseboards, wainscotting, doors, cupboards, shelves, flower boxes, kitchen furniture, etc.

White enamel today is very popular. S-W Enamel is ideal for the woodwork of bathrooms, bedrooms, and is very attractive when used in parlors, or sitting rooms, decorated in light tones.

On new woodwork, a stained and varnish finish is often preferred to a painted or enamel finish and for this purpose first apply a coat of S-W Oil Stain or S-W Handcraft Stain which can be applied to any kind of wood. Allow twenty-four hours for the stain to dry then follow with two coats of S-W Kopal, a durable, general purpose varnish.

On old woodwork where the original finish is not too worn, one coat of S-W Kopal Varnish will give you a satisfactory job. If you wish to change the color first apply one coat of S-W Floorlac, a combined stain and varnish that comes in Oak, Mahogany, Walnut, Rosewood, etc., and then follow with one coat of S-W Floorlac Clear or a coat of S-W Kopal.

We handle a full line of Sherwin-Williams Paints and Varnishes so are in a position to take care of your every need.

"Big Bill" Mason, Now Serving Long Term for the Killing of Ten, Is Reported Ready to Confess His Crimes

"'BIG BILL' MASON is ready to speak."

That is the stirring rumor that reaches Police Headquarters at regular intervals and always sends a detective scurrying to Sing Sing Prison in the hope of receiving first hand from the most notorious burglar-slayer alive today a history of his criminal career, in which no less than ten murders are included.

But each time so far the rumor has proved groundless, for "Big Bill," as he sulks in his cell, is keeping his counsel, and as he has fourteen years yet to serve chances are he will never come forth alive, for he is upward of sixty-four years old now.

"'Big Bill' Mason is what we call the human hyena," Inspector Faurot said a day or two ago while discussing the burglar and his exploits. He had just received another "tip" that "Bill" was ready to confess, but, as he said, "The old man is crying wolf again."

"In all our records of criminals," Faurot continued, "there is none to compare with Mason's when it comes to reckless daring and wanton lust to kill. He would rather fasten his gorilla-like claws in the throat of a victim, batter him over the head with lead pipe or shoot him down in his tracks than to strip him of his valuables and leave him unmolested. He has the heart and all the instincts of the most desperate type of murderer, and the last time I had him here before me he coolly told me he would not hesitate an instant to kill me on sight if the opportunity ever presented itself." And, rest assured, I believed every word he said."

Mason's record of convictions, although there are scores of charges against him for which he has never been tried, reads about like this:—

Convicted at Pittsfield, Mass., of burglary and sentenced to a ten year term. Throttled his jailer, sawed the bars of his cell and, after a leap for life, escaped on December 9, 1887.

On January 31, 1888, he was convicted of burglary and sentenced at White Plains to fourteen years in Sing Sing. This sentence was later commuted by Governor Flower. On January 28, 1897, as W. T. Wright, he was tried at Terre Haute, Ind., on burglary charges. He was given a four year term in the Michigan City prison, but six months to the day he walked forth a free man, after another daring escape.

Two years later he was arrested in Philadelphia and given nine years in the Eastern Penitentiary. This sentence was also commuted and he returned to New York, where he was immediately rearrested and held for the Indiana authorities.

Again on February 2, 1912, he was arrested for a sensational burglary at Port Chester, N. Y., and when tried at White Plains he was given eighteen years in Sing Sing, which sentence he is now serving. Upon his admission to Sing Sing he admitted that he had served ten years in a Kansas prison for burglary and still another term in Clinton Prison.

While he has served upward of thirty-four years in prison and still has sixteen years to round out behind the bars, he has been tried on a murder charge but once, although the police from California to New York unequivocally assert they now have evidence enough in hand to convict him of any one of ten murders.

Mason is well known to the police as William Lynch, although he was christened Benjamin Slippey. Born on the outskirts of St. Louis, he was bound out as an apprentice to a coach painter. Vicious in boyhood, no one was surprised when young Slippey fled his home and went to the Pacific coast, where he cast his lot with a band of outlaws and train robbers. Standing six feet three inches in his stockings and with not an ounce of superfluous flesh on his tremendous frame, he was a veritable giant in strength. Such a thing as seizing two men of ordinary size by their coat collars, swinging them clear of the ground and cracking their heads together until both dropped insensible, was but child's play for this young giant. Time and again he was arrested and placed in country jails, from which he escaped with the utmost ease. In every case the bars and grating covering his cell window had been wrenched apart, the Sheriffs asserting that this their prisoner had accomplished with his bare hands.

All of the larger cities of the West and the Middle West were visited by "Big Bill" Mason, or Lynch, as he worked his way East after his train wrecking experiences on the coast. Scars on his body showed that he had not escaped scot free from the bullets of the posses that pursued him after some of his daring train hold-ups. It is supposed that the young bandit concluded that housebreaking in a larger city afforded better opportunities of escape than highway robbery in a wild and woolly West, where sheriffs and their deputies invariably shoot to kill.

Mason's activities in the East were of an even more desperate character than those in the West, and there is not a man in the New York Detective Bureau who is not thoroughly familiar with the circumstances surrounding the brutal murder of Major Wilson, the venerable Philadelphia librarian; the shooting of Judge R. Blodgett, of Schenectady, chief counsel of the General Electric Company, and the murder of William O. Hutchins, a wealthy jeweller of Providence, R. I., all of which they charged to Mason.

"Big Bill" Mason first came into the limelight of police publicity in 1887, when he was arrested in Great Barrington, Mass., in company with Michael O'Connor, an equally notorious criminal. A number of places in that city had been burglarized, and following one of these burglaries Lynch and O'Connor, their authors, were found drunk, with pistols, a set of burglar tools and a quantity of the loot in their possession. Their conviction speedily followed.

Shortly before their arrest Thomas Kinsella, a "pal" of the two burglars had been convicted of shooting his mother-in-law and sent to prison. Kinsella was such a model prisoner that he was appointed an orderly, or hall man, in the jail. Mason and O'Connor were incarcerated in the same prison and later events indicated that Kinsella aided in the escape of his two friends. Doubtless the hall man left the doors of his comrade's cell unlocked, for when one of the jailers was making his rounds that night the two prisoners sprang from their cells, throttled him and choked him into insensibility. The bars of their cell windows were partially sawed and then wrenched apart. An areaway ten feet wide stretched beneath the cell windows, and it was a sheer drop of twenty-five feet to the stone floor below. The window frames were wrenched from their fastenings and the cords cut out. These were pieced together and one end made secure to a steel grating. The prisoners then swung themselves clear of the areaway and dropped uninjured to the stone floor. They made their way to the roof of an adjoining building and disappeared. That they made straight for New York was later proved.

Mason was next heard of in Tarrytown, N. Y., where he met "Jack" Moore, an old "pal." Nine days after his escape he and Moore broke into the home of Judge Bradley, president of the Tarrytown Savings Bank. They carried off a bag of solid silver, took an early morning train and, arriving at Yonkers at daylight, went to a little all night restaurant and were drinking coffee when the local police arrested them as suspicious persons. The bag they carried was opened and the silver found. The policemen took their prisoners by first train to New York and marched them into police headquarters, where they loudly boasted of their capture.

As soon as the prisoners were recognized, their records looked up and verified, the New York police were quick to congratulate the "country coppers" on the importance of their capture. Each of the prisoners was given a fourteen-year term in Sing Sing. Mason was pardoned after seven years' incarceration. "Big Bill," for "good behavior," it was always declared, got his term reduced five years and two months.

The East had not been kind to "Big Bill," and he determined to try his fortune in the West again. So he was next heard of in Terre Haute, Ind., when the police of that city forwarded the photograph of "Big Bill," "Jack" Frye, another New York thief and murderer, and "Reddy the Gloucester," all held for the robbery of the home of George A. Shaw. All were convicted and sent to the penitentiary at Michigan City, Ind. "Big Bill" receiving, under the name of William T. Wright, a four-year stretch. But Indiana prisons held no more terrors for "Big Bill" than those of Massachusetts, for at the first opportunity he knocked his keeper cold with a piece of lead pipe, wrenched off the bars of his cell, dropped into the jail yard and, scaling the high wall, fled to parts unknown.

Early on the morning of December 3, 1897, George R. Blodgett, counsel for the General Electric Company, was awakened from a sound sleep by his wife, who whispered that some one was in their room. As Blodgett attempted to rise a powerful hand confronted him and ordered him to throw up his hands. Whether Blodgett refused to obey the order will never be known, for no sooner had he touched the floor than he fell back on the bed, his head pierced by a bullet from the burglar's big pistol. The wife's screams in no way disconcerted the burglar. His gruff demand that she "keep still" failing to quiet her, he struck her a brutal blow over the head with the butt of his pistol, and left her prostrate across the body of her dead husband.

Descending to the dining room, the murderer coolly packed twenty-seven pieces of solid silverware, each engraved with the family monogram, into a bag and decamped. The General Electric Company immediately offered a reward of $5,000 for the slayer.

Ten days after this murder a second hand jewelry dealer who knew "Big Bill" well, was approached by Mason and asked to buy a number of pieces of silverware he possessed. Mason explained that each piece bore a monogram, and for this reason the silver would have to be melted at once. The dealer told Mason that he would have to look the silver over before a bargain could be struck, and an appointment was made whereby "Bill" was to bring his loot to [illegible] suspicions were aroused and he failed to return.

Reading of the Schenectady murder and burglary, the Philadelphia jeweller at once surmised that the silver Mason had offered him was none other than the loot from the Blodgett home. He notified the Philadelphia police, and they, in turn, conferred with the New York Detective Bureau. The police of both cities were unanimous that the Blodgett killing bore all the earmarks of a Mason job, and the dragnet was [illegible]

Upon the heels of "Big Bill's" disappearance from Philadelphia, or, to be exact, on March 8, 1898, William O. Hutchins, a wealthy jeweller of Providence, R. I., was killed in his home by a bullet fired in true Mason style. The burglar had climbed to the porch and, forcing the window, entered the room of the sleeping jeweller. As Hutchins stirred in his sleep preparatory to springing from his bed, the murderer leaned over him and coolly pressing the muzzle of the pistol to his victim's heart, pulled the trigger. Hutchins dropped back on his pillow, dead. The house was then ransacked from cellar to garret, and jewelry, money and valuables of great worth were taken. It was a porch job, a style of work in which, the police say, Mason always excelled. Whereas they were unable at the time to get evidence sufficient to convict "Bill" for this job, they have since forged a chain which they say leaves no dispute as to the authorship of this and the Blodgett crimes.

The police of Philadelphia were, on July 1, 1898, startled to learn that Ferd May, cashier for a bookmaker's pool room in Market street, had been struck down in the rear yard of that establishment by a tall, powerful man wearing a cap and a handkerchief to conceal his features. The bandit had struck May a vicious blow over the head with a piece of lead pipe two feet long. May had in his possession the "bankroll" for the day's play, a sum estimated at $2,500. As he dropped in his tracks the highwayman rifled his pockets, getting his wallet and all the cash, a handsome gold watch and six rings from which dangled a [illegible] and other jewelry. The burglar disappeared as noiselessly as he came. Mason had been seen in the vicinity of the robbery an hour or two before it occurred. John D. Frye, who was arrested and convicted with Mason at Terre Haute, was at the time of the robbery of May a clerk in the gambling establishment which employed May. He is supposed to have put up the job which so nearly cost May his life. Again Mason fled the city, but, seemingly, Philadelphia possessed attractions he could not resist. On August 16, 1897, Major W. C. Wilson, proprietor of a circulating library in Philadelphia, was murdered in his Walnut street place of business. The aged man was immensely popular and was known to thousands of Philadelphians.

His frightfully mangled body was found lying in the centre of his library, all evidences of a terrific struggle proving that the old man had made a gallant stand for his life. Every penny in the place, as well as jewelry and other valuables, was gone, even a poor box being broken into and its contents taken. Stained finger marks on the door were distinct and this was the lone clew on which the police worked.

They at once concluded that this was another Mason job and detectives were sent broadcast over the city to ascertain if "Big Bill" was or had recently been there. From a dozen sources it was learned that he had been seen in some of his old haunts about town the night previous to the murder. A negro porter in the employ of the aged librarian was arrested and tried, but the case was thrown out of court and the negro acquitted. The belief grew stronger with the Philadelphia police that Mason was the real murderer and they redoubled their efforts to capture him.

It was several months before a tangible clew to the whereabouts of Mason was received. It was learned that "Big Bill" was frequenting a saloon in Camden, N. J., which is just across the river from Philadelphia. Two private detectives had been shadowing Mason, but fearing to close in on him they communicated with Philadelphia Police Headquarters and asked that two men be detailed to assist them.

Two detectives were sent scurrying across the river, but before they reached the Camden saloon "Big Bill" scented trouble. He arose from his seat and started for a rear door. "Big Bill" always made it a rule to enter and leave the saloons he frequented by back doors and where a rear yard was accessible he never failed to use it. The two private detectives followed the big bandit into the yard. Mason wheeled and attempted to draw his pistol. The hammer, however, caught in his pocket and while he was struggling to free the weapon one of the detectives rapped him over the head with a gun and disarmed him. A crowd in the saloon, attracted by the row in the rear yard, flocked out to witness the rumpus. Mason had friends in that crowd, for the two detectives soon found themselves separated from their prisoner and surrounded by a threatening mob which was bent on avenging the injuries their friend, "Big Bill," had suffered.

Mason sought to recover his pistol from the grasp of one of the detectives, but deeming discretion the better part of valor he decided to get away while "the getting was good." He fled through a rear alley and when the Philadelphia detectives reached the saloon ten minutes later all trace of Mason was lost. The pistol Mason had left behind him was a .38 calibre which shot a bullet of peculiar shape. Blodgett and Hutchins, who had been murdered in their respective homes, were the victims of bullets of a similar shape and make.

The New York police learned that after the Philadelphia murder "Big Bill" Mason and James Coffey had gone west. Coffey did not remain long, however, and returning to New York he opened a saloon in Cherry street near Pearl street. It was believed that sooner or later Mason would come back and seek protection under Coffey's wing, as they were boon companions. Detectives were detailed to shadow the place. The first thing to arouse their suspicions was the arrival at the saloon of Frank, alias "Red" Spencer, who had just completed a term in Sing Sing for stealing silver, while disguised as a messenger boy, from the home of one-time President Chester A. Arthur, at No. 123 Lexington avenue. The police describe Spencer as "a tall, sandy haired, blue eyed, daring devil of prodigious strength and nerve."

Detectives Fogerty and Stripp trailed Spencer and Coffey to the West Shore Ferry, at the foot of West Forty-second street. The policemen on duty there were quietly instructed to be ready for action and lend a hand in case of trouble. Spencer and Coffey were met at the ferry by "Big Bill" and Thomas Riley, the latter a notorious second story man with a long record. The detectives realized when they saw this quartet together that their work was cut out for them.

The viciousness of Mason was a matter of history. They knew he would shoot on sight and if they took him alive it would be a case of getting the drop on him before the big six foot slayer could unlimber his artillery. As the detectives had been reinforced by two other policemen in citizen's clothes, they felt that they had an even chance with the quartet that was quietly conversing in a corner of the ferry house, yet narrowly watching the detectives, whom they had spotted for "bulls."

As the detectives closed in on their men "Big Bill" flashed his gun. As he whipped it from his pocket Fogerty sprang at his throat, his free hand seizing Mason's pistol. Here Mason's great strength asserted itself. In raising his pistol arm he lifted Fogerty clear of the ground, and with the muzzle of the gun pressed to the detective's head he pulled the trigger. By a piece of rare good luck Fogerty's grip on the pistol was such that when the hammer fell it snapped against his thumb, which shielded the cartridge.

Time and again "Big Bill" snapped the trigger, but each time it fell on the detective's thumb, thereby saving his life. Fogerty and "Big Bill" wrestled all over the place, each raining blows upon the face of the other with free hands, while the battle for the possession of the pistol still raged.

Meanwhile the other three detectives had each singled out his man and all were engaged in life and death struggles. As "Big Bill" was wrestling and twisting in the grip of Fogerty he realized that capture at this time meant prison for life. He must shake loose the little bulldog that clung so tenaciously to his wrist and throat, or else look forward to a life term in Sing Sing, or some one of the other prisons that yawned for him. Fogerty, realizing he was no match in strength for his powerful antagonist, resorted to rough and tumble tactics, which finally carried the day for him. As he grappled with his man he would leap clear of the ground at every opportunity and with his head butt his antagonist under the chin. This he did with such fury and so frequently that he soon had Mason in limbo.

As Stripp had just knocked his man insensible by a blow over the head with his pistol, he was free to come to Fogerty's aid. Leaping over the prostrate form of his late victim, he landed at Mason's side and dealt him a crushing blow in the face with his pistol. Mason was terribly cut and as he staggered back Stripp landed blow after blow on his face and head until "Big Bill" relinquished his grasp on his pistol, and a final blow with the same weapon from Fogerty knocked him in a heap on the floor, where he crumbled up insensible. All four prisoners were taken to Police Headquarters, where it was found their injuries were so serious that it was necessary to send them to hospitals for repairs. This was the one encounter in which Mason had been beaten to a pulp, and by a little man six inches shorter than he, at that.

Mason was taken back to Philadelphia, but the Indiana authorities had a prior claim and he was taken to Michigan City to round out his term there. At the completion of this term he was sent back to Philadelphia, but once more luck attended him and he escaped to continue his career of crime.

For a time Mason disappeared so completely that the police had come to believe he was dead. Nothing was heard of him until two years ago, when he was arrested in Port Chester for the robbery of the home of John H. Snagg. This, too, was a second story job. With "Frankie" Burns as an accomplice, the two burglars procured a ladder and mounted to the roof of the Snagg front porch. As "Big Bill" was fumbling at the window he dropped his jimmy and as it went rattling down the slanting roof it awakened the sleeping occupants.

As Mr. Snagg appeared at his front window with pistol in hand "Big Bill" leaped to one side, and as he did so struck the ladder and knocked it from the roof. "Big Bill" toppled backward and fell to the ground. Mr. Snagg plunged down the front steps and into the yard, and as he came upon "Big Bill" the latter drew his pistol and fired several shots. Then he and Burns disappeared in the darkness.

Three Port Chester detectives, Captain, Devaney and Olson, overtook the fugitives, and after a desperate battle in which a number of shots were fired, followed by an automobile chase, Burns and Mason were overhauled and captured. A jimmy, flash lamp, $3,000 in jewelry and a number of pawntickets were found in the pockets of the prisoners. Their conviction was but a question of days, and "Big Bill" went back to Sing Sing for an eighteen year stretch.

The men arrested with Mason at the Weehawken ferry also were sent to Sing Sing, where Coffey died a victim of consumption a few months ago.

"Why has Mason never been tried for the various murders he is accused of?" I asked Inspector Faurot.

"The conclusive evidence we now have," said the Chief of the Detective Bureau, "only came to us since the more recent capture of Mason. He is an old man now, and there is every reason to believe he will die in prison. There is no possible chance for a pardon or commutation of sentence in his case. Were we or the Philadelphia authorities to bring him from prison and try him for murder there is a bare possibility of his escaping through some technicality of the law. He is safe where he is, and in our opinion it is much better to let him stay where he is, for life behind the bars is by far severer punishment to a man of 'Big Bill's' type than a trip to the electric chair. If given his choice I am confident he would welcome electrocution rather than round out his days in a steel cell.

"In my opinion he is the worst criminal I ever saw. He is without a redeeming feature, and he would rather kill than eat. That's why he is known to the police as the human hyena."

Hungarian Read to Slimness.

This is a method for reducing that is practiced in Hungary:

At night just before retiring fill the bathtub with hot water and in this dissolve three pounds of epsom salts. Get into the tub and lie with the body as flat as possible. Keep the hot water faucet open all the time, so that the water never cools. Remain in this bath for fifteen minutes; then take a cold shower or spray.

At first the baths may be enervating. If so, take one every second day. The oftener they are taken the quicker the reduction will be. They are said to be quite harmless, though a bit strenuous at first.

Practically the same method is used for curing a severe cold in the head or chest, except that only two pounds of epsom salts are used, and a very hot drink, preferably a toddy, is drunk before getting into the bath, as it aids in inducing perspiration. After the bath go directly to bed and put on all the covers possible. In two hours the bed will be quite damp from the perspiration, or should be. — New York Sun.

Siberia's Growth.

Omsk, Siberia, has become the outfitting point for an extraordinary migration, estimated at 2,000,000 people annually, which pours into the country bordering on Mongolia. Nothing in Europe or Asia has ever been quite so like the springing up of the great cities of the American middle west as is the growth today of new towns in Siberia. Except that the tide is moving east instead of west, the movement has many parallels to the wonderful migration which won the west for America. There are, however, two striking differences. The first is that the pioneering is comparatively luxurious compared to the American movement, while the natives instead of being swept aside are being absorbed by intermarriage with the settlers. The ten day journey up the Irtish river from Omsk into the promised land is made by steamboats which are the last word in the luxury and convenience of river traffic.—Chicago News.

War and a Window.

In the days when Louis XIV., "Le Grand Monarque," was dazzling Europe his minister, Louvois, was superintending on the king's behalf the building of the palace of the Trianon in the park at Versailles. Louis inspected the buildings one afternoon and declared one of the windows to be out of shape and smaller than the rest. This Louvois denied, and the king had the window measured, with the result that he was proved to be right, and he openly before all the court ridiculed Louvois.

But the minister had his revenge, for, with the angry ejaculation that he would find better employment for a monarch than that of insulting his favorites, he embroiled France by his insolence in a quarrel with the powers, which only ended years later in the peace of Ryswick after a war which entailed the loss of many lives and the expenditure of large sums of money.

English Prizefighters.

There was a time when nearly every prominent prizefighter had a nickname more generally used by admirers than his real name, and some of these were picturesque. William Perry, a famous fighter of early Victorian days, was "the Tipton Slasher." William Thompson, who won the championship in 1835, was known as Bendigo. The Australian mining town was named after him, and, although some of the inhabitants managed to have it rechristened Sandhurst, the new name never caught on. Other nicknames borne by heroes of the ring were "the Gasman," "the Sailor Boy," "the Chelsea Snob," "the Bold Smuggler," "the Great Gun of Windsor" and "the Pride of Westminster."

This would be a happier world if some of the vaudeville dancers would do their singing in pantomime, as they do in the moving pictures.

Schoolma'ams make the best wives in the world, says the Ohio school commissioner. Such diplomacy seems wasted in an appointive office.

Between eugenics and "marriage mills" one continues to doubt whether one is a criminal to marry or a criminal to refrain from marrying.

A Barcelona mob shot a civilian in mistake for the former governor—a decidedly awkward fiasco that calls for profuse apologies to the widow.

Judge Landis of Chicago fined a man 1 cent and 5th costs. Are we to consider the judge an extremist, recalling the $29,000,000 Standard Oil fine?

It is well to have visions of a better life than that of every day, but it is the life of every day from which glimpses of a better life must come.

Banking in England.

The system of credit in England is different from that in this country, and the mere fact that a man has an account in a bank serves to give him standing. One cannot open an account with a bank in England merely by carrying money to the bank and depositing it. He must have two first class references before a bank will accept his account, and when reference is given it means that the person giving it would indorse or stand for the person to whom it is given. A reference in England means more than a mere phrase. Checks on banks in England cannot be obtained for the mere asking, and a man must have an account in order to get checks from any bank. They cannot be picked up on bank counters or in public places. Private accounts in English banks are not accepted unless they are paid for, the general charge being $50 a year. There are one or two banks in England which discriminate so carefully in the accounts they accept that when a person is fortunate enough to be permitted to open an account with them he can get credit in any city in England or on the continent of Europe.

Mrs. Bradley, when questioned by a fellow traveler in the Pullman car in regard to her home, launched forth into a rather long and detailed description of its charms. Her little girl, Grace, who had been reading when she began to speak, soon closed her book and listened with great interest.

"It must be very pleasant," remarked the chance acquaintance, somewhat perfunctorily, when Mrs. Bradley finished, and Grace, her eyes gleaming with enthusiasm, said: "Oh, it must be perfectly lovely! What place is it, mamma?"

"Why, our own home, of course," answered the mother, somewhat embarrassed.

"Oh, dear," said Grace, sighing, "how much better it sounds than it looks."—Exchange.

"Very well, ma'am," said the clerk, and calling the proprietor to tend the front of the store, he accompanied the woman around the corner to her house, and around the house to the back porch, where she took the mop, smashed in a perfectly good pane of glass with it, reached through the hole, unlatched the window and said:

"Now go in through the window and unlock the door for me; after that you can put in the new pane and my husband will pay you tomorrow. I left my keys at home when I went calling this afternoon."—Newark News.

THE ENAMELED BRACELET

"It is a charm, madame," smiled Count Sorio as he bent above Mrs. Raymond's pretty hand.

"You are very kind, count," protested Mrs. Ramond, "but really, I cannot accept this bracelet."

"Not as a souvenir of those delightful days in Florence?" reproached the handsome Italian. "I am sure your husband will join me in the wish that you may accept it as a token of my warm friendship for my good friends, the Raymonds!"

Dick Raymond smiled rather doubtfully, for when he had last met Count Enrico Sorio it had been a most unpleasant occasion; he had detected the impoverished nobleman cheating at cards, and, although Dick had allowed the matter to pass until the game was concluded, he had privately informed Sorio of what he had seen and warned him. There had been one moment when things hung in the balance. The Italian had looked at Dick with murderous hate in his black eyes, but he had not offered to avenge the insult in blood; he had merely turned on his heel and walked away, and the Raymonds had not seen or heard of him for many weeks until this sunny afternoon, when the repentant nobleman had called upon them, apologized handsomely to Dick and tendered an exquisite enameled bracelet as a peace offering to Mrs. Raymond.

"Very well, count. We will consider the matter closed. As for the bracelet, I am sure Mrs. Raymond will be charmed to add it to her collection of Florentine enamels. Come, my friend, let us walk on the terrace and smoke a cigarette before lunch."

As Ethel sat, musing over the bracelet, the door opened, and Carlo announced:

"Mme. Testino!"

"Ah, listen, I am so glad to see you," Ethel cried warmly. "Sit here. You must remain for luncheon. Count Sorio is here."

Lisetta Testino flushed beautifully and involuntarily glanced around the room.

"They are walking in the garden," explained Ethel demurely, for she knew that the fair Italian lady and the count were deeply in love with each other.

"I am surprised," hesitated the beautiful widow. "I thought that Sorio and your husband were —not friends — that they had a difference of opinion."

"It was so, and I was sorry," confessed Ethel, "but they have made it up, and as a peace offering the count has brought us this lovely bracelet to add to our collection of enamels. Is it not exquisite?"

"Beautiful," breathed Lisetta.

When Count Sorio saw Lisetta Testino standing in the library toying with the enameled bracelet his face went suddenly pale and his greeting to her was shortened to utter a whispered word of protest.

"Such gaudy trinkets do not become your pale dignity, my queen," he whispered hurriedly. "Put it aside, Lisetta. It is ill luck. It attracts the evil eye. It is accursed." He shuddered as he caught himself up sharply.

Lisetta went back to the drawing room after her handkerchief and when she returned there was a look of amusement in her cool glance as it crossed that of her lover.

The meal progressed slowly.

Suddenly Lisetta lifted one white hand to adjust the rose Ethel had tucked in her jet black hair. As she did so her three companions saw for the first time that she was wearing the enameled bracelet.

Lisetta tossed her head and smiled impudently at Ethel.

"See, carissima, I am wearing your bauble while I may."

"It becomes you rarely, madame," laughed her hostess.

Sorio's face was ghastly pale. Twice his lips parted as if to give utterance to some protest, but they closed. At last he could contain himself no longer.

"Madonna!" he gasped, rising and reaching across the table at Lisetta's arm. "Take it off, cara mia. It—means —death!" He half whispered the last words and sank back in his seat as Dick Raymond jumped up and held a glass of wine to Lisetta's pale lips.

Mme. Testino had uttered a sudden cry of anguish and her head drooped slowly down until it rested on one shoulder.

Dick Raymond dashed around the table and caught the shrinking Sorio by the shoulder. "What has happened, you coward?" he demanded.

While Dick was still trying to get an explanation from Sorio the doctor arrived and went into the salon where Lisetta was lying on a sofa, pale and lifeless.

That was an eventful night in the Villa Rosario. The doctor remained until morning and administered antidotes for the deadly poison which had been injected into Lisetta's veins through the medium of the poisoned bracelet. A tiny needle had darted into her flesh as she clasped the bracelet about her shapely wrist, but the prick had been so slight that she had scarcely noticed it.

By morning the danger was over. The poison, which had remained in the bracelet for perhaps a hundred years, so ancient was its history had lost its potency, and the quick action of the physician, combined with Lisetta's splendid physique, resulted in complete recovery for Mme. Testino. As for Enrico Sorio, who had intended the poisoned bracelet for Ethel Raymond, the wife of the man upon whom he wished to be revenged, Dick permitted him to disappear from Florence.

EFFECTIVE SPRING TONIC OVERCAME WEAKNESS

System Was All Run Down--Could Not Attend to Work --Lasting Cure Effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The cold, changeable Canadian winter is a severe strain on all who are not in robust health. This is proved by the many deaths, particularly of aged people, which occur about March, and the very many people who find themselves weak and run down in the Spring.

The overeating of heavy foods and living in stuffy rooms, where the air is laden with poisons, leave the blood impure in the Spring. You must have something to restore vigour, and, as stated in this letter, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most effective spring tonic.

If you have any doubt on this point just read the letters that are appearing daily in this paper from persons who have proved the efficiency of this great food cure. No medicine ever aroused so much enthusiasm in those who have used it.

Mr. A. Sicard, Dana, Sask., writes: "When I began to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food my system was so much run down that I was weak and exhausted, and could not attend to my work. The effect of the Nerve Food was almost like magic, for in a few days the weakness were away, and I found strength and vigour being restored to the body. That cure was effected three years ago, but I generally use the Nerve Food in the Spring as I can find no treatment so effective as a spring tonic."

You can avoid the headaches, the depression, the indigestion and tired, wornout feelings this spring if you begin at once the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This great prescription enriches the blood, and there is no germicide so effective as pure, rich blood. Fifty cents a box, 6 for $2.50. All dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

His Fair Proposition.

"Are you able to support my daughter?" asked the old gentleman. "You know she has pretty expensive tastes, and I don't mind saying that the burden has been pretty hard for me at times."

"That's just the point," exclaimed the prospective benedict. "If I marry her we can divide the expense?"

Wings of the Bat.

The wings of bats are merely hands. The fingers are very long and joined by a membrane similar to that of a duck's foot, only thinner. This membrane is extended up the arm, along the body and down to the legs and tail. The thumb is very short and its nail is extended to form a hook or claw.

Turning the Tables.

When Sir Henry Lucy was writing for a well known newspaper under the famous management of the late Sir John Robinson, the latter frequently complained of Lucy's terribly bad handwriting.

One day Mr. Lucy, as he then was, received a very heated note from Sir John, again complaining of his bad writing. Now, Sir John himself wrote an execrable "fist," and there were three words in that note that Mr. Lucy could not possibly decipher. He cut holes in a sheet of paper and covered the whole of the note except these three words. Then he went down to the office, showed Sir John the shrouded note and asked him if he could interpret the cryptic words.

After prolonged examination Sir John could not. Veteran proofreaders were called in, and they also failed. Then Mr. Lucy uncovered the note and showed Sir John that it was his own! —London Answers.

Formation of Ice.

The cause assigned for the fact that water freezes only for a comparatively small space at the surface of rivers or ponds is thus explained. Scientists authoritatively declare that water is at its heaviest when it reaches 40 degrees F.—that is, 8 degrees above freezing point. On a frosty night, as each top layer of water falls to 40 degrees it sinks to the bottom, therefore the whole pond has to drop to 40 degrees before any of it can freeze. At length it is all cooled to this point, and then ice begins to form. But ice is a very bad conductor of heat, therefore it shuts off the freezing air from the body of warmer water underneath. The thicker it gets the more perfectly does it act as a greatcoat and that is why even the Arctic ocean never freezes beyond a few feet in thickness.

An Untouched Subject.

In L'Esprit des Francais is an instance of the sharp, biting wit for which Alexis Piron, the French epigrammatist, was famous.

A young author whose ability was by no means equal to his conceit was discoursing at length upon the merits of his work.

"I am tired of writing of that of which the others write," he said. "I want to create an original work, something that no one has ever written about or ever will write about."

Piron turned quickly to the speaker. "Why not write your own eulogy?" he said.

INDIA HOARDS GOLD

IT IS ESTIMATED TO AMOUNT TO $6 PER CAPITA.

Enormous Sums of Money in Coinage and Bullion Are Annually Secreted by Natives Who Do Not Trust the Banks — Often Coins Are Melted to Make Ornaments for Women.

The report of the Royal Commission on Indian Finance and Currency, settles some controversies and starts others, but it does not clear up the mystery of the hoarded gold of India.

From time immemorial India has absorbed gold as a sponge absorbs water. The flow of gold to India has always continued. In the last twelve years she has received £136,000,000 in gold, partly sovereigns and partly in bullion, in addition to enormous quantities of silver. It all goes into the country, but very little ever comes out. Lord Rothschild observed some years ago that he had noticed that none of the smooth gold bars sent to India from Great Britain ever came back. What happens to this great stream of precious metal, which continually disappears like those rivers in desert lands which lose themselves underground?

The testimony of experts is most conflicting. Some say it is hoarded, while a few are ready to prove by a formidable array of statistics that it cannot be extensively hoarded. Those who believe that India possesses a vast store of hoarded treasure make the wildest guesses at its probable total. The most popular estimate of the hoarded wealth of India puts the total at £300,000,000, which would amount to £1 per head of the population; but some credible estimates are far higher. The experts quarrel, again, about the probable effect of India's absorption of gold upon the world's money markets and the prices of commodities. Some say that all gold using countries benefit thereby, while others, such as Sir Edward Holden, appear to hold that "the drain of gold to India" is a potential menace. The commission, while declining to endorse either of these mutually destructive contentions, has declared in effect that an increased use of gold in India should not in future be encouraged by the Government, but India already seems disposed to resent the recommendation.

Whether gold is hoarded in India or not is really a question of terms. All nations hoard gold upon occasion. If England was threatened with a great war to-morrow we may depend upon it that there would be a rush of those people who possessed both foresight and a balance in the bank. It is estimated that during the Balkan crisis the peoples of Central Europe obtained and hoarded £60,000,000 in gold. India has been subjected to repeated invasions and innumerable internal wars, and her people have never completely lost their hereditary sense of insecurity. Banking facilities are still sparse, and it would be surprising if Indians did not hoard.

But hoarding does not necessarily mean burying in the ground or concealment in the roofs of houses, though these practices are doubtless extensive. Mr. J. M. Keynes, a member of the commission, tells a story of a Brahmin in Eastern Bengal who even hoards currency notes in his roof. Once a week he retires privily and spreads them out in the sun to remove the damp. A very large proportion of the hoarded wealth of India is, however, in the form of gold and silver ornaments. It is into these ornaments that the bulk of the bullion and sovereigns, as well as much of the silver disappears.

One often sees in the bazaar of a prosperous Punjab town little boys naked save for one insufficient garment, but glittering with silver ornaments. The girls are far more lavishly laden. The frequency of child murders in India is almost entirely due to motives of robbery. With the growth of prosperity gold ornaments are largely replacing silver ones, especially among adults. One witness told the commission that at the Amritsar fair well-to-do agriculturists, who formerly wore necklaces of rupees, are now seen with strings of sovereigns round their necks.

It is the women, however, upon whom gold ornaments are chiefly lavished, and the cause is partly found in the Hindu law of inheritance. A Hindu cannot alienate any portion of his property, either by will or by gift, to his wife or any of the female members of his family. His male heirs are nevertheless precluded by law from claiming jewelry or ornaments given by him to his female relatives. These remain the property of the women, and this curious custom, which is a very old one, account for much of the prevalence of hoarding in India.

Mr. Subdara Iyer, a Madras economist, says that with the spread of western ideas Hindus now feel it their duty to make a better provision for their wives and daughters and other female relatives. The result has been an enormous increase in the melting of sovereigns to make gold ornaments.

Gold ornaments are not, however, made only as a provision for the women. They are a convenient method of guarding against a rainy day, and they are particularly popular with prospective bankrupts. Mr. Iyer quotes the case of a merchant who failed. It was afterwards found that he had given his wife jewelry and ornaments to the value of over £600,000. But under the law the creditors could not seize a single one of these articles.

Population of Russia.

The census of 1910 gives the whole Russian empire a population of 160,095,200. With its vast area of 8,660,000 square miles, Russia is capable of maintaining 1,000,000,000 people. Although now thinly populated, it is known to be in many parts immensely fertile, especially as a wheat producer, and is capable of sustaining a vast population, to say nothing of Russia in Europe.—New York American.

PRACTICAL SOCIALISM.

This Old Australian Followed Out the Doctrine He Taught.

There are many who preach Socialism, but few who practice it in their daily lives. Thomas Cadley, an old man, who lived out the last days of his lonely life in a weatherboard cottage in Percy street, North Fitzroy, was not only true to his Socialistic convictions to the day of his death, but so distributed his estate as to, in his own words, benefit those who had assisted him to make what money he possessed.

Thomas Cadley, better known to many as "Tommy Trenton," was once one of the motley band of orators who deliver what they deem to be their message to the world from a soap box or other point of vantage on the Yarra-bank. He had had a chequered career. A native of Birmingham, Cadley is supposed to have been well connected, and an old photograph of him, young, debonair, well-tailored and well-groomed, is in the possession of his friends. Few would recognize in the worn-out old figure of Cadley, unkempt and neglected, the original of the photograph. In 1879 Cadley held the position of foreman at the Frankfurt boot factory, at Fitzroy, but later became a laborer and latterly did little but odd jobs. He was, however, of a thrifty disposition, and put what money he had saved into real estate. He owned four cottages, two at North Carlton and two at North Fitzroy. The latter were weatherboard cottages, and in one of these he lived by himself, the other three being let.

It was in his capacity as landlord that he brought his Socialistic theories into practice. The rents he asked from his tenants were considerably less than he could have obtained. Mr. H. J. Anderson, jeweller, who rented one of his cottages at Carlton, states that his rent was fully four shillings a week below what the cottage was worth. Further, he always gave presents to his tenants at Christmas, and never failed to remember the birthdays of their children.

Another way in which he carried out the Socialistic idea of service was that every week-end he would visit Mr. Anderson's cottage, and chop enough wood to last his tenant over the week, saying that Anderson must do no work with his hands which might prejudice him in his employment as a jeweller.

Cadley was a bachelor, without known relatives, and by his will he distributed the whole of his estate, valued at £850 realty and £49 6s. 8d. personalty, among his tenants and their friends. His three tenanted cottages he left to the occupiers.—Melbourne Age.

What Becomes of Milk-Cans.

Between 150,000 and 200,000 milk-cans are let loose every day in London alone. These cans vary from the churns that travel by train to the pint and half-pint ones left outside your door. It is not surprising, therefore, that many hundreds of cans are lost each day. And milk-cans are valuable articles, the reward for recovery alone varying from sixpence a dozen for pint cans to three shillings a dozen for two-quart cans.

So many cans are stolen, in fact, that there is a Home for Lost Cans. The Can Protection Society looks after all cans that have gone astray, and searches for those that have been stolen. Lost cans are collected by the society's officials and sent to headquarters, whence they are returned to their rightful owners on payment of the proper reward. Not only are the cans stolen by boys and others who make a speciality of this form of theft, but unscrupulous milkmen don't hesitate to pick up a can by mistake. Then the society steps in and deals with the offender.

It is a remarkable fact that even big churns get lost or stolen by the thousand. In four years no fewer than 10,000 drifted from home and were put on the right track again by the officials of the home for strayed milk-cans.—Spare Moments.

Motor Puzzles Natives.

At Barrow's Creek, on the overland telegraph line, near the centre of Australia, there is a $5,000 motor-car. It has been there for over two months, and is likely to remain some time longer. It is the car in which Dr. J. A. Gilruth, the Administrator of the Northern Territory, made his journey from Camooweal, in Queensland.

When the car reached its present resting-place, Dr. Gilruth had to hire horses to get back to Darwin, 600 or 700 miles to the north. It is reported that aborigines are apparently much interested in the strange vehicle, and that dusky parties are arriving from distant parts to view it. Great consternation is said to have been caused when one of the natives, more venturesome than the rest, sounded the motor horn. The noise caused a stampede.—Melbourne Herald.

To Get More Pay.

Officers pay is to be increased in the Indian army and it is said that provision will be made for the forthcoming budget to meet the charges involved. The statements so persistently made that the Government of India did not intend to follow up what has been done at home have been entirely without foundation. The details of their scheme necessarily required very careful consideration, but we understand it is now ready for submission to the Secretary of State.

Tennyson's Terror.

At the time when rumors of the probable marriage of the Marquis of Lorne and Princess Louise were flooding about Loudon Tennyson had one day a number of guests at luncheon, among whom was the Marquis of Lorne. In the course of talk the marquis told Tennyson, then poet laureate, that the queen liked his new volume.

"I am glad to hear it," Tennyson said in his sonorous, slightly nasal bass voice. "I have given a good account of her in that volume, but the newspapers didn't like my rimes—say they are bad. I live in terror," he continued, "of any of the queen's family marrying and of hearing from her that she hopes I will write something. I have no news of that kind yet, but I live in terror of it."

This with a solemnly sly wink.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

REPRIEVED

Dr. Kennedy sat in his motor car, his face grave, his mind full of a patient—a patient whose face had haunted him the whole day; had kept sleep away the whole of the previous night. She was a girl; an utter stranger; tall, slight, dainty, and he at first had fancied her one of the many ladies of high degree who came to him afflicted with nerves or jaded. Underneath his sympathetic air he had been contemptuous—and then he had looked straight into a sad, white, reckless face.

"Doctor—I'm not afraid!"

She faced him with a brave smile of understanding; her eyes caught his, making his heart beat strangely, though he regarded her with a grandfatherly manner that sat quaintly on so young a man. And he had to tell her the truth.

"How will it happen?" she asked. "I can't lie in my bed, and be a burden."

There was a bitter ring in her voice but no terror. She flung back her head defiantly.

"You must not play with your life" he said sternly.

"Play with it" she said, and laughed.

"It is only right that you should know," he said. "You must go away immediately. Utter rest is your — your chance."

He hadn't courage enough to say "only."

"If I don't?"

"You will kill yourself. The least excitement, the least overtaxation—do you understand?"

The car stopped with a jerk; Dr. James Kennedy had reached his dinner party.

It was a brilliant dinner. Along the table rippled a quick river of conversation; above it one gay voice, like the voice of a leader.

"How lucky Mrs. Van Dam is to have caught such a brilliant person—"

He lifted his eyes. They travelled across the glitter of silver and glass, and remained staring—thunderstruck.

"Good heavens!" he said, and was silent.

A brilliant jest faltered on her lip half an instant; the eyes reading his were dark with something like fear—and then they grew all defiant; and the smile on her lips was daring as a smile of pain.

Kennedy sat and watched her. She was killing herself. He knew; and she knew.

It was hard to believe that so short a time ago they had stood face to face while he had told her the awful truth. It was harder, strangely harder, to watch her now.

The dinner was over at last; and at last the men went to the waiting ladies.

There was a great jeweled curtain hanging to the door at the upper end of the room. It had been flung back a little, betraying a room beyond. Kennedy saw it and passed within.

He had guessed right. She was there, her hands at her heart, her cheeks haggard.

"How dare you!" said Kenedy sternly.

She looked up startled and flung out her hands for support. He caught and held her.

"I—I'm all right," she said. "It was only bad for a minute. * * * Now I'll go back."

"You won't," he said grimly. "I understand that you're staying with Mrs. Van Dam. You will go to bed now, and I will tell her."

He was turning as if to go, but she caught suddenly at his arm.

"Don't!" she cried, her voice eager in its beseeching. "I know you will think I'm a vain, gay woman who cannot grasp—things. I saw the horror in your face to-night; but it's not that. I saw you thinking. 'Well, it will kill her—perhaps to-night,' and it frightened me a little. But that is all I ask. I would rather dies so because—" She paused. Her hold tightened on his arm.

"Doctor, you don't understand! I'll tell you. If you go to Mrs. Van Dam and say—it, she will get in a panic and send me away. I am only a paid companion. In all the world I have nowhere to go, save to an invalid sister, who would lack food if she had to share with me. Look at my clothes if you will—my employer dresses me for the part I have to play. I've got to talk and smile and be brilliant for two of us—Mrs. Van Dam is such a stick. She's been a success this season with my help, but all the same if you told her she's turn me out at once. Afraid of illness and—and death."

"You must not," said Kennedy. His voice, to himself, sounded hoarse.

"I dont know why I'm bothering you, doctor," she went on wistfully; "only you know so much, and one trusts a doctor."

Across the doctor's mind there flashed a recollection of Lady Mary Campbell — an old woman, a good woman, who had the strangest notions about her health, and who had been trying to persuade her dear doctor to go away with her to the South and watch over her in the sun.

"I'll do anything — anything for you, doctor, if you'll only come."

That was what she had said, and Kennedy had replied that he could not possibly leave his practice.

He felt in his pockets for a slip of paper and hurriedly scribbled a telegram.

"Will do what you ask one one condition. Will call to-morrow."

He already saw Lady Mary's satisfaction—her thankful willingness to allow another patient to travel southwards under her wing.

Then he turned to his patient. She was standing there, haggard and very sweet, a look of awful wasting behind the recklessness in her eyes.

"Child," he said, eagerly, "will you trust me?"

She looked at him with a wistful, wondering understanding. Her lip quivered under the infinite tenderness in his eyes. Kennedy caught her hands in his, strong and white and eager.

"I'm so proud of you."

The girl looked up at her doctor; the red fluttered in her cheek.

"Proud?" she asked.

"Child, he is proud of you—you've made such amazing strides," cried Lady Mary. "He wants to put you into an advertisement and blazon you case abroad. If he hadn't a name already, you'd make him famous."

"It's a pity I can't." There was a wistful note under the laughter.

"Why?" said Kennedy.

"Because I can do nothing for you."

Lady Mary went away and left doctor and patient gazing down on the wonderful eastern city.

There was a long silence, then Kennedy leaned forward. His face was quiet ,and it was always earnest. His voice was not as steady as it had been.

"On scientific principles," he said "love at first sight is the only thing Will you let me justify that theory—all my life?"

She looked at him, her eyes full of happiness.

"All my life," she said, hear hands tight in his; "all—my—life!"

A DEAD FLY

May be as Dangerous as a Live One!

It is certainly more repulsive, and, if left, will breed far more disease than ever it did when alive.

It is not sufficient to kill the fly. You must destroy the germs as well. These, if allowed to multiply, will spread disease and death. Give up using the fly swatter and the unsanitary sticky fly paper.

Buy WILSON'S FLY PADS—the only really effective method of exterminating the death-dealing horsefly. They kill all the flies in the house in a few hours. No dead flies left lying about.

Be careful to follow directions found in each package.

Backache Banished.

Thousands of men and women are suffering from weak, lame and aching backs, and many of them unable to do any work for the pain.

The stitches, twitches and twinges are bad enough and give enough misery, but, back of the backache, and the cause of it all are the disordered kidneys crying out in warning through the back.

Backache is kidney ache, and there's serious trouble ahead for you if you neglect it.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure every form of backache by curing the sick kidneys that cause it.

Mrs. Jack Mason, Springhill, N.B., writes:—"I have been suffering from backache for a very long time. I tried everything and did everything, but still I would suffer. One day I was looking over your Almanac, and saw your advertisement for Doan's Kidney Pills, so I got 5 boxes, and I am glad to say that they brought me back to life again, and from now on I will never be without them."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

If ordering direct specify "Doan's."

ZURICH'S QUAINT FESTIVAL.

The Sechselauten, this time-honored and quaint spring festival, which is particularly characteristic of Zurich, has again been celebrated in that city. Sechselauten — six o'clock ringing it is called, for the actual ceremony symbolizing the passing of winter and arrival of spring takes place upon the stroke of six.

The festival begins in the early morning, when both the national and cantonal flags are hoisted from the towers of the Grossmuster, whose foundation dates back to the times of Charlemagne. A procession of over 1,000 school children, many of whom are dressed in the picturesque Swiss national garb, escorts the triumphal float bearing the goddess of spring with her attendant maidens. Behind follows Bogg, a huge figure representing winter, made of wood and covered with white cotton wool. The procession winds its way along the river Limmat to the head of the smiling lake, where Boggs is left behind on the spacious square. The forenoon festivities close with a juvenile ball in the Tonhalle.

A most interesting parade by the various guilds in ancient costumes takes place in the afternoon. Scenes from Swiss history pass on an elaborate scale before the spectators' eyes, thus lending an additional charm to the actual spring celebration. Joy reigns supreme; joy that liberty has been bought by the fair season of spring has conquered winter.

The first stroke of six is the signal for Bogg's execution; the figure is lit and the old man's doom is sealed. Bonfires flare up on many of the surrounding mountain heights and fire works are let off from the numerous boats now gaily circling around on the lovely lake. Winter has passed and the arrival of spring is celebrated far into the night.

The festivities held this year were combined with the inauguration of the city's new university building, and on that account began on April 19. Fifteen hundred persons took part in the brilliant pageant which has been arranged for the third and last day and which offered some wonderful pictures of the history of science and learning, dating back to the oldest Egyptian period.

SECRET OF YOUTH.

Mrs. Henry Payne Whitney, in her beautiful studio of white marble at Roslyn, said of an artist, recently deceased, whose work had been very popular:

"The secret of popularity in art is easy — let every picture tell a sincerely sentimental story. Yes, this secret is as easy and as efficacious as the other one indicated by the magician.

"At a bal masque a group of girls demanded of a magician:

"'Tell us—oh, tell us—how we may remain always young and always beautiful.'

"'Hump! Nothing easier,' grunted the magician. 'Get married and stay single.'"

VICTIM OF AUSTRIA.

Essad Pasha Blames Jealousy of Italy For His Expulsion.

MAPLES, May 22. — Essad Pasha, former Albanian Minister of War, who arrived here yesterday on his way to Rome after his expulsion from Durazzo, declared that he was a victim of Austria, which he says is averse to his friendliness for Italy. He added that disorders were organized in Albania so that he might be killed or captured.

The Albanians, according to Essad, dislike the idea of foreign officers commanding the Albanian military police as they consider it unnecessary foreign intervention in their affairs.

RUN DOWN PEOPLE

Let Vinol Make You Strong.

Run-down conditions are caused by overwork, worry, too close confinement, a chronic cough or cold which it is difficult to cure.

We want to say to every person in this condition—you need Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil, the great strength creator. It will supply iron to the blood in the most easily assimilated form, create healthy appetite, strengthen your digestive organs and make you eat better, sleep better and feel better.

A case has just come to our attention from Racine, Wis. Mrs. W. H. Brill says: "I was in a very bad run-down condition. Life was not worth living. I could not sleep—was nervous and not able to work—and doctors failed to help me, but Vinol did wonders for me. In a short time I was stronger than ever and had gained 23 pounds."

We are confident that Vinol is the best body builder and strength creator we have ever sold. Try a bottle on our guarantee to refund your money if it fails to benefit you. McDermid & Jury, druggists, corner George and Charlotte Streets; also Payne's drug store, corner George and Simcoe Streets.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, May 21.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 48 cars, comprising 266 cattle, 2072 hogs, 154 sheep and lambs and 61 calves.

Butchers.

Choice loads of steers at $8 to $8.25, with a few odd cattle at $8.40 to $8.50; good to choice at $7.75 to $8; medium at $7.50 to $7.75; common at $7 to $7.40; choice cows at $7 to $7.50; good at $6.50 to $6.75; common cows at $5 to $6.25; canners and cutters at $3.50 to $4.50; choice bulls at $7 to $7.50; good at $6.50 to $6.75; common bulls at $5 to $6.25.

Stockers and Feeders.

The market for stockers and feeders was firmer, as the demand is much greater than the supply. Short-keep feeders sold at $7.20 to $8 in several instances; feeding steers, 750 to 900 lbs. sold at $7.50 to $7.80; stockers, 500 to 600 lbs. at $6.50 to $7.

Milkers and Springers.

Milkers and springers have been scarce all week, with prices firmer on the average for choice forward springers and fresh milkers. Prices ranged from $60 to $100 each.

Veal Calves.

Receipts were light, only 61 all told, and as a consequence prices were very firm. Choice veals, $9.50 to $10.00; good calves, $8 to $9; medium, $7 to $8; common, $6 to $6.75.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts were light, 154 all told. Prices are still high, altho heavy fat sheep and spring lambs are lower on account of poor quality. Heavy ewes and rams, $4.50 to $5.50; light ewes, $6.50 to $7.25; spring lambs, $8 to $8.50.

Hogs.

Receipts being more liberal prices declined about five cents. Selects fed and watered sold at $8.35 to $8.40, and $8 f.o.b., and $8.50 to $8.65 off cars.

VATERLAND SWEPT AWAY.

Huge Liner Carried Off From Tugs By Tide at New York.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Navigation in the North river, between lower New York and Hoboken stood still yesterday while the Vaterland, the biggest ship afloat, defied all efforts to dock her and swept broadside down the stream for more than a mile.

When the liner arrived at her pier after her maiden voyage her great length and a strong ebb tide proved too strong a combination for the fleet of willing little tugs that urged her toward her berth. For more than two hours the tugs pulled and hauled at the gigantic liner without success. At the end of that time she lay heading up the river against the heads of three piers, while the tugs, clustering like dolphins about a whale, laid their noses against her stern and started to swing it out into the river, so that the steamer could slide bow-first into her slip.

The Vaterland had made three attempts to dock before this. Once she was almost ready to tie up, when the tide gripped her and dragged her out of the slip. Ferryboats and small craft scurried to safety as the leviathan floated broadside down the river with twenty tugs circling frantically around. She floated a mile before the tugs got her straightened out, and then she returned under her own steam. Two more trials failed, but by this time the fleet of tugs had been reinforced and they caught the liner and headed her back before she had gone far down the river.

The fourth attempt to dock the ship proved successful. Hawsers had been attached to the bow and donkey engines ashore pulled while the tugs pushed against her stern.

More Reason For It?

More women attempt suicide than men.

THE MOST EXCITING SCENE ON THE ENGLISH STAGE AT PRESENT—It comes at the end of "My Lady's Dress," a play by Edward Knoblauch. There is no time wasted on chatter or epigram. The brief episode advances with Greek-like rapidity. It shows first the mannequin's life in front of the curtain, and, after behind, when she is alone with the manager, Miss Gladys Cooper, as the mannequin, hears him discussing her with a friend. "No, dear boy; I'm just breakin' in one of my girls." This is the last straw. The mannequin seizes a glittering pair of scissors and plunges it through the curtain, as one sees here.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

A bomb exploded in the middle of the night in the offices of El Comercio at Callao, Peru, and caused great damage, besides injuring one of the editors.

The sale of cigarettes has been prohibited until further orders in Shawville, Que., as a consequence of the bush fires which are raging in the vicinity.

W. A. Hollingrake, of Brantford, acting for J. W. Mathewson, is suing the Hamilton & Brantford Radial Railway Co. for $5,000 for forcible ejection from a car.

Eugene Howling, station agent for the West Shore Railway, at Tappan, N.Y., was shot and killed early yesterday by two men who tried to rob the safe in his office.

Kitchora's experiment with daylight saving through moving the clocks forward has not been a success and the retail merchants recommend a return to the old system on June 1st.

Dr. A. P. Lothrop, assistant professor of Physiological Chemistry in Columbia University, New York, has been appointed professor of Physiological Chemistry in Queen's University.

Henry Cavin, 17 years of age, who was shot in the head when Mrs. Juanita Griffith tried to knock a potato from his head with a rifle in the theatre on Tuesday, died yesterday in Lynn, Mass.

The Cobalt Grand Trunk express, which left Toronto at 8.30 Wednesday night, was derailed near Trout Creek, at four o'clock yesterday morning. The passengers were shaken up, but no one was injured.

Captain Dion Died on Duty.

QUEBEC, May 22.—Captain Dion of the steamer Champion, dropped dead on board his vessel yesterday morning.

The steamer was on the way from St. Michel to this port and stopped at St. John, Island of Orleans. He went into his room, and just as he passed the door fell on the floor and expired.

Foreman Blown To Pieces.

DUNDAS, Ont., May 22.—George Niblock, 50, a foreman employed by the Canada Crushed Stone Corporation, was blown to pieces at the quarries here yesterday. Niblock dropped a piece of dynamite into a rock crevice. He tried to pick it out with a hammer and a terrific explosion followed.

Kingston Miners Grain Traffic.

KINGSTON, May 22.—There has been practically no grain discharged here for a couple of weeks. Nearly all the grain carriers coming down from Fort William, have been sent on to Montreal. Heavy smoke on the river St. Lawrence has been interfering with traffic during past few days.

Kingston Not Boycotted.

KINGSTON, May 22.—Sir William Mackenzie said in an interview in this city yesterday, that the Canadian Northern Railway, despite what had been said to the contrary, would continue to place orders with the Kingston Locomotive Works. He said that he entertained no resentment or petty anger against this city, and that all the trouble in connection with the railway company had been caused by shortness of money. He also said that the company would be running its trains in and out of Kingston in the near future.

Whole Families Employed.

Among the silver masters of Sheffield, Eng., it is rather an established practice to encourage the employment of families. It is more the rule than otherwise that a father working in the silver trade will apprentice his children to that trade as they arrive at working age.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT REGARDING CANADIAN PACIFIC CHANGE OF TIME. MAY 31st.

In connection with the coming change of time on the Canadian Pacific Railway, effective May 31st, many improvements in train service have been made, notable among these being the inauguration of solid de luxe trains, carrying compartment-library-observation car, electric-lighted standard sleepers, together with standard dining car service between Montreal-Toronto, Detroit, Chicago, via Canadian Pacific and Michigan Central Railroad, commencing westbound May 31st and eastbound June 1st.

These palatial trains will be known as No. 19 and No. 22, the former leaving Montreal 9.45 a.m., arriving Toronto 5.40 p.m., leaving Toronto 6.10 p.m. arriving London 9.15 p.m., leaving London 9.35 p.m., arriving Windsor 12.10 a.m., leaving Windsor 12.35 a.m., arriving Detroit 11.35 p.m. (central time), leaving Detroit 11.55 p.m., arriving Chicago 7.45 a.m.

Train No. 2 will leave Chicago 9.30 a.m. (central time, arrive Detroit 3.55 p.m., leave Detroit 5.05 p.m. (eastern time), arrive Windsor 5.15 p.m., leave Windsor 5.35 p.m., arrive London 8.10 p.m., leave London 8.18 p.m., arrive Toronto 11.40 p.m., leave Toronto 11.40 p.m., arrive Montreal 9.00 a.m. These two trains will be operated through the Michigan Central tunnel between Windsor and Detroit.

The new Toronto-Winnipeg-Vancouver service should be greatly appreciated by the travelling public. No. 3, now leaving Toronto 10.20 p.m., will leave at 9.40 p.m., running through solid to Winnipeg and Vancouver, carrying only the highest class equipment.

New Train known as No. 7 will leave Toronto 10.30 p.m. running through solid to Winnipeg, carrying standard sleeping cars, dining car, tourist sleeping cars, colonist cars, first-class coaches, etc. Equally good service returning from the West. Particulars from Canadian Pacific Ticket Agents, or M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto. 24-tf.

TO MAKE LEMON CAKE.

Three cups of sugar, one cup of butter, five eggs, a level teaspoonful of soda, dissolved in a cup of sweet milk, four full cups of sifted flour, and lastly the grated peel and juice of a lemon, the juice to be added the very last. OUTBREAK A MISTAKE

Rough Home Unionist Method Not Regarded With Favor by Responsible Members of the Party

SPEAKER MAY RESIGN

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., May 22.— (Special cable.)— Apparently the outbreak of yesterday was organized by a small group of die hards who momentarily carried the majority of Unionists with them. Every sign this morning shows that the responsible Unionists bitterly regret the display of temper. Their newspapers while attempting to throw the blame on the government admit the outbreak was a terrible mistake. It is expected that parliament will meet in a chastened mood to-day, but the situation is such that anything may happen. The greatest danger of the moment is the possibility of real Ulster disturbances. Possibly one result of the outbreak may be the resignation of Speaker Lowther who considers his authority has been openly flouted by a responsible Opposition leader. In 1906 Speaker Gully under similar circumstances resigned the speakership. Various die hards are today declaring that despite the protest of their own party they intend to renew the disturbances on Monday.

TRIALS WERE SUSPENDED

Examiner Special:

LONDON, Eng., May 22.—So great was the disturbance when fifty-seven participants of yesterday's suffragette riots at Buckingham Palace were brought before the Magistrates this morning that the trials all had to be suspended and the shrieking prisoners whirled back to detention cells in police ambulances and motors. Simultaneously with the hour of the court sitting, women armed with loaded sticks damaged valuable paintings in the National Gallery and the Royal Academy of Art. Three arrests were made and the buildings were closed.

ROYAL THEATRE

The Dixie Minstrels have broken all records in spite of the warm weather. They have the best coloured troop travelling in vaudeville to-day. This company will give a special big matinee on Saturday for ladies and children, for 5c and 10c you will see the same big show.

The High Cost of Living

At the present time possibly no other subject is receiving quite as much attention in Canada as this one. It will be a surpise to most readers to know that during the fiscal year which ended March 31st, 1913, Canada paid $11,500,000 in duty on food, and all of this large sum is virtually a direct tax on the consumer.

In glancing over the list it is easy to understand that the buying public are themselves largely to blame in many instances, for there are articles of food produced in Canada that are equal in every respect to those made in any country in the world.

In the baking powder line alone there were 667,904 lbs. imported into Canada, and this means the consumer paid in duty the enormous sum of $67,000. There are no better goods in the world in this line than magic baking powder, and it is made in a model sanitary up-to-date factory, and can be procured in any first-class store at one-half the price the imported article sells for.

Such articles as raisins, currants, and many other things, which do not grow in Canada, or are not produced here, have of necessity to be imported, and the duty paid.

If the consumer would devote a little thought and attention to this subject a large amount of money could and would be saved. — Canadian Home Journal.

THAT PESKY LAST PARAGRAPH.

Living on a prominent corner and sleeping with all windows open leads one to believe that the most popular "last line" any time between 6 p.m. and 6 a.m. is, "Good-bye. Be sure and call me up." It averages fifty per night; but the most seasonable "last line" at present seems, "Got your rubbers on? Don't forget your umbrella." On second thought that night also be a first liner, doubleheader, as it were.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HORSE VAULTED FENCE OF PASTURE TO ANSWER ALARM

"Frank," the old Fire Department horse that Chief Howard uses on his buggy, showed himself a creature of habit last night when, upon hearing an alarm sounded, vaulted the fence of his pasture ground, at the Hilliard farm, raced down town and, flecked with foam, ran into the engine room at the fire hall. He backed into the shafts of the fire engine and waited for some one to put the harness on him for the usual emergency run. The veteran of the department has been lame of late with swollen legs, and Chief Howard turned him out on the grass at the Hilliard farm. The Department has been putting some of their wires underground and a test call was sent in last night to make sure the circuit was in good condition. A woman living near the farm called up the fire hall to report that the horse had jumped the fence, about eight o'clock, and was on his way to the centre of the City. In less than two minutes he arrived at the fire hall, well lathered, as the result of his exertion, and, like the faithful old animal he is, waited impatiently in the engine room for the brigade to answer the call which long habit had impressed upon old "Frank." There is a touch of nobility in old Frank's mechanical response to the fire bell's summons to duty. There is also a little of the pathetic, in the fact that the faithful old brute is aging and incapable of performing his old duties.

DESPONDENT WOMAN DRINKS CARBOLIC

Mrs. Daniel Dwyer, of Norwood, Formerly of Peterboro', Ended Her Life in St. Peter's Cemetery Early This Morning--Has Been Victim of Melancholia Since Death of Her Husband.

The body of Mrs. Daniel Dwyer of Norwood, was found early this morning in the Roman Catholic Cemetery, lying across the grave of her husband, who died several years ago. It is thought that she committed suicide during the night, as a bottle containing carbolic acid and a paper cup was found only a few steps from where the body lay.

The body was discovered about six o'clock this morning by Mr. Geo. Powell, who lives next to the cemetery. Mr. Powell went out in his garden shortly before six o'clock, and he had only been out a few seconds when he noticed the form of a well dressed woman lying a little distance from the edge of the cemetery. He called his wife, who verified what he had seen, and together they entered the cemetery. Approaching the form they saw that life was apparently extinct and they sent for another resident of that district, Mr. J. Mervin. He ascertained for certain that there was no life left in the body, and then got in communication with Coroner Dr. Greer and Bishop O'Brien. The body was found to be that of Mrs. Daniel Dwyer, formerly of this City, but latterly of Norwood. It is thought that she came to Peterborough on the C. P.R. train this morning about five o'clock and went directly to the cemetery. The theory that she committed suicide seems to be indisputable in that a bottle about half full of carbolic acid and a paper drinking cup were found a few feet from the body. The woman was very well dressed and beside her was found this morning her hat and purse, laid together. She was lying with her face upturned under a parasol, and had every appearance of having merely reclined on the mound of her husband's grave for a rest.

It is said that eevr since her husband's death some years ago, the late Mrs. Dwyer has been very melancholy, and has not appeared in public or on the streets of the City except when business demanded it. Up till a short time ago she resided in Peterborough, but she went to Norwood some months ago, where she has since resided with her brother there. She was very highly respected by all who knew her, and the only reason her intimate friends can offer for her act is that grief at the death of her husband at last unhinged her mind, resulting in the tragedy this morning. There will be no inquest as the case is clearly one of suicide.

"Suff" Chained Herself to Theatre Chair, Raised a Row, Until Employee Unscrewed Chair and Carried Her Out

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, England, May 22.—Chained to her seat so they couldn't throw her out, a militant suffragette practically broke up the matinee performance at His Majesty's Theatre while the King and Queen occupied the Royal box this afternoon. "Release Mrs. Penkhurst," the woman shrieked steadily for twenty minutes, while frantic theatre attaches finally unscrewed the chair and carried it out with her in it. Other suffragettes amidst the confusion, mounted the stage and harangued the King, calling him, "You Russian Czar" and other names, while several others bobbed up in various parts of the house. Throughout the melee their Majesties sat quietly in the box, apparently oblivious of all the hubbub.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKET

Special Wire to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, May 22.—(Friday's letter—Chas. Baring, Inc.) — The stock market reacted on an average of a little over a point, which shows that I was right. I still think that this will be the extent of the setback, but I had expected Union Pacific to get a point higher first, but the other stocks practically reached the expected top figures given Saturday night when I stated that Union Pacific should go to about 159½, A.C.P. 74, R.G. above 167 and Reading and 166½, which is near enough to 167, etc.

U.S. reacted nearly 2 points, shewing that I was right when I stated on Monday night that 63½ was about as high as I expected it to go. After it reacts below 61 or 60 it will probably rally again to 65, but I would sooner buy other stocks than Steel.

C.O. declared the regular dividend, as predicted, and I think it ought to rally possibly near 60. With the rest of the market, on a further set-back of a point, you can commence buying U.P., Erie, A.C.P., R.G., C.A., N.Y.C., I.C.E., West Union, S.P., A.R., the Tractions, Can., M.O.P., Utah, B.O. and more if they go a point lower.

PULMOTOR ONCE AGAIN

New Life Saving Instrument Quickly Relieves a Local Italian Who Was Overcome by Gas

THREE MINUTES' WORK

C. Gracco, an Italian labourer, employed on a Peterborough Light and Power Company gas trench at Charlotte and Stewart streets, was overcome with gas yesterday evening at six o'clock. A message was sent to the fire station for the pulmotor which was rushed to the scene. Dr. McCulloch, Charlotte street, was also summoned, and assisted Chief Howard and Engineer Jamieson in the use of the pulmotor. In three minutes the man was fully revived. Had the pulmotor not been available, it would have been three or four hours before he recovered.

Mjr. Gillespie Complimented P. C. I. Cadets

Improvement Shown Was 100 p. c.—Would Like to See a Sham Fight Next Year—Winners of Prizes

The annual inspection of the cadets of the Collegiate Institute took place yesterday afternoon at 3.30 p.m., before Major G. H. Gillespie, O. & I.C.O. of Kingston.

The march past was exceedingly well done, as were also the company drill and manual exercises. There is no doubt that there was at least 100 p.c. improvement over their work last year on which the officers and lads alike are to be congratulated. Major Gillespie, after the inspection had taken place, addressed the corps as follows:

"It is the duty of an inspecting officer to either praise or criticise a corps, but I have no criticism to make this afternoon; none whatever. I am delighted with your work. The various movements you performed were not exactly perfect, but it is hard to arrive at perfection. You have done exceedingly well, since you started your drill on May 1st.

I want to congratulate Capt. Jamieson as well as the other officers of the corps. I do not want to flatter him, but I want to say that here are few officers of the third division better qualified as an instructor than he.

"I was pleased to receive the papers of Lorne Cann, to get a place on the team that goes to England. I hope that in another year, with the rifles you are to get, there will be many more in readiness to apply for a place on the team. You understand, of course, that the Imperial Army has invited two teams to go to England each year. There is no reason why some of you should not find a place on the team, and I can tell you that it is an excellent trip. I want to congratulate you on having a bugle band attached to your corps. Their smartness has attracted considerable attention this afternoon. The same applies to the signallers also.

He asked the mto keep in mind the Cadet camp, which starts July 6th. He urged everyone to attend and promised them a most enjoyable outing.

"The weather," he said, "had been altogether too hot to ask them to do any more drill than they had done, but in another year he would like to see them put on a sham fight."

Lt.-Col. Miller also spoke a few words to the lads, urging them to attend to their drill and keep an interest in the corps. He spoke from the military side, stating that they never knew but what some day their services would be required by their country. Speaking from the citizenship side, he said that the training they would receive would teach them to be good clean citizens.

The Prizes.

The following prizes were then distributed:

Cup for best company, given by Capt. W. H. Clarkton, won by No. 1 Co., under Capt. W. Peever.

Medal for best shot, given by Capt. A. W. McPherson, won by Battalion Commander L. Cann.

Medal for efficiency as an officer, given by Mrs. C. E. Jamieson, A.E. C.I., won by Adjutant S. Mills.

Inspector Seized Nets

It is reported that Assistant Fishery Inspector Jas. Windsor recently apprehended John McWilliams in a branch of the game laws with respect to net fishing out of season.

MOSQUITO BRIGADE HAS GATHERED FORCES IN LOW PARTS ALONG RIVER

The mosquitoes have returned to plague those who come within reach of their lance-pointed "stings," and while they have reported on City lawns and verandahs, the real forces are to be found in the marshy stretches along the river. One of the Slattery boys stated that a few nights ago a cloud of mosquitoes swarmed around him and his horses along the edge of a field south of the City and before he could unharness the team one of the animals was rolling on the ground in an effort to free himself from the tiny lancers. They and their allies, a spring fly with a lovely bite, are out for gore just now, and it is just as comfortable to keep out of their range. They are not severe in their assaults on the river, nor on the exposed parts of the banks, but they are in their element where the shore is weedy and there are clumps of trees. Some of the specimens that have been squelched on ankles and arms are nearly the size of mud hens, and during their evening hour of song they roll a chorus that puts the thrills of the frogs in the back ground. To those who spend the coming holiday on the river banks, a word of warning is given to pass by the low places, unless some of the citizens are looking for a fight. If they are inclined to ward the latter, the mosquitoes will give them a busy time with odds on favourites as victors.

TWO BAND CONCERTS ON SUNDAY WILL BE FEATURE

Of the Visit to Peterboro' of the 15th Regt. "Argyle Light Infantry" of Belleville--Will Arrive in the City To-morrow Night--Free Ball Games---Trips Over Lift Lock.

The arrangement for the visit of the 15th Belleville regiment (Argyle Light Infantry), is now almost complete. Approximately 350 men of the Belleville corps will arrive in the city to-morrow night, 10.11 o'clock, per G. T. R. train, and will proceed directly to Central Park.

An advance party will be in the City to-morrow morning, for the purpose of pitching tents in the Park, and preparing other things necessary for a successful camp.

On Sunday morning both regiments will fall in at the Armouries, from whence they wil march promptly at 9.30 a.m. and proceed to St. John's Church, for divine service. It is not positively known whether or not the Chapain from the Belleville Regiment will be able to come, in which event Canon Davidson, Chaplain of the local Regiment, will conduct the service.

On Sunday afternoon the Band of the 15th Regiment will give a concert in Victoria Park, and the following is the selected programme: March, "Operatic Airs" .... Missud Overture, "Norma," .....Bellini Polka, "Pizzicato" ..... Stranso Intermezzo, "After Sunset" .. Pryor Selection "Remmick's Hits," Lampe Overture (sacred) "Throw Out the Life Line" . . . . . Al. Hayes Selection, "Snyder's Hits" . Berlin Waltz "Nights of Gladness" Ancliffe Grand Fantasia "Albion" .. Battens March, "Pubycon" .. .. .. Hinchey God Save The King.

On Sunday evening, after Church, the Band of the 57th Regiment will give a concert in Victoria Park.

On Monday morning both regiments will have a short parade down town, at 9 o'clock and this will give the citizens a chance to look them over. The remainder of the day will be left for the men to do practically as they like. At 10 o'clock the visitors and the men of the local Regiment may go to the baseball game at Riverside Park. All men in uniform will be given free admittance.

At 10.30 the steamer Stoney Lake will be in readiness to take the men over the Lift Lock if they desire to go, and also at 2 o'clock they will be given the same privilege.

The day will finish with a band concert by the band of the 15th and 57th combined, which should prove a feature.

Much interest in the forthcoming visit has been manifested, not only by the members of the local regiment but by many citizens as well. If there should be a particularly strong turn out to Divine Service on Sunday morning it is doubtful whether or not St. John's Church will be spacious enough to accommodate them. Chairs will, however, be available, and these will be placed in the building.

It is hoped the citizens of Peterborough will extend to the visiting regiment a most cordial welcome. With a programme, as outlined, and many other attractions, Empire Day should this year be one that will rest in the minds of the public of Peterborough for some time.

Central Park is considered by the Commanding Officer of the Belleville Regiment to be a very suitable camping site. The men will be fed through the medium of the local hotels and restaurants and a most satisfactory billet is assured them.

The officers of the local regiment have been untiring in their efforts to provide for the comfort and convenience of the visitors. The service at St. John's Church on Sunday morning will be attended by militia men only, as owing to the limited accomodation there will be no available space for the citizens. The Choir will be composed of men of the local Regiment.

Arrangements For Fraternal Sunday

Are Speedily Progressing--Both Local Bands Will Lead Parade on June 28

Arrangements for Fraternal Sunday on June the 28th are progressing very speedily, and it is thought that the day will be celebrated in such a way as to make it a memorable one in this city. The committee met the Ministerial Association yesterday afternoon and the latter decided to cooperate with the Fraternal Societies in every possible way. They expressed themselves as pleased to throw open their churches, and preach appropriate sermons on the Sunday evening in question. They moreover determined to announce the special service in their respective churches from now until the 28th of June, and do all in their power to make the day a success.

Both the 57th and Citizens' Bands are going to take part in the march to the churches, and other preparations and arrangements are being made by those representing the various fraternal societies. A very creditable feature of the Fraternal Sunday has been introduced which makes the day even more fraternal in character.

The Health Association, the Committee in charge of the Fraternal Sunday Arrangements, and the Ministerial Association are going to petition the churches to have them give half of the loose collection on the evening of June 28th to the Health Association for the purpose of giving local victims of tuberculosis a vacation of several weeks' duration this summer. This worthy object, they hope, will be supported ardently by the people, and every effort will be made to have Fraternal Sunday of some philanthropic value.

Canteen Scandals

Special Wire to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., May 22.—Seven military men, mostly quartermasters and quartermaster-sergeants, and nine civilians, pleaded guilty to-day to defrauding the Government in connection with "canteen scandals," which promised startling revelations higher up. The court deferred passing of sentences, but the prisoners were all required to remain in custody without opportunity of bail.

Y.M.C.A. AND MATRIMONY.

No Young Men Allowed to Remain More Than Two Years.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 21.— The unique rule has been issued by the Milwaukee Young Men's Christian Association that in the future no roomer will be admitted to the building for more than two years, the inference being that at the end of that time he ought to be able to have found a wife and make room for some other young men.

The expectation that the new rule will work to provide homes for young men is expressed in these words of Secretary Willis:

"We do not propose to run bachelor apartments. The rooms are for young men who have no other homes."

ONE HEAD SUGGESTED

Deputation from City Council Makes Proposal to Water Commissioners That One Engineer Supervise all Departments

EXPERTS CRITICIZED

Last night at the meeting of the Water Commissioners a cheme was broached by a deputation from the City Council that if put into effect would have the effect of making a radical change in the workings of several departments of the city's work. The plan as suggested last night was to put the Hydro-Electric, the Waterworks, and the work of the City Engineer's Department all under one executive head, he is to be responsible to whatever body or bodies that it was decided. Mayor Butler and Alderman Johnston were the chief spokesmen for the alderman, although all the members of the Council present, except Alderman Anderson, were expressedly in favour of the proposed change.

The Water Commissioners on the other hand did not think the proposition a feasible one, but declared their willingness to give the plan every consideration.

What was said about experts from outside of the city, including Mr. Willis Chipman, of Toronto, by Mayor Butler and other aldermen, might have precipitated a free-for-all if the said experts had been within hearing and striking instance at the time. A good many of the faults in sewer and other construction work that have been made in the past years, were laid at the doors of visiting experts, and the Mayor contended that the plan proposed would save the expense and subsequent dissatisfaction of employing experts. The real advantage that was proposed by the scheme was briefly as follows: That as the three departments mentioned above would all be using the streets of the city (for poles, mains, sewers, and underground wires, etc.,) it would be well to have one engineer at the head of the three departments to have full authority in the matter of using the streets so that the street work of one department would neither conflict with or disrupt the street work of another department.

There were present to back up the programme suggested Mayor Butler, and Aldermen Dobbin, Saunders, Johnston, Duncan, McIntyre, Stratton, Anderson, Green, Duffus and Langford. The question they introduced was explicitly that of having the Commission appoint the City Engineer head of the Water and Hydro departments so that he would have charge of them as well as the city's work.

Mr. Matthews favoured the principle of the plan, but said that it would be almost impossible to get a man that would fill the requirements of such a position. The aldermen here expressed their confidence in Mr. Parsons, but the chairman said that while he thought that Mr. Parsons was an extremely efficient City Engineer that a man with more electrical knowledge and experience would be required.

Alderman Johnston—Suppose Mr. Chairman, the right man could be produced, are you agreeable to the principle of having one man at the head of both departments?

Mr. Matthews—Well, that is a question that cannot be answered off hand. It would depend on who the man was responsible to. The expense that has been occasioned by a conflict in our street work, resulting in some having to be done over again, is greatly exaggerated. I can see nothing ahead but trouble if the plan you suggest were to be carried out.

Commissioners Moore and Hicks were of the same opinion. Finally, on the motion of Messrs. Stratton and Duffus the Mayor, Alderman Anderson, Alderman Johnston and Alderman Duncan were appointed a committee from the Council to confer with the commissioners at some future date and decide or discuss the feasibility of the plan.

They will likely come together on Tuesday.

Ample Warning Has Been Given

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, May 22—Apropos of the trouble threatened over the landing of Hindu immigrants from the Pacific Coast to-night, the Pall Mall Gazette remarks: "The yellow races are not wanted and cannot be introduced without endangering the white settlers' livelihood. If Canada has taken forcible measures to defend her shores it must be remembered she has given ample warning."

RATHER PEANUTTY GRAFT.

With the other examples of the prostitution of power and responsibility to party advantage given by Hon. W. J. Hanna, incidental premier of Ontario, we are not surprised that he is using the public money for party profit. We are not surprised that his speeches on social and temperance reform are being "franked" —sent free through the mails to the electors, but will the postage paid out of a public chest that doesn't contain money enough to pay the government grants earned by public schools. It would not be so bad if the speeches were, in the remotest degree, worth the price. The Conservative party has its campaign bills paid by the people, and the "Grits" are compelled to pay their share of the cost of corrupting themselves. This is pretty, low down, peanut, picayune, partizan practice. Mr. Hanna has the effrontery to put "the party of gentlemen" in the pauper class. Mr. Taylor, a government contractor, got a doubtful bill or claim promptly paid on the head of his paying Mr. Hanna a contribution of $500 to the party "corruption fund." If Mr. Hanna had saved and used this five hundred dolalrs to pay the postage on the Conservative campaign literature, he would have been making legitimate use of this illegitimate gift. It would have looked a lot better than sneaking stamps from the [illegible] it would have amounted to the same thing. The money would have come out of the people's pockets all the same. If Mr. Taylor paid his five hundred dolalrs through Mr. Hanna, into the Conservative "corruption fund" on condition of his getting a favourable settlement of his bill, he was at no loss. He got terms of settlement that amounted, in the financial advantage received, to far more than $500. In Mr. Taylor getting the long end of the settlement, the province got the short end; so that in effect the $500 came out of the public chest. It is pretty stiff crookedness that indirectly bribes the people with their own money. Why should the Whitney government, because it has a big majority, have the advantage of the gerrymander, the advantage of stifling investigation into the sins of one of its cabinet members, and the advantage of having the public—friends and enemies alike—pay its postage bills for the distribution of the campaign literature of the oCnservative party? The "Grits" have to go down into their pockets to pay for distributing theis campaign literature and to pay the cost of printing and compiling as well as distribution, while the Conservatives get printing done and postage paid with the peoples money. Isn't the position a noble one to be occupied by a great political party?

CANADA FOR CANADIANS.

Mr. J. Lockie Wilson, Superintendent of Agriculturl Societies, in a speech at Clinton, enunciated a great principe in advocating the milling of Canadian wheat in Canada. He showed that Canada exports 100 million bushels of wheat every year, worth at a price that has not varied substantially for about fifteen years—100 million dollars. The price of wheat has not materialy changed in that time, but the price of the by-products—has enormously increased, so that bran, for feeding, worth, a few years ago, $8 to $10 per ton, is hard to get at $25 per ton. Mr. Wilson insists that these by-products represent a fertility value to the land of 24 cents for every bushel of wheat, so that the loss of the land by the exportation of 100 million bushels is 24 millions. This jug-handled situation is further emphasised by Mr. Wilson. He says that after our Canadian wheat has been shipped about 5,000 or 6,000 miles by land and water, it is ground in England and bread made from the flour is sold for 2 1-2 cents per pound loaf, while Canadians pay for the same loaf from 4 cents to 6 cents per loaf. In Peterborough we pay at the rate of—for a pound loaf. If the 100 million bushels of wheat we export were ground in Canada, the flour, bran, etc., would be worth 132 milion dollars instead of 100 millions as exported in the form of wheat, and the by-products would promote stock-growing and help to improve and maintain the fertility of our soil. Canada should have the full benefit of the development to the highest point of all native products. We should see that our pulpwood in the process of manufacture gives employment to labour, and the production of Canadian workmen of pulpwood machinery. Everything that can be produced in Canada should be so produced. We should build our own ships. We can do it, and have done it. We should have a Canadian navy, and ild the ships in Canada instead of sending money to build ships in Great Britain, which are no more a part of the Imperial navy than would be our Canadian ships, in case of Imperial need. We should, in making appointments to places of trust, prefer Canadian talent, and not do as the super-loyal Borden Government did, import a foreigner, a citizen of the United States, to be Manager of Canada's sole government railway, the Intercolonial. We have Canadian colleges and Canadian college graduates fit to take any position in the country, yet we import parsons, college presidents, railway managers, etc. Why should we do it, and other things of a similar kind that discredit Canadian ability and discourage Canadian ambition. Canada for Casndians is a motto that should be lived up to from every possible point. We should produce everything possible for our needs to the limits of our resources and capabilities; that is, all the ordinary productions we need, as far as we can manufacture them. It is true that we have not made the advances in art and scientific production that will permit us to make these things of artistic and scientific character, at home. But these, pictures, statuary and governors general we can import consistently, for we do not produce them.

THE REAL MAN.

The real man, Mrs. Eddy insists, is spiritual and sinless; he is the image and likeness of God, of divine Mind. The suppositious counterfeit of this man is the material human being, the image and likeness of the carnal mind, "conceived in sin and brought forth in iniquity." When Jesus said, "Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do," he was referring to the carnal man whom Mrs. Eddy calls mortal man; when he sai, "Be ye therefore perfect even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect," he was referring to spiritual man, whom Mrs. Eddy terms the real man.

THE CULPRIT WHO CAN PAY.

One of the most common awards in police court cases is $10 or 30 days in jail. That is, if the accused man has ten dollars, or can get it, he goes free. Otherwise he is locked up in jail. Is this right? Or take it another way. The man who can pay a fine is really able to buy his way out of prison. At least he is enabled to keep out by reason of his financial standing. There's something not exactly right or fair about the practice. If a man has done anything that calls for a jail sentence in the way of punishment, the possession or absence of cash in his pocket should make little difference to the treatment handed out to him by the authorities.—Guelph Mercury.
